INTRODUCTION

TO THE FOURTEENTH EDITION.

THE first edition of Hayes and Jarman's Concise Forms of Wills with Practical Notes was the work of two distinguished Conveyancers—WILLIAM HAYES, of 11, Cloisters, Temple, and the well-known author of the Treatise on Wills, THOMAS JARMAN, of 60, Chancery Lane. It was published in January, 1835, three years before the Wills Act came into operation, and not only may it be described as a pocket-volume, but it was moreover a volume which could without inconvenience have been actually carried in the pocket. From the prefatory remarks of its Authors, reproduced in every subsequent edition and here reprinted post, p. ix, it appears that it pretended to be "a portable volume of short forms . . . illustrated by succinct statements of the law upon points of frequent occurrence."

During the eighty years that have since elapsed, Jarman on Wills, now in its 6th edition (1910), Theobald on Wills, now in its 7th edition (1908), Hawkins on Wills, now in its 2nd edition (1912), and many well-known books of forms and precedents have made their appearance. I am nevertheless assured that this work, which cites indeed many cases to be found in no other text-book, and contains what is probably the best commentary on the Wills Act ever published, not only holds its place as a book of forms, but has preserved the repute which it early acquired as a book on the law of wills.

It was one of the works which Vice-Chancellor Hall always kept beside him when on the Bench. Sir George Jessel, M.R., using perhaps a more complimentary expression than he intended, referred on one occasion with approval to what was "laid down" in the notes to the 7th edition of Hayes and Jarman (Quilhampton v. Going (1876), 24 W. R. at p. 918); while in the case of In re Lord Lawrence, [1915] 1 Ch. 129, where Lord Cozens-Hardy, M.R., refers to "Hayes and Jarman's Concise Forms of Wills, a work of high authority," the efficacy of a clause which has appeared in every edition since 1835 has recently been established by the Court of Appeal.

The remarkable industry of former Editors of this work has, however, tended to increase the length of the Practical Notes to an extent out of all proportion to the Concise Forms, and I have in this edition tried to make them a little more methodical and less discursive. In attempting this I regret that to the cases referred to I have had to add nearly 400, but I have at the same time taken the opportunity of eliminating 800 from the list of cases formerly cited. Even so, reference is now made to more than 3,000 cases, and for a book which began its career as a book of forms this may be considered an astonishing number. The withdrawal of a case formerly referred to has not been undertaken without deliberation, but, on the assumption that one strong case is generally of more value than several weak or distinguishable cases, I have in many instances been content to refer only to recent decisions in which the older authorities are dealt with, and given references to authoritative text-books where the point under discussion is considered at greater length than would here seem permissible. For no collection of notes upon points of law can form an exhaustive treatise upon a subject of law, although it is true that many topics of great variety are in these notes very fully if succinctly discussed. I do not therefore suggest that a reference will here be found to every case on the law of wills reported down to the end of February, 1919. It is enough that in this edition the law is stated as at that date, except that a few later and important cases, such as the recent decision of the House of Lords on the validity of a bequest for masses, have been included.

Nine years having passed since the issue of the last edition of this work, I have found it necessary not only to make frequent amendments in the statements of law but, in addition to and often in place of the old notes, to write notes altogether new.

To my mind, however, a book of this kind requires more than the bringing of the case-law up to date. The practical use of the book has to be kept in sight. And in this view there may be value in what is old, but can be none in what is antiquated.

In the setting of the book I have therefore ventured to make some rather daring alterations. As it is now many years since the book was anything like a pocket-volume, no useful purpose is served by keeping to the small pages of former editions, and the pages are therefore now of a size customary in books of precedents. The Wills Act is now printed with the same marginal notes and punctuation which it bears in the Statutes at Large, and it has seemed to me timely that a change should be made in the manner of printing the sections of the Wills Act. The sections have hitherto been drawn out so that the notes might, so far as possible, be on the same page as the words of the section to which they refer, but the notes had accumulated to such an extent that a perusal, for example, of the 9th section, which extended over sixteen pages, had come to make inconsiderate demands upon the patience of the reader. The sections are therefore now so printed that a section may be read continuously with notes appended but not interspersed. In this edition, and in accordance with modern custom, references to the several reports of a case are given in the Table of Cases, while in the text reference is only made to the principal report and to the Law Journal; and the Statutes are with their dates, and, where they have them, their short titles, placed in a Table of Statutes, and taken out of the Index which has been otherwise much enlarged.

The most striking departure, however, which is now made from the form of the earlier editions of Hayes and Jarman is the arrangement of the wills in numbered paragraphs. In compliance with the repeated suggestions of reviewers and the wishes of members of the profession I have done this, although I must plead that it is not always an easy matter to divide into paragraphs a will otherwise framed and yet preserve its general form. The phraseology of forms in a book which has been in constant use for upwards of eighty years should not, however, be unadvisedly altered, and many of the forms have stood the test of time. Conveyancer's English, which affects independence of punctuation and tends to catalogue the parts of speech, bringing together a variety of prepositions, following them by a collection of substantives in both the singular and the plural number, and qualifying equivocal expressions with the adverb "respectively," cannot at its best display literary charm; but ordinary English has often proved almost as puzzling to the lawyer as legal phraseology to the layman, and upon lawyers in the last resort the duty of interpreting a legal document devolves. One result of maintaining, so far as I have thought it advisable, the original language of the forms has been to leave some paragraphs inconveniently long. But a further division of these paragraphs would generally involve a re-arrangement of the clauses, and consequently render it harder than it should be to identify the new forms with the old. It may be observed that in years gone by the separation of the clauses in a will was often accomplished by the now obsolete practice of beginning a clause with the word item. See, for example, the will of Jonathan Swift in 1740 and the will of Alexander Pope in 1743, printed in the complete editions of their works.

I much regret that I have found it necessary to introduce any cross-references in the forms, but those which I have made are so few and so simple that I trust that their introduction will not be regarded as a serious defect.

The difficulty of drawing a will for a testator whose peculiar circumstances do not happen to be those of any one of the persons on whose behalf the particular wills set out in this work are supposed to be drawn, is one which would seem not to have been hitherto sufficiently considered. Does a farmer necessarily have a wife and infant children? May not a man give his wife a jointure unless he regard himself as "a large landed proprietor"? It is believed that the Outline Will given on p. 128 will do something towards removing this difficulty, and with the aid of the Index and Table of Contents prove generally more helpful than many of the complete precedents.

In place of the Appendix on a Charge of Debts, much of the learning in which had become obsolete, I have introduced an Appendix on the law of Intestacy. Many of the forms provide for an ultimate devolution of personal estate as on intestacy, and it will, I hope, be a convenience, by means of the Table in Appendix III., to see at a glance what in various circumstances such a provision effects. It is, moreover, sometimes desirable to know how such property would devolve in the absence of its effective disposition.

Although in this edition three new Precedents and many new clauses have been inserted, and to the Miscellaneous Forms more than twenty have been added, it cannot be pretended that the book has yet successfully obviated, if that be considered its object, the necessity of occasionally taxing the independent resources of the professional draughtsman. Neither are testators invited to believe, or their professional advisers to apprehend, that the mere adoption of these Forms will speedily tend, in the case of wills, to make application to the Court by originating summons a thing of the past.

All that I must dare to hope is that, in editing the fourteenth edition of this work, its "high authority" will be in no way impaired, and that the reconstruction which I have undertaken to make in its form will be generally approved.

PREFATORY REMARKS

TO THE FIRST EDITION—1835.

THOUGH many works on Wills, with the accompaniment of Precedents, are already in the hands of the practitioner, yet a portable volume of short forms, not copied from draughts, but originated with a view to general applicability, and illustrated by succinct statements of the law upon points of frequent occurrence, seemed to be still wanting. This desideratum the authors have endeavoured to supply—with what success the Profession must judge.

A notion has unfortunately obtained, that, while to the preparation of a deed learning and experience are essential, the disposition of a man's property by will may be safely confided to the minimum of legal knowledge. Hence, the conveyancer is rarely consulted, the solicitor is often dispensed with, and the schoolmaster too frequently called in; or, if the schoolmaster be not at hand, there is commonly to be found in every village a will-maker of equal courage and ignorance, the collector or inheritor of exploded forms and phrases. This notion proceeds upon the two-fold error, that wills are expounded not according to the rules of law, but according to the dictates of common sense—and that common sense is the same in all men. The rules of law, when applied (as applied they must be) to wills thus unadvisedly prepared, often defeat the intention, that is, the probable intention; but if those rules were discarded for a season, common sense, outraged by the conflict of opinion, making one poor word, perhaps, the sport of many contrariant decisions, would soon demand their restoration. The general impression, however, that wills are not amenable to the strict rules of legal construction extended its influence to the judicature, and induced a certain laxity of interpretation which confirmed and encouraged the original error. Thus confident ignorance on the one hand, and judicial indulgence on the other, produced and reproduced blunders and obscurities of every shape and shade, which have swelled the mass of adjudication, without advancing the law as a science. But we may observe in some of the later judgments a tendency to establish a wholesome strictness of construction, to discountenance arguments drawn from vague and speculative views of the intention, and to recur to Lord Coke's "good rule, always to judge in such cases (i.e. cases of informal wills) as near as may be, and according to the rules of law."* By steadily acting upon this sage advice, by showing that the principles of interpretation applicable to deeds and wills, which (with two or three well-established exceptions) are the same in their institution, are likewise the same in their application, the Profession and the Public would soon be taught that the last important office of providing for the disposal of men's possessions, when death has precluded the possibility of explanation or correction, requires at least the same degree of information and intelligence which is confessedly necessary to the conveyance of a rood of land from a seller to a purchaser. Such an inflexible course of decision would tend to abate, even in professional men, somewhat of that confidence which now prompts them to draw wills without any previous study, relying upon intention as the law of the instrument, and the liberal rectifier of all blunders.

There cannot, indeed, be a greater mistake than that of supposing that a very small stock of legal terms, added to a very ordinary education, suffices to accomplish the will-maker. On the contrary, a will is alone capable of exhausting the science and ingenuity of the most able conveyancer. It may embrace every allowable modification of property, every possible scheme of disposition. As it is the duty of the will-maker (at least of the solicitor undertaking that office) not merely to draw, but to advise, he should be conversant as well with the various modes, as with the various forms of gift; prepared alike to suggest the aptest kind of destination, and to effect it by the aptest words. Even of those testators whose wills are prepared under professional advice, it may be safely affirmed, that, while the intentions of not a few are frustrated by failure in point of expression, the intentions of a far greater number are never elicited by presenting to their consideration the arrangements most suitable to their views and circumstances. In a large proportion of cases the nature, as well as the language, of the disposition is determined not by the deliberate choice of the person who makes the gift, exercised over the various modes in which the law allows him to direct the enjoyment of his property after his decease, but by the extent of the knowledge possessed by the person who prepares the instrument, which may therefore be said to exhibit the mind of the framer rather than the will of the testator.

On the other hand, it must be admitted that the blame of miscarriage is not unfrequently attributable to the testator himself. Want of explicitness or candour in the communication of the actual state of his property or circumstances, or an obstinate attachment to some favourite project, may render abortive the most judicious advice. A short-sighted economy, too, which calculates the present fee and disregards the ravages of a posthumous Chancery suit, frequently obliges the practitioner to rely upon his own powers when he would willingly avail himself of experienced counsel.

So far as the mischief springs from the loose exposition of testamentary instruments, we have everything to hope from greater firmness in the judicature. So far as unskilful penning is its source, we must look to the increase of knowledge and tact in the practitioner. These it is the object of the following sheets to promote, by furnishing him with some useful suggestions, and guarding him against some not unfrequent errors. With respect to the testator himself, indeed, the evil has its root in human nature; yet, even here, some good may be expected to result from setting before him a few simple and rational forms of disposition, with the consequences of indulgence in complicated schemes and capricious humours.

As an eminent conveyancer has often been heard to declare, that of all the duties which devolved upon his department of the Profession, that of drawing or settling a will is the most thankless and unprofitable, while it is well known that one-half, at least, of the cases laid before counsel arise out of informal wills, the preceding remarks must stand above the suspicion of seeking to attract this responsible branch of practice to the chambers of the regular draughtsman. The authors trust, indeed, that their joint labours bear internal evidence of an anxiety to assist in delivering wills from the necessity of frequent resort to counsel or to courts, by putting plain directions into the hands of the general practitioner. They are not, however, vain enough to think that no error has been admitted into the following sheets capable of producing the evils which they deprecate.

THE WILLS ACT.

1 VICT. CHAP. 26.

[3rd July, 1837.]

EXPLANATION OF TERMS.

[Be it enacted by the Queen's most Excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Lords spiritual and temporal, and Commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That] the words and expressions hereinafter mentioned, which in their ordinary signification have a more confined or a different meaning, shall in this Act, except where the nature of the provision or the context of the Act shall exclude such construction, be interpreted as follows; (that is to say,) the word "will" shall extend to a testament, and to a codicil, and to an appointment by will or by writing in the nature of a will in exercise of a power, and also to a disposition by will and testament or devise of the custody and tuition of any child, by virtue of an Act passed in the twelfth year of the reign of King Charles the Second, intituled An Act for taking away the Court of Wards and Liveries, and Tenures in Capite and by Knights Service, and Purveyance, and for settling a Revenue upon his Majesty in lieu thereof, or by virtue of an Act passed in the parliament of Ireland in the fourteenth and fifteenth years of the reign of King Charles

12 Car. 2, c. 24.

Marginal notes.

REPEAL CLAUSE.

Sect. 2. II. [Repealed by 37 & 38 Vict. c. 35.]

GENERAL ENABLING CLAUSE.

Sect. 3. III. And be it further enacted, That it shall be lawful for every All property may be disposed of by will.
 person (a) to devise, bequeath, or dispose of, by his will executed in manner hereinafter required, all real estate, and all personal estate (b) which he shall be entitled to, either at law or in equity (c), at the time of his death, and which if not so devised, bequeathed, or disposed of would devolve upon the heir-at-law, or customary heir of him, or, if he became entitled by descent, of his ancestor (d), or upon his executor or administrator; and that the power hereby given shall extend to all real estate of the nature of customary freehold or tenant right, or customary or copyhold (e), notwithstanding that the testator may not have surrendered the same to the use of his will, or notwithstanding that, being entitled as heir, devisee, or otherwise to be admitted thereto, he shall not have been admitted thereto, or notwithstanding that the same, in consequence of the want of a custom to devise or surrender to the use of a will or otherwise, could not at law have been disposed of by will if this Act had not been made, or notwithstanding that the same, in consequence of there being a custom that a will or surrender to the use of a will should continue in force for a limited time only, or any other special custom, could not have been disposed of by will according to the power contained in this Act, if this Act had not been made; and also to estates pur autre vie, whether there shall or shall not be any special occupant thereof, and whether the same shall be freehold, customary freehold, tenant right, customary or copyhold, or of any other tenure, and whether the same shall be a corporeal or an incorporeal hereditament; and also to all contingent (f), executory, or other future interests in any real or personal estate, whether the testator may or may not be ascertained as the person or one of the persons in whom the same respectively may become vested, and whether he may be entitled thereto under the instrument by which the same respectively were created or under any disposition thereof by deed or will; and also to all rights of entry for conditions broken, and other rights of entry; and also to such of the same estates, interests, and rights respectively, and other real and personal estate, as the testator may be entitled to at the time of his death, notwithstanding that he may become entitled to the same subsequently to the execution of his will (g).

(a) The subject of the wills of aliens and of British subjects domiciled abroad is treated of in the second Appendix, post, p. 455, to which the reader is referred for fuller information. Alien, or person domiciled abroad.

The following points as to aliens may be briefly noted here:—

By the British Nationality and Status of Aliens Act, 1914 (4 & 5 Geo. V. c. 17), s. 17, “real and personal property of every description may be taken, acquired, held, and disposed of by an alien in the same manner as by a natural-born British subject; and a title to real and personal property of every description may be derived through, from, or in succession to an alien in the same manner in all respects as through, from, or in succession to a natural-born British subject. Provided that . . . this section shall not affect any estate or interest in real or personal property to which any person has or may become entitled either mediately or immediately in possession or expectancy in pursuance of any disposition made before the 12th day of May, 1870, or in pursuance of any devolution by law on the death of any person dying before that day.”

But the will of a foreigner dying domiciled abroad will not be admitted to probate in the United Kingdom, nor have any operation upon movable property in the United Kingdom, although such will may be executed in accordance with the provisions of the Wills Act, unless it is validly executed according to the requirements of the law of the testator's domicile, In b. Von Buseck, 6 P. D. 211; 51 L. J. P. 9; Bloxam v. Favre, 9 P. D. 130; 53 L. J. P. 26.

Sect. 3.

The validity of a will dealing with immovable property situate in the United Kingdom, by whomsoever made, and wheresoever executed, is wholly governed by the ordinary testamentary law of that part of the United Kingdom in which such immovable property is situate; Dicey, Conflict of Law, 500. It is to be observed that the distinction is not between real property and personal property, but between movable property and immovable property. Leaseholds are immovables.

Legatee of chose in action sues in name of executor.

(b) By this section the practice is not altered with respect to suing at law upon a chose in action bequeathed to a legatee; see Bromage v. Lloyd, 1 Ex. 32; 16 L. J. Ex. 257; and Bishop v. Curtis, 17 Jur. 23; 21 L. J. Q. B. 391; in which cases it was held that the specific legatee of a promissory note, though the executors assent to the bequest, cannot sue upon the note. The executors only are entitled to sue.

What interests devisable.

(c) A person in possession of land without other title has a devisable interest, Asher v. Whitlock, L. R. 1 Q. B. 1; 35 L. J. Q. B. 17. A purchaser who has made, but not signed, a contract for the purchase of real estate, the terms of which are proved, and which is signed by the vendor, has a devisable interest in that estate, Morgan v. Holford, 1 S. & G. 101. And a person who has sold and conveyed an estate in circumstances which entitle him in equity to have the sale set aside, has in the estate an interest of such a nature as to be devisable, Stump v. Gaby, 2 D. M. & G. 623; 22 L. J. Ch. 352; Gresley v. Mousley, 4 De G. & J. 78; 28 L. J. Ch. 620.

(d) The section of the Statute of Frauds which required the execution of a will of freehold estate to be attested by three or four witnesses, was with other Acts repealed by sect. 2, "except so far as the same Acts relate to any wills to which this Act does not extend;" and sect. 3 applies only to the devise of property which, if not so devised, would devolve upon the heir-at-law or customary heir of the testator or his ancestor, or upon the executor or administrator of the testator. Upon the construction of these clauses it was doubted whether, in the case of a testator dying without heirs, it would not, to prevent an escheat to the lord, be necessary that the will should be executed pursuant to the old law. But see Wentworth v. Humphrey, 11 App. Cas. 619; 55 L. J. P. C. 66; and In v. Hartley, 1899, P. 40; 68 L. J. P. 16; where it would not appear that the Law Officers had been aware of the decision in Wentworth v. Humphrey.

Copyholds.

(e) The effect of this section is to enable a copyholder in every case to devise his estate without a surrender to the use of his will; and to defeat his widow's right to freebench, Lacey v. Hill, L. R. 19 Eq. 346; 44 L. J. Ch. 215; but the estate remains in the customary heir until the admittance of the devisee. Consequently, where a copyholder devised to trustees, who did not disclaim, but tendered for admittance the customary heir, whom the lord refused to admit on account of the devise, though the Court would not grant a mandamus to compel the lord to admit the heir, Reg. v. Garland, L. R. 5 Q. B. 269; 39 L. J. Q. B. 86; yet the lord having refused to admit the heir could not seize for want of a tenant, Garland v. Mead, L. R. 6 Q. B. 441; 40 L. J. Q. B. 179.

See further as to devises of copyholds, note to section 5.

By the Dower Act, 3 & 4 Will. IV. c. 105, s. 4, it is enacted that no widow shall be entitled to dower out of any land which shall have been absolutely disposed of by her husband in his lifetime or by his will.

Dower.

(f) Under both the old and the present law a contingent fee under a shifting clause is devisable, even though the contingency happen after the death of the testator, and is of such a nature that he, personally, could never have derived any benefit from it, Ingilby v. Amcotts, 21 Be. 585; 25 L. J. Ch. 769.

Contingent estates.

(g) Compare section 24, and the note thereto.

FEES ON COPYHOLDS.

IV. Provided always, and be it further enacted, That where any real estate of the nature of customary freehold or tenant right, or customary or copyhold, might, by the custom of the manor of which the same is holden, have been surrendered to the use of a will, and the testator shall not have surrendered the same to the use of his will, no person entitled or claiming to be entitled thereto by virtue of such will shall be entitled to be admitted, except upon payment of all such stamp duties, fees, and sums of money as would have been lawfully due and payable in respect of the surrendering of such real estate to the use of the will, or in respect of presenting, registering, or enrolling such surrender, if the same real estate had been surrendered to the use of the will of such testator: Provided also, that where the testator was entitled to have been admitted to such real estate, and might, if he had been admitted thereto, have surrendered the same to the use of his will, and shall not have been admitted thereto, no person entitled or claiming to be entitled to such real estate in consequence of such will shall be entitled to be admitted to the same real estate by virtue thereof, except on payment of all such stamp duties, fees, fine, and sums of money as would have been lawfully due and payable in respect of the admittance of such testator to such real estate, and also of all such stamp duties, fees, and sums of money as would have been lawfully due and payable in respect of surrendering such real estate to the use of the will, or of presenting, registering, or enrolling such surrender, had the testator been duly admitted to such real estate, and afterwards surrendered the same to the use of his will; all which stamp duties, fees, fine, or sums of money due as aforesaid shall be paid in addition to the stamp duties, fees, fine, or sums of money due or payable on the admit-

As to the fees and fines payable by devisees of customary and copyhold estates.

Sect. 4.      tance of such person so entitled or claiming to be entitled to the same real estate as aforesaid.

COPYHOLDS.

Sect. 5.
Wills or extracts of wills of customary freeholds and copyholds to be entered on the court rolls;

and the lord to be entitled to the same fine, &c., when such estates are not now devisable as he would have been
from the heir.

V And be it further enacted, That when any real estate of the nature of customary freehold or tenant right, or customary or copyhold, shall be disposed of by will, the lord of the manor or reputed manor of which such real estate is holden, or his steward, or the deputy of such steward, shall cause the will by which such disposition shall be made, or so much thereof as shall contain the disposition of such real estate, to be entered on the court rolls of such manor or reputed manor; and when any trusts are declared by the will of such real estate, it shall not be necessary to enter the declaration of such trusts, but it shall be sufficient to state in the entry on the court rolls that such real estate is subject to the trusts declared by such will; and when any such real estate could not have been disposed of by will if this Act had not been made, the same fine, heriot, dues, duties, and services shall be paid and rendered by the devisee as would have been due from the customary heir in case of the descent of the same real estate, and the lord shall as against the devisee of such estate have the same remedy for recovering and enforcing such fine, heriot, dues, duties, and services as he is now entitled to for recovering and enforcing the same from or against the customary heir in case of a descent (a).

(a) In devising copyholds for sale, the better course is to give to the trustees or executors a power to sell the copyholds, and not to devise the copyholds to the trustees or executors upon trust for sale. If power is given to the trustees or executors to sell, the purchaser will be entitled to be admitted without paying a double set of fees and fines, whereas if the copyholds are devised to the trustees or executors upon trust to sell them, one set of fees and fines is payable in respect of their admission, and another set by the purchaser upon his admission.

So in the case of a beneficial devise of copyholds, it is better to give the person intended to be benefited a power of appointment over them with a devise to him in default of appointment, rather than to devise them to him simpliciter. If he is given a power of appointment, then, if he is minded to sell them, he can do so without being compelled to take admittance and to pay the fees and fines incident thereto, and if he is not so minded, he can be admitted in respect of the estate devised to him in default of appointment.

This subject is referred to again briefly in the notes to Precedent 5. The question of the right of the lord to fines has been discussed in a large number of cases, but this topic belongs rather to the subject of "Copyholds" than "Wills," and the reader is therefore referred for further information to any of the standard text-books on copyhold tenure.

Sect. 5.

ESTATES PUR AUTRE VIE.

VI. And be it further enacted, That if no disposition by will shall be made of any estate pur autre vie of a freehold nature, the same shall be chargeable in the hands of the heir, if it shall come to him by reason of special occupancy, as assets by descent, as in the case of freehold land in fee simple; and in case there shall be no special occupant of any estate pur autre vie, whether freehold or customary freehold, tenant right, customary or copyhold, or of any other tenure, and whether a corporeal or incorporeal hereditament, it shall go to the executor or administrator of the party that had the estate thereof by virtue of the grant; and if the same shall come to the executor or administrator either by reason of a special occupancy or by virtue of this Act, it shall be assets in his hands, and shall go and be applied and distributed in the same manner as the personal estate of the testator or intestate (a).

(a) Under this section the legal personal representative of the deceased owner of estates pur autre vie is entitled to those estates, not only in the case where no special occupant is named in the limitations, but also in the case where a special occupant is named but never comes into existence. See Reynolds v. Wright, 2 D. F. & J. 590; 30 L. J. Ch. 381; in which case the devise was of leaseholds for lives to trustees, in trust for "A. and his heirs:" A. died intestate and illegitimate; and it was held that the leaseholds belonged to the administrator of A., and not beneficially to the devisees in trust. There may be a special occupant of an equitable estate pur autre vie as well as of a legal estate, Reynolds v. Wright, ubi supra. See also as to estates pur autre vie, Northern v. Carnegie, 4 Drew. 587; 28 L. J. Ch. 930; Pickersgill v. Grey, 30 Be. 352; 31 L. J. Ch. 394; Chatfield v. Berchtoldt, L. R. 7 Ch. 192; 41 L. J. Ch. 255; *Milner v. deprived an infant of the power which he formerly enjoyed of appointing by will guardians of his infant children under 12 Car. II. c. 24.

An infant attains his full age at the end of the day preceding the twenty-first anniversary of his birth, and from the beginning of such preceding day he is deemed to have attained it; 1 Salk. 44; Re Shurey, 1918, 1 Ch. 263; 87 L. J. Ch. 245. And see note (e) to Prec. 12, post.

By various statutes passed from time to time relating to friendly societies, industrial and provident societies, savings banks, trade unions, &c., infants have been empowered, upon attaining sixteen years of age, to make nominations in the nature of testamentary dispositions of their shares and interests in such societies, &c., not exceeding 100*l*. See as to friendly societies, the Friendly Societies Act, 1896, s. 56; as to industrial and provident societies, the Industrial and Provident Societies (Amendment) Act, 1913, s. 5; as to trade unions, the Trade Union Act Amendment Act, 1876, s. 10, as amended by the Provident Nominations and Small Intestacies Act, 1883; as to trustee savings banks, the Trustee Savings Banks Act, 1863, ss. 41 and 42, and 50 & 51 Vict. c. 40, s. 3; as to Government Annuities, the Government Annuities Act, 1882, s. 6, sub-head (e), as amended by the Provident Nominations and Small Intestacies Act, 1883, s. 3. As to the validity of a nomination paper, when the property disposed of exceeds 100*l*., see In b. Baxter, 1903, P. 12; 72 L. J. P. 2; Griffiths v. Eccles Provident, Industrial, Co-operative Society, Limited, 1912, A. C. 483; 81 L. J. K. B. 594.

MARRIED WOMEN.

Sect. 8.

nor of a feme covert.

VIII. Provided also, and be it further enacted, That no will made by any married woman shall be valid, except such a will as might have been made by a married woman before the passing of this Act (a).

Testamentary capacity of married woman.

(a) The effect of this section was to leave the legal testamentary capacity of a married woman (who has attained the age of twenty-one years) exactly as it stood under the old law, which still holds good as regards all property acquired before 1883, other than her separate estate, by a woman married before that date. Thus a married woman's devise of real estate before 1883, as before 1838, must have been made in the exercise of a power created for the purpose; and her capacity to bequeath personalty not settled to her separate use must have been derived from an agreement before marriage, or an agreement made after marriage for consideration, or the assent, either before or after her death, of her husband who survives her: 1 Jarm. Wills, p. 54. The Wills Act gave her no new power (Sugd. R. P. Stat. 331), but this section (sect. 8) does not operate to exclude the wills of married women, made in exercise of a testamentary power of appointment, from the operation of sect. 24, as to a will speaking as if executed immediately before the testator's death, or of sect. 27, as to a general gift operating as an execution of a power. Therefore a will made by a married woman, in the exercise of a testamentary power, may have an effect, by virtue of sects. 24 and 27, greater than it would have had before the statute, Thomas v. Jones, 1 D. J. & S. 63; 32 L. J. Ch. 139. A will made by a married woman who survived her husband, not re-executed during widowhood, had no greater effect than it would have had if she had died before her husband, and did not pass property acquired after his death, Willock v. Noble, L. R. 7 II. L. 580; 44 L. J. Ch. 345. Compare the note to sects. 24, 27. Sect. 8.

By the Married Women's Property Act, 1882, a married woman is capable of disposing by will of any real or personal property, being her separate estate, in the same manner as if she were a feme sole (sect. 1); every woman who marries after the commencement of the Act, 1st January, 1883, is entitled to hold as her separate property, and to dispose of in manner as aforesaid, all real and personal property belonging to her at the time of her marriage, or acquired by or devolving upon her after marriage (sect. 2); and every woman married before the commencement of the Act is entitled to hold as her separate property, and to dispose of in manner aforesaid, all real and personal property her title to which, whether vested or contingent, and whether in possession, reversion, or remainder, accrues after the commencement of the Act (sect. 5). The effect of sect. 5 of this Act is that if a married woman, married before 1883, acquired a title, whether vested or contingent, and whether in reversion or remainder, to any property before the commencement of the Act, such property does not, upon falling into possession since the Act came into operation, become her separate property, Reid v. Reid, 31 Ch. D. 402; 55 L. J. Ch. 294. 45 & 46 Vict.

By the Married Women's Property Act, 1893 (56 & 57 Vict. c. 63), s. 3, it is enacted that "section 24 of the Wills Act, 1837, shall apply to the will of a married woman made during coverture, whether she is or is not possessed of or entitled to any separate property at the time of making it, and such will shall not require to be re-executed or republished after the death of her husband." Sect. 3 of the Married Women's Property Act, 1893, applies to every will of a married woman who dies after the date of the Act (5th Dec., 1893), Re Wylie, 1895, 2 Ch. 116; 64 L. J. Ch. 613; and it operates upon all that she has at her death, Re James, 1910, 1 Ch. 157; 79 L. J. Ch. 45.

EXECUTION OF WILLS.

IX. And be it further enacted, That no will shall be valid unless it shall be in writing (a) and executed in manner herein-after mentioned (b); (that is to say,) it shall be signed at the foot or end thereof (c) by the testator (d), or by some other person in his presence and by his direction (e); and such signature shall be made or acknowledged by the testator in the presence of two or more witnesses present at the same time (f), and such witnesses shall attest (g) and shall subscribe the will in the presence of Sect. 9.
Every will to be in writing, and signed in the presence of two witnesses.

Sect. 9. the testator (h), but no form of attestation shall be necessary (i).

Will—upon what substance and how to be written. (a) A will may be written upon any substance, and with any material; but it is advisable that it should be written on vellum, parchment, or paper (Shep. Touch. 54); and to prevent any doubt or question as to the authenticity of the document, the writing should throughout be by the same hand and in ink of one colour, Greville v. Tylee, 7 Moo. P. C. 320; 83 R. R. 57; Birch v. Birch, 1 Rob. 675; and see In b. Bacon, 3 No. Cas. 645.

Will may be written in pencil. Formerly, pencil writings, as distinguished from writings in ink, were held to be deliberative; Deane, Wills, 73. But under this statute a will may be written and signed in pencil; Sugd. R. P. Stat. 351, 352; Gregory v. Queen's Proctor, 4 No. Cas. 623; Kell v. Charmer, 23 Be. 195. In Bateman v. Pennington, 3 Moo. P. C. 223. Lord Brougham said, "All the cases show that the signing in pencil affords a prima facie presumption that the act is only deliberative; yet it may be shown to be otherwise." In that case the testator had filled up the date of his will, and also signed it, in pencil, the body of the will being in ink; his signature was preceded by the words, "In case of accidents I sign this my will;" the testator died suddenly, and probate was allowed of the will so executed. As to pencil alterations in a will which was confirmed by a codicil, see In b. Hall, L. R. 2 P. & D. 256; 40 L. J. P. 37.

Printed will good. A will may be printed or lithographed: Interpretations Act, 1889 (52 & 53 Vict. c. 63). s. 20. A will the body of which is printed from type, or partly written and partly printed, is valid (see 2 Rob. 115, n.). In In b. Adams, L. R. 2 P. & D. 367; 41 L. J. P. 31, the blanks in a printed form were filled up partly in ink, and partly in pencil, some portion of the writing in ink extending over that in pencil, and some words of the latter having been rubbed out and obliterated; the words in pencil were held to be deliberative only, and were excluded from probate.

In words or cypher. A will may be written or printed in any language, and either in words at length or contracted, or in figures, so that the testator's wishes are clear and unambiguous (Deane, Wills, 73); or in numbers and letters explained by a key, East v. Twyford, 4 H. L. C. 517; 94 R. R. 222; or private marks to be interpreted by extrinsic evidence, Kell v. Charmer, 23 Be. 195.

Foreign language. If a will be in a foreign language, resort must be had to the foreign law or language for the purpose of deciding on the meaning of the particular words used in the will; but having so ascertained the meaning of the terms, the law of the testator's domicile governs the construction of the instrument so far as concerns personal estate, see Martin v. Lee, 14 Moo. P. C. 142, explained in McGibbon v. Abbott, 10 App. Cas. 653; 54 L. J. P. C. 39; also Re Cliff's Trusts, 1892, 2 Ch. 229; 61 L. J. Ch. 397. See the note on Domicile, in the Appendix. In the case of a testator dying domiciled abroad, where the original will has been proved in the Court of the domicile, an office or properly authenticated copy of it is received in place of the original for the purpose of being admitted to probate here, see Tristram & Coote's Probate Practice, 14th ed., pp. 50, 54.

Sect. 9.

An instrument, whatever may be its form, from which the intention of the maker can be gathered, that it is to affect the destination of his property after his death, will, if properly attested, be held to be testamentary; for example, an order upon testator's bankers, attested by two witnesses, Jones v. Nicolay, 2 Rob. 293; In b. Marsden, 1 Sw. & Tr. 542; a duly attested instrument in the form of a deed, In b. Montgomery, 5 No. Cas. 99; Doe v. Cross, 8 Q. B. 714; 15 L. J. Q. B. 217; In b. Morgan, L. R. 1 P. & D. 214; 35 L. J. P. 98; Milnes v. Foden, 15 P. D. 105; 59 L. J. P. 62; In b. Slinn, 15 P. D. 156; 59 L. J. P. 82; Foundling Hospital (Governors and Guardians) v. Crane, 1911, 2 K. B. 367; 80 L. J. K. B. 853; or a letter, In b. Mundy, 2 Sw. & Tr. 119; 30 L. J. P. 85; or a list of names and sums of money, Re Barrance, 1910, 2 Ch. 419; 79 L. J. Ch. 544. And the testator's intention that such an instrument should operate as a will may be proved by parol evidence, Jones v. Nicolay, ubi sup.; In b. Marsden, ubi sup.; In b. Webb, 3 Sw. & Tr. 482; 33 L. J. P. 182; In b. English, 3 Sw. & Tr. 586; 34 L. J. P. 5; Cock v. Cooke, L. R. 1 P. & D. 241; 36 L. J. P. 5; Robertson v. Smith, L. R. 2 P. & D. 43; 39 L. J. P. 41; In b. Coles, L. R. 2 P. & D. 362; 41 L. J. P. 21; In b. Slinn, 15 P. D. 156; 59 L. J. P. 82. But where a person claims probate of a paper signed and attested, but not on the face of it clearly testamentary, the burden of proof is on that person to satisfy the Court that it was executed animo testandi; Thornicroft v. Lashmar, 2 Sw. & Tr. 479; 31 L. J. P. 150; In b. Slinn, ubi sup.; and see Patch v. Shore, 2 Dr. & S. 589; 32 L. J. Ch. 185. See also Jarm. Wills, Ch. 2.

Form unimportant.

Draft upon a banker.

Deed.

Letter.

An excellent illustration of a document not executed animo testandi, and therefore not admissible to probate as testamentary, is afforded by the case of Coventry v. Williams, 3 Cur. 787. In that case testator executed under his hand and seal a document attested by two witnesses which, so far as material, was in the terms following: "I have determined to offer to Mrs. C. . . the following small pittance, that poverty may never overtake her. I shall immediately order Mr. M., who has made my will, to make the following codicil to it. That . . she shall enjoy from me the . . allowance of £50 per annum to be paid by Messrs. Coutts & Co., Bankers, Strand, half-yearly, quarterly, or annually, as she shall will it, and after her death to her son. Given under my hand and seal, &c." There was no extrinsic evidence in this case that the document was intended by the testator to be testamentary. It will be noted that the allowance was to be paid by the testator's bankers, and not by his executors, and that it was not in terms testamentary.

Document not executed animo testandi.

Where the intention to execute the identical testamentary document propounded was completely absent, the wrong paper having been executed by mistake, probate was refused of the whole document,

Sect. 9.

Not
revocable.

although it contained certain dispositions in fact intended by the testatrix, In b. Meyer, 1908, P. 353; 77 L. J. P. 150.

It is of the essence of a testamentary paper that it should be revocable. A document which is not revocable, but comes into operation in the testator's lifetime, cannot be admitted to probate, In b. Robinson, L. R. 1 P. & D. 384; 36 L. J. P. 93.

As to whether probate can be granted of an instrument of which a part only is testamentary, see In b. Robinson, ubi sup.; In b. Heywood, 1916, P. 47; 85 L. J. P. 24.

Clause introduced by fraud, or
per incuriam.

Where a clause is introduced into a will by fraud, Allen v. M'Pherson, 1 II. L. C. 191, or per incuriam, the testator not having given instructions for and being ignorant of the existence of such clause, In b. Duane, 2 Sw. & Tr. 590; 31 L. J. P. 173; In b. Oswald, L. R. 3 P. & D. 162; 43 L. J. P. 24, it forms no part of the will of the testator, and probate will be granted of the remainder, if the two are separable; but where the rejection of part alters the sense of the remainder, qu. whether there is a will; Rhodes v. Rhodes, 7 App. Cas. 192; 51 L. J. P. C. 53. In In b. Boehm, 1891, P. 247; 60 L. J. P. 80, the will contained two similar clauses, by each of which the testator had, according to the instructions for the will, intended benefiting one of his daughters, Georgiana and Florence, but by mistake the name of Georgiana had been inserted in the will in both the clauses, thus leaving Florence unprovided for. The will had not been read over to the testator at any time. Probate was granted, omitting the name of Georgiana in the second clause of gift, although the will with the blank space where Florence's name was intended to be would not be left as the testator had intended it should be. Where a duly executed and attested codicil had been read over to a capable testatrix, the Court refused to exclude from probate certain words inserted in it, and which were not in accordance with the instructions given by her to her solicitor, nor were contained in the draft codicil, which had been read over to and approved by her, although the solicitor who prepared the codicil swore that they had been inserted without instructions from her, and by his inadvertence, Guardhouse v. Blackburn, L. R. 1 P. & D. 109; 35 L. J. P. 116; and in Harter v. Harter, L. R. 3 P. & D. 11; 42 L. J. P. 1, it was held that, however clearly an error is proved, unless words have been inserted by fraud, or by mistake without the knowledge of the testator, the Court of Probate cannot correct it, either by the omission of words or the insertion of other words, inasmuch as to do so would be to make a new will for the testator. In In b. Bushell, 13 P. D. 7; 57 L. J. P. 16, and in In b. Huddleston, 63 L. T. 255, the Court allowed certain words to be struck out and others to be inserted, but this practice was clearly wrong and will not be followed: In b. Schott, 1901, P. 190; 70 L. J. P. 46. In Morrell v. Morrell, 7 P. D. 68; 51 L. J. P. 49, the word "forty" occurring in four places in a will was struck out on proof being given that it had been inserted by inadvertence, but no other word was substituted for it. In both the cases of Bushell and Morrell the clauses had not been read over to the testator, but it was laid down by the House of Lords in Fulton v. Andrew, L. R. 7 H. L. 448; 44 L. J. P. 17, that there is no unyielding rule of law that all further inquiry is shut out by proof that a testator competent in mind has had the will read over to him, and has thereupon executed it. See also Garnett Botfield v. Garnett Botfield, 1901, P. 335; 71 L. J. P. 1; Vaughan v. Clerk, 87 L. T. 144; Brisco v. Baillie Hamilton, 1902, P. 234; 71 L. J. P. 121; and Greyson v. Taylor, 1917, P. 256; 86 L. J. P. 124.

In Collins v. Elstone, 1893, P. 1; 62 L. J. P. 26, a testatrix left two wills, and a codicil to the first will. The second will, which disposed only of a small policy of insurance on her life, was prepared for her on a printed form by one of her executors. The form began with a clause revoking all previous testamentary dispositions; but when this was read over to her she objected to it, saying that she did not wish to revoke her first will and codicil. The person who prepared the will assured her that, as it only related to the insurance policy, the words of revocation would not apply to her former testamentary dispositions, and that to make an erasure might invalidate the will. Being satisfied by this assurance, the testatrix executed the will. Held, that the testatrix must be taken to have known and approved of those words of revocation, and that they must be included in the probate of the last will.

It may be usefully noted here that any attack upon a will or codicil or any clause thereof upon the ground of fraud or undue influence should be made in the Probate Division: after probate the Chancery Division does not entertain any such case, Meluish v. Milton, 3 Ch. D. 27; 45 L. J. Ch. 836; Pinney v. Hunt, 6 Ch. D. 98.

A testamentary paper duly executed is entitled to probate, although not intended to operate, and not becoming operative, until some time after the testator's death, In b. News, 7 Jur., N. S. 688.

A duly executed paper, testamentary on the face of it, may be excluded from probate by parol evidence clearly proving that it was not intended by the deceased to affect the disposition of his property after his death, Lister v. Smith, 3 Sw. & Tr. 282; 33 L. J. P. 29.

A will may be made to take effect on a contingency; if the contingency does not happen, the will ought not to be admitted to probate (Jarm. Wills, 40), and is inoperative to revoke a prior will, In b. Hugo, 2 P. D. 73; 46 L. J. P. 21. A testator wrote a codicil concluding thus, "I give my wife the option of adding this codicil to my will or not, as she may think proper or necessary;" the wife elected not to avail herself of the codicil, and it was not admitted to probate, In b. Smith, L. R. 1 P. & D. 717; 38 L. J. P. 85. See also In b. Porter, L. R. 2 P. & D. 22; 39 L. J. P. 12; In b. Robinson, L. R. 2 P. & D. 171; 40 L. J. P. 16; and Lindsay v. Lindsay, L. R. 2 P. & D. 459; 42 L. J. P. 32. But the Court is unwilling to refuse probate unless it is clear that the testator intended the will to be operative only in a certain event or during a certain period, In b. Dobson, L. R. 1 P. & D. 88; 35 L. J. P. 54. See the considered judgement of Sir F. Jeune, in In b. Spratt, 1897, P. 28; 66 L. J. P. 25, in which the previous cases are reviewed. See also Halford v. Halford, 1897, P. 36; 66 L. J. P. 29. Merely equi-

Sect. 9. vocal words will not suffice, In b. Mayd, 6 P. D. 17; 50 L. J. P. 7: and a will, contingent in terms, but executed after the event, is thereby rendered absolute, In b. Cawthron, 3 Sw. & Tr. 417; 33 L. J. P. 23. Unattested memoranda, written subsequently to the execution of the will, will not be admitted as evidence of the contingent nature of the will, Stockwell v. Ritherdon, 1 Rob. 661. A will expressed to take effect only upon an event which does not happen cannot be established by evidence of the testator's intention to adhere thereto, In b. Winn, 2 Sw. & Tr. 147; Roberts v. Roberts, 2 Sw. & Tr. 337; 31 L. J. P. 46; but a codicil expressed to take effect only upon an event which does not happen may operate as a re-execution of a will therein referred to, and on that account may be entitled to probate, In b. Da Silva, 2 Sw. & Tr. 315; 30 L. J. P. 171. In the case of Doe v. Haslewood, 10 C. B. 544, the testator made his will in favour of a nephew, but with a proviso in favour of the child with which his wife was then pregnant, if such child should be born after the testator's death; the child was, in fact, born in the testator's lifetime, and the Court held that, in such a case, the testator did not contemplate the birth of a child in his lifetime, and did not intend to provide by his will for a child so born; the proviso in the will was made in contemplation of a particular combination of circumstances, which not having happened, the proviso failed. See, however, Jarm. Wills, 677.

Blanks. Wills of more than one sheet are usually written on one side only of brief paper, the sheets being fastened together (though this fastening is not absolutely necessary, Gregory v. Queen's Proctor, 4 No. Cas. 620) at one of the corners, the back of each sheet being left blank. To this plan there is no objection, as the Act does not require a will to be written continuously, In b. Corder, 1 Rob. 669. And even if there is a blank in the body of the writing as in Corneby v. Gibbons, 1 Rob. 705, where the blank left was half a page, the will is valid; see also Kirby's Case, 6 No. Cas. 693. This shows the weakness of the objection which, before the passing of 15 & 16 Vict. c. 24 (post), was raised to a space being left between the conclusion of the will and the signature (Sugd. R. P. Stat. 335). And if a will is prepared with blanks, and those blanks are filled up in the handwriting of the testator, the presumption of law is that they were supplied before the execution of the will, Birch v. Birch, 1 Rob. 675.

Blanks filled up in testator's
handwriting.

As already stated, a complete blank in a will cannot be filled up, but parol evidence may be resorted to in order to explain, with reference to a partial blank, words which of themselves have a reasonable meaning. In b. Hubbuck, 1905, P. 129; 74 L. J. P. 58.

Construction
where probate has been granted in blank.

When probate has been granted of a will containing blank spaces, the court of construction has no power to fill up the blank spaces, so as to make sense of that which, without such alteration, is nonsense, unless from some other portions of the will, or upon the construction of the will as a whole, the Court can see in what manner the testator intended to fill up the blanks. A court of construction, for this purpose, will look at the original will, and not merely at the probate, Re Harrison, 30 Ch. D.

390; 55 L. J. Ch. 799; Taylor v. Richardson, 2 Drew. 16; 23 L. J. Ch. 9. See also Mason v. Bateson, 26 Be. 404; 28 L. J. Ch. 391; Edmunds v. Waugh, 4 Drew. 275; Greig v. Martin, 7 W. R. 315.

Sect. 9.

Where a will contained the words, "I appoint R. H. B. and J. E. W.," it was held that the rest of the will showed that the testator must have intended to appoint them executors, and probate was granted to them, In b. Bradley, 8 P. D. 215; 52 L. J. P. 101.

Any written document in existence at the execution of a will, Rogers v. Goodenough, 2 Sw. & Tr. 342; 31 L. J. P. 49; In b. McCabe, 2 Sw. & Tr. 474; 31 L. J. P. 190; Van Straubenzee v. Monck, 3 Sw. & Tr. 6; 32 L. J. P. 21, may be incorporated with, and made part of, the will, Allen v. Maddock, 11 Moo. P. C. 427; Ferraris v. Marquis of Hertford, 3 Cur. 468; In b. Daniell, 8 P. D. 14; 52 L. J. P. 23. But the incorporated instrument must be clearly identified, Allen v. Maddock, supra; In b. Drummond, 2 Sw. & Tr. 8; In b. Brewis, 3 Sw. & Tr. 473; 33 L. J. P. 124; In b. Torey, 47 L. J. P. 63; Singleton v. Tomlinson, 3 App. Cas. 404. For the purpose of such identification parol evidence was before 1838, and is now, admissible, Allen v. Maddock, supra; and if, in the existing circumstances, the identity is proved, it is no objection that, by possibility, circumstances might have existed in which the instrument could not have been identified, ib. But the principle of Allen v. Maddock will not be extended, In b. Greves, 1 Sw. & Tr. 250; 28 L. J. P. 18. See also In b. McGregor, 60 L. T. 840; University College of North Wales v. Taylor, 1908, P. 140; 77 L. J. P. 20. If the will does not describe the document as then existing parol evidence will not be admitted to prove its existence, In b. Dallow, L. R. 1 P. & D. 189; 35 L. J. P. 81; In b. Sunderland, L. R. 1 P. & D. 198; 35 L. J. P. 82. But where a will, if read as speaking at the date of a codicil, contains language which would operate as an incorporation, the document, though not in existence until after the execution of the will, is entitled to probate by force of the codicil, In b. Lady Truro, L. R. 1 P. & D. 201; 35 L. J. P. 89; In b. Hunt, 2 Rob. 622; In b. Stewart, 4 Sw. & Tr. 211; In b. Rendle, 68 L. J. P. 125; In b. Green, 79 L. T. 738. But see In b. Warner, 10 W. R. 566; In b. Reade, 1902, P. 75; 71 L. J. P. 45; In b. Smart, 1902, P. 238; 71 L. J. P. 123.

Incorporation of documents, in existence, and clearly identified.

Parol evidence admissible.

In In b. Marchant, 1893, P. 254; 62 L. J. P. 114, a testatrix left two testamentary documents of which only one was duly executed. The first or unexecuted document made various specific bequests, and appointed an executor. The second, which was duly executed, bequeathed all the property of the testatrix to her nephew "for the purposes I require him to do absolutely." Held, that the two documents could not be admitted to probate as together constituting the will of the deceased, but probate was granted of the second document with directions to the executor to administer the estate in conformity with the trusts of the first document. But where the will desired and empowered a disposition "in accordance with my wishes verbally expressed," parol evidence was not admitted and the power of disposition was void for uncertainty, Re Hetley, 1902, 2 Ch. 866; 71 L. J. Ch. 769. As to parol evidence where the will shows the existence of a trust, see Re Gardom, 1914, 1 Ch. 662, 669; 83 L. J. Ch. 681; affirmed (1915) W. N. 216.

Incorporation by the words "ratify and confirm."

The words "ratify and confirm" used by a testator in his will are sufficient to render a deed of settlement to which they are applied entitled to probate as part of the will, Sheldon v. Sheldon, 1 Rob. at p. 89; see also Stump v. Gaby, 2 D. M. & G. 623; 22 L. J. Ch. 352; and In b. Harris, L. R. 2 P. & D. 83; 39 L. J. P. 48, where a will disposing only of property in Tasmania and appointing executors in Tasmania was ratified and confirmed by a subsequent will disposing of property in England and appointing different executors in England, and the Court ordered probate to issue of both, as together constituting the will of the deceased. And see In b. Howden, 43 L. J. P. 26; In b. Lockhart, 69 L. T. 21.

Incorporated instruments may be invalid of themselves.

It is unimportant that the incorporated document is voidable or invalid. See cases already referred to, and Stump v. Gaby, supra; In b. Smartt, 4 No. Cas. 38; Swete v. Pidsley, 6 No. Cas. 189; In b. Willesford, 3 Cur. 77. Indeed, it is the invalidity of the document standing alone which generally necessitates its incorporation in the probate. In In b. Bosanquet, 14 Jur. 964, an unattested document, purporting to exercise a power of appointment, was held to be incorporated with a will; In b. Mercer, L. R. 2 P. & D. 91; 39 L. J. P. 43, an unattested copy of a will made in India, and In b. Heathcote, 6 P. D. 30; 50 L. J. P. 42, the invalid will of a married woman, was held to be incorporated with a codicil; in In b. Countess of Durham, 3 Cur. 57, the revoked will of another person, and in In b. Hally, 5 No. Cas. 510, a letter was held to be incorporated with the will in which it was referred to; and for an instance of a revoked will being conditionally revived by incorporation, see In b. Bangham, 1 P. D. 429; 45 L. J. P. 80. But a deed referred to as "made" by the testator, but in fact not executed by him, was held not to be incorporated with his will, not being considered to be sufficiently identified, In b. Edwards, 6 No. Cas. 306; and alterations unaccounted for in a duly identified and incorporated document were excluded from probate, Swete v. Pidsley, ib. 189. See also Eyre v. Eyre, 1903, P. 131; 72 L. J. P. 45.

Unidentified alterations.

In In b. Bacon, 3 No. Cas. 645, a schedule of books, and in In b. Ash, 1 D. & Sw. 181, a list of plate, written on the same sheet as the will, and in In b. Hunt, 2 Rob. 622, and in In b. Stewart, 4 Sw. & Tr. 211, lists of articles on separate papers, were held to be incorporated.

In the following cases the identity was held to be insufficiently shown, and the instruments intended to be referred to were not made parts of the respective wills, Collier v. Langebeare, 1 No. Cas. 369; In b. Astell, 5 No. Cas. 489, n.; In b. Baldwin, ib. 293; In b. Skair, ib. 57; In b. Hakewell, D. & Sw. 14; In b. Sotheron, 2 Cur. 831; In b. Countess of Pembroke, D. & Sw. 182. In several cases the document intended to be incorporated was actually written upon the back of the same piece of paper as the will itself. See In b. Drummond, 2 Sw. & Tr. 8; In b. Brewis, 3 Sw. & Tr. 473; 33 L. J. P. 124; In b. Tovey, 47 L. J. P. 63.

Strictly, all papers entitled to probate ought to receive probate; but the Court exercises a discretion, Quihampton v. Going, 24 W. R. 917; and in the case of a will referring to and incorporating a deed in the possession of persons (trustees for example) who will not give up the deed, probate will be passed of the will alone, without a deposit of the original deed, Sheldon v. Sheldon, 1 Rob. 81; In b. Battersbee, 2 Rob. 439; In b. Sibthorp, L. R. 1 P. & D. 106; 35 L. J. P. 73; a notarial copy, if obtainable, will be deposited in the registry, and a similar copy will form part of the probate, In b. Dickins, 3 Our. 60; but see In b. Dundas, 1 N. R. 569; In b. Marquis of Lansdowne, 3 Sw. & Tr. 194; 32 L. J. P. 121. In In b. Balme, 1897, P. 261; 66 L. J. P. 161, a testator made a bequest to a college of his books as enumerated in his library catalogue, a voluminous document, a copy of which would have entailed considerable expense. Probate was granted without requiring the catalogue to be brought into the registry, the college undertaking to hold the catalogue for the registry, and a note to that effect being made upon the probate. In In b. Countess of Limerick, 2 Rob. 313, probate was granted of a will with extracts from a document referred to, but not recited, in the will. Where a second will, appointing separate executors and disposing only of British funds, contained a direction that it should take effect as a separate instrument independent of an American will, it was held unnecessary to incorporate the American will, but an authenticated copy thereof was filed, and a note to that effect was added to the English probate, In b. Astor, 1 P. D. 150; 45 L. J. P. 78. And where there are two wills, one dealing with property in England, and the other dealing exclusively with property situate abroad, the Court will decree probate of the English will only, In b. Tamplin, 1894, P. 39; 63 L. J. P. 75; In b. Murray, 1896, P. 65; 65 L. J. P. 59. See also In b. Callaway, 15 P. D. 147; 59 L. J. P. 73.

In Quihampton v. Going, 24 W. R. 917, entries in the testator's ledger, referred to by the will, were treated by a court of construction as a part of the will, although they were not included in the probate.

(b) The provisions of the Act as to the execution of a will cannot be evaded by means of a power created for the purpose, Johnson v. Ball, 5 De G. & S. 85; 21 L. J. Ch. 210.

(c) The will shall be signed "at the foot or end thereof." The litigation on this branch of the 9th section has, since the passing of the Act 15 & 16 Vict. c. 24 (post, p. 78), almost ceased. The last-mentioned Act being retrospective (except in the circumstances referred to in the 2nd section) as well as prospective, the cases decided between the 1st January, 1838, and the 17th June, 1852 (when the amending Act came into operation), on the position of the testator's signature, have not now much practical value, except that as to all wills which the Court had pronounced to be defectively executed the parties interested are, by sect. 2, shut out from the benefits of the amending Act (16 Jur. 602, n.). The cases will be found collected in Sugd. R. P. Stat. c. 7, s. 1, 1st ed.; Deane, Wills, 71.

Signature at the foot or end of the will.

Sect. 9.

Testator,
signature of.
His knowledge of the
the will.

(d) The will shall be signed "by the testator." It is essential to the validity of a will that, at the time of signing, the testator should know and approve of its contents, Hastilow v. Stobie, L. R. 1 P. & D. 64; 35 L. J. P. 18; Oleare v. Cleare, L. R. 1 P. & D. 655; 38 L. J. P. 81; but proof of the actual reading over of the document to him is not necessary, Mitchell v. Thomas, 6 Moo. P. C. 137. The onus of proof of the genuineness and authenticity of a will lies on the party propounding it, and if the conscience of the judge is not satisfied on these points he is bound to refuse probate, Baker v. Batt, 2 Moo. P. C. 317; and this burthen is in general discharged by proof of capacity and the fact of execution of the will, from which knowledge and approval of its contents by the testator will be presumed, Barry v. Butlin, 2 Moo. P. C. 480; Browning v. Budd, 6 Moo. P. C. 430; but that presumption may be rebutted by circumstances (ib.). For the rule as to onus of proof upon a person propounding a will executed under suspicious circumstances, see Tyrrrell v. Painton, 1894, P. 151.

In the case of a blind testator it is highly desirable, though not absolutely necessary, that the will should be read over to him, Longchamp v. Fish, 2 B. & P., N. R. 415; Edwards v. Fincham, 4 Moo. P. C. 198. The Ecclesiastical Courts were more strict on this head than the Courts of Law, and required that the will of a blind testator should be read over to him in the presence of a witness, although not necessarily in the presence of a subscribing witness, Sugd. R. P. Stat. 335; and by the 71st rule of 1862. the registrars of the Probate Court are forbidden to grant probate of the will of a blind or illiterate person unless satisfied that it was read over to him before execution, or that he then had knowledge of its contents. See also In b. Axford, 1 Sw. & Tr. 540.

Aged or deaf and dumb
testator.

As to the will of an aged testator, see Goose v. Brown, 1 Cur. 707; and as to a deaf and dumb testator, see In b. Owston, 2 Sw. & Tr. 461; 31 L. J. P. 177; In b. Geale, 3 Sw. & Tr. 431; 33 L. J. P. 125.

Time of signing by
testator.

The signature of the testator must precede that of both the witnesses in point of time; if the testator signs after the witnesses, or either of them, the execution is invalid, In b. Olding, 2 Cur. 865; In b. Byrd, 3 Cur. 117; In b. Hoskins, 1 N. R. 569; see also Cooper v. Bockett, 4 Moo. P. C. 419. The testator's signature upon the will must be seen by the witnesses, Hudson v. Parker, 1 Rob. 14; Shaw v. Neville, 1 Jur., N. S. 408; or at all events they should see the testator in the act of writing that which the Court presumes to be his signature, Smith v. Smith, L. R. 1 P. & D. 143; 35 L. J. P. 65; or they must be so placed that they could see the signature made, In b. Gunstan, 7 P. D. 102; 51 L. J. P. 36; but the witnesses need not know that the document is of a testamentary character, Gaze v. Gaze, 3 Cur. 451; Keigwin v. Keigwin, ib. 607; Sugd. R. P. Stat. 339, 340. The witnesses, however, ought to see that there is writing on the paper before the testator's signature is affixed or acknowledged, or other evidence must be produced to shew that the paper was not a blank, In b. Hammond, 3 Sw. & Tr. 90; 32 L. J. P. 200.

Witnesses
must see the
testator.

The mark of the testator (whether he can or cannot write) is a sufficient signature, In b. Field, 3 Cur. 752; Baker v. Dening, 8 A. & E. 94; 7 L. J. (N. S.) Q. B. 137; even though his name is not affixed to the mark, In b. Bryce, 2 Cur. 325; a facsimile of testator's signature impressed on the will by means of an engraved stamp is sufficient, Jenkins v. Haisford, 3 Sw. & Tr. 93; 32 L. J. P. 122; and where a wrong name is added by one of the witnesses to the testator's mark, the execution, if there is no doubt as to the identity, is good, In b. Clarke, 1 Sw. & Tr. 22; 27 L. J. P. 18; In b. Powell, 6 No. Cas. 557. See also In b. Douce, 2 Sw. & Tr. 593; 31 L. J. P. 172, where the person who wrote a will for a marksman, misnamed him in the body of the will, and also wrote a wrong name opposite to the testator's mark. The will was admitted to probate.

Sect. 9.
Testator's signature.
By making his mark.

The signature to her will by a married woman in the name of her deceased first husband is good, In b. Glover, 5 No. Cas. 553; and the signature in an assumed name is good, In b. Redding, otherwise Higgins, 2 Rob. 339; and where the testatrix, after signing in an assumed name, erased that name, and inserted her real name without any formal re-execution of her will, the original execution was held good (ib.). The signature of a testator by writing his initials is good, In b. Wingrove, 15 Jur. 91; In b. Savory, ib. 1042; In b. Hinds, 16 Jur. 1161. The hand of the testator, if he is unable from illness to sign, may be guided, Wilson v. Beddard, 12 Sim. 28; 10 L. J. (N. S.) Ch. 305. But the ceremony of execution must be complete whilst the testator is living; for where an intended testator tries to sign his will, but fails from weakness, the Court has no power to decree probate, In b. Wilson, 2 Cur. 854.

By initials.

The sealing (without signing) of a will by the testator is not a due execution, In b. Summers, 7 No. Cas. 562; Smith v. Evans, 1 Wils. 313; Wright v. Wakeford, 17 Ves. at 459; 2 Hayes, Conv. 642. But see Jarm. Wills, 107.

Sealing.

The declaration by a testator (an Indian officer), in a letter to his brother in England, that he had executed a will of which he inclosed a copy in the letter, was held inadmissible, and probate of the copy was not granted, In b. Ripley, 1 Sw. & Tr. 68. See also the note to sect. 21.

Ex post facto declarations of testator inadmissible.

(e) The will shall be signed "by the testator or by some other person in his presence and by his direction." The "other person" here referred to may be one of the witnesses, In b. Bailey, 1 Cur. 914; Smith v. Harris, 1 Rob. 262; and where a witness, In b. Ullersperger, 6 Jur. 156, or the other person above referred to, In b. Clark, 2 Cur. 329; In b. Blair, 6 No. Cas. 528, signed his own name instead of that of the testator, the signature was held good.

Testator, signature of, by an amanuensis.

(f) The signature shall be made or acknowledged "in the presence of two or more witnesses present at the same time." Both the witnesses must be present together when the will is signed by or by the direction of the testator, or when the signature is acknowledged by him, In b. Mansfield, 1 No. Cas. 362; and see In b. Ayling, 1 Cur. 913. And the Witnesses, presence of, with respect to each other and the testator.

Sect. 9. two witnesses must both sign in the presence of the testator, but it has been held not necessary that the witnesses should sign in the presence of each other, Faulds v. Jackson, 6 No. Cas. Supp. 1; Chodwick v. Palmer, cited D. & Sw. 2; In b. Webb, D. & Sw. 1. This point is, however, not yet free from doubt. See the question discussed in 53 Sol. J. at pp. 212, 482. But it is necessary that both witnesses should be jointly present at the same act of the testator. Therefore, if the order of events is as follows—viz., (1) testator signs will in presence of first witness, (2) first witness attests signature, (3) second witness arrives, and testator in presence of both witnesses acknowledges his signature, (4) second witness attests—the execution will be insufficient because the signature was attested by the first witness only, and the acknowledgment by the second witness only. The second witness was not a witness to the signature, and the first witness was not a witness to the acknowledgment, Wyatt v. Berry, 1893, P. 5; 62 L. J. P. 28; Brown v. Skirrow, 1902, P. 3; 71 L. J. P. 19; and see In b. Allen, 2 Cur. 331; In b. Simmonds, 3 Cur. 79; Casement v. Fulton, 5 Moo. P. C. 130; Sugd. R. P. Stat. 342; Moore v. King, 3 Cur. 243.

Testator, presence of with respect to the witnesses on their signing. The testator must be in such a position that he might, if he had wished, have seen the witnesses as they subscribed, Casson v. Dade, 1 Br. C. 99. Therefore, during the ceremony of the execution and attestation of a will, the testator should not turn his back upon the witnesses, or be shut out from their view by a curtain, or a screen; or in any other mode, Tribe v. Tribe, 1 Rob. 775; see, however, Sugd. R. P. Stat. 343; and Newton v. Clarke, 2 Cur. 320, in which case, in circumstances similar to those in Tribe v. Tribe, the execution was supported. The witnesses should not go into an adjoining room for the greater convenience of affixing their signatures, In b. Newman, 1 Cur. 914; In b. Ellis, 2 Cur. 395; In b. Colman, 3 Cur. 118; Norton v. Bazett, D. & Sw. 259; In b. Killick, 3 Sw. & Tr. 578; 34 L. J. P. 2; Jenner v. Ffrench, 5 P. D. 106; 49 L. J. P. 25; Carter v. Seaton, 85 L. T. 76. And in the case of a blind testator, the witnesses must, when they are in the act of signing their names, be in such a position that the testator, if he were not blind, could see them affixing their signatures, In b. Picrey, 1 Rob. 278.

Blind testator. It will be seen that it is the testator's signature, not his will, that is required to be acknowledged. See In b. Pattison, 1918, 2 I. R. 90. Where the will is perfect on the face of it, the presumption is in favour of a due acknowledgment—omnia presumuntur rite esse acta, Lloyd v. Roberts, 12 Moo. P. C. 158; Wright v. Sanderson, 9 P. D. 149; 53 L. J. P. 49; In b. Moore, 1901, P. 44; 70 L. J. P. 16. Acknowledgment by express words is not necessary. The acknowledgment by the testator that the document produced bears his signature, or a signature made by his direction, may be assumed from the attendant circumstances, Gaze v. Gaze, 3 Cur. 451; Blake v. Knight, ib. 547; Keigwin v. Keigwin, ib. 607; In b. Ashmore, ib. 756; In b. Thomson, 4 No. Cas. 643; In b. Dinmore, 2 Rob. 641; Daintree v. Butcher, 13 P. D. 102; 57 L. J. P. 76. Where a testatrix was extremely ill, her acknowledgment by gesture was held sufficient, In b. Davies, 2 Rob. 337; and an acknowledgment may be assumed from the acts of the testator at the time of attestation, In b. Jenner, 6 Jur. 564; In b. Bosanquet, 2 Rob. 577; In b. Philpot, 3 No. Cas. 2; In b. Jones, D. & Sw. 3; or from the attendant circumstances, though no act be done or word uttered by the testator, Faulds v. Jackson, 6 No. Cas. Supp. 1; Inglesant v. Inglesant, L. R. 3 P. & D. 172; 43 L. J. P. 43. A simple request by a testator that the witnesses would put their names underneath his own is sufficient, Gaze v. Gaze; Keigwin v. Keigwin, ubi sup. Where two witnesses, one of whom had the will in his hand, came into the testatrix's bed-room, and said, "We have come at your request to witness your will," and the testatrix said, "I am glad of it, thank God!" and the witnesses thereupon signed the will, which had been previously signed by the testatrix, this was held a sufficient acknowledgment, In b. Warden, 2 Cur. 334. And acknowledgment will be presumed from the attendant circumstances, whether the signature be made by the testator himself, or by some other person in his presence by his direction, In b. Regan, 1 Cur. 909. But acknowledgment will not be presumed from the testator's sealing and delivering the will as his act and deed, the will having been signed by another person on behalf of the testator, In b. Summers, 7 No. Cas. 563. And in the cases where acknowledgment is presumed from attendant circumstances, it is necessary that the witnesses, before they sign, should actually see that the document bears the testator's signature, Ilott v. Genge, 4 Moo. P. C. 271; Hudson v. Parker, 1 Rob. 14; Shaw v. Neville, 1 Jur. N. S. 408; Pearson v. Pearson, L. R. 2 P. & D. 451; 40 L. J. P. 53; or, at all events, should have the opportunity of seeing the signature; if such be not the case, it is immaterial whether the signature be there at the time of attestation, or whether the testator say that the paper is his will, or that his signature is inside, Blake v. Blake, 7 P. D. 102; 51 L. J. P. 36; disapproving Gwillim v. Gwillim, 3 Sw. & Tr. 200; 29 L. J. P. 31; and Beckett v. Howe, L. R. 2 P. & D. 1; 39 L. J. P. 1.

Presumption in favour of due acknowledgment.

Positive affirmative evidence by the subscribing witnesses to the fact of the signing or acknowledgment of the will by the testator in their presence is not absolutely essential, and the Court may, in the absence of suspicious circumstances, presume a due execution, Blake v. Knight, 3 Cur. 547; Hitch v. Wells, 10 Be. 84; In b. Huckvale, L. R. 1 P. & D. 375; 36 L. J. P. 84; and it is favourable to this presumption if the testator had experience in the execution of legal documents, Plenty v. West, 9 Jur. 458; Lloyd v. Roberts, 12 Moo. P. C. 158. But where there is no formal attestation clause, and no affirmative evidence that the testator's signature was on the paper when the witnesses signed, the mere production of it to witnesses with a request that they will sign it is insufficient to enable the Court to infer that it was already signed by the deceased, Fischer v. Popham, L. R. 3 P. & D. 246; 44 L. J. P. 47. As to acknowledgment by a marksman, see Morritt v. Douglas, L. R. 3 P. & D. 1; 42 L. J. P. 10.

(g) The witnesses "shall attest and subscribe the will." As to the meaning of "attest," see Burdett v. Spilsbury, 10 C. & F. 340; Warren

Where the witnesses signed their names in the margin of the paper on which the will was, and opposite to certain alterations, but with the intention of attesting the testator's signature to the will, this was held to be a valid subscription, In b. Streatley, 1891, P. 172; 60 L. J. P. 56. See also Woodhouse v. Balfour, 13 P. D. 2; 57 L. J. P. 22.

"Presence" of witness, what is.

It has been contended that the "presence" of the witnesses required by this section is a presence simply and grossly corporeal (see II. Sugd. Wills, 37; Sugd. R. P. Stat. 340), so that a person of unsound mind might be a witness to a will. It seems, however, to be the better opinion that not only a bodily but a mental presence is required, see 1 Hayes, Conv. 360, 363, 371; Taylor, Evidence, 757; Hudson v. Parker, 1 Rob. 14. Even if it be conceded that mental consciousness is not included in the idea of "presence," and that it is not necessary to enable the person duly to "subscribe," still the witness is required to do something more—he must "attest" the will; and this would seem to imply, not only general sanity and mental consciousness, but particular consciousness of and attention to the actual ceremonies of execution. In short, the witness must have the intention of attesting the testator's signature, Griffiths v. Griffiths, L. R. 2 P. & D. 300; 41 L. J. P. 14.

Minor.

A minor may attest a will; unless incompetent from extreme youth to understand and testify (Ste. Evid. ch. 15).

Full attestation clause—and witnesses dead;

If the subscribing witnesses to a will, of which the attestation clause is in the proper form, are both dead, the law presumes the will to have been well executed; the presumption of law is in favour of the due execution of the will, if the witnesses, Burgoyne v. Showler, 1 Rob. 5, or either of them, Blake v. Knight, 3 Cur. 547; Leech v. Bates, 1 Rob. 715; Shield v. Shield, 4 No. Cas. 647, be living and entirely forgetful of all the facts, Foot v. Stanton, D. & Sw. 19; In b. Holgate, 1 Sw. & Tr. 261; 29 L. J. P. 161; Gwillim v. Gwillim, 3 Sw. & Tr. 200; 29 L. J. P. 31; In b. Colyer, 14 P. D. 48; Whiting v. Turner, 89 L. T. 71.

Imperfect attestation clause—and witnesses cannot be found; or forget the facts.

Where a will has an imperfect attestation clause, and the witnesses cannot be found, In b. Luffman, 11 Jur. 211; In b. Sir J. Dickson, 6 No. Cas. 278; or the will contains no attestation clause, but only the signatures of the witnesses, and they are dead, Trott v. Skidmore, 2 Sw. & Tr. 12; 29 L. J. P. 156; Harris v. Knight, 15 P. D. 170; or the witnesses do not remember some of the facts, In b. Leach, 12 Jur. 381; see also In b. Thomas, 1 Sw. & Tr. 255; 28 L. J. P. 33, or differ in their evidence or their recollection fails, Gregory v. Queen's Proctor, 4 No. Cas. 620; Vinnicombe v. Butler, 3 Sw. & Tr. 580; 34 L. J. P. 18; the will, if all the attendant circumstances lead to the inference that the signatures of the witnesses are genuine, will be held to be duly executed. See In b. Peverett, 1902, P. 205; 71 L. J. P. 114; In b. Strong, 1915, P. 211; 84 L. J. P. 188. Where two witnesses to a will executed abroad were out of the jurisdiction, and the third witness dead, the Court of Exchequer decided that proof of the handwriting of the testator and witnesses was sufficient proof of the attestation of the will, Platel v. Stert, 2 L. T. 210; and when the inaccuracy and imperfect recollection of the witnesses are established, the Court may, upon the circumstances of the case, presume the due execution, Leech v. Bates, 1 Rob. 715; Wright v. Sanderson, 9 P. D. 149; 53 L. J. P. 49. So where one witness deposed to the due execution of the will, and the other witness had no recollection of the facts, probate was allowed, In b. Hare, 3 Cur. 54. But if the subscribing witnesses negative the fact of compliance with the requisites of the 9th section, probate will be refused, Beach v. Clarke, 7 No. Cas. 120; Croft v. Croft, 4 Sw. & Tr. 10; 34 L. J. P. 44; unless the evidence of the witnesses be rebutted by showing either that they cannot be credited or that upon the statement of the facts their memories are defective, Burgoyne v. Showler, 1 Rob. 5; or that there are circumstances raising a presumption that the witnesses are mistaken, Noding v. Alliston, 14 Jur. 904; Lloyd v. Roberts, 12 Moo. P. C. 158. In Shield v. Shield, 4 No. Cas. 647, the will not being opposed, probate was granted although one of the attesting witnesses had no recollection of the matter and the other attesting witness gave evidence negating its due execution. Where one witness was dead and the other swore that the paper was blank at the time of execution, the will, being perfect on the face of it, and the testator being a solicitor, was upheld by the Court, although the testator's wife and children (who, however, had for many years lived apart from him) were excluded from all benefit, Lloyd v. Roberts, sup.

Sect. 9.
Evidence of witnesses inaccurate and imperfect.

Evidence negating compliance with provisions of s. 9:—may be rebutted.

The execution of a will may be supported on the evidence of one witness, that of the other having been discredited, Farmer v. Brock, D. & Sw. 187. And the testimony of one subscribing witness was held sufficient though the other deposed that the testator had not signed in his presence, Gove v. Gaven, 3 Cur. 151. In that case the attendant circumstances favoured the supposition of a valid execution, there being a formal attestation clause, and the first witness having deposed to the due execution of the will a few days after it was made, while the second was not examined until two years and a half afterwards. See also Wright v. Rogers, L. R. 1 P. & D. 678; 38 L. J. P. 67. But in Mackenzie v. Yeo, 3 Cur. 125, the evidence of one witness was held insufficient to support a codicil, the attendant circumstances being suspicious. And where one witness deposed that the will was executed by the testator after the witness had signed, and the other witness deposed that the will was not executed in the presence of the two witnesses, and the attestation clause was imperfect, probate was refused, Pennant v. Kingscote, 3 Cur. 642. See also Young v. Richards, 2 Cur. 373; Chambers v. Queen's Proctor, ib. 433. And where the evidence of the witnesses is not clear, the testimony of a third person who, though not a subscribing witness, was present during the ceremony of execution will be received in support of, or in opposition to, probate, Bayliss v. Sayer, 3 No. Cas. 22; Bennett v. Sharp, 1 Jur. N. S. 456. See also In b. Attridge, 6 No. Cas. 598.

Evidence of one witness.

Evidence conflicting.

Evidence not clear.

If the testator has had experience in the execution of wills, this is a Experience

- Section 9. circumstance favouring presumption of due execution, Lloyd v. Roberts, 12 Moo. P. C. 158; Brenchley v. Still, 2 Rob. 162; Blake v. Knight, 3 Cur. 547. But see post, p. 110. The evidence of illiterate witnesses to a will, as to the details of the ceremony, is received with caution, Cooper v. Bockett, 4 Moo. P. C. 419; but if the attendant circumstances are free from suspicion, a will will not be set aside though the testimony of the witnesses is confused or indefinite, or even that of one of the witnesses adverse, Bayliss v. Sayer, 3 No. Cas. 22; Brenchley v. Still, 2 Rob. 162; Gove v. Gawen, 3 Cur. 151; Keating v. Brooks, 4 No. Cas. 253; In b. Mustow, 4 No. Cas. 289; Wright v. Sanderson, 9 P. D. 149; 53 L. J. P. 49.
- Evidence confused and indefinite. (h) The witnesses "shall attest and shall subscribe the will in the presence of the testator." Where a will was prepared in duplicate, one copy signed by the testator and the other by the witnesses, neither copy separately, nor the two together, could be admitted to probate, In b. Hatton, 6 P. D. 204; 50 L. J. P. 78.
- Will contained in several loose sheets. When several sheets of paper, constituting a connected (though not in all points a consistent) disposal of property, are found together, the last sheet being duly executed, the presumption in the absence of direct proof is that they all formed the will of the deceased at the time of execution, Marsh v. Marsh, 1 Sw. & Tr. 528; 30 L. J. P. 77. As to the dangers which may arise from a will being contained in several sheets of paper, see Leonard v. Leonard, 1902, P. 243; 71 L. J. P. 117.
- Witnesses. In the attesting of a will, the mark of a witness is sufficient, In b. Ashmore, 3 Cur. 756; and this is true, even if the witness can write, In b. Amiss, 2 Rob. 116; and although a wrong surname was affixed by the testator to the mark of a witness, his attestation was held good, In b. Ashmore, ubi sup. Where a witness, intending to write his own name, writes a wrong one by mistake, or writes words sufficient and intended to identify himself as the person attesting, the attestation is good, In b. Olliver, 2 Ecc. and Ad. Rep. 57; In b. Sperling, 3 Sw. & Tr. 272; 33 L. J. P. 25; but where, by desire of the testator, a woman signed her husband's name not intending thereby to represent her own signature, the attestation was held bad, Pryor v. Pryor, 29 L. J. P. 114; and see In b. Cope, 2 Rob. 335; In b. White, 2 No. Cas. 461;
- Mark, good. In b. Leverington, 11 P. D. 80; 55 L. J. P. 62. The signature of a witness by his initials is a good attestation, In b. Christian, 2 Rob. 110; In b. Hinds, 16 Jur. 1161; In b. Blewitt, 5 P. D. 116; 49 L. J. P. 31; Margary v. Robinson, 12 P. D. 8; 56 L. J. P. 42; but his seal is not, In b. Byrd, 3 Cur. 117. The hand of a witness who cannot write may be guided, Harrison v. Elvin, 3 Q. B. 117; 61 R. R. 153; In b. Frith, 1 Sw. & Tr. 8; 27 L. J. P. 6; Lewis v. Lewis, 2 Sw. & Tr. 153. If a witness cannot write and his name be written for him, he making no mark to be afterwards recognised upon the will, the attestation is bad, In b. Mead, 1 No. Cas. 456; In b. Cope, 2 Rob. 335. The same is true where the witnesses are husband and wife, and the husband signs for the wife, In b. White, 2 No. Cas. 461; and one witness cannot subscribe for the other, ib.
- Wrong name. Seal, bad. Witness's hand may be guided. Name written for him, he making no mark.

A paper is not entitled to probate unless the Court is satisfied that the names of the alleged witnesses were subscribed for the purpose of attesting the testator's signature; a subscription alio intuitu will not suffice, In b. Wilson, L. R. 1 P. & D. 269; 36 L. J. P. 1; Griffiths v. Griffiths, L. R. 2 P. & D. 300; 41 L. J. P. 14.

If the witnesses are dead, it will not be presumed that they did not both sign at the same time from a difference in the colour of the ink, Trott v. Skidmore, 2 Sw. & Tr. 12; 29 L. J. P. 156.

The acknowledgment of a prior signature, though good if made by a testator, is bad in the case of a witness; thus the acknowledgment by a witness of his signature made on the occasion of a previous informal execution of the will, and the signature at the same time in his presence by a second witness, form together an insufficient attestation, Moore v. King, 3 Cur. 243, and cases referred to ante, p. 20. And if, on the re-execution of a will, a witness with a dry pen traces over his previous signature, this, though good as an acknowledgment in the case of a testator, Lewis v. Lewis, 1908, P. 1; 77 L. J. P. 7, is, as to a witness, bad, Playne v. Scriven, 1 Rob. 772; In b. Trevanion, 2 Rob. 311; In b. Simmonds, 3 Cur. 79; In b. Cunningham, 4 Sw. & Tr. 194; 29 L. J. P. 71; the Act requiring something to be done by the witness which shall be apparent on the face of the will. The addition on the re-execution of a will of the word "Bristol," the place of residence of one of the witnesses who was a witness to both executions, was not a good attestation of the second execution, In b. Trevanion, ubi sup. To make a valid subscription and attestation, there must be either the name of the witness, or some mark intended to represent it; the correction of an error in a previous writing of the name, or the addition of a date to it, is not sufficient: thus where, in circumstances similar to those in In b. Trevanion, a witness, one of whose christian names was "Frederick," put a cross to the letter "F" of his first signature, the second attestation was held bad, Hindmarsh v. Charlton, 8 H. L. C. 160. See also In b. Eynon, L. R. 3 P. & D. 92; 42 L. J. P. 52; In b. Maddock, L. R. 3 P. & D. 169; 43 L. J. P. 29; In b. Leverington, 11 P. D. 80; 55 L. J. P. 62. In In b. Maddock, ubi sup., a witness wrote his christian name, but was unable, through feebleness, to sign his surname, and the attestation was held insufficient on the ground that the witness did not intend the mere christian name to be a complete signature. A valid execution is not destroyed by subsequent mistakes, In b. Savory, 15 Jur. 1042, as by alterations or erasures made in error, In b. Hannam, 7 No. Cas. 437; In b. Redding, 14 Jur. 1052, or by the cutting off of one of the witnesses' names for the purpose of its being re-written, In b. Tozer, 7 Jur. 134. See also In b. Coleman, 2 Sw. & Tr. 314; 30 L. J. P. 170.

Witness's acknowledgment of prior signature, bad.

Tracing over previous signature, bad.

There must be the name of witness or a mark intended to represent it.

The execution of a will may be proved on the evidence of one only of the attesting witnesses. By the practice of the Prerogative Court, the evidence of both the witnesses to a will was necessary. But the question as to evidence is now governed by 20 & 21 Vict. c. 77, s. 33, which enacts that the rules of evidence observed in the common law courts are to be observed in the Court of Probate, Belbin v. Skeats, 1 Sw. & Tr. 148:

Evidence of the execution of a will.

Sect. 9. 27 L. J. P. 56. With respect to wills relating to real estate, however, it is the invariable practice of equity courts to require the examination of all the witnesses who can be called; and this practice now obtains in all courts, 2 Taylor on Evidence, 1270.

Attestation.

(i) “No form of attestation shall be necessary.” This applies to wills in execution of powers (Sugd. Pow. 243), as well as to other testamentary instruments. The mere subscription of the witnesses, without a word in addition to their names, is sufficient, Bryan v. White, 2 Rob. 315; In b. Thomas, 1 Sw. & Tr. 225; 28 L. J. P. 33. See Sugd. R. P. Stat. 333; 2 Hayes, Conv. 642.

A full attestation clause, though not absolutely necessary, is useful and desirable for the purposes of probate, inasmuch as the presumption of due execution is much stronger where there is a full and due attestation clause than where there is not, as abundantly appears from the authorities already referred to. If the formalities of execution are not stated to have been complied with, they must be proved, if proof can be obtained, and if not, the absence of proof accounted for, In b. Diaper, 3 N. R. 215. The presumption of due execution arising from a formal attestation clause may of course be negated by evidence of the actual circumstances of the execution, Croft v. Croft, 4 Sw. & Tr. 10; 34 L. J. P. 44. If another person than the testator signs for him, that fact should, to save trouble in obtaining probate, be mentioned in the attestation. The position of the attestation clause, should there be one, appears to be unimportant, In b. Davis, 3 Cur. 748; In b. Chamney, 1 Rob. 757; in the latter case, an attestation clause on the fourth side of a sheet of paper folded bookwise, the whole will and the testator's signature being on the first side, was held good. See also Roberts v. Phillips, 4 E. & B. 450; 24 L. J. Q. B. 171; In b. Braddock, 1 P. D. 433; 45 L. J. P. 96; In b. Streetley, 1891, P. 172; 60 L. J. P. 56; Lewis v. Lewis, 1908, P. 1; 77 L. J. P. 7. But, in In b. Taylor, 2 Rob. 411, where there were two testamentary dispositions on the same sheet of paper, signed by the testatrix at the same time, and the witnesses subscribed their names only to the first in order, it was held that they attested the first only, and probate of the second was refused. If a will is on several sheets, all of which are signed by the testator and witnesses except the last, which is signed by the testator only, the execution is bad, Even v. Franklin, D. & Sw. 7; Phipps v. Hule, L. R. 3 P. & D. 166; a fortiori, where the last sheet is signed by the witnesses only, Sweetland v. Sweetland, 4 Sw. & Tr. 6; 34 L. J. P. 42.

In In b. Braddock, ubi sup., the witnesses to the execution of a codicil signed their names on the back of a will to which the codicil was attached by a pin. The Court decreed probate of the codicil, being satisfied that the witnesses intended by their subscription on the back of the will to attest the signature of the testatrix at the foot of the codicil.

EXECUTION OF TESTAMENTARY APPOINTMENTS.

X. And be it further enacted, That no appointment (a) made by will, in exercise of any power, shall be valid, unless the same be executed in manner hereinbefore required: and every will executed in manner hereinbefore required shall, so far as respects the execution and attestation thereof, be a valid execution of a power of appointment by will, notwithstanding it shall have been (b) expressly required that a will made in exercise of such power should be executed with some additional or other form of execution or solemnity.

Sect. 10.

Appointments by will to be executed like other wills, &c.

(a) A power to appoint by writing under the hand and seal of the donee is not well exercised by the will of the donee executed and attested according to the provisions of the 9th section, but unsealed, West v. Ray, Kay, 385; Taylor v. Meads, 4 D. J. & S. 597; 34 L. J. Ch. 208. See Sugd. Pow. 217; 4 Dav. Conv. 31.

Appointment
by writing under hand
and seal.

That a will is a "writing," within the meaning of a power to appoint "by writing," see Taylor v. Meads, ubi sup. Consequently a power to appoint "by writing under hand and seal" is well exercised by a will duly signed, attested, and sealed, Smith v. Adkins, L. R. 14 Eq. 402; 41 L. J. Ch. 628; In re Greaves' Settlement Trusts, 23 Ch. D. 313; 52 L. J. Ch. 753; and it is submitted that a power to appoint "by will under hand and seal," or "by writing, testamentary or otherwise, under hand and seal," would fall within this section of the Wills Act, and be well exercised by will duly signed and attested, without the addition of a seal.

Will under seal; effect of,
in exercising
a power.

But the Act is confined to the mode of execution and attestation; and in regard therefore to all other matters, though relating to the quality or perfection of the instrument, as enrolment, registration, engrossment on parchment, indentation, or any similar requisite, however whimsical, Hawkins v. Kemp, 3 East, 410, it would seem that the terms of the power must be pursued as before; and of course this remark applies à fortiori to matters relating to the time or the place of execution, 1 Hayes, Conv. 367.

The Act is confined to the requisites of execution and attesta-
tion.

A power to appoint by writing under hand or by will is not well exercised by a document of a testamentary character signed by the donee, but unattested, Re Daly's Settlement, 25 Be. 456; 27 L. J. Ch. 751. And see Re Barnett, 1908, 1 Ch. 402; 77 L. J. Ch. 267.

Unattested
writing, bad.

A power to appoint by will "signed and published in the presence of and attested by three or more witnesses" was held to be well executed by will made and published and signed in the presence of and attested by three witnesses, although the attestation took no notice of the publication, Re Wrey's Trust, 17 Sim. 201.

As to wills in exercise of powers where Lord Kingsdown's Act (24 & 25 Vict. c. 114) applies, see Appendix on Domicile, post, p. 455.

- Sect. 10. The 12th section of 22 & 23 Vict. c. 35 (as to the mode of execution of powers), does not apply to powers to be executed by will.
- 22 & 23 Vict. c. 35, s. 12. (b) This section relates to powers created since, as well as to powers created before, the Act. Hubbard v. Lees. L. R. 1 Ex. 255; 35 L. J. Ex. 169.

WILLS OF SOLDIERS AND SEAMEN.

- Sect. 11. XI. Provided always and be it further enacted, That any soldier being in actual military service, or any mariner or seaman being at sea may dispose of his personal estate as he might have done before the making of this Act (a).
- Soldiers' and mariners' wills excepted.

(a) This section has now been explained by the Wills (Soldiers and Sailors) Act, 1918 (7 & 8 Geo. 5, c. 58), set out below, and the powers of disposition have been thereby extended to realty. Except in the cases coming under the Navy and Marines (Wills) Act, 1865, as to which see note to sect. 12, post, any soldier or sailor coming within sect. 11 could, even before the Act of 1918, dispose of his personalty by written or nuncupative will as before the Statute of Frauds (29 Car. 2, c. 3, s. 23), but he must have attained the age of fourteen years, for apart from the Wills Act, the age of testamentary capacity is fourteen for a boy and twelve for a girl, Shep. Touch. ch. 23, p. 403; Swinburne on Testaments, 7th ed., p. 114. For "a great abundance of irreconcilable opinions" upon the age at which, apart from the Wills Act, a will of personal estate could be made, see Hargreave's note (6) to Co. Litt. 89 b. In Re Wernher, 1918, 1 Ch. 339, Younger, J., expressed an opinion that this section is a proviso upon the sections which follow the last preceding proviso, sect. 8—i.e., sects. 9 and 10, and was inserted only in order to relieve soldiers and sailors from observance of the forms and solemnities required by sects. 9 and 10. This question has now, however, been settled by the Act of 1918, which enables soldiers and sailors and (see sect. 5 (2)) members of the Air Force to make wills of realty and personalty notwithstanding infancy. The Wills (Soldiers and Sailors) Act, 1918 (7 & 8 Geo. 5, c. 58), is as follows:—

7 &amp; 8 GEO. 5, c. 58.

An Act to amend the Law with respect to Testamentary Dispositions by Soldiers and Sailors. [6th February, 1918.]

Be it enacted by the King's most Excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, as follows:—

1. In order to remove doubts as to the construction of the Wills Act, 1837, it is hereby declared and enacted that section eleven of that Act authorises and always has authorised any soldier being in actual military service, or any mariner or seaman being at sea, to dispose of his personal estate as he might have done

of sect. 11 of 7 Will. 4 and

before the passing of that Act, though under the age of twenty-one years. Sect. 11.

2. Section eleven of the Wills Act, 1837, shall extend to any member of His Majesty's naval or marine forces not only when he is at sea but also when he is so circumstanced that if he were a soldier he would be in actual military service within the meaning of that section. Extension of sect. 11 of Wills Act, 1837.

3.—(1) A testamentary disposition of any real estate in England or Ireland made by a person to whom section eleven of the Wills Act, 1837, applies, and who dies after the passing of this Act, shall, notwithstanding that the person making the disposition was at the time of making it under twenty-one years of age or that the disposition has not been made in such manner or form as was at the passing of this Act required by law, be valid in any case where the person making the disposition was of such age and the disposition has been made in such manner and form that if the disposition had been a disposition of personal estate made by such a person domiciled in England or Ireland it would have been valid. Validity of testamentary dispositions of real property made by soldiers and sailors.

(2) A testamentary disposition of any heritable property in Scotland made after the passing of this Act by a person to whom section eleven of the Wills Act, 1837, applies or to whom it would apply if he were domiciled in England, shall not be invalid by reason only of the fact that such person is under twenty-one years of age, provided always that he is of such age that he could, if domiciled in Scotland, have made a valid testamentary disposition of moveable property.

4. Where any person dies after the passing of this Act having made a will which is, or which, if it had been a disposition of property, would have been rendered valid by section eleven of the Wills Act, 1837, any appointment contained in that will of any person or guardian of the infant children of the testator shall be of full force and effect. Power to appoint testamentary guardians.

5.—(1) This Act may be cited as the Wills (Soldiers and Sailors) Act, 1918. Short title and interpretation.

(2) For the purposes of section eleven of the Wills Act, 1837, and this Act the expression "soldier" includes a member of the Air Force, and references in this Act to the said section eleven include a reference to that section as explained and extended by this Act.

The age of testamentary capacity, as shewn above, must of course have been attained to enable a will to be made under sect. 11 of the Wills Act.

That the term soldier extends to non-combatants, and is not limited to soldiers of the King, see In b. Donaldson, 2 Cur. 386. In In b. Stanley, 1916, P. 192; 85 L. J. P. 222, it was held that an unattested letter of a female nurse employed by the War Office on hospital ships Soldier.

Sect. 11. was privileged as a soldier's will within the meaning of sect. 11. And see In b. Hale, 1915, 2 I. R. 362, where a lady typist on the S.S. "Lusitania" was held to be a "mariner or seaman."

Actual military service.

The meaning of "actual military service" was discussed in In b. Hiscock, 1901, P. 78; 70 L. J. P. 22; Gattward v. Knce, and May v. May, 1902, P. 99, 103; 71 L. J. P. 34; In b. Gordon, 21 T. L. R. 653; Re Limond, 1915, 2 Ch. 240; 84 L. J. Ch. 833. For the older cases, see Drummond v. Parish, 3 Cur. 522; White v. Repton, 3 Cur. 818; In b. Hill, 1 Rob. 276; In b. Norris, 3 No. Cas. 197; In b. Thorne, 4 Sw. & Tr. 36; 34 L. J. P. 131; In b. Phipps, 2 Cur. 368; Herbert v. Herbert, D. & Sw. 12; In b. Churchill, 4 No. Cas. 47.

Mariner or seaman.
Sailor.

As regards the meaning of a "mariner or seaman being at sea," the following cases were decided under the Wills Act. The pursor of a man-of-war is a "seaman" within this section, In b. Hayes, 2 Cur. 338; so is a surgeon in the navy, In b. Saunders, L. R. 1 P. & D. 16; 35 L. J. P. 26. The whole service would seem to be included, 1 Wms. Exors. 92.

The informal will of an admiral, made on board a King's ship in a river, whilst engaged on an expedition against an enemy, In b. Austen, 2 Rob. 611; the informal will of a seaman in his Majesty's service, who went on shore whilst his vessel was in harbour at Buenos Ayres and there died by an accident, In b. Lay, 2 Cur. 375; the informal will of a surgeon in the navy, made on board ship when he was not on duty, but returning from service, In b. Saunders, L. R. 1 P. & D. 16; 35 L. J. P. 26; the will of the mate of a man-of-war permanently stationed in Portsmouth harbour, made whilst serving on board, In b. M'Murdo, L. R. 1 P. & D. 540; 37 L. J. P. 14; and the testamentary dispositions of a sailor written on a ship lying in a river, and before the ship has actually sailed, In b. Patterson, 79 L. T. 123, have been admitted to probate as wills of "seamen at sea." But see In b. Anderson, 1916, P. 49; 85 L. J. P. 21.

But the will of the admiral of the Jamaica naval station was declared not within the saving of the Statute of Frauds, 29 Cur. 2, c. 3, s. 23; Earl of Euston v. Seymour, cited 2 Cur. 339; 3 Cur. 530; the will having been made in the admiral's house on shore and not "at sea."

Merchant
seaman.

An unattested letter written by a seaman in the merchant service from his vessel lying in Margate Roads, containing a disposition of his property, was admitted to probate, In b. Milligan, 2 Rob. 108; so was a letter written by the master of a vessel from a port at which he had touched in his voyage, In b. Parker, 2 Sw. & Tr. 375; 28 L. J. P. 91; so were entries in pencil of a testamentary character made in the course of a voyage to Valparaiso by a merchant seaman in an "abstract book" or log book, In b. Thompson, 5 No. Cas. 596.

But the letters of a seaman written in port on the day he was shipped, the vessel not sailing until fifteen days after, were not admitted to probate, In b. Corby, 18 Jur. 634. And a mariner's will commencing "if I die at sea or abroad," which did not happen, was held to be conditional

Under sect. 2 of the Act of 1918, the capacity of members of His Majesty's naval or marine forces is not now restricted to their being "at sea," but such testators have capacity under sect. 11 of the Wills Act if so circumstanced that they would, if soldiers, be in "actual military service."

Wills under sect. 11 may be informal, In b. Farquhar, 4 No. Cas. 851; In b. M'Murdo, L. R. 1 P. & D. 540; 37 L. J. P. 14; Gattward v. Knee, 1902, P. 99; 71 L. J. P. 34; and may be nuncupative, In b. Scott, 1903, P. 243; 73 L. J. P. 17; Re Stable, 1919, P. 7. Sect. 15 of the Wills Act does not apply to such wills, so that a gift to an attesting witness is valid, Re Limond, 1915, 2 Ch. 240; 84 L. J. Ch. 833.

After the passing of the Wills (Soldiers and Sailors) Act, 1918, the case Re Wernher above mentioned came before the Court of Appeal upon the question of an infant soldier's capacity to exercise a general power of appointment, and it was held, affirming Younger, J., that sects. 11 and 27 enabled an infant soldier in actual military service to exercise the power, Re Wernher, 1918, 2 Ch. 82; 87 L. J. Ch. 372.

It was decided in In b. Tollemache, 1917, P. 246; 86 L. J. P. 154, that a guardian of infant children could not be appointed by a will made under sect. 11 of the Wills Act, but sect. 4 of the Wills (Soldiers and Sailors) Act, 1918, now enables testamentary guardians to be so appointed.

The will of a soldier made during actual military service, and not expressly revoked, remains operative, though the testator lives in England several years after the date of the will, Re Leese, 17 Jur. 216; a testamentary privilege apparently more extensive than that allowed under the Roman law, Inst. ii. Tit. xi.; see also Cod. Nap. § 984.

It would seem that if an infant soldier on actual military service makes a will and afterwards, as by demobilization, ceases to be on actual military service while the will is unrevoked, he cannot, until he attains the age of twenty-one, revoke the will except by marriage, see Re Wernher, 1918, 1 Ch. 339, at p. 357; and as to revocation of a soldier's will by marriage, see In b. Wardrop, 1917, P. 54; 86 L. J. P. 37.

To obtain probate under sect. 11 the motion must be supported by a statement of the facts, to enable the Court to judge whether or not the will is entitled to the privilege or comes within the scope of the section.

To obtain probate of the unattested will of a soldier, there must be the affidavits of two disinterested persons to prove the handwriting of the deceased, In b. Neville, 4 Sw. & Tr. 218; 28 L. J. P. 52; and in the case of an illiterate soldier's will, there must be proof that the will was read over to the deceased, or that he had full knowledge of its contents, In b. Hackett, 4 Sw. & Tr. 220; 28 L. J. P. 42. But see In b. Prendergast, 5 No. Cas. 92. And as to a nuncupative will, see Re Stable, 1919, P. 7.

- Sect. 11. Alterations. Where an unattested holograph will of a soldier, in actual service at the date of the will, contained alterations about the making of which no information was obtainable, the alterations were presumed to have been made during the continuance of the military service, and were included in the probate, In b. Tweedale, L. R. 3 P. & D. 204; 44 L. J. P. 35.

PETTY OFFICERS, SEAMEN AND MARINES.

- Sect. 12. XII. [Repealed by 28 & 29 Vict. c. 112] (a).

(a) Better provision respecting wills of seamen and marines of the Royal Navy and Marines has been made by The Navy and Marines (Wills) Act, 1865 (28 & 29 Vict. c. 72) which statute, as amended by 60 Vict. c. 15, is as follows:—

28 & 29 VICT. c. 72.*

An Act to make better Provision respecting Wills of Seamen and Marines of the Royal Navy and Marines. [29th June, 1865.]

[Be it enacted by the Queen's most excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the lords spiritual and temporal, and commons, in this present parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, as follows:] †

- Short title. 1. This Act may be cited as the Navy and Marines (Wills) Act, 1865.
- Interpretation of terms. 2. In this Act—
[The term "the Admiralty" means the Lord High Admiral of the United Kingdom, or the Commissioners for executing the office of Lord High Admiral.] †
The term "seaman or marine" means a petty officer or seaman, non-commissioned officer of marines or marine, or other person forming part in any capacity of the complement of any of her Majesty's vessels, or otherwise belonging to her Majesty's naval or marine force, exclusive of commissioned, warrant, and subordinate officers, and assistant engineers, and of kroomen.
- Will made before entry ineffectual as to wages, &c. 3. A will made after the commencement of this Act by any person at any time previously to his entering into service as a seaman or marine shall not be valid to pass any wages, prize money, bounty money, grant, or other allowance in the nature thereof, or other money payable by the Admiralty, or any effects or money in charge of the Admiralty.
- Will invalid if combined with power of attorney. 4. A will made after the commencement of this Act by any person while serving as a seaman or marine shall not be valid for any purpose if it is written or contained on or in the same paper, parchment, or instrument with a power of attorney. Sect. 18.

† Repealed by the Statute Law Revision Act, 1893 (56 Vict. c. 14).

5. A will made after the commencement of this Act by any person while serving as a seaman or marine, [or when he has ceased so to serve,] shall not be valid to pass any wages, prize money, bounty money, grant, or other allowance in the nature thereof, or other money payable by the Admiralty, or any effects or money in charge of the Admiralty, unless it is made in conformity with the following provisions:—

Regulations for wills of seamen, &c., as to wages,
&c.

- (1.) Every such will shall be in writing and be executed with the formalities required by the law of England in the case of persons not being soldiers in actual military service or marines or seamen at sea:
- (2.) Where the will is made on board one of her Majesty's ships, one of the two requisite attesting witnesses shall be a commissioned officer, chaplain, or warrant or subordinate officer belonging to her Majesty's naval or marine or military force:
- (3.) Where the will is made elsewhere than on board one of her Majesty's ships, one of the two requisite attesting witnesses shall be such a commissioned officer or chaplain or warrant or subordinate officer as aforesaid, or the governor, agent, physician, surgeon, assistant surgeon, or chaplain of a naval hospital at home or abroad, or a justice of the peace, or the incumbent, curate, or minister of a church or place of worship in the parish where the will is executed, or a British consular officer, or an officer of customs, or a notary public [or a solicitor, or in Scotland a law agent†]:

A will made in conformity with the foregoing provisions shall, as regards such wages, money, or effects, be deemed to be well made for the purpose of being admitted to probate in England; and the person taking out representation to the testator under such will shall exclusively be deemed the testator's representative with respect to such wages, money, or effects.

6. Notwithstanding anything in this or any other Act, a will made after the commencement of this Act by a seaman or marine while he is a prisoner of war shall (as far as regards the form thereof) be valid for all purposes if it is made in conformity with the following provisions:

As to wills made by prisoners of war.

- (1.) If it is in writing and is signed by him, and his signature thereto is made or acknowledged by him in the presence of and is in his presence attested by one witness, being either a commissioned officer or chaplain belonging to her Majesty's naval or marine or military force, or a warrant or subordinate officer of her Majesty's navy, or the agent of a naval hospital, or a notary public:

- (2.) If the will is made according to the forms required by the law of the place where it is made:
- (3.) If the will is in writing and executed with the formalities required by the law of England in the case of persons not being soldiers in actual military service or mariners or seamen at sea.

Payment under will, not in conformity with Act.

7. Notwithstanding anything in this Act, in case of a will made after the commencement of this Act by any person while serving as a marine or seaman, and being either in actual military service or a mariner or seaman at sea, the Admiralty may pay or deliver any wages, prize money, bounty money, grant, or other allowance in the nature thereof, or other money payable by the Admiralty, or any effects or money in charge of the Admiralty, to any person claiming to be entitled thereto under such will, though not made in conformity with the provisions of this Act, if having regard to the special circumstances of the death of the testator, the Admiralty are of opinion that compliance with the requirements of this Act may be properly dispensed with. [The powers under this section were further extended by the Navy and Marines (Wills) Act, 1914 (5 Geo. 5, c. 17).]

See also the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894, s. 177 (57 & 58 Vict. c. 60), as to the formalities which the Board of Trade may require before dealing with property in their hands under a seaman's will.

PUBLICATION.

Sect. 13.

Publication not to be requisite.

Publication.

XIII. And be it further enacted, That every will executed in manner hereinbefore required shall be valid without any other publication thereof (a).

(a) It is not necessary for the testator to inform the witnesses of the testamentary nature of the document which they are about to sign; and if he deceives the witnesses on this point, and leads them to believe that such document is a deed, the execution will be good, Sugd. R. P. Stat. 339, 340; H. Sugd. Wills, 140; 1 Hayes, Conv. 365. See also, ante, p. 18.

ATTESTING WITNESSES' COMPETENCY.

XIV. And be it further enacted, That if any person who shall attest the execution of a will shall at the time of the execution thereof or at any time afterwards be incompetent to be admitted a witness to prove the execution thereof, such will shall not on that account be invalid. Sect. 14.
Will not void by incompetency of witness.

GIFTS TO ATTESTING WITNESSES.

XV And be it further enacted, That if any person shall attest the execution of any will to whom or to whose wife or husband any beneficial (a) devise, legacy, estate, interest, gift, or appointment, of or affecting any real or personal estate (other than and except charges and directions for the payment of any debt or debts), shall be thereby given or made, such devise, legacy, estate, interest, gift, or appointment shall, so far only as concerns such person attesting the execution of such will, or the wife or husband of such person, or any person claiming under such person or wife or husband, be utterly null and void, and such person so attesting shall be admitted as a witness to prove the execution of such will, or to prove the validity or invalidity thereof, notwithstanding such devise, legacy, estate, interest, gift, or appointment mentioned in such will (b). Sect. 15.
Gifts to an attesting witness to be void

(a) This section altered the law with respect to the admissibility of witnesses in two ways: first, by destroying the distinction between real and personal estate; for, as a will of personalty did not require any witness, a gift to an attesting witness of such a will was not void under 25 Geo. 2, c. 6, Emanuel v. Constable, 3 Rus. 436; 5 L. J. Ch. 191; and secondly, by extending the provisions of 25 Geo. 2, c. 6, to the wives and husbands of attesting witnesses. As to witnesses.

Where a will was attested by two marksmen, and signed also by two other persons as witnesses, a gift to the wife of one of the signing witnesses failed, Wigan v. Rowland, 11 Ha. 157; 23 L. J. (N.S.) Ch. 69. A will was written on three sides of a sheet of paper; the testator W. R. and two persons, J. T. G. and J. S. H., signed the first and second sides; at the bottom of the third side was written, "Witness my hand and seal, W. R. (Seal). Witness J. T. G., J. S. H."; on the fourth side was the following memorandum, "This will and testament was signed in our presence, and in the presence of each other by him. Witness thereto, J. T. G., J. S. H., G. B." G. B. signed the memorandum at the request of the testator's wife, who was present, notwithstanding an objection by the testator that such signature was unnecessary; it was held that G. B. had not attested the will so as to preclude her from taking any interest Gifts to witnesses.

- Sect. 15. under the will, Randfield v. Randfield, 8 H. L. C. 238, n.; 30 L. J. Ch. 177; and see In b. Sharman, L. R. 1 P. & D. 661; 38 L. J. P. 47. See also Re Toker, 4 L. T. 183; Re Harlin, ib. 839; Fell v. Bidolph, L. R. 10 C. P. 701; 44 L. J. C. P. 402; In b. Mitchell, 2 Cur. 916; In b. Forest, 2 Sw. & Tr. 334; 31 L. J. P. 200; Burton v. Newbery, 1 Ch. D. 234; 45 L. J. Ch. 202; and see sect. 17. Where a solicitor who is an attesting witness is by the will appointed a trustee and authorised to charge profit-costs in respect of any work in relation to the estate, which he could not have done except for the authority to do so contained in the will, this authority confers a bounty, and as he is an attesting witness, he will be precluded by this section from taking advantage of it, Re Pooley, 40 Ch. D. 1; 58 L. J. Ch. 1. A legacy, annuity, or residue bequeathed by will to A. is not affected by the attestation by A. of a codicil to the will; and this is true, even though the codicil, by revoking legacies given by the will, indirectly increases the amount of the residue, Gurney v. Gurney, 3 Drew. 208; 24 L. J. Ch. 656; Tempest v. Tempest, 2 K. & J. 635; 26 L. J. Ch. 501; Re Marcus, 57 L. T. 399; but see Gaskin v. Rogers, L. R. 2 Eq. 284. The subsequent marriage of a witness to a person entitled to the benefit of a devise does not render that devise null, Thorpe v. Bestwick, 6 Q. B. D. 311; 50 L. J. Q. B. 320. Where a legatee under a will attests it, and the testator afterwards confirms his will by a codicil duly executed and attested by other witnesses, this will have the effect of entitling the legatee to receive his legacy, Anderson v. Anderson, L. R. 13 Eq. 381; 41 L. J. Ch. 247. Also a person to whom a gift is made by a will to which he is an attesting witness, and whose title to the gift is revived by a codicil which refers to the will but to which he is not an attesting witness, does not lose the benefit so conferred upon him by his attesting a subsequent codicil referring to and confirming the will and the preceding codicil, Re Trotter, 1899, 1 Ch. 764; 68 L. J. Ch. 363.
- As to attesting a codicil.
- Subsequent marriage of witness to devisee.
- Subsequent codicil.
- Life tenant attesting witness. effect on remainders.
- In Jull v. Jacobs, 3 Ch. D. 703, the tenant for life under the will was an attesting witness; the remainders were accelerated, and took effect immediately upon the testator's death; but in that case the persons entitled in remainder were in existence, and their interests had been postponed only in order that the attesting witness might have the life estate. Re Townsend's Estate, 34 Ch. D. 357; 56 L. J. Ch. 227, the remainders after the void life estate were only contingent on the tenant for life dying without leaving issue living at his death. At the decease of the testator, the tenant for life had yet no children. The contingent remainders were not accelerated; and the income was held to be undisposed of till the birth of a child of the tenant for life, when the principle of Jull v. Jacobs would apply. The matter was similarly decided in Kearney v. Kearney, 1911, Ir. R. 137. See also Re Clark, 31 Ch. D. 72; 55 L. J. Ch. 89, where the remainders were accelerated; and compare Aplin v. Stone, 1904, 1 Ch. 543; 73 L. J. Ch. 456, where there was an absolute gift to the wife of an attesting witness, with an alternative contingent gift to her children in the event of her being dead at the period of distribution.

Where there is a gift to several as joint tenants, one of whom is an attesting witness and thereby forfeits his interest, the statute does not create a severance of the joint tenancy, but the whole gift goes to the others, Young v. Davies, 2 Dr. & S. 167; 32 L. J. Ch. 372; Re Fleetwood, 15 Ch. D. 594; 49 L. J. Ch. 514; so, also, where the gift is to a class, Fell v. Biddolph, L. R. 10 C. P. 701; 44 L. J. C. P. 402.

Gift to joint tenants, or a class.

As to a gift to a trustee upon parol trust in favour of an attesting witness, see Re Fleetwood, 15 Ch. D. 594; 49 L. J. Ch. 514; but see also O'Brien v. Condon, 1905, Ir. R. 51.

A devise or bequest to a witness, to be null and void, must be beneficial, so that in the case of a gift of property upon trust, the gift is not void, In b. Ryder, 2 No. Cas. 462; Cresswell v. Cresswell, L. R. 6 Eq. 69; 37 L. J. Ch. 521. See also In b. Mitchell, 2 Cur. 916; In b. Forest, 2 Sw. & Tr. 334; 31 L. J. P. 200; Burton v. Newbery, 1 Ch. D. 234; 45 L. J. Ch. 202; and see sect. 17.

Devise of property in trust.

Sect. 15 does not apply to the will of a soldier or seaman made under sect. 11, Re Limond, 1915, 2 Ch. 240; 84 L. J. Ch. 833.

Will of soldier or seaman.
Evidence Acts.

(b) The Wills Act is expressly exempt from the operation of the Law of Evidence Acts, 6 & 7 Vict. c. 85 (see sect. 1), and 14 & 15 Vict. c. 99 (see sect. 5).

CREDITOR ATTESTING WITNESS.

XVI. And be it further enacted, That in case by any will any real or personal estate shall be charged with any debt or debts, and any creditor, or the wife or husband of any creditor, whose debt is so charged, shall attest the execution of such will, such creditor (a), notwithstanding such charge shall be admitted a witness to prove the execution of such will, or to prove the validity or invalidity thereof.

Sect. 16.

Creditor attesting to be admitted a witness.

(a) It would seem that there is here an accidental omission of the words "or the wife or husband of such creditor." But notwithstanding this verbal omission, the wives and husbands of creditors whose debts are charged by the will would, by construction, be admissible witnesses.

EXECUTOR ATTESTING WITNESS.

XVII. And be it further enacted, That no person shall, on account of his being an executor of a will, be incompetent to be admitted a witness to prove the execution of such will, or a witness to prove the validity or invalidity thereof (a).

Sect. 17.

Executor to be admitted as witness.

(a) Of course, an executor who attested the will would forfeit all beneficial interest thereunder, by force of sect. 15, Hoare v. Osborne, 33 L. J. Ch. 586.

REVOCATION BY MARRIAGE.

Sect. 18.

Will to be

XVIII. And be it further enacted, That every will made by a man or woman shall be revoked by his or her marriage (a) (except a will made in exercise of a power of appointment (b), when the real or personal estate thereby appointed would not in default of such appointment pass to his or her heir, customary heir, executor, or administrator, or the person entitled as his or her next of kin (c), under the Statute of Distributions).

Revocation
by marriage.

(a) Marriage on the day of, but subsequent to, the execution of a will operates as a revocation, even though it appear from the will itself that the testator did not intend it to take effect until after the marriage, Otway v. Sadleir, 4 Ir. Jur. N. S. 97; followed in Bucknall v. Cooper, in the Prob. Div., Dec. 1875. Sect. 18 of the Wills Act does not apply to the wills of foreigners domiciled abroad. And as to the effect of the subsequent marriage of a testator domiciled out of England at the time of the marriage, see Dicey, Conflict of Laws, 684. But the will of a foreign testator, made in accordance with the law of his own country, is revoked by marriage, if his domicile is English at the time of his marriage, Re Martin, 1900, P. 211; 69 L. J. P. 75. See as to revival of a revoked will, sect. 22, post, p. 50 and note.

Marriage no
revocation,
when.

(b) As to this exception, see Vaughan v. Vanderstegen, 2 Drew. 165; In b. Fenwick, L. R. 1 P. & D. 319; 36 L. J. P. 54; In b. Fitzroy, 1 Sw. & Tr. 133; Sugd. R. P. Stat. 348. If by the same instrument the testator disposes of his own property, and exercises a power falling within the exception, it will be revoked by subsequent marriage, so far as relates to the testator's property, but will be unrevoked so far as relates to the property the subject of the power, In b. Russell, 15 P. D. 111; 59 L. J. P. 80; In b. J. B. Poole, 1919, P. 10.

(c) See In b. M'Vicar, L. R. 1 P. & D. 671; 38 L. J. P. 84, where the property, in default of appointment, would have gone to the "next of kin," not the next of kin under the statute.

REVOCATION BY PRESUMPTION.

Sect. 19.

No will to be revoked by presumption.

XIX. And be it further enacted, That no will shall be revoked by any presumption of an intention on the ground of an alteration in circumstances (a).

(a) Where a testator by will dated in 1869, in express exercise of a power contained in his marriage settlement, made certain appointments, and in 1878 executed a deed of appointment which removed four-fifths of the appointed fund from the operation of the will, but which did not purport to revoke the will in any way, it was held that the will remained in force under this section, and operated as to one of the appointments under the deed of 1878 which proved to be in excess of the power, Re Wells' Trusts, 42 Ch. D. 646; 58 L. J. Ch. 835. See note to sect. 23.

REVOCATION BY SUBSEQUENT WILL OR CODICIL OR DESTRUCTION OF INSTRUMENT.

XX. And be it further enacted, That no will or codicil, or any part thereof, shall be revoked otherwise than as aforesaid, or by another (a) will or codicil executed in manner hereinbefore required, or by some writing (b) declaring an intention to revoke the same, and executed in the manner in which a will is hereinbefore required to be executed, or by the burning, tearing, or otherwise destroying the same (c) by the testator or by some person in his presence and by his direction (d) with the intention of revoking the same (e).

Sect. 20.

In what cases wills may be revoked.

(a) A testator's testamentary dispositions may be comprised in several separate and substantive documents, In b. Luffman, 5 No. Cas. 183; Foley v. Vernon, 7 No. Cas. 119. Writings appointing executors, Richards v. Queen's Proctor, 18 Jur. 540; or beginning "This is my last will," Cutto v. Gilbert, 9 Moo. P. C. 131; Freeman v. Freeman, 5 D. M. & G. 704; 23 L. J. Ch. 838; Stoddart v. Grant, 1 Macq. 163; but containing no revoking clause, are not necessarily substantive wills in the sense that, if there be two such writings, the latter will revoke the earlier in date. See also Lemage v. Goodban, L. R. 1 P. & D. 57; 35 L. J. P. 28; In b. Fenwick, L. R. 1 P. & D. 319; 36 L. J. P. 54; In b. de la Saussaye, L. R. 3 P. & D. 42; 42 L. J. P. 47; In b. Petchell, L. R. 3 P. & D. 153; 43 L. J. P. 22; Hellier v. Hellier, 9 P. D. 237; 53 L. J. P. 105; Simpson v. Foxon, 1907, P. 54; 76 L. J. P. 7. But where there were two well-executed substantive and inconsistent wills, one of 1838, the other of 1839, the latter, disposing of the whole of the testator's property, though containing no clause of revocation, nor any appointment of executors, was held to have revoked the former, Henfrey v. Henfrey, 4 Moo. P. C. 29; see also In b. Lady E. M. Montagu, 7 No. Cas. 292; the intention to revoke the earlier may be inferred from the general tenor of the latter will, Dempsey v. Lawson, 2 P. D. 98; 46 L. J. P. 23; Chichester v. Quatrefages, 1895, P. 186; 64 L. J. P. 79; In b. Bryan, 1907, P. 125; 76 L. J. P. 30; if upon the face of the document the intention is doubtful, parol evidence of intention is admissible, Jenner v. Ffinch, 5 P. D. 106; 49 L. J. P. 25; and see In b. Vines, 1910, P. 147; 79 L. J. P. 25; and statements of the testator, made before or after execution, are admissible to show what papers constitute the will, Gould v. Lakes, 6 P. D. 1; 49 L. J. P. 59. As to probate of documents not inconsistent, on a compromise, see Robinson v. Clarke, 2 P. D. 269; 47 L. J. P. 17.

Will may be made up of several separate and substantive documents.

Two substantive and inconsistent wills.

A testator left three testamentary papers; the last two in date were alone admitted to probate, although they disposed but partially of his property, and the first in date, although it disposed of the whole of his property, was rejected, Plenty v. West, 1 Rob. 264. But the Court of Common Pleas (6 C. B. 201; 17 L. J. C. P. 316) certified that, as to

Plenty v. West.

Three testamentary papers.

Sect. 20. the real estate, the last of the three papers alone constituted the last will; and this opinion was adopted by the M. R. (16 Be. 173).

Where probate is granted of two or more testamentary papers as together containing the last will of the deceased, the grant is made to all the executors named in the several papers, In b. Morgan, L. R. 1 P. & D. 323; 36 L. J. P. 64.

In In b. Robarts, L. R. 3 P. & D. 110; 42 L. J. P. 63, in special circumstances, probate was granted of a will and two codicils, power being reserved to the executor (who gave an undertaking) to prove other codicils when they came to his hands.

Appoint-
cation of.

Difficult questions have arisen in cases where testators having powers of appointment have made wills in exercise of such powers, and have afterwards made other wills, not expressed to be in exercise of such powers, nor referring expressly thereto, nor to the former wills, nor disposing of the property comprised therein, but containing general revocatory clauses, or otherwise manifesting an intention to supersede all prior testamentary dispositions.

In In b. Merritt, 1 Sw. & Tr. 112; 29 L. J. P. 155, it was held that a will in execution of a power was not revoked by a general revocation in a later will not referring to the power.

In b. Meredith, 29 L. J. P. 155, and In b. Joys, 4 Sw. & Tr. 214, were similar in their circumstances to In b. Merritt.

On the other hand, in Sotheran v. Dening, 20 Ch. D. 99, and in Re Kingdon, 32 Ch. D. 604; 55 L. J. Ch. 598, the first will was held to be revoked; and In b. Merritt and In b. Joys were disapproved in Cadell v. Wilcocks, 1898, P. 21; 67 L. J. P. 8. See also In b. Eustace, L. R. 3 P. & D. 183; 43 L. J. P. 46; and Harvey v. Harvey, 32 L. T. 141.

Abandon-
ment.

A will is not revoked by mere abandonment; to operate as a revocation, there must be some unequivocal act done, of the nature specified in the 20th section, Andrew v. Motley, 12 C. B. N. S. 514; 32 L. J. C. P. 128.

Revocation
by a writing.

(b) The section distinguishes between a will or codicil and "some writing" and a memorandum simply revoking a will, being only a writing, and not a will or codicil, is not entitled to probate, In b. Fraser, L. R. 2 P. & D. 40; 39 L. J. P. 20. In In b. Durance, L. R. 2 P. & D. 406; 41 L. J. P. 60, a letter duly attested, whereby the testator directed his brother to obtain his will and burn it, was held to be a writing within this section, and to have revoked the will, and administration was granted with the letter annexed. See also Toomer v. Sobinska, 1907, P. 106; 76 L. J. P. 19. Where a testator had obliterated the whole of the codicil, including his signature, by thick black marks, and at the foot of it had written the words, signed by himself and attested by two witnesses: "We are witnesses of the erasure of the above," it was held that these words were a "writing declaring an intention to revoke" the codicil, and that it was accordingly revoked, In b. T. H. Gosling, 11 P. D. 79; 55 L. J. P. 27.

See also as to the distinction between a "will" or "codicil," and a "writing declaring an intention to revoke a will," Hawksley v. Barrow, Sect. 20. L. R. 1 P. & D. 147; 35 L. J. P. 67.

(c) The word "cancelling" was advisedly omitted from this section (Sugd. R. P. Stat. 353), contrary to the recommendation of the Real Property Commissioners (4 R. P. Com. Rep. Prop. 10, p. 81); and, therefore, probate will be granted of a will in its original shape, though a pen has been drawn through the body of the will, and through the testator's signature, the attestation clause, and the names of the witnesses, Stephens v. Taprell, 2 Cur. 458; In b. Fary, 15 Jur. 1114; Shaw v. Thorne, 4 No. Cas. 649. See also In b. Brewster, 29 L. J. P. 69; In b. De Bode, 5 No. Cas. 189. And the words "otherwise destroying" are not satisfied if the will remains actually uninjured, Cheesc v. Lovejoy, 2 P. D. 251; 46 L. J. P. 66.

That a will may be revoked by tearing, it is not necessary to rend the will into more pieces than it originally consisted of; but it is sufficient if the testator intended the tearing actually done of itself to work a revocation, without any further act, Elms v. Elms, 1 Sw. & Tr. 155; 27 L. J. P. 96.

From the peculiar manner in which the mutilation (by cutting and tearing) of a duly executed will was made, the Court held the will not to be totally revoked, but to have been altered so as to form the draft for a new will, and probate was granted of the will as it stood after the mutilation, Clarke v. Scripps, 2 Rob. 563; and if the mutilation may have been accidental, the state of the paper will be considered, Bigge v. Bigge, 9 Jur. 192. Also probate may be granted of a will which has been torn up by a testator in a fit of intoxication, and afterwards pasted together again by him when sober, if it is clear that there was no intention to revoke the will, In b. Brassington, 1902, P. 1; 71 L. J. P. 9.

But if parts of a will are obliterated by pen and ink so as to be illegible, Townley v. Watson, 3 Cur. 761; or cut away, as with a knife or a pair of scissors, In b. Cooke, 5 No. Cas. 390, there is a revocation as to the obliterated or destroyed parts. See also In b. Lambert, 1 No. Cas. 131.

A will is revoked by the testator cutting out the signature, Hobbs v. Knight, 1 Cur. 768. And where the signature had been cut out, but gummed on its former place, the gumming on did not revive the will, Bell v. Fothergill, L. R. 2 P. & D. 148. A will found in the testatrix's repositories with her signature and that of the witnesses scratched out with a knife, there being at the bottom of the will a memorandum in her handwriting, but not executed, whereby, for reasons given, the will was declared to be cancelled, was held to be revoked, In b. Morton, 12 P. D. 141; 56 L. J. P. 96.

If the mutilation of a will takes place with a view to the execution of a new will, and the new will be not executed, the prior will, as it

Sect. 20. stood before mutilation, will be entitled to probate, In b. Cockayne, D. & Sw. 177; Elms v. Elms, 1 Sw. & Tr. 155; 27 L. J. P. 96; see also In b. Eeles, 2 Sw. & Tr. 600; 32 L. J. P. 4; In b. Smith, 1 No. Cas. 315. So likewise where a will is destroyed or mutilated by the testator only because he supposes he has executed another will, Onions v. Tyrer, 1 P. W. 343; Dancer v. Crabb, L. R. 3 P. & D. 98; 42 L. J. P. 53. And see Re Bernard's Settlement, 1916, 1 Ch. 552; 85 L. J. Ch. 414. Where a will is destroyed on the incorrect assumption that a subsequent will is well executed and operative, the first will is not revoked, and secondary evidence of its contents will be admitted, Scott v. Scott, 1 Sw. & Tr. 258; In b. Middleton, 3 Sw. & Tr. 583; 34 L. J. P. 16. And see Dixon v. Treasury Solicitor, 1905, P. 42; 74 L. J. P. 33.

Where a testator, having duly executed his will, subsequently, in the presence of his executor, partially erased his own signature, with the intention of writing it in better style, and thereupon wrote it again in the presence of the executor, but not of the attesting witnesses, the instrument was admitted to probate, the original signature being taken as restored, In b. Kennett, 2 N. R. 461. A testatrix, being under an erroneous impression that a codicil had not been duly executed, directed it to be torn up and sent to her solicitor to be re-copied, but she died before she could re-execute it. In the circumstances the codicil was admitted to probate, In b. Thornton, 14 P. D. 82; 58 L. J. P. 82.

A testator, on the execution of a will in 1895, caused a will of 1882 to be cancelled under the erroneous belief that certain funds comprised in a settlement made on his first marriage would, in the absence of certain provisions in the will of 1882, be divided equally amongst the children of the first marriage. In 1896 he executed a fresh will, revoking the will of 1895, and later, in 1896, he executed two codicils, but the settled funds were not mentioned in any of the documents of 1896. It was held that the will of 1882 was, in law, a valid and subsisting testamentary document, and that it should be included with the three documents of 1896 in the probate, Stamford v. White, 1901, P. 46; 70 L. J. P. 9.

revocandi.*

Will burnt
by mistake, or in a fit of madness.

The act of destruction of a will must be done animus revocandi, and must be complete, in order that the will may be revoked. Therefore, where a duly-executed will has been burnt by mistake, In b. Thornton, 2 Cur. 913; or by the testator in a fit of madness, In b. Downer, 18 Jur. 66; or delirium tremens, Brunt v. Brunt, L. R. 3 P. & D. 37; or where suffering from softening of the brain, In b. Hine, 1893, P. 282; 63 L. J. P. 45; probate will be allowed of a copy or draft; or if a will is torn under the false impression that it is invalid, Giles v. Warren, L. R. 2 P. & D. 401; 41 L. J. P. 59. And where a will was executed by a testator when sane, and he subsequently became insane, and the will was found mutilated at his death, it was held that the onus of proof, that the testator mutilated his will whilst sane, lay upon those who contested the will, Harris v. Berrall, 1 Sw. & Tr. 153; and if the will cannot be found, and there is no evidence as to the date of its destruction, probate will be granted of the contents as contained in a copy, Sprigge v. Sprigge, L. R. 1 P. & D. 608; 38 L. J. P. 4. In

Mills v. Millward, 15 P. D. 20; 59 L. J. P. 23, a will was destroyed in testatrix's presence, but against her wish. Subsequently, though pressed to make a new will she refused, saying that it must remain as it was. It was held that the will was not revoked, and that probate might be granted of the will as contained in an affidavit of the executor. Whether the testatrix could ratify such a destruction so as to make it a revocation within sect. 20, quære. See also Gill v. Gill, 1909, P. 157; 78 L. J. P. 60. And where a testator, having duly executed a codicil to his last will, destroyed the will under the impression that it was of no further use, the Court admitted the contents of the will, as set forth in the draft thereof, together with the codicil, to probate, Beardsley v. Lacey, 67 L. J. P. 35.

A will once well executed is not revoked by the cutting off, with the privity of the testator, of the signature of one of the witnesses, for the purpose of its being re-written, In b. Tozer, 7 Jur. 134. See also In b. Coleman, 2 Sw. & Tr. 314; 30 L. J. P. 170. But where a testator, animo revocandi, tears off the seal and a syllable of a word in the body of the will, Price v. Powell, 3 H. & N. 341; or the signature and attestation clause, In b. Lewis, 1 Sw. & Tr. 31; 27 L. J. P. 31; or the attestation clause and the names of the witnesses, Abraham v. Joseph, 5 Jur. N. S. 179; or the names of the witnesses only, Evans v. Dallow, 31 L. J. P. 128; this is a complete revocation.

Where a will was found with the testator's signature torn off the first four sheets, and a pen run through the signature on the fifth and last sheet, and there was evidence produced of an intention to revoke, the will was held to be revoked, Williams v. Tyley, Joh. 530. See also In b. Simpson, 5 Jur. N. S. 1366; In b. Harris, 3 Sw. & Tr. 485; 33 L. J. P. 181. But after due execution is proved, the burden of proving that the will has been revoked lies upon those who set up the revocation, and will not be assumed in the absence of evidence; thus a will of 1834 was found, after the testator's death in 1870, with the signature crossed out, but there being no evidence when the crossing out was done, the Court refused to presume that it was before 1838, Benson v. Benson, L. R. 2 P. & D. 172; 40 L. J. P. 1.

The question whether a will was revoked by the testator's tearing it in a fit of anger into four pieces, where he afterwards desired his house-keeper to sew them together again, was raised but not decided in In b. Colberg, 2 Cur. 832; but see Doe v. Perkes, 3 B. & Ald. 489.

Under the old law, a codicil was primâ facie dependent on the will, and the destruction of the will was an implied revocation of the codicil, but the destruction of a will was not necessarily a revocation of the codicil. In some cases under the present law it appears to have been considered that the question was one of intention, and that if there was evidence of intention to revoke it, the codicil, though existent, would be revoked by the destruction of the will, see Clogstoun v. Wolcott, 5 No. Cas. 623; Grimwood v. Cozens, 2 Sw. & Tr. 364; In b. Dutton, 3 Sw. & Tr. 66; 32 L. J. P. 137; In b. Greig, L. R. 1 P. & D. 72; 35 L. J. P. 113; but it is now established that a codicil can only be revoked by one of the modes indicated in sect. 20, and is not in any case under the new law revoked simply by the destruction of the will, Black v. Jobling, L. R. 1 P. & D. 685; 38 L. J. P. 74; In b. Savage, L. R. 2 P. & D. 78; 39 L. J. P. 25; In b. Turner, L. R. 2 P. & D. 403; Gardiner v. Courthope, 12 P. D. 14; 56 L. J. P. 55. See, however, In b. Bleckley, 8 P. D. 169; 52 L. J. P. 102, where a testator having executed a codicil at the foot of his will, cut off his signature to the will, believing that he thereby destroyed also the codicil, which, however, he left unmutated. Sir J. Hannen held that the circumstances showed an intention to revoke both the will and the codicil, and that the latter was revoked. A codicil revoking a will does not necessarily revoke a prior codicil. The question is whether the testator distinguishes between the will and codicils, Farrer v. St. Catherine's College, L. R. 16 Eq. 19; 42 L. J. Ch. 809.

Revocation
by destruction.

(d) The power to revoke a will in the testator's absence cannot be delegated; therefore the direction by a testator that his will shall be destroyed, either in his lifetime, Rooke v. Langdon, 2 L. T. O. S. 495; In b. Dadds, D. & Sw. 290; or after his death, Stockwell v. Ritherdon, 1 Rob. 661, is inoperative, the Act requiring the destruction to be in the presence and by the direction of the testator. So where a will was burnt by the direction, but not in the presence of the testator, the draft was admitted to probate, In b. Dadds, ubi sup. And where a wife destroyed her husband's will without his consent, the Court, on admitting a copy of the will to probate, ordered the costs to be paid by the widow, Horne v. Horne, Prob. Ct., Dec. 1859.

Will not forthcoming at testator's
death.

(e) Where a will which is traced into the hands of a testator, Patten v. Poulton, 1 Sw. & Tr. 55; 27 L. J. P. 41, or that part of a will executed in duplicate which is retained by the testator in his own possession, Saunders v. Saunders, 6 No. Cas. 518, is not forthcoming at the testator's death, the presumption of law is, that it has been destroyed by him animo revocandi; this presumption may be rebutted by circumstances, ib., see also In b. Hains, 5 No. Cas. 621; Battyll v. Lyles, 4 Jur. N. S. 718; Whiteley v. King, 5 N. R. 12; but will prevail until it is rebutted by satisfactory evidence, Eckersley v. Platt, L. R. 1 P. & D. 281; 36 L. J. P. 7; Allan v. Morrison, 1900, A. C. 604; 69 L. J. P. C. 141. In James v. Shrimpton, 1 P. D. 431; 45 L. J. P. 85, a will, revoked by marriage, was revived by codicil, but at the testator's death the codicil could not be found; on proof of intention to adhere to the will, probate was granted of the will and the draft of the codicil. In b. Debae, 77 L. T. 374, a testator made and duly executed a will and afterwards a codicil revoking certain portions of the will. The documents were kept by the testator in separate sealed envelopes. On his death the will only was found, with the seal of the envelope containing it broken. It was held that although the presumption of law must prevail as to the destruction of the codicil, probate could only be granted of such parts of the will as the codicil by its execution had not revoked. As to the admissibility of declarations made by a testator as to his intention in such cases, see Keen v. Keen, L. R. 3 P. & D. 105; 42 L. J. P. 61. Oral declarations made by a testatrix are inadmissible to prove the destruction by her of a duplicate of the will, or of the fact that there was such a duplicate, Atkinson v. Morris, 1897, P. 40; 66 L. J. P. 17.

Sect. 20.

The cases under the old law upon wills executed in duplicate are collected in Sugd. R. P. Stat. 350, n. See also 1 Wms. Exors. 115; Doe v. Strickland, 8 C. B. 724; 19 L. J. C. P. 89. Those cases are applicable to the present law.

Duplicate wills.

Where a portion of a will was found locked up in the testator's bureau, the first sheet, containing the substance of the will, being detached and missing, it was held, on the presumption of law, that the mutilation was done by the testator animo revocandi, Williams v. Jones, 7 No. Cas. 106. But where a will, which had been well executed, was found after the testator's death with his signature erased, and his name re-written a little below the place of the first signature, it was held that this erasure had not been made animo revocandi, and probate was allowed with the original signature restored, and the second signature omitted, In b. King, 2 Rob. 403.

Part only of a will found at testator's death.

A will on six or eight sheets was signed by the testator and by witnesses; after the testator's death two only of the inner sheets were found; as the last sheet, upon which alone was the execution required by the statute, was not forthcoming, the Court presumed a revocation, In b. Gullan, 1 Sw. & Tr. 23; 27 L. J. P. 15; Gullan v. Grove, 26 Be. 64.

Last sheet missing.

And so a codicil not found with the will and other codicils is presumed to have been revoked, In b. Shaw, 1 Sw. & Tr. 62.

Codicil not forthcoming.

If a will be lost or destroyed, without the intention of revoking it, and the substance thereof can be ascertained by means of the original instructions, or by a copy of the will, or by the recollection of persons who heard it read over, probate will be granted of a paper embodying such substance, Taylor, Evidence, 307; Brown v. Brown, 8 E. & B. 886; 27 L. J. P. 20; Harris v. Knight, 15 P. D. 170; In b. Phibbs, 1917, P. 93; 86 L. J. P. 81. The contents of a lost will may be proved by secondary evidence; declarations of the testator, before execution, are admissible; the contents may be proved by a single witness; and when the contents are not completely proved, probate will be granted to the extent of which they are proved, Sugden v. Lord St. Leonards, 1 P. D. 154; 45 L. J. P. 49; provided that the contents as proved are really substantially the testamentary intentions of the testator. Where evidence was given as to the person appointed residuary legatee, but the evidence did not show the nature and amount of the previous bequests in the will, nor the names of the legatees, and it was thus impossible to ascertain what the testator intended the residuary legatee to take, a grant of probate on such evidence was refused, Woodward v. Goulstone, 11 A. C. 469; 56 L. J. P. 1. The proof of a will that has been destroyed or lost is viewed by the Court with jealousy and mistrust, Moore v. Whitehouse, 3 Sw. & Tr. 567; 34 L. J. P. 31; the due execution of the will, and its existence after the death of the testator, should in general be proved, and a satisfactory explanation given of the circumstances attending the destruction or loss, see Burls v. Burls, L. R. 1 P. & D. 472:

Probate of copy, or of substance of will.

Sect. 20.

36 L. J. P. 125. As a rule, a draft or copy is required to be propounded before admitting it to probate, though probate of a draft may be obtained on motion, In b. Barber, L. R. 1 P. & D. 267; 36 L. J. P. 19. In Mills v. Millward, 15 P. D. 20; 59 L. J. P. 23, probate of a will as contained in an affidavit of the executor was granted, the will having been destroyed without intention of revoking it. Where the will of a testator was, after his death, torn into pieces by one of his sons while a copy was being made by an executor, but, after most of the pieces had been recovered and gummed together there were still some blanks left, though the copy showed what all the words omitted in the blanks had been, probate was granted of the incomplete will and the copy as together constituting the will of the deceased, In b. Leigh, 1892, P. 82; 61 L. J. P. 124. See also Gill v. Gill, 1909, P. 157; 78 L. J. P. 60.

OBLITERATIONS AND INTERLINEATIONS.

Sect. 21.

No alteration in a will shall have any effect unless executed as a will.

XXI. And be it further enacted, That no obliteration, interlineation (a), or other alteration made in any will after the execution thereof shall be valid or have any effect (b), except so far as the words or effect of the will before such alteration shall not be apparent (c), unless such alteration shall be executed in like manner as hereinbefore is required for the execution of the will (d); but the will, with such alteration as part thereof, shall be deemed to be duly executed if the signature of the testator and the subscription of the witnesses (e) be made in the margin or on some other part of the will opposite or near to such alteration (f), or at the foot or end of or opposite to a memorandum referring to (g) such alteration and written at the end or some other part of the will (h).

Alterations presumed to be made after execution.

(b) Alterations appearing on the face of a will are, in the absence of satisfactory evidence, intrinsic or extrinsic, to the contrary, presumed to have been made after the execution, and are therefore held not to form part of the will, Burgoyne v. Showler, 1 Rob. 5; Cooper v. Bockett, 4 Moo. P. C. 419; Greville v. Tylee, 7 Moo. P. C. 320; and see Gann v. Gregory, 3 D. M. & G. 777; 22 L. J. Ch. 1059; Simmons v. Rudall, 1 Sim. N. S. 115; Doe v. Palmer, 16 Q. B. 747; 20 L. J. Q. B. 367; Keigwin v. Keigwin, 3 Cur. 607; Williams v. Ashton, 1 J. & H. 115; In b. Hindmarch, L. R. 1 P. & D. 307; 36 L. J. P. 24; see also In b. Cudge, L. R. 1 P. & D. 543; 37 L. J. P. 15, where a distinction was taken between interlineations and alterations.

Interpolated sheets.

In In b. Countess of Morton, 13 Jur. 1108, a sheet substituted for an original sheet of the will was assumed to have been substituted before execution. But in Treloar v. Lean, 14 P. D. 49; 58 L. J. P. 39, the evidence showed that those sheets which had been substituted by the testator for original sheets had been substituted after execution, and probate of the will was refused. The legal presumption is that papers bound together, and constituting the will as found at the testator's death, were so bound together at the time of execution, Rees v. Rees, L. R. 3 P. & D. 84.

Sect. 21.

Where several undated interlineations appeared in a will, upon evidence of the parol declarations of the testator made before the date of the will, one of those interlineations was admitted to probate, In b. Foley, 25 L. T. O. S. 311. Verbal and written statements made by a testator in and about the making of his will, when accompanying acts done by him in relation to the same subject, are admissible as evidence of the contents of the will, Johnson v. Lyford, L. R. 1 P. & D. 546; 37 L. J. P. 65. Parol declarations made before the date of the will are admissible, Doe v. Palmer, 16 Q. B. 747; 20 L. J. Q. B. 367; Dench v. Dench, 2 P. D. 60; 46 L. J. P. 13. It is doubtful whether parol declarations after execution are admissible; see Woodward v. Goulstone, 11 A. C. 469; 56 L. J. P. 1; see also In b. Ripley, 1 Sw. & Tr. 68; Staines v. Stewart, 2 Sw. & Tr. 320; 31 L. J. P. 10; In b. Weston, L. R. 1 P. & D. 633; 38 L. J. P. 53. They are probably inadmissible, Atkinson v. Morris, 1897, P. 40; 66 L. J. P. 17. As to declarations made after the date of the will, but before the execution of a codicil confirming the will, see In b. Sykes, L. R. 3 P. & D. 26; 42 L. J. P. 17. And see Keen v. Keen, L. R. 3 P. & D. 105; 42 L. J. P. 61, as to declarations of intention to adhere or not to adhere to a will. Compare Ste. Evid., art. 29.

Parol declarations of testator.

Blanks in a will were filled up by the testator, as to part in black, and as to the rest in red ink; upon the circumstances of the case the former were held to have been filled in before, the latter after execution, Birch v. Birch, 1 Rob. 675.

Blanks filled up in black and red ink.

The mere circumstance of the amount of a legacy or the name of a legatee being inserted in different ink, and in a different handwriting, does not alone constitute an "obliteration, interlineation, or other alteration," within the meaning of the statute, nor does any presumption arise therefrom against a will having been duly executed in the form in which it appears. The case is different where there is an erasure apparent on the face of the will, and that erasure has been "superinduced by other writing." In such circumstances the onus lies upon the person who alleges such alteration to have been made prior to execution to prove by extrinsic evidence that the words were inserted before execution, and that they had the sanction of the testator, Greville v. Tylee, 7 Moo. P. C. 320.

Parts of will in different ink or handwriting.

Where alterations, obliterations, and erasures appear on the face of a will, all the witnesses must join in the affidavit produced on the demand of probate; or the absence of a witness should be explained and accounted for, In b. Townsend, 5 No. Cas. 146.

Affidavits of witnesses.

In Gann v. Gregory, 3 D. M. & G. 777; 22 L. J. (N. S.) Ch. 1059; Shea v. Boschetti, 18 Be. 321; 23 L. J. Ch. 652; In b. Kendall, 4 No. Cas.

Probate in fac simi'e.

Sect. 21. 317; In b. Smith, 3 Sw. & Tr. 589; 34 L. J. P. 19, probate was granted in fac simile, thus leaving it to a court of construction to decide as to the effect of the alterations and interlineations. In Gann v. Gregory, Lord Cranworth, C., held that the will was to be read as if the parts through which ink lines had been run formed no part of the will.

Production, in court, of original will. In construing a will, a court of construction will look at the original will and not merely at the probate copy, Compton v. Bloxham, 2 Coll. 201; 14 L. J. (N. S.) Ch. 380; Manning v. Purcell, 7 D. M. & G. 55; 24 L. J. Ch. 522; Re Harrison, 30 Ch. D. 390; 55 L. J. Ch. 799.

Unattested erasures. (c) The obliteration of a bequest, with the addition of the unattested words "erased by me, M. L.," written by the testator, is not a revocation if the original words are "apparent" on the face of the will; and to ascertain this fact the evidence of engravers and other experts and the use of magnifying glasses are admissible, Cooper v. Bockett, 4 Moo. P. C. 419; In b. Oppenheim, 17 Jur. 306; In b. Ibbetson, 2 Cur. 337; In b. Beavan, 2 Cur. 369; Ffinch v. Combe, 1894, P. 191; 63 L. J. P. 113; 4 R. P. Com. Rep. 31; Re Brasier, 1899, P. 36; 68 L. J. P. 6. As to the removal of pieces of paper gummed over portions of the will, see In b. Horsford, L. R. 3 P. & D. 211; 44 L. J. P. 9; In b. Gilbert, 1893, P. 183; 44 L. J. P. 9; Ffinch v. Combe, 1894, P. 191; 63 L. J. P. 113. As to the evidence of experts, see In b. Rushout, 13 Jur. 458; In b. Abbey, 5 No. Cas. 615.

Obliteration with unattested substitution. Where a testator, by means of an erasure made with a knife, intended to revoke a legacy, and then by writing over the erasure to substitute a sum different from that originally given, such substituted legacy, if unsigned and unattested, is not effectually given, and the original legacy is not revoked, although its amount is no longer "apparent," and parol evidence is admissible to show what the original legacy was, Brooke v. Kent, 3 Moo. P. C. 334; see also In b. Reeve, 13 Jur. 370; Soar v. Dolman, 3 Cur. 121; In b. Nelson, Ir. R. 6 Eq. 569; Jeffery v. Cancer Hospital, 57 L. T. 600; and probate will be granted of the will in its original state. This is in accordance with the authorities referred to, ante, p. 42, as to dependent relative revocation. So also in the case of an unattested obliteration of an executor's name and substitution of another name, In b. Parr, 6 Jur. N. S. 56; In b. Harris, 1 Sw. & Tr. 536; In b. Greenwood, 1892, P. 7; 61 L. J. P. 56. But if the erased words are not apparent and proof cannot be given as to the original words, probate will be granted in blank as to the erased parts, In b. James, 1 Sw. & Tr. 238; In b. Livock, 1 Cur. 906; In b. Ibbetson, 2 Cur. 337; Doherty v. Dwyer, 25 L. R. Ir. 297; In b. Nelson, I. R. 6 Eq. 569.

"Apparent," meaning of. The word "apparent" means "apparent on an inspection of the document itself," 1 Wms. Exors. 107; Townley v. Watson, 3 Cur. 761.

Obliteration without substitution. Where the words forming the gift of a legacy, Townley v. Watson, sup., are animo revocandi, and without any intention of substituting another gift, so obliterated by the testator with pen and ink as to be illegible, this is a complete revocation of the legacy, and parol evidence will be inadmissible to restore the will. But the principle of dependent relative revocation applies to a case where the testator has erased the name of a legatee so that it is no longer apparent, and has substituted another name for it; and if satisfied that the testator only revoked the first bequest on the supposition that he had effectually substituted a new legatee, the Court will receive evidence to shew what the original name was, In b. McCabe, L. R. 3 P. & D. 94; 42 L. J. P. 79. See also In b. Horsford, L. R. 3 P. & D. 211; 44 L. J. P. 9; Ffinch v. Combe, 1894, P. 191; 63 L. J. P. 113, in both which cases the testator had pasted paper over certain parts of his will; and see Sturton v. Whetlock, 52 L. J. P. 29; In b. Nelson, I. R. 6 Eq. 569.

Sect. 21.
With substitution.

(d) The presumption that alterations and obliterations were made after the execution holds even where a codicil has been well executed, Lushington v. Onslow, 6 No. Cas. 183; Rowley v. Merlin, 6 Jur. N. S. 1165; In b. Bradley, 5 No. Cas. 95; Christmas v. Whynates, 3 Sw. & Tr. 81; 32 L. J. P. 73. To rebut this presumption, alterations and obliterations in a will must be referred to and identified in the subsequent well-executed codicil, or be proved to have existed before the date of the codicil, In b. Mills, 11 Jur. 1070; In b. Mogg, 1 No. Cas. 325; In b. Wyatt, 2 Sw. & Tr. 494; 31 L. J. P. 197; In b. Bradley, 5 No. Cas. 95; Tyler v. Merchant Taylors' Co., 15 P. D. 216; 60 L. J. P. 86; In b. Heath, 1892, P. 253; 61 L. J. P. 131; Oldroyd v. Harvey, 1907, P. 326; 76 L. J. P. 161. Nor are unattested additions to a will made part of the testamentary instrument by a subsequently well-executed codicil beginning, "By this codicil to my will," Haynes v. Hill, 1 Rob. 795; but see In b. Tegg, 4 No. Cas. 531; Neate v. Pickard, 2 No. Cas. 407. As to the effect of a codicil upon unsigned and unattested cancellations in a prior will, see Re Hay, 1904, 1 Ch. 317; 73 L. J. Ch. 33.

Interlineations, &c., subsequent codicil.

(e) The names, In b. Wingrove, 15 Jur. 91; or the initials, In b. Hinds, 16 Jur. 1161; In b. Blewitt, 5 P. D. 116; 49 L. J. P. 31, of the testator and witnesses placed in the margin of the will near the alteration are sufficient to make the alteration part of the will, without any memorandum of attestation referring to the alteration.

Alterations attested by signatures of testator and witnesses.

If alterations are made in a will after execution, the mere writing by the witnesses of their names opposite to the alterations at the request of the testator will have no effect, In b. Cunningham, 4 Sw. & Tr. 194; 29 L. J. P. 71; but if a testator having made alterations in a will produces the will to the witnesses and acknowledges his signature thereto, and they then sign their names to the will animo testandi, and not merely to the alterations, this will amount to a new execution of the will, and the alterations previously made will then be validated, In b. Dewell, 17 Jur. 1130.

(f) See In b. Wilkinson, 6 P. D. 100, where there were alterations in the same sentence, which began on the second and were continued on the third side of a sheet of paper.

(g) See In b. Treeby, L. R. 3 P. & D. 242; 44 L. J. P. 44, as to what is sufficient reference.

 near to the alterations, or in the case of a memorandum referring to the alterations, see 15 Jur. 91 (n.).

REVIVAL OF REVOKED WILL.

Sect. 22. XXII. And be it further enacted, That no will or codicil or No revoked will to be revived otherwise than by re-execution or a codicil. any part thereof which shall be in any manner revoked shall be revived otherwise than by the re-execution thereof, or by a codicil executed in manner hereinbefore required and showing an intention to revive the same; and when any will or codicil which shall be partly revoked and afterwards wholly revoked shall be revived, such revival shall not extend to so much thereof as shall have been revoked before the revocation of the whole thereof unless an intention to the contrary shall be shown (a).

Implied revival of will abolished. (a) As in the preceding sections the object of the legislature appears to have been to put an end to implied revocations of testamentary papers, so by the 22nd section the aim is to do away with implied revivals. It would seem that the "intention to revive" a revoked will by a codicil, which is required by this section, can be shown only by the contents of the codicil itself, and that no act dehors the codicil can be resorted to for the purpose of establishing the intention, Marsh v. Marsh, 1 Sw. & Tr.
 528; 30 L. J. P. 77. In that case, twenty-seven wills and codicils were found after the testator's death, besides a large number of incomplete testamentary papers; a codicil of 1858 was tied by a piece of tape to a will of 1851, which will had been revoked by another will of 1856. It was held that this merely physical annexation of the codicil was no ground for inferring the intention to revive required by sect. 22, and probate was granted of the will of 1856 and the codicil of 1858.

Destruction of revoking instrument. A duly-executed will, if once revoked by a subsequent will containing a clause of revocation, is not revived by the destruction of such subsequent will, Major v. Williams, 3 Cur. 432; Stride v. Sandford, 17 Jur.
 263; and parol evidence of an intention to revive the will is inadmissible (ib.). In In b. Hodgkinson, 1893, P. 339; 62 L. J. P. 116, a testator by his will gave all his property to I. S., and appointed her sole executrix.
 Afterwards he made a second will, devising his real estate to his sister E.
 and appointing her sole executrix; but he did not revoke the first will.
 He subsequently destroyed the second will. Held, that the first will was partially revoked by the second, and that the revoked part of the first will was not revived by the revocation of the second; therefore, that probate must be granted of the first will limited to such part of the testator's property as was not comprised in the second will, and that as to such part as was comprised in the second will there was an intestacy. But if a testator destroys a will solely with a view to revive a former will, then, in accordance with the doctrine of dependent relative revocation, such Dependent relative

destruction will not operate as a revocation, Powell v. Powell, L. R. 1 P. & D. 209; 35 L. J. P. 100; Cossey v. Cossey, 69 L. J. P. 17; a doctrine which was apparently overlooked in Tharp v. Tharp, 1916, 1 Ch. 142; 85 L. J. Ch. 162. Sect. 22.

Extrinsic evidence was admitted to shew with what object a testator had republished a will which, as to one bequest, he had varied by a codicil dated prior to such republication, Upfill v. Marshall, 7 Jur. 819; Wade v. Nazer, 1 Rob. 627. In the latter case, the re-execution of the will alone was held not to revoke a codicil to that will. Extrinsic evidence.

A testator duly executed his will, and afterwards executed another will which was not found at his death; of the contents of the second nothing was known, except that it was headed "last will and testament"; it was held in the Prerogative Court that the former will (which was found at the testator's death) was revoked by the latter, that the former was not revived by the second will not being forthcoming, and that there was an intestacy, but this decision was reversed by the Privy Council, Cutto v. Gilbert, 9 Moo. P. C. 131; Hellier v. Hellier, 9 P. D. 237; 53 L. J. P. 105. But if, in similar circumstances, it can be proved, by strong and conclusive evidence, that the second will revoked the first, there is an intestacy, In b. Brown, 1 Sw. & Tr. 32; 27 L. J. P. 20; Brown v. Brown, 8 E. & B. 886; 27 L. J. Q. B. 173; Wood v. Wood, L. R. 1 P. & D. 309; 36 L. J. P. 34. Loss of revoking instrument.

Where a sum of 100*l.* was given by will to a legatee, afterwards in substitution a sum of 500*l.* was given by a codicil to the same legatee, and then the latter gift was revoked, the legatee was not entitled to the 100*l.*, Boulcott v. Boulcott, 2 Drew. 25; 23 L. Ch. 57. Legacy, substitution by codicil, and revocation of codicil.

A testator in 1837 executed his will in duplicate, one part being kept by himself, the other by his solicitor; on the execution in 1838 by the testator of a second will, revoking in terms the prior one, the part of the prior will in the possession of the solicitor was destroyed by the testator, but the part in the testator's possession remained untouched down to the time of his death; in 1839 the testator made a codicil, which referred to the will of 1837 by its date; that will was held to be revived, and parol evidence was not admitted to prove a mistake in the date, Payne v. Trappes, 1 Rob. 583. See also In b. Chapman, 1 Rob. 1; In b. Goodenough, 2 Sw. & Tr. 141; 30 L. J. (N. S.) P. 166; In b. Lewis, 7 Jur. N. S. 220; In b. Wyatt, 2 Sw. & Tr. 494; 31 L. J. P. 197; In b. Chilcott, 1897, P. 223; 66 L. J. P. 108. See also In b. Reade, 1902, P. 75; 71 L. J. P. 45. A will which has been revoked, in order that it may be revived by a subsequent codicil, must be in existence at the date of the reviving codicil, and must be clearly identified, Newton v. Newton, 12 Ir. Ch. Rep. 118. If there is any doubt or ambiguity with respect to the document referred to by the testator, extrinsic evidence will be admissible, Thomson v. Hempenstall, 7 No. Cas. 141; Quincey v. Quincey, 11 Jur. 111. And the execution by a testator, after his marriage, of a codicil referring to "my last will" (there being only one will in existence), was held to revive a will made before the testator's mar- Revival of will.

Two codicils only admitted to probate.

In the circumstances detailed in Hale v. Tokelove, 2 Rob. 319, there were admitted to probate two codicils only; one executed will and the draft of another will, referred to in one of the codicils, being rejected; and In b. Dendy, 15 Jur. 1042, a will and the first and fourth codicils only were admitted to probate.

REVOCATION—SUBSEQUENT CONVEYANCE.

Sect. 23.

When a devise not to be rendered inoperative, &c.

XXIII. And be it further enacted, That no conveyance or other act made or done subsequently to the execution of a will of or relating to any real or personal estate therein comprised, except an act by which such will shall be revoked as aforesaid, shall prevent the operation of the will with respect to such estate or interest in such real or personal estate as the testator shall have power to dispose of by will at the time of his death (a).

Revocation by alteration of estate abolished.

(a) Revocation by alteration of estate is abolished, Ford v. De Pontès, and De Pontès v. Kendall, 31 L. J. Ch. 185. The acquisition of a larger estate, Saxton v. Saxton, 13 Ch. D. 359; 49 L. J. Ch. 128; or a larger interest, Re Russell, 19 Ch. D. 432; 51 L. J. Ch. 401, does not affect the validity of a testamentary disposition, which takes effect upon the estate or interest as existing at the testator's death. Compare the note to sect. 24, post.

Scope of this section.

In Carson's Real Property Statutes the scope of this section is thus defined: "This clause of the Act applies to cases where testators, after having devised their estates, make conveyances of them which are to have the same effect as fines or recoveries, or where they mortgage the devised estates in fee and afterwards take a reconveyance of them to themselves and a trustee to bar dower, but it does not apply to cases where the thing meant to be given is gone."

As to unpaid purchase-money of real estate specifically devised.

Under this section it has been held that where a testator subsequently to his will contracted for the sale of an estate which he had specifically devised, and the contract remained uncompleted at his decease, the purchase-money belonged to his personal representatives as part of his personal estate, and not to the devisees of the property, the testator having, at the time of his death, merely a claim for the purchase-money, with a lien on the estate for its payment, which lien, it was considered, was not such an interest as was in the contemplation of the legislature in the concluding part of this section, Farrar v. Earl of Winterton, 5 Be. 1. And the result is not varied by the fact that the purchaser had deposited the title deeds of the said property with the vendor, as security for part of the purchase-money; the clause applies to cases where testators, having devised their estates, make conveyances of them, merely modifying the ownership, and not to cases where the thing to be given is gone.

And where the title deeds were deposited as security for unpaid purchase-money.

Moor v. Raisbeck, 12 Sim. 123. In Re Clowes, 1893, 1 Ch. 214, a testator being absolutely entitled to a freehold estate specifically devised it to H. Afterwards he sold the estate to a purchaser, and on the following day the property was reconveyed to him by way of mortgage for securing part of the purchase-money which was allowed to remain charged on the estate. Held, that the sum secured by the mortgage did not pass to the specific devisee. Nor is the result varied by the fact that the sale was compulsory under the powers of a private Improvement Act, Ex parte Hawkins, 13 Sm. 569; or a Railway Act, Re The Manchester and Southport Railway Company, 19 Be. 365. And see Frewen v. Frewen, L. R. 10 Ch. 610; and Sugd. R. P. Stat. 360. A notice to treat does not effect a conversion, Haynes v. Haynes, 1 Dr. & S. 426; 30 L. J. Ch. 578. But the devisee is entitled to the rents which accrue between the testator's death and the completion of the purchase, Watts v. Watts, L. R. 17 Eq. 217; 43 L. J. (N. S.) Ch. 77.

Compulsory sale.

It is not infrequent to find, in leases of freehold property, a clause which gives the lessee an option to purchase the demised property, either pending the term, or within a shorter fixed period. If the lessee exercises his option during the life of the lessor, of course the purchase-money goes, on the death of the lessor, testate or intestate, to his personal representatives. And if the option is exercised after the death of the lessor, and the lessor dies intestate, or has only generally devised his real estate, the purchase-money still goes to the personal representatives of the lessor, and not to his heir or devisee, Lawes v. Bennett, 1 Cox, 167; Townley v. Bedwell, 14 Ves. 591; Weeding v. Weeding, 1 J. & H. 424. See also Collingwood v. Row, 5 W. R. 484; 26 L. J. (N. S.) Ch. 649; Goold v. Teague, 7 W. R. 84; Knollys v. Shepherd, cited 1 J. & W. 499; Wright v. Rose, 2 S. & S. 323; 25 R. R. 209; Re Isaacs, 1894, 3 Ch. 506 (intestacy); 63 L. J. Ch. 815. But if the lessor, by will made after the contract giving the option to purchase, specifically devises the property without referring to the contract, then the purchase-money will go to the devisee, Drant v. Vause, 1 Y. & C. 580; 11 L. J. Ch. 170; Emuss v. Smith, 2 De G. & S. 722; Re Pyle, 1895, 1 Ch. 724; 64 L. J. Ch. 477 (in which last-mentioned case the will was made on the same day as the lease giving the option of purchase was executed).

Option to purchase after testator's death.

But, in the case above considered, the rents accruing due in the interval between the lessor's death and the exercise by the lessee of his option to purchase belong to the heir or devisee, Townley v. Bedwell, 14 Ves. 591. See also Shadforth v. Temple, 10 Sim. 184; Lumsden v. Fraser, 12 Sim. 263; Ex parte Walker, 1 Drew. 508; Ex parte Hardy, 30 Be. 206; Re Marlay, 1915, 2 Ch. 264; 84 L. Gale v. Gale. Real estate was conveyed to trustees upon trust for A. for life, with remainder for such persons as A. should by deed or will appoint, and, in default, for the children of five persons named. The trustees were empowered, with the consent of A., to sell the settled property, and invest the proceeds in other real estate to be settled to the same uses. A., in exercise of his power, by will dated in 1846, appointed the settled estate to trustees upon trust to sell and to pay the proceeds to the children of B., and he devised all other his real estate, not thereinbefore specifically disposed of, to his wife. In 1849 the trustees of the settlement, with A.'s consent, sold the settled estate; but on the death of A., which took place in 1850, the purchaser's conveyance was not executed by one of the trustees, and the purchase-money was unpaid. It was held that there was an ademption, that the appointment by the will of A. had no effect, either on the new estate to be purchased with the produce of the settled estate or on the purchase-money which stood in its place; and that the widow and residuary legatee of A. was entitled to the purchase-money of the settled estate, Gale v. Gale, 21 Be. 349. This decision has been criticised, but was followed in Blake v. Blake, 15 Ch. D. 481; 49 L. J. Ch. 393. See Re Dowsett, 1901, 1 Ch. 398; 70 L. J. Ch. 149; and Re Moses, 1902, 1 Ch. 100; 71 L. J. Ch. 101; 1903, A. C. 13.

Railway shares converted into stock. A bequest of railway shares generally includes railway stocks, Morrice v. Aylmer, L. R. 7 H. L. 717; 45 L. J. Ch. 614, overruling Oakes v. Oakes, 9 Ha. 666. See also Re Pilkington's Trusts, 6 N. R. 246. But debentures converted into debenture stock did not pass under a gift of "all my debentures," Luard v. Lane, 14 Ch. D. 856; 49 L. J. Ch. 768. Debenture stock passed under a bequest of "shares," the testatrix having no shares, in Re Weeding, 1896, 2 Ch. 364; 65 L. J. Ch. 743. See also Re Herring, 1908, 2 Ch. 493; 77 L. J. Ch. 665.

WILL SPEAKS, FROM WHAT PERIOD.

Sect. 24. XXIV And be it further enacted, That every will shall be construed, with reference to the real estate and personal estate comprised in it, to speak and take effect as if it had been executed immediately before the death of the testator, unless a contrary intention shall appear by the will (a).

A will to speak from the death of the testator.

Will speaks from death,

(a) This section makes a will speak, with reference to the property comprised in it, i.e. with reference to any gift contained in the will,

Gibson v. Gibson, 1 Drew. 42, 61, 62; 22 L. J. Ch. 346; including property appointed, Freme v. Clement, 18 Ch. D. 499, 509; 50 L. J. Ch. 801; and only as to the property comprised in it, as from the death of the testator; it does not extend to the testator's capacity, so as to render valid a will executed during minority of a testator who died after attaining majority (see note to sect. 7); or so as to make the will, executed before the Married Women's Property Act, 1893, during coverture, of a testatrix who dies a widow, effective to pass property acquired by her after coverture, Willock v. Noble, L. R. 7 II. L. 580; 44 L. J. Ch. 345; Re Price, 28 Ch. Div. 709; 54 L. J. Ch. 509; nor does sect. 24 extend to the objects of the testator's bounty, Re Whorwood, 34 Ch. Div. 446; 56 L. J. Ch. 340; Amyot v. Dwaris, 1904, A. C. 268. Where a sum of money was bequeathed to trustees, upon trust for A. for life or until her marriage, and A., who was a widow at the date of the will, married again in the testator's lifetime, and the testator died without re-executing his will, it was held that A. was not entitled to any interest under the will, Bullock v. Bennett, 7 D. M. & G. 283; 24 L. J. (N. S.) Ch. 512. In Lloyd v. Davies, 15 O. B. 76, a devise to three daughters as tenants in common was to be varied on the marriage of any one of them; it was held that the marriage contemplated was a marriage in the testator's lifetime, or at all events within twelve months after his death; and that, in the event of no marriage taking place within that time, the proposed variation would not take effect. It would seem, also, that sect. 24 is not applicable to the construction of a clause excepting property from the operation of the will, see Hughes v. Jones, 1 H. & M. 765; 32 L. J. (N. S.) Ch. 487.

Sect. 24.
as to property only

But, so far as the property comprised in or which passes by the will is concerned, to exclude the application of this section, the "contrary intention" must appear on the will, and must have a continuing operation down to the death of the testator. The will must be taken as if executed immediately before the death, and when so taken must show a "contrary intention," Thomas v. Jones, 1 D. J. & S. 63, 83; 32 L. J. Ch. 139. See also Re Gillins, 1909, 1 Ch. 345; 78 L. J. Ch. 244.

Contrary
intention.

But a devise of all the real estate of which "I am now seised," notwithstanding this section, has been held to pass only the real estates belonging to the testator at the date of his will, and not any subsequently acquired estates, Cole v. Scott, 1 M. & G. 518; 19 L. J. Ch. 63; Hutchinson v. Barrow, 6 H. & N. 583; 30 L. J. Ex. 280; Williams v. Owen, 2 N. R. 585; Cave v. Harris, 57 L. J. Ch. 62. But see Heppburn v. Skirving, 4 Jur. N. S. 651.

Estate of which "I am now seised."

A devise of "all my Quendon Hall estates in Essex" in a will of 1844 was held not to pass small additions to what were clearly comprised in the devise, which additions were acquired by the testatrix after the date of her will, although she had contracted to purchase some of them before that date, Webb v. Byng, 1 K. & J. 580. But the term "Quendon Hall estates" was not a recognised appellation of any particular property, and extrinsic evidence was admitted to shew what the testatrix understood to be comprised in that arbitrary designation. But see Re Otley and

"All my
estates."

Estate of which "I am

By a will dated in 1835, the testator devised "all the freehold lands and hereditaments of or to which I or any person in trust for me am, is, or are seised;" by a codicil of 1845 the testator devised all the lands comprised in and devised by his said will to uses; real estate acquired by the testator after the date of the codicil was held to pass by the will and codicil, Lady Langdale v. Briggs, 8 D. M. & G. 391; 26 L. J. Ch. 27; see also Doe v. Walker, 12 M. & W. 591; Lord Lilford v. Powys-Keck, 30 Be. 300; Jepson v. Key, 2 H. & C. 873.

In Re Champion, 1893, 1 Ch. 101; 62 L. J. Ch. 372, a testator by his will made in April, 1873, devised a freehold cottage with all the lands thereto belonging, described as "now in my own occupation," to trustees upon certain trusts. In September, 1873, the testator purchased two fields adjoining the cottage and occupied them with the cottage until his death. In 1877 he made a codicil by which he confirmed his will. It was held that the two fields purchased in September, 1873, passed under the devise. The republication of the will by the codicil left no room for doubt, but North, J., held that the after-acquired fields would have passed by the will if there had been no republication by the codicil.

As to republication of a will by a codicil, see also Barnes v. Crowe, 1 Ves. 486; Re Smith, 45 Ch. D. 632; 60 L. J. Ch. 57.

"My estate and effects."

In O'Toole v. Browne, 3 E. & B. 572; 23 L. J. Q. B. 282, a residuary gift to executors, upon trust to sell and invest the proceeds on security, in which the words "my estate and effects" were used in connexion with words applicable to personalty, was held to pass after-acquired real estate; and a like decision was given in similar circumstances in Stokes v. Salomons, 9 Ha. 75; 20 L. J. Ch. 343; see also Dobson v. Burness, L. R. 5 Eq. 404; 37 L. J. Ch. 309.

Leaseholds.

After-acquired leaseholds pass under a bequest of "all my leasehold tenements," and not under the residuary bequest, Lady Langdale v. Briggs, supra; Re Ord, 12 Ch. D. 22.

"My new  $3\frac{1}{4}$ per cent.
annuities."

A gift of "my new three and a quarter per cent. annuities" was held to comprise all the new three and a quarter per cent. annuities which the testator had at his death, Goodlad v. Burnett, 1 K. & J. 341. In that case V.-C. Wood illustrated this section thus: "If I refer to a particular thing, e.g. a ring, or a horse, and bequeath it as 'my ring' or 'my horse,' it would seem that the contrary intention to which the 24th section refers, 'appear by the will,' and the will speaks from the date of its execution; but when a bequest is of that which is generic, of that which may be increased or diminished, the Act requires something more on the face of the will, for the purpose of indicating such 'contrary intention,' than the mere circumstance that the subject of the bequest is designated by the pronoun 'my.'" See also Douglas v. Douglas, Kay, 400; 23 L. J. Ch. 732; Trinder v. Trinder, L. R. 1 H.L.

695; Re Gibson, L. R. 2 Eq. 669; 35 L. J. Ch. 596; Re Slater, 1907, 1 Ch. 665; 76 L. J. Ch. 472; Re Jameson, 1908, 2 Ch. 111; 77 L. J. Ch. 729; Re Evans, 1909, 1 Ch. 784; 78 L. J. Ch. 441; Re Greenberry, 55 S. J. 633; Re Faris, 1911, 1 Ir. R. 165; Re Clifford, 1912, 1 Ch. 29; 81 L. J. Ch. 220; Re Leeming, 1912, 1 Ch. 828; 81 L. J. Ch. 453; Re Atlay, 56 S. J. 444.

And a gift of all the moneys "I possess in the A. bank, or in the company's funds," will pass all the moneys answering those descriptions at the death of the testator, Hepburn v. Skirving, 4 Jur. N. S. 651.

A gift of all the interest and claim of the testator on household property at P., of which the testator was mortgagee, will pass arrears of interest owing at the testator's death as well as the principal, Gibbon v. Gibbon, 13 C. B. 205; 22 L. J. C. P. 131.

Exoneration "from all claims in respect of moneys laid out by me in improvements of the estates in Scotland, and which money has according to the laws of Scotland been charged thereon," was held to apply only to moneys charged at the date of the will, and not to money afterwards laid out and charged, nor even to money then laid out, but afterwards charged, Douglas v. Douglas, Kay, 400; 23 L. J. Ch. 732. But a release of debts in general terms is a gift of personal estate to which the section applies, Everett v. Everett, 7 Ch. D. 428; 47 L. J. Ch. 367, with which compare Sidney v. Sidney, L. R. 17 Eq. 65; 43 L. J. Ch. 15.

In each of the cases, Price v. Parker, 16 Sim. 198; 17 L. J. Ch. 398; and Trimmell v. Fell, 16 Be. 537; 22 L. J. Ch. 954, the will of a married woman, which was invalid on its execution, from not being within the terms of the power under which the will purported to be made, was not construed as if executed immediately before the testatrix's death, at which period the execution would have been valid. So, where a fund was limited in trust for such of the children of a marriage as the husband and wife should jointly appoint, and, in default of joint appointment, then as the survivor at any time or times "after the decease of the other" should by deed or will appoint, the power was not exercised by the will of the husband made in the lifetime of the wife, though he in the event was the survivor, Cave v. Cave, 8 D. M. & G. 131; Re Blackburn, 43 Ch. D. 75; 59 L. J. Ch. 208.

A power of appointment "during coverture by will" was held well exercised by the will executed during coverture of a lady who died discovert in Re Illingworth, 1909, 2 Ch. 297; 78 L. J. Ch. 701; Re Safford's Settlement, 1915, 2 Ch. 211; 84 L. J. Ch. 766.

But if the time for the exercise of the power be not expressly defined, it would seem that a general power of appointment over an equitable estate, given to the survivor of two persons, to be executed by deed or will, would be executed by a will made during the lives of both the persons by the one who in the event proved to be the survivor, Sugd. R. P. Stat. 379. Such a general power, which may be used for the benefit of the person entitled to exercise it, is equivalent to ownership, and is in fact a right of exercising ownership which will certainly belong to one of two persons, though it is for the moment uncertain in

Sect. 24.

"All the moneys I possess in the A. bank."

All the interest in mortgaged property.

Exoneration from claims for money charged on estates in Scotland.

Will exercising power.

General power over equitable estate, given to the survivor of two persons.

Sect. 24. which of those two it will actually become vested. A power to the survivor of two persons to declare a trust for his own benefit is not to be distinguished in principle from a trust for the benefit of the survivor; the one is a contingent trust, the other a contingent power; and as in equity a contingent interest is alienable by will, it would seem there is nothing to prevent a person who has a contingent right to appoint an estate for his own benefit from exercising that power subject to the contingency, or to prevent the instrument so executed from becoming a valid execution of the power so soon as the contingency happens. It is not necessary that the authority should exist at the time of execution of the will if it be afterwards acquired and be subsisting at the death of the testator; in such case the will is entitled to the benefit of the more liberal rule of interpretation provided by the 24th section of the Act. It must be borne in mind that this applies only to general powers affecting equitable estates. Thus, where a general equitable power of appointment over real estate was given to the survivor of A. and B., and A., who was a married woman, but under her marriage settlement possessed testamentary capacity, made her will in 1838 in the lifetime of B., and B. afterwards died in the lifetime of A., who did not re-execute her will, it was held that a general devise of real estate contained in the will of A. was (by sect. 24) to be taken as if it had been executed immediately before the death of A., and was (by sect. 27) a good execution of the power given to the survivor of A. and B., Thomas v. Jones, 1 D. J. & S. 63; 33 L. J. Ch. 139. Compare the notes to sect. 8, and to sect. 27.

Special power.

It is doubtful whether a special power of appointment by will can be well executed by a will dated before the creation of the power by virtue of this section. See Re Hughes, 1900, 2 Ch. 332; 1901, 2 Ch. 529; 70 L. J. Ch. 770; and see Solicitors' Journal, vol. 53, p. 240; Jarm. Wills, 833, 834; Ilawkins' Constr. Wills, 22 et seq.

Leaseholds.

A specific gift of leaseholds for all the residue of the term therein of the testator was held to pass the fee which was acquired by the testator between the date of his will and the day of his death, Struthers v. Struthers, 5 W. R. 809; Miles v. Miles, L. R. 1 Eq. 462; Cor v. Bennett, L. R. 6 Eq. 422; Saxton v. Saxton, 13 Ch. D. 359. But if the intention to be gathered from the will, taken as a whole, is clearly to deal only with leaseholds, then subsequently acquired real estate will not pass, Pierce v. Attorney-General, Pierce v. Harrison, 3 W. R. 612; and a devise to B. of all a testator's freehold estates which he purchased of C. will not include a small piece of leasehold mixed up and held with the freehold, of which leasehold the testator purchased from another person the reversion in fee after the date of the devise, Emuss v. Smith, 2 De G. & S. 722; see Sugd. R. P. Stat. 365. A lessee for years assigned the term by way of mortgage to the immediate reversioner, who devised by the description of "my freehold houses in S. Street," and was at his death in possession as mortgagee; the mortgage debt did not pass under the devise, but formed part of the testator's personal estate, Bowen v. Barlow, L. R. 8 Ch. 171; 42 L. J. Ch. 82.

A testator gave the lease of the house in which he should be living at the time of his decease to his wife. At the date of the will he was living in a house which he held on lease for a short term. He subsequently bought and went to reside at a freehold house, where he died. Held, that the freehold house did not pass to the testator's widow, Re Knight, 34 Ch. D. 518; 56 L. J. Ch. 770.

Sect. 24.

In Wheeler v. Thomas, 7 Jur. N. S. 599, the will of a testator, who after the date thereof became lunatic, was held to speak as from its date and not from the death of the testator.

See also Wedgwood v. Denton, L. R. 12 Eq. 290; Morgan v. Thomas, 6 Ch. D. 176; and notes to sects. 26, 27, 33.

For the purposes of the rules of administration as to the order in which assets are to be applied in payment of debts, the specific character of a residuary devise is not altered by this section, Hensman v. Fryer, L. R. 3 Ch. 420; 37 L. J. Ch. 97; Gibbins v. Eyden, L. R. 7 Eq. 371; 38 L. J. Ch. 377; Jackson v. Pease, L. R. 19 Eq. 96; Lancefield v. Iggulden, L. R. 10 Ch. 136; 44 L. J. Ch. 203; Jarm. Wills, 2027. See also note (zz), p. 1243, ibid. And legacies which before would have been specific remain specific, Bothamley v. Sherson, L. R. 20 Eq. 304; 44 L. J. Ch. 589.

Residuary devise remains specific.

The distinction between a specific and a general bequest is important. Thus, the bequest of a debt, or a sum of money or stock, or a watch, ascertained and distinguished from the mass of the personal estate—as a bequest of 500*l.* now due to me from A., or 500*l.* now in my desk, or 500*l.* Consols now standing in my name, or the watch which I now wear—is a specific legacy; but a bequest of money or value merely, as, of 500*l.* sterling, or 500*l.* Consols, or a gold watch, is a pecuniary or general legacy. In Mytton v. Mytton, L. R. 19 Eq. 30; 44 L. J. Ch. 18, a legacy of “the sum of 3,000*l.* invested in Indian securities” was held not to be specific; and see Re Nottage, 1895, 2 Ch. 649; 64 L. J. Ch. 695. But see Re Pratt, 1894, 1 Ch. 491; 63 L. J. Ch. 484, where a legacy of “800*l.* invested in 2½ Consols” was held specific. A definition of a specific legacy will be found in Bothamley v. Sherson, ubi sup., explained in Re Ovey, 20 Ch. D. 676; 51 L. J. Ch. 665; affirmed, sub nomine Robertson v. Broadbent, 8 App. Cas. 812; 53 L. J. Ch. 266. The specific legatee, who (subject, of course, to the paramount claims of creditors) can at once fasten upon the particular thing, as being identified and appropriated by the testator himself, is preferred to the general legatee, who can only claim satisfaction in amount or value out of the personal estate at large. It follows that, if the specific thing be gone before the gift takes effect, the specific bequest must, from its very nature, wholly fail: while the general legacy will be paid in full, abate, or fail, according to the adequacy or inadequacy of the general assets. See on this subject, Re Dowsett, 1901, 1 Ch. 398; 70 L. J. Ch. 149; Re Vickers, 81 L. T. 719; Re Moses, 1902, 1 Ch. 100; 71 L. J. Ch. 101; 1903, A. C. 13.

Distinction
specific and general
legacies.

By the Married Women's Property Act, 1893 (56 & 57 Vict. c. 63), s. 3, “Section 24 of the Wills Act, 1837, shall apply to the will of a

Sect. 24. married woman made during coverture, whether she is or is not possessed of or entitled to any separate property at the time of making it, and such will shall not require to be re-executed or republished after the death of her husband." See note to sect. 8, ante.

LAPSED AND VOID DEVISES.

Sect. 25. XXV. And be it further enacted, That, unless a contrary intention shall appear by the will, such real estate or interest therein as shall be comprised or intended to be comprised in any devise in such will contained, which shall fail or be void by reason of the death of the devisee (a) in the lifetime of the testator, or by reason of such devise being contrary to law, or otherwise incapable of taking effect (b), shall be included in the residuary devise (if any) contained in such will (c).

What a residuary devise shall include.

(a) A testator, in exercise of a general power, appointed real estate to A., in trust for B.; A. survived the testator, but B. died in his lifetime; the appointment took effect and excluded those claiming in default, and the trust for B. failing by his death, the appointee is a trustee for the residuary devisee, or if none, for the heir-at-law of the appointor, Re Van Hagan, 16 Ch. D. 18; 50 L. J. Ch. 1; Coben v. Rowland, 1894, 1 Ch. 406; 63 L. J. Ch. 179; with which compare Re Boyd, 1897, 2 Ch. 232; 66 L. J. Ch. 614, in which case it was held that the testatrix had not indicated a sufficient intention to make the appointed fund her own for all purposes. See also Re Marten, 1902, 1 Ch. 314; 71 L. J. Ch. 203.

Disclaimer.

(b) It is presumed that a devise which fails by reason of the disclaimer of the devisee is a devise which is "incapable of taking effect," within the meaning of the Act.

On what principle sect. 25 is to be construed.

(c) This section is to be construed on the principle of assimilating a residuary devise of real estate to a like bequest of personalty, Carter v. Haswell, 3 Jur. N. S. 788; 26 L. J. Ch. 576. And see Sugd. R. P. Stat. 373. But the Act does not alter the specific nature of a residuary devise, ante, p. 59.

Evidence of contrary intention.

Where estate X. was devised to B. in fee, and there was a residuary devise of "all my freehold hereditaments not hereinbefore devised," to the same person, B. for life, with remainders over, and B. died in testator's lifetime, it was held that there was no "contrary intention within the meaning of this section, and that the residuary devise included estate X., Green v. Dunn, 20 Be. 6; 24 L. J. Ch. 577; and a devise of "all other real estate of which I may die possessed," is a residuary devise within this section, and will include an estate comprised in a specific devise which has lapsed on account of the death of the specific devisee in the testator's lifetime, Cogswell v. Armstrong, 2 K. & J. 227; see also Bernard v. Minshall, Joh. 276; 28 L. J. Ch. 549, the case of a married woman having a testamentary power of appointment. Where, by mistake, there was a specific devise to uses which, being non-existent, were incapable of taking effect, the specifically devised estate was held to be included in the residuary devise, Culsha v. Cheese, 7 Ha. 236; 16 L. J. Ch. 269; see Sugd. R. P. Stat. 373; and the decision was the same in the case of a void trust in favour of a charity, Carter v. Haswell, ubi sup. Baden v. Bassett, W. N. 1875, p. 5, is the other way; sed qu. See further as to the construction to be put upon the words "not hereinbefore disposed of," Earl of Hardwicke v. Douglas, 7 C. & F. 795; Re Stoodley, 1916, 1 Ch. 242; 85 L. J. Ch. 226. And see Prec. 33, note (a).

But in order that the section may apply, there must be a residuary devise, and not merely a devise of a particular residue. Thus, where a married woman, having a general power to appoint by will estates A. and B., devised estate A. to her husband for life, and subject thereto to trustees upon the trusts after mentioned, and then devised "all other the hereditaments comprised in the settlement not hereinbefore disposed of" to another person, the trusts of estate A. being to sell, pay certain legacies, and dispose of the residue for charitable purposes; the devise of "all other the hereditaments, &c." was specific, and not a residuary devise; consequently the 25th section did not apply, and the void gifts to the charities did not pass, but devolved as in default of appointment, Re Brown, 1 K. & J. 522. So, where a testatrix gave certain freeholds in the parish of H. to A. upon certain trusts which were declared void, and devised to B. the rest of her freeholds in the parish of H. and all her freeholds in certain other parishes, the lands given to A. did not pass under the devise to B., but were undisposed of, Springett v. Jennings, L. R. 6 Ch. 333; 40 L. J. Ch. 348. But the section does not require that the residuary devise shall include all the testator's real estate of every tenure, Mason v. Ogden, 1903, A. C. 1; 72 L. J. Ch. 152.

Exercise of power of appointment.

A direction by will to pay the testator's debts, including the debts not paid in full proved under a bankruptcy, was held to be a bounty, not only in favour of the creditors who survived the testator, but also of the representatives of those who predeceased him, and there was no lapse, Turner v. Martin, 7 D. M. & G. 429; 26 L. J. Ch. 216. And a bequest in discharge of a moral obligation does not lapse by the death of the legatee in the testator's lifetime, Stevens v. King, 1904, 2 Ch. 30; 73 L. J. Ch. 535.

Legacies to creditors, no lapse of.

GENERAL DEVISE—COPYHOLDS, LEASEHOLDS.

XXVI. And be it further enacted, That a devise of the land of the testator, or of the land of the testator in any place or in the occupation of any person mentioned in his will, or otherwise described in a general manner, and any other general devise which would describe a customary, copyhold, or leasehold estate if the testator had no freehold estate which could be described by it, shall be construed to include the customary, copyhold, and leasehold estates of the testator, or his customary, copyhold, and lease-

Leaseholds.

(a) Where in the same will there was a gift of all the testator's personal estate to A., and a devise of all his manors, messuages, lands, tenements, and hereditaments in the counties of York and Durham, and all other his real estates, to B. and C. and their heirs, to uses, it was held by the Courts of Exchequer, Wilson v. Eden, 5 Ex. 752; 20 L. J. Ex. 73; and Queen's Bench, 18 Q. B. 474; and by Sir John Romilly, M.R., 16 Be. 153; that the testator's leaseholds for years passed to B. and C., being included in the devise of land described by reference to locality, and not to A. as part of the personal estate. In that case Lord Langdale, M.R., 11 Be. 237, thought that the words "other real estate" would include only that which technically was real estate, and therefore not leaseholds. The Court of Queen's Bench considered the words to be a distinct devise, and that they were not sufficient to cut down the meaning which, under sect. 26, must be imputed to the earlier words "lands . . . in the counties of York and Durham," which would include leaseholds situated there. Leaseholds were held not to pass under a general devise of "real estate" in Turner v. Turner, 21 L. J. Ch. 843; and in Butler v. Butler, 28 Ch. D. 66; 54 L. J. Ch. 197, Chitty, J., followed the view expressed by Lord Langdale, that leaseholds would not pass under a devise of real estate described generally. See also Best v. Standeven, 1872, W. N. p. 44, and Re Guyton and Rosenberg's Contract, 1901, 2 Ch. 591; 70 L. J. Ch. 751. And where the word "freehold" is prefixed to a similar general description, the leasehold will not pass, Stone v. Greening, 13 Sim. 390. See, however, the observations on this case, Re Bright-Smith, 31 Ch. D. 314; 55 L. J. Ch. 365, in which copyhold parts of a farm were held to pass under the words "my freehold farm and lands situate at E. and now in the occupation of J. B." Where a testator who had no freehold estate, but had leaseholds for a long term of years, which he thought were freehold, charged an annuity on his real estate, the leaseholds were charged therewith, Gully v. Davis, L. R. 10 Eq. 562; 39 L. J. Ch. 684. As to what is sufficient indication of a contrary intention to exclude leaseholds from a devise of lands, see Prescott v. Barker, L. R. 9 Ch. 174; 43 L. J. Ch. 498. A direction to convert the personal estate "except leaseholds" will not exclude leaseholds from a devise of "real estate at, in, or near" a particular locality, where the leaseholds are at, in, or near the locality, Moase v. White, 3 Ch. D. 763. A devise of "all my property whether freehold or personal and wheresoever situate," will pass copyholds, Reeves v. Baker, 18 Be. 372; 23 L. J. Ch. 599.

GENERAL DEVISE OR BEQUEST—APPOINTMENT.

XXVII. And be it further enacted, That a general devise of the real estate of the testator, or of the real estate of the testator in any place or in the occupation of any person mentioned in his will, or otherwise described in a general manner, shall be construed to include any real estate, or any real estate to which such description shall extend (as the case may be), which he may have power to appoint in any manner he may think proper (a), and shall operate as an execution of such power, unless a contrary intention shall appear by the will (b); and in like manner a bequest of the personal estate of the testator, or any bequest of personal property described in a general manner (c), shall be construed to include any personal estate, or any personal estate to which such description shall extend (as the case may be), which he may have power to appoint in any manner he may think proper (d), and shall operate as an execution of such power, unless a contrary intention shall appear by the will (e).

What a general gift shall include.

(a) These words refer to the extent of the power as regards the objects, and do not require that the mode in which the power is exercised should be unrestrained; a power is none the less within the meaning of the section because it is exercisable by will only, and not by deed or otherwise inter vivos, Hawthorne v. Shedden, 3 S. & G. 293; 25 L. J. Ch. 833; Re Powell's Trusts, 18 W. R. 228. But of course a power, though general in terms, which is exercisable by deed only, does not fall within the statute, Moss v. Harter, 2 S. & G. 458. If the power is to be exercised by the testator by a will expressly referring to the power, this does not amount to a power to appoint "in any manner" the testator may think proper, and if the will does not refer to the power, it will not operate as an execution of it, Re Phillips, 41 Ch. D. 417; 58 L. J. Ch. 448; Phillips v. Cayley, 43 Ch. D. 222; 59 L. J. Ch. 177. overruling Re Marsh, 38 Ch. D. 630; 57 L. J. Ch. 639. See also Re Tarrant's Trusts, 58 L. J. Ch. 780. And as to what in such cases may be a sufficient reference to the power, see Re Lane, 1908, 2 Ch. 581; 77 L. J. Ch. 774. In Re Reynolds, 1891, 3 Ch. 474; 60 L. J. Ch. 807, a testatrix had a power to appoint freehold land to any person not being her present husband or any friend or relation of his. This was held not to be a power to appoint "in any manner" she might think proper, and therefore a general devise in the will did not act as an execution of the power. As to a power of appointment contained in a will, and not expressly revoked by a codicil to the will, which declares the trusts of the will afresh, see Re Wood, 83 L. T. 157.

General power.

(b) Under the present law it is necessary to shew a "contrary intention" to exclude the exercise of a general power by a general devise or

Contrast between old and present law, as to exercise of

bequest, whilst under the old law it was needful to shew the intention to exercise the power; the appointees are therefore now in a more favourable position than under the old law, Lake v. Currie, 2 D. M. & G. 536, 548. There is no "contrary intention" within the meaning of the statute, unless the will contains something inconsistent with the view that the general devise or bequest was meant as an execution of the power, Scriven v. Sandom, 2 J. & H. 743; Re Doherty-Waterhouse, 1918, 2 Ch. 269. And to exclude the application of the 27th section, the "contrary intention" must have a continuing operation down to the death of the testator; the will must be taken as if executed immediately before the death, and when so taken must shew on the face of it an intention of depriving the general devise of the effect given to it by the statute, Thomas v. Jones, 1 D. J. & S. 63, 83; 32 L. J. Ch. 139. As to what is sufficient evidence of a contrary intention, see Pettinger v. Ambler, L. R. 1 Eq. 510; 35 L. J. Ch. 389. It makes no difference whether the settlement creating the power was made by the testator himself or by a stranger, and it would seem that a codicil cannot be read with the will for the purpose of shewing that a contrary intention appears by the will, Re Clark's Estate, 14 Ch. D. 422; 49 L. J. Ch. 586. The contrary intention must be found in the will containing the general bequest. Thus, a testator executed a "testamentary appointment" under a general power, and a month later executed a will containing a residuary bequest and not referring to the testamentary appointment. Although the Court considered—looking at both documents—that the testator had probably no intention of revoking the "testamentary appointment," and executing the general power by the bequest, still, it could not look beyond the will itself, and as no contrary intention appeared therein, the effect of sect. 27 and of the general bequest was to revoke the "testamentary appointment," and to execute the power, Re Gibbes' Settlement, 37 Ch. D. 143; 57 L. J. Ch. 757. See Re Jarrett, 1919, 1 Ch. 366.

As to date of instrument exercising a power.

A power may be exercised by a will bearing date before the instrument which creates the power, if that instrument comes into operation in the testator's lifetime, Stillman v. Weedon, 16 Sim. 26; 18 L. J. Ch. 46; Cofield v. Pollard, 5 W. R. 774; Patch v. Shore, 2 Dr. & S. 589; 32 L. J. Ch. 185; Boyes v. Cook, 14 Ch. D. 53; 49 L. J. Ch. 350; Airey v. Bower, 12 App. Cas. 263; 56 L. J. Ch. 742. See also Re Hernando, 27 Ch. D. 284; 53 L. J. Ch. 865.

A power to appoint by will during coverture is well exercised by a will made during coverture although coming into operation afterwards, Re Illingworth, 1909, 2 Ch. 297; 78 L. J. Ch. 701; Re Safford's Settlement, 1915, 2 Ch. 211; 84 L. J. Ch. 766.

The 27th section, however, applies only to powers actually created at the death of the testator, and does not enable a testator to execute an inchoate power of which he was the intended donee under the will of a person who survives him, Jones v. Southall, 32 L. J. Ch. 130. In that case the intending donor of the power was a lady who had gone through the ceremony of marriage with her deceased sister's husband, and her will purported to be made under a power created by a settlement executed prior to the void marriage; the will was held to be operative, Sect. 27. Southall v. Jones, 1 Sw. & Tr. 298; 28 L. J. P. 112.

Under a settlement a testator had a power of appointment over estate B., but no such power over estate A.; by his will he confirmed the settlement, and devised generally all his real estate to uses different from those of the settlement; it was held that the will exercised the power and passed estate B., Lake v. Currie, 2 D. M. & G. 536. And where a testator, who under a settlement had a general power of appointment over certain leaseholds, made, for purposes different from those of the settlement, a general bequest, subject (as to such of his property as was comprised in the settlement) to that settlement which he thereby confirmed in all respects, this was held to be an exercise of the general power, notwithstanding the words confirming the settlement, Hutchins v. Osborne, 3 De G. & J. 142; 27 L. J. Ch. 421.

A testatrix (a widow), in the exercise of a power created by the will of S., appointed a sum of stock to Joseph and John and her other children equally; she appointed all the rest of the property coming to her under the will of S. to her children living at her death equally, and she constituted Joseph "her residuary legatee"; John died before her; it was held that the general residuary appointment passed John's share to Joseph: Re Spooner's Trust, 2 Sim., N. S. 129; 21 L. J. Ch. 151. See also Bush v. Cowan, 32 Be. 228; 9 L. J. (N. S.) Ch. 161; 4 Dav. Conv. 279.

A testamentary appointment of personalty, under a general power, to A. in trust for B., which trust fails by the death of B., in the lifetime of the testator, is a good appointment in favour of A., who holds as a trustee, not for the persons entitled in default of appointment, but on the same trusts as if the appointed fund had been the appointor's own property, Chamberlain v. Hutchinson, 22 Be. 444; Brickenden v. Williams, L. R. 7 Eq. 310; 38 L. J. Ch. 222; Wilkinson v. Schneider, L. R. 9 Eq. 423; 39 L. J. Ch. 410. It is, however, a question of intention whether the testator meant to take the property entirely out of the instrument creating the power, Re De Lusi's Trusts, 3 Ir. L. R. 232; Re Davies' Trusts, L. R. 13 Eq. 163; 40 L. J. Ch. 566; Re Pinède's Settlement, 12 Ch. D. 667; 48 L. J. Ch. 741; Hinsley v. Ickeringill, 17 Ch. D. 151; 50 L. J. Ch. 364; Willoughby Osborne v. Holyoake, 22 Ch. D. 238; 52 L. J. Ch. 331; Re Thurston, 32 Ch. D. 508; 55 L. J. Ch. 564. And see Re Seabrook, 1911, 1 Ch. 151; 80 L. J. Ch. 61. As to real estate, the exercise by the testator of a general power of appointment will cause the property appointed to vest in his personal representative under the Land Transfer Act, 1897, s. 1, in the same manner as if such property had belonged to the testator absolutely (s. 1. sub-s. (2)).

This section is applicable to married women having testamentary powers of appointment exercisable during coverture equally with persons sui juris, Bernard v. Minshull, Joh. 276; 28 L. J. Ch. 549. The execution of a general testamentary power by a married woman makes the appointed property liable for her debts and other liabilities in the same General powers of appointment.

Exercise of general powers by married women.

Sect. 27. manner as her separate estate is made liable under the Married Women's Property Act, 1882 (s. 4); and see Godfrey v. Harben, 13 Ch. D. 216; 49 L. J. Ch. 3. Where a married woman, or other donee of a general power of appointment over personalty, makes an appointment by will and appoints an executor, the executor is entitled to receive the appointed fund, Hayes v. Oatley, L. R. 14 Eq. 1; 41 L. J. Ch. 510; Re Hoskin's Trusts, 5 Ch. D. 229; 46 L. J. Ch. 274, and on appeal, 6 Ch. D. 281; 46 L. J. Ch. 817. But see Re Thurston, 32 Ch. D. 508; 55 L. J. Ch. 564.

Special power. As to the effect of an appointment to trustees for the objects of a special power, and the question as to whether the property can be transferred to such trustees, see Busk v. Aldum, L. R. 19 Eq. 16; 44 L. J. N. S.) Ch. 119; Re Mackenzie, 1916, 1 Ch. 125; 85 L. J. Ch. 197; and the cases there cited, and Re Mackenzie, 1917, 2 Ch. 58; 86 L. J. Ch. 543.

A testatrix having a general power to appoint 10,000*l.* secured by a term of years in freehold estates, and having also a general power of appointment over the estates so charged, by her will devised all her lands to A. for life, remainder to B. in tail, and she gave the residue of her personal estate to A.; it was held that the 10,000*l.* passed under the residuary gift of the personalty, Clifford v. Clifford, 9 Ha. 675.

A general devise and bequest of "all my estate and effects real and personal which I may die possessed of or entitled to" has been held to exercise a general power given to the testatrix to appoint by will any sum or sums of money not exceeding a certain sum to be raised out of the estate of the donor of the power, Re Jones, 34 Ch. D. 65; 56 L. J. Ch. 58, distinguished in Re Salvin, 1906, 2 Ch. 459; 75 L. J. Ch. 825. And see Re Wilkinson, 1910, 2 Ch. 216; 79 L. J. Ch. 600.

A money bequest exercises pro tanto a general power over a sum of money. In Hawthorne v. Shedden, 3 S. & G. 293; 25 L. J. Ch. 833, general pecuniary legacies were held to be payable out of personal estate over which the testatrix had a general power of appointment, although in her will no particular fund was indicated, the assets of the testatrix not comprised in the power being insufficient to pay the legacies, see Sugd. Pow. 310; Wilday v. Barnett, L. R. 6 Eq. 193. In fact, a single bequest of pecuniary legacies operates as an execution pro tanto of a general testamentary power of appointment over a sum of money, Re Wilkinson, L. R. 4 Ch. 587.

A married woman having a general power over personalty worth a little more than 2,600*l.*, to the interest of which she was entitled for life, and having no other property except a reversionary interest contingent on her surviving her mother (which did not happen), gave 2,600*l.* to her husband, and this was held to be a good exercise of the power independently of the statute, Shelford v. Acland, 23 Be. 10; 26 L. J. Ch. 144; and the bequest by a married woman of "the property which she might be possessed of or entitled to at her decease," was held to pass personal property over which she had only a general power of appointment, Frankcombe v. Hayward, 9 Jur. 344. That no reference to a general power is necessary in an instrument containing a general gift or devise, see further, Harrington v. Harrington, 13 Sim. 318; 13 L. J. Ch. 354; Walker v. Banks, 25 L. T., O. S. 267. Sect. 27.

Real estate was settled to the use of A. for life, with remainder to the use of such persons as A. should by will appoint, with power of sale and direction for re-investment in realty, and interim investment in Consols. The settled estate was sold and the proceeds invested in Consols; A. made a general bequest of all her personal estate; this operated as an execution of the power in the settlement and passed the Consols, which had been transferred to A., Chandler v. Pocock, 16 Ch. D. 648; 49 L. J. Ch. 442; and see Re Harman, 1894, 3 Ch. 607; 63 L. J. Ch. 822. But where, after the death of the testator, who has a power of appointment over the real estate, there still exists a tenant for life who has the right to call for the re-investment in land of the Consols representing the proceeds of the sale of the real estate, the Consols are looked upon as land, and will not pass under a general bequest of the testator's personal estate, Re Greaves' Settlement Trusts, 23 Ch. D. 313; 52 L. J. Ch. 753; and see Re Duke of Cleveland's Settled Estates, 1893, 3 Ch. 244; 62 L. J. Ch. 955; and Re Gosselin, 1906, 1 Ch. 120; 75 L. J. Ch. 88. General powers of appointment.

The 27th section does not apply to special or particular powers; but the old law applies, which is that the will must contain some indication, either by reference to the power or to the property subject to it, of an intention to exercise the special power, and anything showing that the testator had the power in his mind would be enough, see Re Caplin, 6 N. R. 17; Russell v. Russell, 12 Ir. Ch. Rep. 377; Butler v. Gray, L. R. 5 Ch. 26; 39 L. J. Ch. 291; Evans v. Evans, 23 Be. 1; 26 L. J. Ch. 193; Re Swinburne, 27 Ch. D. 696; 54 L. J. Ch. 229; Von Brockdorff v. Malcolm, 30 Ch. D. 172; 55 L. J. Ch. 121; Re Mills, 34 Ch. D. 186; 56 L. J. Ch. 118; Re Esther Williams, 42 Ch. 93; 58 L. J. Ch. 451; Re Cotton, 40 Ch. D. 41; 58 L. J. Ch. 174; Re Huddleston, 1894, 3 Ch. 595; 64 L. J. Ch. 157. A testator making a mere general devise, though having no real estate of his own, does not thereby sufficiently indicate an intention of exercising a special power of appointing real estate, Re Mills; Re Esther Williams, ubi sup. And see Re Hayes, 1900, 2 Ch. 332; 69 L. J. Ch. 691; 1901, 2 Ch. 529. Special powers, sect. 27 does not apply to.

For the exercise of a special power there must be a sufficient expression or indication of intention in the will or other instrument alleged to exercise it; and either a reference to the power or a reference to the property subject to the power constitutes in general a sufficient indication for the purpose, Re Ackerley, 1913, 1 Ch. 510, 515; 82 L. J. Ch. 260; and compare Re Weston's Settlement, 1906, 2 Ch. at 624; 76 L. J. Ch. 54. Special power.

Where a father had power to appoint certain personality amongst his children, his will, devising and bequeathing in general terms all his real and personal estate to a child, one of the objects of the power, was held to be inoperative as to such personality, Cloves v. Awdry, 12 Be. 604; see also Clogstoun v. Walcott, 13 Sim. 523 (not followed in Ferrier v. Jay, and Teape's Trusts, infra); Moss v. Harter, 2 S. & G. 458; Hope v. Hope, 5 Gif. 13; Ames v. Cadogan, 12 Ch. D. 868; 48 L. J. Ch. 762.

Sect. 27.

Special
power,
exercise of,
in particular
case.

But in Pidgely v. Pidgely, 1 Col. 255; Elliott v. Elliott, 15 Sim. 321; 15 L. J. Ch. 393; Cowx v. Foster, 1 J. & H. 30; 29 L. J. Ch. 886; Ferrier v. Jay, L. R. 10 Eq. 550; 39 L. J. Ch. 686; Re Teape's Trusts, L. R. 16 Eq. 442; 43 L. J. Ch. 87; Thornton v. Thornton, L. R. 20 Eq. 599, special powers were held to be exercised by general gifts to the objects of the powers. These decisions in no way depended upon the Wills Act, but turned upon the words of the particular wills affording evidence of intention to exercise some power, as well as to dispose of the testator's own property, as in Re Wait, 30 Ch. D. 617; 54 L. J. Ch. 1172. See also Re Mayhew, 1901, 1 Ch. 677; 70 L. J. Ch. 428; Kent v. Kent, 1902, P. 108; 71 L. J. P. 50; Re Weston's Settlement, 1906, 2 Ch. 620; 76 L. J. Ch. 54; Re Sanderson, 1912, W. N. 54; and Re Ackerley, 1913, 1 Ch. 510; 82 L. J. Ch. 260.

A testator having power to charge an estate with 500*l.* in favour of his younger children, and to limit a term for securing that sum, devised the estate, subject to legacies to his younger children to the amount of 500*l.*, but without limiting any term and without referring to his power; it was held that by the will the estate was well charged with the 500*l.*, Davies v. Davies, 28 L. J. Ch. 102.

Where a testator gave a power of appointment over a sum of 30,000*l.*, which sum increased in value to 39,000*l.*, and the donee of the power in her will recited the exact words used by the donor, and so purported to appoint 30,000*l.* only, it was held that this was a valid appointment of the whole, and that the excess of 9,000*l.* was divisible among the beneficiaries in proportion to their shares as directed by the will of the donee, Re Cruddas, 1900, 1 Ch. 730; 69 L. J. Ch. 355.

Power of
revocation.

A power of revocation is not exercised by an instrument of appointment referring generally to and expressed to be in exercise of every power enabling the appointor, provided there is other property to which the appointment can apply, Pomfret v. Perring, 5 D. M. & G. 775; 24 L. J. Ch. 187.

When a general power of appointment of real estate by deed or will has been completely exercised by deed, a power of revocation and new appointment being at the same time reserved, a general devise of real estate by the subsequent will of the donee of the power will not per se (that is without anything being done to displace the first appointment) amount, by virtue of sect. 27, to an exercise of the power of revocation and new appointment, Charles v. Burke, 43 Ch. D. 223, n.; Re Brace, 1891, 2 Ch. 671; 60 L. J. Ch. 505. See also In b. Merritt, 1 Sw. & Tr. 112; 29 L. J. P. 155; and Re Gibbes' Settlement, supra, p. 64; and the note to sect. 20, ante, p. 39; and as to the 27th section generally, Hawkins Constr. Wills, Chapter II.

(c) A bequest of "all stocks, shares and securities which I possess or to which I am entitled" is a bequest which under this section will pass stocks which the testator has merely power to appoint, Re Jacob, 1907, 1 Ch. 445; 76 L. J. Ch. 217.

(e) See note (b) to this section, ante, p. 63.

FEE SIMPLE WITHOUT WORDS OF LIMITATION.

XXVIII. And be it further enacted, That where any real estate shall be devised to any person without any words of limitation, such devise shall be construed to pass the fee simple, or other the whole estate or interest which the testator had power to dispose of by will in such real estate, unless a contrary intention shall appear by the will (a).

Sect. 28.

How a devise without words of limitation shall be construed.

(a) This section applies to a devise of an existing estate or interest, and not to an estate or interest which the testator creates de novo by his will; and therefore a gift of an annuity without words of limitation is held, as it would have been before the statute, to be a gift for life only, though the annuity is charged on real estate, Yates v. Maldan, 3 M.N. & G. 532; 21 L. J. Ch. 24; Leti v. Randall, 3 S. & G. 83; 30 L. J. Ch. 110; affirmed, 9 W. R. 130; Nichols v. Hawkes, 10 Ha. 342. 22 L. J. Ch. 255. See also Reay v. Rawlinson, 29 Be. 88; 30 L. J. Ch. 330.

A devise of freeholds to 'A. to be kept in trust for B.; that is, A. is to let the premises, and give the rent to my son B. for his support,' passed the freehold to B. absolutely, Malcolmson v. Malcolmson, 17 L. T. O. S. 44. And as before the Act a devise of rents and profits passed an estate for life, such a devise will now, by force of this section, give an estate in fee simple, Mannox v. Greener, L. R. 14 Eq. 456.

Though generally a gift of the income of a fund carries the corpus as well as the income when the corpus is otherwise undisposed of, Clough v. Wynne, 2 Mad. 188; Humphrey v. Humphrey, 1 Sim. N. S. 536; 20 L. J. Ch. 425, it was held that, under a bequest of a residue upon trust to pay the dividends of 1,500*l.* stock to A. for life, and after her death to divide the dividends "equally between B. and C. and the survivor of them," the survivor took only a life interest, there being in this will evidence of a "contrary intention" within the meaning of the section, Blann v. Bell, 2 D. M. & G. 775; 22 L. J. Ch. 236. See also Wetherell v. Wetherell, 1 D. J. & S. 134; 32 L. J. Ch. 476.

Gift of income, construction of, in particular case.

The presence of words of inheritance in other parts of a will does not, with reference to a particular devise from which such words are absent, manifest such a "contrary intention" within the meaning of this section as to cut down the particular devise to an estate for life, Wisden v. Wisden, 2 S. & G. 396, 405.

Devise without words of limitation.

The section does not apply to a devise with any words of limitation which, if inserted, must operate by their own force. It is immaterial whether the devise is of an estate vested in the testator, or is in execution of a power vested in him. And the Act is equally applicable to a power created by will, and would, just as in a devise of an estate, supply words of limitation so as to enable the donee of the power to appoint the fee simple, Sugd. R. P. Stat. 382.

It has not yet been decided whether this section would apply to a

Sect. 28. case where, after a devise without words of limitation, there is a devise over also without words of limitation. Lord St. Leonards was of opinion that such cases were not within the purview of the Act, and that it would be dangerous to extend it to them, Sugd. R. P. Stat. 382. And see Gravenor v. Watkins, L. R. 6 C. P. 500; 40 L. J. (N. S.) C. P. 197.

WORDS IMPORTING FAILURE OF ISSUE.

Sect. 29.
How the words "die without issue," or "die without leaving issue," shall be construed.

XXIX. And be it further enacted, That in any devise or bequest of real or personal estate the words "die without issue," or "die without leaving issue," or "have no issue," or any other words which may import either a want or failure of issue of any person in his lifetime or at the time of his death, or an indefinite failure of his issue, shall be construed to mean a want or failure of issue in the lifetime or at the time of the death of such person, and not an indefinite failure of his issue (a), unless a contrary intention shall appear by the will, by reason of such person having a prior estate tail, or of a preceding gift being, without any implication arising from such words, a limitation of an estate tail to such person or issue, or otherwise: Provided that this Act shall not extend to cases where such words as aforesaid import if no issue described in a preceding gift shall be born, or if there shall be no issue who shall live to attain the age or otherwise answer the description required for obtaining a vested estate by a preceding gift to such issue.

Dying with out issue.

(a) The object of this section is to remedy the inconvenience arising from the words "dying without issue," and similar words having acquired a legal meaning different from the popular meaning, Greenway v. Greenway, 2 D. F. & J. 128; 29 L. J. Ch. 601. And mere presumption of intention is insufficient to exclude the operation of this section, Re Mid-Kent Railway Company, 1 N. R. 470.

In a devise or bequest to A., but if A. dies in the lifetime of B. without leaving issue, then over, the words "without leaving issue" refer to the time of the death of B., and notwithstanding that A. left issue living at his death, the gift over will take effect, if all the issue of A. die in the lifetime of B., Crowder v. Stone, 3 Russ. 217; 7 L. J. (O. S.) Ch. 93; Jarman v. Vye, L. R. 2 Eq. 784; 35 L. J. Ch. 821. In Re Booth, 1900, 1 Ch. 768; 69 L. J. Ch. 474, it was held that the words "die without child or children" meant "die without leaving child or children." See also Barkworth v. Barkworth, 75 L. J. Ch. 754; Dunn v. Morgan, 84 L. J. Ch. 812.

The Conveyancing Act, 1882, s. 10, makes void an executory limitation as soon as there is living any issue who has attained twenty-one of the class on default whereof the limitation over is to take effect.

In a gift over in a will upon death "without leaving any child or children," it is a well settled rule of construction that these words will be construed "without having had any child who has attained a vested interest" under the previous gift. And it makes no difference in the application of this rule of construction that the testator knew at the date of the will that the person on whose death the gift over is made in fact had a child then living, Re Cobbold, 1903. 2 Ch. 299; 72 L. J. Ch. 588, as corrected by the errata in that volume. And see Re Davey, 1915, 1 Ch. 837 (note).

Sect. 29.

The section, however, has no application to cases in which the words "dying without issue" are combined with other words, such as "dying under twenty-one"; and a devise to A. with a limitation over on his dying without issue "or" under twenty-one, was held ("or" being read "and") to give A. the fee on his attaining twenty-one, Morris v. Morris, 17 Be. 198; nor does the section apply to cases in which there are express limitations to "the heirs of the bodies" of the first takers, Green v. Green, 3 De G. & S. 480; 18 L. J. Ch. 465. See also Dawson v. Small, L. R. 9 Ch. 651; 43 L. J. Ch. 406; and Re Leach, 1912. 2 Ch. 422; 81 L. J. Ch. 483.

In Greenway v. Greenway (ubi sup.), realty and personalty were comprised in one gift, which was so worded as to give an estate tail in the realty; but it was held, as to the personalty, that the gift over on the death of the beneficiaries without issue took effect upon their deaths without leaving issue living at their decease, and was not void for remoteness, as it would have been if the words "die without leaving issue" had been construed to import an indefinite failure of issue. But see Weldon v. Weldon, 1911, 1 Ir. R. 177.

Under bequest of personalty to John and James equally, and if John shall die without issue, the property bequeathed to him shall revert to the sons of James, it was held that John did not take the absolute interest in a moiety, Re O'Bierne, 1 J. & L. 352.

The section applies to the case of a gift over on death "without male issue," Re Edwards, 1894, 3 Ch. 644; 64 L. J. Ch. 179.

See also H. Sugd. Wills, 96—107; Sugd. R. P. Stat. 383—388; Hawkins, Constr. Wills, ch. xvii.; Theobald, Constr. Wills, 708.

ESTATE OF TRUSTEES.

XXX. And be it further enacted, That where any real estate (other than or not being a presentation to a church) shall be devised to any trustee or executor, such devise shall be construed to pass the fee simple or other the whole estate or interest which the testator had power to dispose of by will in such real estate, unless a definite term of years absolute or determinable or an estate of freehold shall thereby be given to him expressly or by implication (a).

Sect. 30.

No devise to trustees or executors, except, &c., shall pass a chattel interest.

Sect. 30. 12 U. B. N. S. 199; 31 L. J. C. P. 189; Marshall v. Giggell, 21 Ch. D. 790; 51 L. J. Ch. 818.

Devises to trustees pass
the fee, when.

Sects. 30, 31, compared.

With respect to this and the following section, it has been said that "the general result of the two consecutive provisions seems to be, first, that a devise to a person upon any trust, or to an executor as such, either indefinitely or for any estate (except an estate of freehold, express or implied, or a definite term), will give the fee or other the whole interest, notwithstanding any indication of a contrary intention; and secondly, that a devise to a person, without such a limitation of his estate as would exclude all constructive modification, upon any trust or trusts, either not being or not including a trust to continue for life (which ingredient, by letting in the implication of an estate for life, would bring the case within the previous provision), or being or including a trust to continue for life, but capable of outlasting the life, will likewise imperatively give the fee or other the whole interest," 1 Hayes, Conv. 396. Again, "the 30th and 31st sections of the Wills Act have been described as obscure and even conflicting; their meaning, however, will be apprehended by observing, that the 30th section, which speaks of a devise passing 'the fee simple or other the whole estate or interest of the testator,' relates to the quantity of estate to be taken by a trustee for the purposes of the trust; while the 31st section, which declares that a devise shall vest in trustees, 'the fee simple or other the whole legal estate,' in the premises devised, relates to the disposition of the legal estate not required for the purposes of the trust. The 30th section enacts that in no case shall trustees or executors be held, for the purposes of the trust, to take an indefinite term of years; the 31st section enacts that where the estate of the trustees is not expressly limited, they shall in all cases take either an estate determinable on the life of a person taking a beneficial life interest in the property, or the absolute legal estate in the fee simple," Hawkins, Constr. Wills, 192. In Freme v. Clement, 18 Ch. D. 499; 50 L. J. Ch. 801, the M. R. said that sect. 31 was probably another drafting of sect. 30, and he believed the real history of the two sections was that they were two drafts dealing with the same subject, though both remained in the Act. And see Yarrow v. Knightley, 8 Ch. D. 736; 47 L. J. Ch. 874.

By the Land Transfer Act, 1897 (60 & 61 Vict. c. 65), s. 1, the real estate of a person dying after the commencement of the Act (1st January, 1898) devolves to and becomes vested in his personal representatives or representative from time to time as if it were a chattel real, notwithstanding any testamentary disposition; and by sect. 2, subject to the powers, rights, duties, and liabilities in the Act mentioned, the personal representatives of a deceased person hold the real estate as trustees for the persons by law beneficially entitled thereto. It would seem that where there is an executor and there are also trustees to whom the real estate has been devised upon trusts, the trustees could, when the estate had been administered, call upon the executor to assent to the devise, or to convey to them under sect. 3 of the Act. See Jarm. Wills, ch. xlvii.

ESTATE OF TRUSTEES.

XXXI. And be it further enacted, That where any real estate shall be devised to a trustee, without any express limitation of the estate to be taken by such trustee, and the beneficial interest in such real estate, or in the surplus rents and profits thereof, shall not be given to any person for life, or such beneficial interest shall be given to any person for life, but the purposes of the trust may continue beyond the life of such person, such devise shall be construed to vest in such trustee the fee simple (a) or other the whole legal estate which the testator had power to dispose of by will in such real estate, and not an estate determinable when the purposes of the trust shall be satisfied (b).

Trustees under an unlimited devise, &c., to take the fee.

(a) In an unreported case of Penrice v. Penrice, where a testator devised to trustees and their heirs, in trust to accumulate the rents for twenty years, and subject thereto, to the use of A. B. for life, with remainder to the same trustees upon other trusts, and with remainders over, it was held by the Court of Common Pleas (Dec., 1848), upon a case sent by the Court of Chancery, that by virtue of this section the trustees took the fee immediately upon the testator's death. Where lands were devised to trustees, their heirs and assigns, to the use of A. during his life, with remainder to the use of such children of A. as should attain twenty-one, as tenants in common in fee, and the trustees were empowered to apply the rents for the maintenance of the children during minority, it was held (mainly on the provision as to maintenance, and without deciding whether A.'s estate was legal or equitable) that on the death of A. the legal fee was in the trustees, Berry v. Berry. 7 Ch. D. 657; 47 L. J. Ch. 182.

Estate of trustees.

(b) The effect of this section has been explained as follows:—The 31st section seems to have been chiefly aimed at the doctrine, now abandoned, of a determinable fee. Its operation, in other respects, will be as follows:—1st. The original case of a devise to trustees in trust to pay the rents and profits to A. for life, and after his decease in trust for B. and his heirs, is left unaltered: the legal estate will still vest in B. after the death of A. So, in the case of a devise to A. for life, with remainder to trustees and their heirs in trust to preserve contingent remainders, with remainder to the first and other sons of A. in tail, with vested remainders over: the estate of the trustees to preserve will still be restricted by implication to the life of A. 2ndly. Trusts to pay annuities will be altered. A devise to trustees in trust to pay an annuity to A. for life, and subject thereto in trust for B., will now vest in the trustees the whole legal fee simple, and not an estate during the life of the annuitant, although the annuity be payable out of the annual rents and profits only. 3rdly. Trusts during minority will present a difference. If the devise be to trustees in trust to apply the rents and profits for the maintenance of A. during his minority, and when A. attains twenty-one in trust for A. during his life, with remainders over, the legal estate will still as before vest in A. on his attaining twenty-one, inasmuch as the beneficial interest is given to him for life, and the purposes of the trust cannot continue longer. But if the devise be (after the trust during minority) in trust for A. on his attaining twenty-one, in fee or in tail, and not for life only, the section will apply, and the whole legal estate will remain in the trustees, so that the estate of A. will be equitable only.

—to pay rents to several successively for life.

It may be a question whether, if the trusts declared are to pay the rent and profits to several persons (not to one only) successively for life, with remainders over, the legal estate will vest in the trustees in fee simple or for the lives of the respective persons taking beneficial life interests." See In re Eddels' Trusts, L. R. 11 Eq. 559; 40 L. J. Ch. 316, which seems to involve a decision that in such a case the trustees do take the fee. "The section appears to apply to every case where there is no express limitation of the estate to be taken by the trustee, although the gifts over to the persons beneficially entitled may be in the form of a direct devise to them. Thus, if the gift be—'I devise Whiteacre to A. and his heirs, in trust to apply the rents and profits during the minority of B. for his benefit, and when B. attains twenty-one I devise Whiteacre to B.,' it would appear that the trustees must, notwithstanding the latter words, take the fee by force of the 31st section," Hawkins, Constr. Wills, 193—194.

Sect. 31 applies to every case where no express limitation of trustee's estate.

As to the operation of the Land Transfer Act, 1897, upon devises to trustees, see note to sect. 30, ante.

LAPSE OF ESTATE TAIL.

Sect. 32.

Devises of estates tail shall not lapse.

XXXII. And be it further enacted, That where any person to whom any real estate shall be devised for an estate tail or an estate in quasi entail shall die in the lifetime of the testator leaving issue who would be inheritable under such entail, and any such issue shall be living at the time of the death of the testator, such devise shall not lapse, but shall take effect as if the death of such person had happened immediately after the death of the testator, unless a contrary intention shall appear by the will (a).

(a) See Sugd. R. P. Stat. 391.

LAPSE—CHILDREN OR ISSUE DYING IN TESTATOR'S LIFETIME.

Sect. 33.

Gifts to children or other issue who leave issue living

XXXIII. And be it further enacted, That where any person being a child or other issue of the testator to whom any real or personal estate shall be devised or bequeathed for any estate or interest not determinable at or before the death of such person shall die in the lifetime of the testator leaving issue, and any such issue of such person shall be living at the time of the death of the testator, such devise or bequest shall not lapse, but shall take effect as if the death of such person had happened immediately after the death of the testator, unless a contrary intention shall appear by the will (a).

Sect. 33.

at the testator's
death shall not lapse.

(a) The provision of this section against lapse, though inapplicable to the exercise of a special power of appointment by will, Griffiths v. Gale, 12 Sim. 327, 354; 13 L. J. Ch. 286; Holyland v. Lewin, 26 Ch. D. 266; 53 L. J. Ch. 530, is applicable to the exercise of a general power of appointment by will, Eccles v. Cheyne, 2 K. & J. 676.

Sect. 33,
inapplicable
to special, applicable to general powers of
appointment.

This section does not substitute the issue of the intended taker for the deceased, but makes the subject of the gift the property of the intended taker, and, as such, comprised within the dispositions of his will, notwithstanding he died before the testator, Johnson v. Johnson, 3 Ha. 157; 13 L. J. Ch. 79; 1 Hayes, Conv. 406; or descendible to his next of kin or heir-at-law, Wisden v. Wisden, 2 S. & G. 396; Skinner v. Ogle, 1 Rob. 363; and estate duty is payable as if the intended taker had survived the testator, Re Scott, 1901, 1 K. B. 228; 70 L. J. K. B. 66. Property bequeathed by a testator to his daughter, who died in his lifetime, but whose child and husband survived him, is not within a covenant to settle property coming to the daughter during coverture, Pearce v. Graham, 1 N. R. 507; 32 L. J. Ch. 259; but the husband is entitled to his curtesy, Eager v. Furnivall, 17 Ch. D. 115; 50 L. J. Ch. 537. Where a testator made a bequest to his daughter to be subject, if she survived him, to the trusts of her marriage settlement, and she died in his lifetime leaving issue living at his death, it was held that under sect. 33 she must, for all the purposes of the will, be taken to have survived the testator, and that the bequest must be paid to the trustees of her settlement and not to her administrator, Re Hone's Trusts, 22 Ch. D. 663; 52 L. J. Ch. 295.

Issue not substituted, but subject-matter becomes part of estate of intended taker.

Provisions
against lapse.

Where a father devised to his son, who died before him leaving issue living at the father's death, and the son had left a will devising all his real estate to his father, the son was to be deemed to have survived his father, the devise to his father therefore failed, and the heir-at-law of the son was entitled, Re Hensler, 19 Ch. D. 612; 51 L. J. Ch. 303.

Where the legatee was a married woman whose husband survived her, but also died in the testator's lifetime without having administered to his wife, limited administration was granted to a son of the legatee, In b. Councill, L. R. 2 P. & D. 314; 41 L. J. P. 16; Re Allen's Trusts, 1909, W. N. 181.

It does not appear to have been decided whether, as to bequests to a child of the testator which are by this section protected from lapse, the will of the child is to be construed as at the death of the child or of the parent; but whichever period is taken, the will of the child must be construed as if the will of the parent was then in existence, see Re Mason's Will, 34 Be. 494; 34 L. J. (N. S.) Ch. 603. And the child's estate is in the same position, quoad the parent's will, as if he had survived the parent, Pickersgill v. Rodger, 5 Ch. D. 163.

Sect. 33.

Child
en ventre.

A child en ventre sa mère would be issue left by the devisee or legatee within the meaning of this section, Re Griffiths' Settlement, 1911, 1 Ch. 246; 80 L. J. Ch. 176.

A doubt arose on the words of this section, "leaving issue, and any such issue of such person shall be living at the time of the death of the testator," whether, to prevent a lapse, it was necessary that the issue of the intended recipient who is alive at the death of the testator should be the same issue who was alive at the death of the intended recipient. It has been decided that it is sufficient, to prevent a lapse, that any issue should be living at the death of the testator, In b. Parker, 1 Sw. & Tr. 523; 31 L. J. P. 8.

As to dates of the bequest,
and the death of the intended taker.

The Act applies to a case where a child died before the will was made, Winter v. Winter, 5 Ha. 306; Mower v. Orr, 7 Ha. 473; 18 L. J. Ch. 361; Barkworth v. Young, 4 Drew. at p. 19; 26 L. J. Ch. 153.

Sect. 33 not applicable to gifts of

This section does not apply where the gift is to the testator's children or grandchildren as a class, Olney v. Bates, 3 Drew. 319; Browne v. Hammond, Joh. 210, even if, in the events which happen, the class may consist of but a single individual, Re Harvey's Estate, 1893, 1 Ch. 587; 62 L. J. Ch. 328; see also Re Stansfield, 15 Ch. D. 84; 49 L. J. Ch. 750; Re Butler, 1918, 1 I. R. 394. Where the bequest was to the testator's "children living at his death," and one child, Henry, died leaving issue, it was held that the representatives of Henry took nothing, and that the other children alone were entitled, Fullford v. Fullford, 16 Be. 565. But where the gift was to a class, and the share of each daughter was settled upon her for life, and after her death for her children, the children of a daughter who died before the testator were entitled to share, Unsworth v. Speakman, 4 Ch. D. 620; 46 L. J. Ch. 608; but this case was not followed in Re Roberts, 30 Ch. D. 234; 53 L. J. Ch. 1023.

Where the gift was to trustees upon trust for testator's four sisters (by name) in equal shares, "Provided always, and I declare that my trustees shall retain the share of each of my sisters upon the trust following," which were for each sister for life with remainder to her issue, and one of the sisters died in the lifetime of the testator, the direction to the trustees to hold the share on trust saved the share from lapsing, and the sister's children were accordingly held entitled thereto, Re Pinhorne, 1894, 2 Ch. 276; 63 L. J. Ch. 607. This case was followed in Re Powell, 1900, 2 Ch. 525; 69 L. J. Ch. 788; and Re Whitmore, 1902, 2 Ch. 66; 71 L. J. Ch. 673. But see Re Laing, 1912, 2 Ch. 386; 81 L. J. Ch. 686.

XXXIV And be it further enacted, That this Act shall not extend to any will made before the first day of January one thousand eight hundred and thirty-eight, and that every will re-executted or republished or revived by any codicil, shall for the purposes of this Act be deemed to have been made at the time at which the same shall be so re-executed, republished, or revived; and that this Act shall not extend to any estate pur autre vie of any person who shall die before the first day of January, one thousand eight hundred and thirty-eight.

Scotland.

(a) As to land in Scotland, see The Titles to Land Consolidation (Scotland) Act, 1868 (31 & 32 Vict. c. 101), the Conveyancing (Scotland) Act, 1874 (37 & 38 Vict. c. 94), the Conveyancing (Scotland) Acts (1874 and 1879) Amendment Act, 1887 (50 & 51 Vict. c. 69); and see the Wills (Soldiers and Sailors) Act, 1918 (7 & 8 Geo. 5, c. 58), s. 3 (2), set out in the notes to sect. 11, ante. By the joint effect of these Acts with 24 & 25 Vict. c. 114 (see Appendix on Domicile), it would seem that land in Scotland may now be devised by a will made in England and in English form, and unless expressly excepted it will pass by a general devise in an English will.

The Manx Wills Act, 1869, adopts many of the provisions of the English Act of 1837. Isle of Man.

AMENDMENT.

XXXVI. [Repealed by 37 & 38 Vict. c. 35] (a).

Sect. 36.

(a) The Act remains intact with the following exceptions:—

Repeal.

(1) The initial words have been repealed by The Statute Law Revision Act, 1893 (56 Vict. c. 14). Vide supra, sect. 1, note (a).

(2) Section 2 has been repealed by The Statute Law Revision Act, 1874 (37 & 38 Vict. c. 35).

(3) Section 8 has been virtually repealed by The Married Women's Property Act, 1882 (45 & 46 Vict. c. 75).

(4) Section 9 has been amended by 15 & 16 Vict. c. 24 (infra)—or rather, the section has been explained, and the construction originally placed upon it by the Ecclesiastical Court has been negatived.

(5) Section 11 has been explained and extended by The Wills (Soldiers and Sailors) Act, 1918 (7 & 8 Geo. 5, c. 58).

(6) Section 12 has been repealed by The Admiralty, &c. Acts Repeal Act, 1865 (28 & 29 Vict. c. 112); and provision respecting the wills of petty officers and seamen of the Royal Navy and Marines, so far as relates to their wages, prize money, bounty money, or any money or effects in Sect. 36. charge of the Admiralty, is now made by 28 & 29 Vict. c. 72, for which and for the Acts amending it see ante, sect. 12, note (a), p. 32.

(7) Section 36 has been repealed by The Statute Law Revision Act, 1874 (37 & 38 Vict. c. 35).

THE WILLS ACT AMENDMENT ACT, 1852.

15 & 16 VICT. c. 24.

An Act for the Amendment of an Act passed in the First Year of the Reign of Her Majesty Queen Victoria, intituled An Act for the Amendment of the Laws with respect to Wills.

“WHEREAS the laws with respect to the execution of wills require further amendment”: be it therefore enacted by the Queen’s most excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Lords spiritual and temporal, and Commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, as follows:—]*

Sect. 1. 1. Where, by an Act passed in the first year of the reign of her Majesty Queen Victoria intituled An Act for the Amendment of the Laws with respect to Wills, it is enacted, that no will shall be valid unless it shall be signed at the foot or end thereof by the testator, or by some other person in his presence, and by his direction: every will shall, so far only as regards the position of the signature of the testator, or of the person signing for him as aforesaid, be deemed to be valid within the said enactment, as explained by this Act, if the signature shall be so placed at or after, or following, or under, or beside, or opposite to the end of the will that it shall be apparent on the face of the will, that the testator intended to give effect by such his signature to the writing signed as his will (a), and [that]† no such will shall be affected by the circumstances that the signature shall not follow or be immediately after the foot or end of the will, or by the circumstance that a blank space shall intervene between the concluding word of the will and the signature (b), or by the circumstances that the signature shall be placed among the words of the testi-monium clause or of the clause of attestation (c), or shall follow or be after or under the clause of attestation, either with or without a blank space intervening, or shall follow or be after, or under, or beside the names or one of the names of the subscribing witnesses (d), or by the circumstance that the signature shall be on a side or page or other portion of the paper or papers containing the will whereon no clause or paragraph or disposing part of the will shall be written above the signature (e), or by the circumstance that there shall appear to be sufficient space on or at the bottom of the preceding side or page or other portion of the same paper on which the will is written to contain the signature (f); and the enumeration of the above circumstances shall not restrict the generality of the above enactment; but no signature under the said Act or this Act shall be operative to give effect to any disposition or direction which is underneath (g) or which follows it, nor shall it give effect to any disposition or direction inserted after the signature shall be made (h).

P. 42, the testator and witnesses signed each of five sheets; on the sixth were the testimonium and attestation, and the signatures of the witnesses, but not of the testator: although the dispositive part of the will was complete in the five sheets, the Court could not admit those sheets to probate; there was no signature at the foot or end of the will. Sect. 1. b. Chaplyn, 10 Jur. 210; In b. Dinmore, 2 Rob. 641. Questions may still arise as to whether the signature of the testator in the testimonium or attestation clause was intended for the testator's signature to the will; for example, where the whole of either of these clauses is in the handwriting of the testator. In In b. Mann, 28 L. J. P. 19, the signature of the testator in the testimonium clause (the whole of which clause was in his own handwriting) was held, after some hesitation, to be good. And where the testator read over an attestation clause containing his name, written by himself, in the presence of two witnesses, who subscribed, it was, in the circumstances proved, held that the testator intended to give effect to the will by the signature in the attestation clause, and probate was granted, In b. Walker, 2 Sw. & Tr. 354; 31 L. J. P. 62. See also Smith v. Smith, L. R. 1 P. & D. 143; 35 L. J. P. 65; In b. Huckvale, L. R. 1 P. & D. 375; 36 L. J. P. 84; In b. Casmore, L. (d) See In b. Puddephatt, L. R. 2 P. & D. 97; 39 L. J. P. 84.

(e) Where the testator's signature and the testimonium and attestation clauses were written on a separate paper, attached to the will by a string just opposite the end of the writing; the execution was held valid, In b. Horsford, 3 P. & D. 211; 44 L. J. P. 9. A will entirely filled six pages of letter paper, there being no room for an attestation clause on the sixth page; the testatrix signed each of the six pages, and her signature and the attestation clause were on the top of the seventh page; this last signature was the only one made in the presence of or seen by the attesting witnesses. It was held that, under the Amendment Act, the will was entitled to probate, In b. Brown, 16 Jur. 602.

(g) Words were, before the execution of the will, written on the left of and a little lower than the place of the testator's signature; these words were not admitted to probate, although the Court was of opinion that, strictly speaking, they were neither "underneath," nor did they "follow," the testator's signature, In b. Greata, D. & Sw. 266; see also In b. Topham, 14 Jur. 47; In b. Peach, 1 Sw. & Tr. 138; In b. Kimpton, 3 Sw. & Tr. 427; 33 L. J. P. 153; In b. Woodley, 3 Sw. & Tr. 429; 33 L. J. P. 154. See, however, In b. Ainsworth, L. R. 2 P. & D. 151. In In b. Greenwood, 1892, P. 7; 61 L. J. P. 56, the will did not contain any nomination of executors in the body of it, but at the bottom, below the attestation clause, and after the signatures, were the words "executors, W. G. and O. S." There was an asterisk before these words and an asterisk before the word "executor" wherever it occurred in the will. It having been proved that the words were written before the execution of the will, the nomination of executors was allowed to be included in the probate. See also In b. Birt, L. R. 2 P. & D. 214; 40 L. J. P. 26. But where the concluding words of disposition followed the signature of the testator and there was nothing to connect the words with the signature, these words were excluded from probate, In b. Mulen, 54 L. J. P. 91. In the case of the will of an Englishman made in France, a notarial minute of the execution of the will was written on the same sheet as and immediately following the will; the testatrix and the witnesses signed their names at the foot of this minute. The Court held the execution valid, Page v. Donovan, D. & Sw. 278. See also In b. Willmott, 1 Sw. & Tr. 36; In b. Cattrall, 3 Sw. & Tr. 419; 33 L. J. P. 106; *In b. 2. The provisions of this Act shall extend and be applied to every will already made, where administration or probate has not already been granted or ordered by a Court of competent jurisdiction in consequence of the defective execution of such will, or where the property, not being within the jurisdiction of the Ecclesiastical Courts, has not been possessed or enjoyed by some person or persons claiming to be entitled thereto in consequence of the defective execution of such will, or the right thereto shall not have been decided to be in some other person or persons than the persons claiming under the will, by a Court of competent jurisdiction, in consequence of the defective execution of such will (a).

Act to extend to certain wills already made.

(a) By this section, every will which had not, prior to the 17th June, 1852, been pronounced to be defectively executed, is brought within the operation of the amending Act. See note to In b. Brown, 16 Jur. 602.

3. The word "will" shall in the construction of this Act be interpreted in like manner as the same is directed to be interpreted under the provisions in this behalf contained in the said Act of the first year of the reign of her Majesty Queen Victoria.

A PRACTICAL VIEW OF THE WILLS ACT.

General condition of the old law.

IN the long struggle to enrol among our civil rights the power of testamentary disposition—one of the last consummate fruits of a refined policy—when, as war had preoccupied the land and superstition bespoken the goods, every point was to be carried against feudal or ecclesiastical repugnance, it is not difficult to suppose that a mass of laws would be generated, neither enlightened, comprehensive, nor coherent. The different degrees of dignity and value, naturally attached by our ancestors, in times of chieftainship and violence, to moveable and immoveable property, and again, as regards the soil, to the tenure of the sword and of the plough, to freehold and to leasehold interests (a), and the different jurisdictions under which territorial and commercial wealth consequently fell, embarrassed the growth of the much-coveted dominion with numerous distinctions, in themselves artificial and arbitrary, and in their consequences inconvenient, often unjust. Under such various and conflicting influences, both the right of disposing and the forms of disposition were capriciously modified; opposite codes were formed; the law, as respects realty, continued too strict; as respects personalty, grew too lax; and at the period of the legislative revision of this interesting branch of our jurisprudence, when the Wills Act was passed, its general characteristics were complication, diversity, uncertainty. To what extent, and with what success, a remedy has been applied, it will be one of our objects to show, in the observations which we are about to offer on this statute (b) "For the Amendment of the Laws with respect to Wills."

(a) The feudal law took little account of tenants for years, occupied, as they were, in the baser pursuits of husbandry; and though a large portion of the landed property of the kingdom is now held under leases for years, such leases, except of lands in Scotland, still rank only as personal estate.

But, as we do not address ourselves to the learned reader exclusively, it may be useful to preface our remarks upon the statute, by observing that the validity, construction, and effect of testamentary dispositions are determined, as to immoveable property (including chattels real), by the law of the State within which the subject-matter has its fixed existence; but, as to moveables, which are supposed to accompany our motions, and which really sympathise in our fortunes, by the law of the State within which the testator, at the time of his death, had his domicile or home (c). Hence, to a greater or a less extent, the self-expatriated Englishman stands excluded from, among other natal and inestimable rights, the advantages held out by the testamentary laws of his country, which breathe the generous freedom of its other institutions. The chief and peculiar advantage of those laws, which he thus in part renounces, consists in the absolute subjection of all his property, real and personal, to his ultimate volition. The law of England, wisely directing its paternal care to the great family of the State, confided private and particular interests to the dictates of natural and moral feeling, and has not repented of its confidence. There have been cases indeed, but such are of rare occurrence, in which, under peculiar circumstances, wills unnaturally injurious to the near relatives of the testator have been successfully impeached on the ground of mental delusion; otherwise, by our law, husbands and parents may leave all their property, without question, to strangers (d). This unfettered dominion would, if abused, call for legislative restraint; but while discreetly enjoyed, or rather, while suspended over all, even the most natural expectants, it operates more beneficially than the jealous code of France, which, by limiting the testamentary power to a certain proportion of the testator's possessions, discourages industry, tends continually to a more and more minute sub-division of capital.

The testamentary power, how affected by the testator's domicile.

and curtails the means of promoting obedience, gratitude, affection, within the domestic sphere most adorned by the exercise of those virtues.

We now proceed to the principal subject of this Dissertation.

In what respects the law is altered by the Wills Act.

The Wills Act, whether considered as an enabling, a restraining, or an expounding Act, affects the previous scope and construction of testamentary dispositions to an extent which renders the study of its provisions one of the most important duties of every professional man, and some knowledge of their general bearing matter of deep interest to all. They will be found to relate chiefly to the personal ability of the testator; to the subjects of testamentary disposition; to the exercise of testamentary powers of appointment; to the execution and attestation of wills; to the competency of attesting witnesses; to the revocation and alteration of wills; to the doctrine of lapse in particular cases; and to the construction of wills in certain respects. In regard to each of these matters, the old testamentary rights have been enlarged, abridged, or modified; but the predominating feature of the statute, and what, indeed, constitutes its chief excellence, is the assimilation, as to some points of general importance, of the law of real and the law of personal estate (e). This has been effected, for the most part, by allowing an ampler testamentary dominion over the former; though at the cost, in some respects, of privileges (not to be lightly estimated in a free country) before peculiar to Terms "personal estate," &c., defined.

(e) The term "personal estate," as used in the text, generally includes leaseholds for years, technically called chattels real, as well as money, goods, &c., technically called chattels personal; and the term "real estate," as there used, includes almost all interests, not being leases for years, in land of every tenure. But where the real and personal estate are to go in different ways, care must be taken, in the wording of general devises or bequests, to avoid any question on the operation of sect. 26 of the Act. Leaseholds, for the purposes of the Succession Duty Act (16 & 17 Vict. c. 51), are deemed real property, and chargeable as such with succession duty (ss. 1, 19). In the strictest technical sense the terms "will" and "devise" are appropriated to real estate; and the terms "testament," "bequest," and "legacy," are appropriated to personal estate; but the terms "will," "testator," and "testamentary," are commonly used, as in the text, with reference to either species of property. "Will" and "last will" are synonymous, for a will becomes operative as a will only on the death of the testator, Lord Walpole v. Earl of Cholmondeley, 7 T. R. 138.

the latter. The intention of the unlearned testator is no longer liable to be frustrated by the feudal laws of tenure; the same positive law now regulates the will of realty and the testament of personalty; that law, amended and compressed within one statute of moderate dimensions, may now be consulted, with comparative facility, by all; and the difficulties are reduced, in a great measure, to those which attend the exposition of all written documents, and which, as they sometimes present themselves even in perusing the Act itself, cannot but fall largely to the share of a man's last will and testament;—an instrument vainly imagined to possess, whether from long judicial indulgence, or from some peculiar sanctity of character (f), the virtue of conveying the clearest ideas in the loosest language.

The whole mass of former enactments respecting wills is repealed in the outset (g), and the statute then proceeds to build up, partly on the old foundations and with the old materials, but with unequal skill, what must long form the great institute of English testamentary law.

Repeal of the old statute law.

I. The old distinction in regard to the qualifying age, between wills of real and testaments of personal estate, and again, as to the latter, between the sexes—a distinction which denied to all persons under twenty-one the power of devising real estate unless by special custom, but permitted boys (h) of fourteen and girls of twelve to bequeath any amount of personal estate—is abolished.

I. AS TO THE TESTATOR'S PERSONAL ABILITY.

The statute requires that every testator shall be of the age of twenty-one years (i); nor can this enactment be evaded by creating an express power to appoint notwithstanding minority (k), or by Minors disqualified by the statute.

(f) Wills are said to be entitled to a liberal construction for the benefit of the soul of the testator, "Car le volunt de chescun home serra prise ou construe en le plus large manner que il poet estre raisonablement pur le benefit de le alme de le mort" (T. 17, Henry 7; Kei. 44 b).

(g) Sect. 2. But certain provisions of 12 Car. 2, c. 24, are not repealed. And sect. 2 of the Act is now itself repealed (37 & 38 Vict. c. 35), but such repeal does not revive the Acts repealed by sect. 2.

any other means. Married women were left under the same disability to make a will as before the statute (l).

Aliens.

By the British Nationality and Status of Aliens Act, 1914 (m), real and personal property of every description may be held and disposed of by an alien (n) in the same manner as by a natural-born British subject. This Act, however, does not deal with the question of what is to be the form of the will; as to personalty this is left to be determined according to the law of the alien's country (o). The Act does not apply to property acquired under a disposition made before the 12th May, 1870, or devolving on a death before that date (p).

Summary of the existing law as regards personal ability to dispose by will.

Here we may be allowed to make a digression for the purpose of presenting the reader with a summary of the law in regard to testamentary capacity. The persons, then, incapable, wholly or partially, of making a will, are:—

Minors.

1. Minors (q).

Married
women.

2. Married women, married before 1883, as regards all property acquired before 1883 other than separate estate, except for the special purpose of appointing an executor to continue the personal representation of a testator (r) of whose will the feme is herself the sole or the surviving executrix, unless enabled by a power (s), which some previous settlement or will not unfrequently confers; or unless the husband be banished by Act of Parliament, or have abjured the realm, when the wife's capacity, as discovert, revives (t); for although it is true that a married woman may, with the assent of her husband, make a valid testamentary disposition of personal estate not held for her separate use (u), yet as such disposition really derives its effect from his sanction, and is not the result of her independent volition, it is not, properly speaking, her will. By the Married Women's Property Act, 1882, a married woman may, as to her separate property, dispose thereof by will in the same manner as if she were a feme sole (x).

3. Persons not of a sound disposing mind, whether from idiocy, insanity, lunacy—unless the testamentary act be the fruit of a lucid interval,—drunkenness, or any other cause; and here we may suggest with respect to testators of weak understanding, generally, that they should be required to give written instructions, which, if evincing mental power, may be useful as evidence of competency, in aid, at least, of other proof. The presumption that every man is sane until the contrary is proved, is a mixed presumption of law and fact. It is not to be assumed, as a matter of law, that a will is made by a competent testator, but the Court or jury must be convinced of the competency. Therefore, he who relies upon a will in opposition to the heir-at-law, must produce evidence that the testator was a person of sound and disposing mind; and when such evidence has been produced, it is incumbent on the party alleging the testator's incompetency, to prove that the incompetency existed (y).

unsound mind.

Competency of testator.

Where a commission in lunacy has issued, and a jury has found that the subject of the commission is of unsound mind, the burden of proof is upon those who contend the contrary (z). Thus, a will made by a person who had been found lunatic by inquisition, but who was alleged to have recovered his sanity before his death, was pronounced against, there not being sufficient evidence that the delusions from which he suffered had disappeared (a). But the presumption of insanity in such a case may be rebutted by positive evidence of entire or partial recovery (b); though, of course, when a will is set up, made by a testator during the subsistence of a commission of lunacy against him, the onus probandi lies upon the person propounding the will to establish the complete or temporary recovery of the lunatic, at the times of giving instructions

for and executing his will (b). In Dimes v. Dimes (c), a will made by a testator of fluctuating capacity was found to have been made in a lucid interval, and was held good. And in Nichols v. Binns (d), where the testator had for years been habitually insane, but with intermissions, and the will was actually executed in a lunatic asylum, the jury having found that it was executed in a lucid interval, probate was decreed. In that case the instructions for the will were designed and written by the testator himself, without assistance, and the will made a natural and equitable disposition of his property; which latter fact was held to be, though not conclusive, strong evidence of the instrument having been made in a lucid interval. Again in Symes v. Green (e), it was held that if a will, rational on the face of it, is shown to be duly executed, the presumption is that it was made by a person of competent understanding; the testator in that case was subject to insane delusions, the will was in his handwriting, perfectly rational, and in no way connected with or referring to the subject of the delusions; but the circumstances in evidence counterbalanced the presumption of competency, and the decree was against the will. Waring v. Waring (f) is an important case, in which also the testatrix was subject to delusions, and had been found insane by inquisition, but subsequently to the execution of her will: that document, on the face of it, betrayed no marks of insanity, but it was pronounced against by the Privy Council, in affirmation of the Court below; in delivering the judgment of the Judicial Committee, Lord Brougham entered at length into an exposition of the legal doctrine of monomania (g). But delusions may co-exist with testamentary capacity; if the testator comprehends the extent of the property to be disposed of, and the nature of the claims of those he excludes, partial unsoundness, not affecting the general faculties and operating in regard to testamentary disposition, is insufficient to render him incapable of making a will (h).

Monomania.

Mere eccentricity must not be confounded with insanity or monomania (k). In Frere v. Peacocke (l), it was held that moral insanity, or a moral perversion of the feelings, unaccompanied with delusion, is insufficient to invalidate a will; the eccentricity of the testator must be resolved into intellectual insanity (m). Eccentricity not to be confounded with insanity.

The following eight propositions were formulated in an article by Mr. A. Wood Renton entitled "Testamentary Capacity in Mental Disease," which appeared in The Law Quarterly Review of October, 1888. The authorities upon which these propositions were founded are discussed in the article, and more fully in Wood Renton on Lunacy.

I. A testator must possess a memory sufficiently active to recall the nature and extent of his property, and the persons who have claims upon his bounty; and a judgement and will sufficiently free from the influence of morbid ideas or external control to determine the relative strength of those claims.

II. Intellectual insanity primâ facie destroys testamentary capacity; but this presumption may in any case be rebutted by evidence of a lucid interval; or that the insanity and delusions of the testator were irrelevant to the subject-matter of his will, or insufficient to prevent the exercise of a disposing memory, judgement, and will, at the time when the disputed instrument was made.

III. A lucid interval is not necessarily a complete restoration to mental vigour previously enjoyed; nor is it merely the cessation or suppression of the symptoms of insanity; it is the recovery of testamentary memory, judgement, and will as defined in Proposition I.

IV. An insane delusion is not merely an unfounded, though colourable, suspicion; nor even a belief which no rational person would have entertained; it is a persistent and incorrigible belief of things as real which exist only in the imagination of the patient, and which no rational person can conceive that the patient when sane would have believed.

V. Neither subsequent suicide nor supervening insanity will be reflected back upon previous eccentricity, so as to invalidate a will; aliter in the case of previous insanity.

Imbecility and doubtful
capacity.

In cases of imbecility, and weak or doubtful capacity, it seems impossible to lay down any general rule; the question is always one of degree, and of that question the particular circumstances in each instance must dispose (n).

Undue influence.

Closely, and almost inseparably, connected with questions of imbecility and doubtful capacity, are those of undue influence. In order to set aside on this ground the will of a person of testamentary capacity, it must be shown that the circumstances under which the will was executed are inconsistent with any hypothesis but that of undue influence: the exercise of undue influence cannot be presumed; it must be proved to have been exercised, and exercised, moreover, in relation to the will itself, and not merely to other transactions (o). Undue influence, in a popular sense, may exist in the form of bad companionship and bad example, but this is not sufficient to invalidate a will made under its operation. In order to be undue within the meaning of any rule of law which would make it sufficient to vitiate a will, it must be an influence exercised either by coercion or by fraud; allowing a fair latitude in the interpretation of those terms: thus actual violence is not necessary to constitute coercion; but imaginary terrors may be sufficient to deprive the testator of free agency; and contrivances producing false impressions may be equivalent to positive fraud (p). Persuasion is not unlawful, but pressure which overpowers the volition, without convincing the judgement, constitutes undue influence, though force be neither used nor threatened (q). Natural influence may be lawfully exercised to obtain a will or

VI. Affective, or moral, insanity does not (generally?) destroy testamentary capacity.

VII. Upon the executor who propounds a will rests the burden of proving (a) testamentary capacity, (b) knowledge and approval of contents, and (c) due execution.

VIII. Primâ facie an executor is justified in propounding his testator's will.

legacy; and the rules of equity as to gifts inter vivos are not applicable to the making of wills (r).

A will written, or procured to be written, by a person who is benefited thereby, is not void; but the circumstance forms a just ground of suspicion, and unless clear and satisfactory proof be given that the document propounded expresses the wishes of the testator, it will be pronounced against (s). The circumstance of a solicitor preparing for a client a will containing dispositions in his own favour, does not prevent him from taking the benefit, if no undue influence is used (t). Wills made during illness in favour of medical attendants are viewed with great jealousy (u). As to the case of guardian and ward, see the remarks in Hindson v. Weatherill (x).

A will may also be impeached on the ground of fraud, but the Courts require strong evidence to show that a duly executed will is not the act of the testator, and that he was not aware of its provisions (y).

And the rule throwing upon the party propounding a will, prepared by a person who takes a benefit under it, the burden of showing that the paper propounded expresses the true will of the deceased, is not confined to cases in which the will is prepared by a person taking a benefit under it, the true rule being that wherever a will is prepared under circumstances which raise the suspicion of the Court, it ought not to be pronounced for, unless the party propounding it adduces evidence which removes such suspicion and satisfies the Court that the testator knew and approved of the contents of the instrument, *Tyrrell v. DURESS.

Further, a will is invalid if procured from, and executed by, a testator under duress, whether it be duress of imprisonment or duress per minas. As to a testator acting under control equivalent to duress, see Scouler v. Plowright (z). Naturally, however, such cases are of rare occurrence; the same result being attainable, not so quickly or directly, but with smaller liability to defeat by the exercise of a less violent form of coercion, and by the insidious agency of influence and moral control. For an instance of a plea that a testator was prevented by force and threats from executing a new will, see Betts v. Doughty (a).

Capacity
impaired by illness.

If a testator has given instructions for his will, and it is prepared in accordance with them, but illness prevents him, at the time of his executing the will, from recollecting anything beyond the fact of his having given instructions, but he believes that the will he is executing is in accordance with them, this limited capacity is sufficient to render the will valid. And this is so, although at the time of execution he had no longer the capacity to recollect and understand either the instructions he had previously given, or even each clause inserted in the will if it had been put to him (b).

Persons born deaf and
blind.

4. Persons born deaf and blind, consequently dumb (c), and, therefore, wholly destitute of the common organs of mental perception: for as "wisdom at one entrance quite shut out" may still find another inlet, or, once admitted, may remain, after all its natural ports are closed against new ideas, nothing short of the original co-existence of all these functional defects can produce legal incapacity (d); though, of course, the existence of any peculiarity in regard to the personal circumstances of the testator will dictate additional caution to his professional adviser, as, for instance, that of carefully reading and explaining the intended will to a blind testator. In all cases comprised under this head, the law proceeds, not upon any narrow technical ground, but on the absence of intellectual power adequate to form, and, by certain signs, to communicate, a rational volition; on the actual, and not the presumable, obscuration or disturbance of that higher faculty which ennobles and distinguishes man. As the inquiry must always be, whether the testator was of competent understanding or not, this head is virtually included under that which immediately precedes it.

5. Persons outlawed; but outlawry in civil proceedings was abolished by 42 & 43 Vict. c. 59, s. 3. Outlawry.

By sect. 1 of 33 & 34 Vict. c. 23, it is enacted that from and after the passing of that Act, no confession, verdict, inquest, conviction, or judgement of or for any treason or felony or felo de se shall cause any attainder or corruption of blood, or any forfeiture or escheat. Forfeiture consequent upon outlawry is not affected by this statute, and in this case the outlaw cannot make a will, there being nothing for it to operate upon. But in the other cases where forfeiture and escheat are abolished, there seems no obstacle to the making of a will (e).

II. But a far more bold and sweeping innovation consists in striking at the ancient requisite, as regards real estate, of ownership in the testator at the making of the will—a requisite peculiar to England, and according to Lord Coke founded on the “having” of the old Statutes of Wills (f), but, in fact, more remotely rooted in the “seisin” of the feudal law (g)—and by at once enlarging the testator’s disposing power to the whole extent of embracing all his property, as well real as personal, whether acquired before or after the execution of the will (h). The power expressly includes interests under contingent and executory gifts of every kind, without regard to the fact whether the testator was or was not ascertained as the object of the gift; and even rights of entry, though not rights of action.

property, which, if left to be disposed of by law, would descend to or devolve upon the heir-at-law or customary heir, or the executor or administrator of the testator (i); in other words, to property which, if undisposed of by the deceased possessor, would follow the ordinary course of succession ordained by law, and be liable in the hands of the successors, or his real or personal representatives, to satisfy his debts and engagements generally (k); but an estate limited to heirs of the body, i.e. an estate tail, devolves under the peculiar protection of the legislature (l) in an extraordinary manner, and is not to be diverted from the course marked out on its creation, without the observance of certain appropriate forms prescribed by the same supreme authority. Tenants in tail, therefore, cannot dispose by will without barring the entail, for which, however, a cheap and easy method is now provided (m); but the devise of a tenant in tail would, if he should afterwards acquire the fee, be effectual. Still less can the testator, by his posthumous act, defeat a title beginning in his lifetime and consummated by his death. Hence, a joint-tenant, as such, cannot devise or bequeath; for the jus accrescendi, incident to that species of tenancy, vests at the instant of his death, and to treat the will as a severance would be to allow it the effect of a conveyance inter vivos; but if a joint-tenant, having made a will which but for the joint-tenancy, would pass the property, should, by severance, partition, or survivorship, become the owner in severalty of the whole or part, divided or undivided, his previous devise would, of course, be operative. In short, under the sweeping power conferred by the statute, a man, by his will, executed presently, may dispose of all that can, at his death, be justly denominated his own.

It would follow from the above extension of the devising power, unaided by another enactment (n) to be presently noticed, that a general devise of real estate must have an operation commensurate, at least, with that which, under the old law, was peculiar to a general bequest of personal estate—the operation of passing whatever property falling within the terms of the gift may belong to the testator at his death. Thus, a devise of all the testator's lands, or of all his lands in a particular county, parish, or occupation, or held by a particular tenure, would draw to itself all future acquisitions of the given description from whatever source derived. This potency of a general devise may suggest the expediency, in some cases, of providing for the eventual acquisition of real estate by the testator, and in others, of cautiously restricting the devise to property already acquired. —suggests what cautions.

Copyhold and customary estates, to which the testator is entitled as a devisee or surrenderee, but to which he has not been admitted, may now be devised without his previous or subsequent admittance (o). The statute embodies and amends the provisions of a former Act (p) for superseding the necessity of surrendering copyholds to the use of the will, so that now no surrender is needed to give effect to a devise of copyholds, or of any other species of customary estates (q), unless the surrender be, as it is in the case of a joint-tenant or of a feme covert, something more than a formal requisite. But although a surrender to the use of the will is thus dispensed with, the Act still leaves the estate in the customary heir till the admittance of the devisee (r). The statute also confers a devising power on such copyhold and customary tenants as were before restrained by the particular custom from devising (s). Copyhold and customary estates.

Estates pur auter vie, as leases for the lives of others are technically called, which were first made devisable by the Statute of Frauds (s. 12), have likewise retained their former position (t); except that the extension of the devising power to interests which would have devolved to the heir (meaning, of course, the heir general), may be considered as impliedly denying the power of testamentary disposition to quasi tenants in tail of lands held pur auter vie (of which, as not being regularly entailable, entails were, and still are, barrable by an unenrolled (u) conveyance), and as having thereby finally disposed of any lingering doubt respecting the incompetency of such tenants to defeat the quasi entail by will (x). This portion of the statute, which has given, expressly, to the testamentary power all the scope of which it appears to be fairly susceptible, must always be considered as the most valuable.

III. AS TO THE EXER-CISE OF TES-TAMENTARY
POWERS OF

—by a general devise or bequest.

III. The exemption of testamentary appointments from the necessity of referring or alluding to the power, or its subject, or of otherwise indicating, expressly or constructively, an intention to appoint by virtue of a power as distinguished from an intention to devise or bequeath by force of an interest, may also be considered as extending the range of testamentary dominion, while it extinguishes a prolific source of litigation; for the distinction was too refined to be appreciated by ordinary testators, and many a testamentary appointment, therefore, either failed, or was capable of being supported only by extrinsic evidence. But now a gift, in general terms, acts indifferently upon ownerships and testamentary powers (y), whether the power was created before or after the statute came into operation, unless the power be confined to specific objects (z), whether individuals or classes (as in the instance of a power to appoint in favour of A., or in favour of the “children” of A.), and then there must still be a reference to the power, or some equivalent denotation of the intention to exercise it.

powers.

It should seem that the operation of a general gift upon general testamentary powers must be determined by analogy to its effect upon after-acquired property, strictly such; and that, consequently, where a general power of appointment is given to the survivor of A. and B., the power would be well exercised by a general devise or bequest contained in the will of A., though made in B.’s lifetime, if the testator, by surviving B., should eventually become the donee of the power (a); and that principle has been held to extend to the case of a general power given to the testator by an instrument not in existence at the making of his will (b), and to the case of a general equitable testamentary power given to the survivor of A. and B., which has been held to be well exercised by the will of A., a married woman, executed during coverture in the lifetime of B., whom A. survived (c).

IV. While the old law studiously guarded devises of freehold estates, by prescribing certain formalities of execution and attestation (d), it was altogether indifferent, on these points, as to bequests of personal estate and devises of copyhold property. There were two objects, therefore, to be accomplished: first, to render the law, in this respect, uniform; secondly, to render it simple and certain.

IV. AS TO THE EXECU-TION AND ATTESTATION
OF WILLS.
State of the old law.

The statute 1 Vict. c. 26, s. 9, requires that wills of every description, except wills of personal estate made by soldiers in actual service and by mariners and seamen at sea (e), shall be signed at the foot or end of the instrument by the testator or some person in his presence and by his direction: which signature is to be made, or acknowledged, before two or more witnesses, who are to be present at the same time, and are to attest and to subscribe the will in the presence of the testator; but the concluding member of the section declares that no form of attestation shall be necessary. The terms in which these essential ceremonies--ceremonies to be observed by all—are enacted, were but ill-adapted to convey the requisite information, promptly and clearly, to either the professional or the popular mind. The litigation upon the 9th section became frequent and serious. Many wills were declared invalid for want of a literal compliance with the terms of the Act, especially with regard to the position of the testator's signature at the "foot or end" of the will. The legislature again interposed, and by the Act 15 & 16 Vict. c. 24 provided for many of the particular cases in which wills had been held to be imperfectly executed under the 9th section. We proceed to indicate, as briefly and distinctly as may be, those ceremonies attending the execution of a will, which a safe exposition of the two statutes taken together, and a due regard to the authentication of the instrument, and to the rights of property, seem to enjoin or strongly recommend.

The present
requisites.

1. The testator should sign his name in his usual form and manner underneath the last line of the will; and his signing must precede that of the witnesses, for if the witnesses, or either of them, sign before the testator, the execution is bad. The testator, if unable to write his name, should cause some person, in his presence, so to sign his (the testator's) name; for though a mark, but not a seal, would do, yet, at this day, a mark is a very rude or for, the

and unauthentic mode of signing. If it can be avoided, though there are no words in the statute on which any legal objection can be founded, the person procured to sign for the testator should not be also one of the witnesses.

2. Acknowledgment, by the testator, of a previous signature.

2. Where the will has been signed in the absence of the witness either by or by the direction of the testator, he should audibly acknowledge to the witnesses,—for though constructive acknowledgment may be sufficient, and, in particular cases, as that of a dumb testator, more could not reasonably be required, still an express acknowledgment is to be preferred—that the signature was made by him, or, as the case may be, by a designated individual in his presence and by his direction; and even where the act of signing is performed in the presence of the witnesses, it will be proper that their attention should be particularly directed to the signature. But if the will consist of several sheets though for greater certainty, and to prevent interpolation, each should be signed at the foot—it is not absolutely necessary to sign, or to acknowledge the signing of, any other than the last sheet in the presence of the witnesses.

3. Disclosure of the character of the instrument.

3. Though it is not essential that either the person, if any, who signs for the testator, or the witnesses, should have the slightest knowledge of the nature of the document—for even while publication, now expressly abolished (f), was a legal though an empty sound, the testator might have been silent if not deceptive upon that point—yet, unless there be some strong motive for concealment, the testator will do well to declare that the document is his will, or, as the case may be, a codicil to his will. It is desirable that the several sheets, if more than one, composing the will, should be attached, or, at least, be present together at the time of execution.

4. Presence, and subscription, of the witnesses.

4. The witnesses must be two (or more) in number, and must be simultaneously present, when the signature by or for the testator, or his acknowledgment, is made; the testator and the witnesses should be within sight and hearing of each other; and although the statute does not say that the witnesses shall subscribe at the same time, or in the presence of each other, as well as of the testator, the three should not separate till the witnesses have both subscribed. Such subscription, which must be in the witness's own handwriting, should contain his name written in his usual form and manner—though a mark, which, as we have seen, even in the case of the testator, satisfies the statute, would be a sufficient subscription by a witness, and initials are enough—also his abode and quality. The witnesses are required to attest, as well as to subscribe. By the attestation here contemplated must be understood that mental observation which enables men to testify concerning matters transacted before them; for the notion, founded on a misconstruction of a subsequent provision of the statute, that the solemnity of attesting may now be fulfilled by corporeal presence alone, has been too hastily adopted. With respect to the number of witnesses, the statute has fixed no maximum. The place of residence and the occupation of each witness should be appended to his name, to facilitate his discovery in case the will has to be proved per testes.

5. An attestation clause is not necessary. Such is conceived, at least, to be the true result of this somewhat obscure section (g), made darker by the last explanatory adjunct. But a formal memorandum should always be added in order to facilitate probate, which would not otherwise be granted without a special affidavit; to afford evidence of title to the property devised; for a purchaser would otherwise require a statutory declaration (h) by the witnesses; and lastly, to fix the attention of the witnesses upon the facts which it is expedient that they should certify, and which, having thus certified, they could not afterwards so effectually deny. This clause should express that the instrument has been signed—not, as heretofore, “signed and published,” for no publication is requisite (i)—by the testator (or, as the case may be, signed by a designated individual, in the testator’s presence and by his direction), as the last will of the testator, in the presence of the witnesses, present at the same time; also, that the witnesses have subscribed in his presence—so far the memorandum would record matters which are of the very essence of the execution—and (it may be well to add) in the presence of each other. At the foot of this memorandum, and not elsewhere, the witnesses, having first perused it, should sign as directed under the preceding head. (See note (e) to Prec. 1.)

6. As witnesses, being either objects, or married to objects, of the testator’s bounty, absolutely forfeit, by the act of subscribing, the benefits intended for them, they are, of course, improper, though sufficient (k) witnesses; and the persons selected for such a duty should, as will naturally occur, be intelligent, as well as indifferent, persons (l).

7. Universality and inflexibility of the statutory requisites.

7. ALL testamentary papers, without exception (m), must be executed and attested in the manner prescribed by the statute, and its provisions cannot be evaded, even by means of a power created for the purpose. In preparing testamentary appointments, it was formerly the practice to consult the power as to the requisites of execution and attestation; but equity (always prone when legal fetters annoy its jurisdiction to erect itself into a court of repeal) aided in favour of particular claimants the neglect of that form which the power had prescribed (n). But now the statute is the sole, universal, and inexorable guide; nothing additional can be imposed, nothing there enjoined can be dispensed with, no inadvertence can ever be helped. Therefore, testamentary appointments must be executed and attested according to the statute, and should be executed and attested without regard to the power, whether the power were created before or after the statute came into operation; and clauses which confer testamentary powers should either be wholly silent in regard to execution and attestation, or simply refer to the statute.

AND ALTERA-TION OF WILLS.

V. We now proceed to the revocation and the alteration of wills. These also are placed on a new basis; for not only is a revoking will, whether of real or of personal estate, subjected to the same regulations, in regard to execution and attestation, as a disposing will (o), but other important changes are introduced.

Revocation
by marriage.

Thus, the mere marriage of a testator produces a total revocation (p)—except of testamentary appointments in cases where the property would not, in default of appointment, go to the testator's heir, executor, administrator, or statutory next of kin—without the additional circumstance, formerly requisite, of the birth of a child; so that, in this respect, the will of a man is placed on the same footing as that on which the will of a woman formerly stood, and, indeed, still stands. The language of this enactment, it will be observed, is absolute; and, therefore, the revocation would not be prevented by the strongest declaration of the testator that his will shall, notwithstanding any future or even an actually contemplated marriage, continue in force. It is easy to suppose that cases may occur in which the testator's intention would not be altered by the change of his condition; as where he has made a disposition in favour of his family by a deceased wife, and contracts marriage again with a woman for whom he has amply provided by a jointure, and by whom there is not any moral chance of his having issue. The undistinguishing operation of this enactment, by which on the marriage of every person, male or female, under any circumstances, his or her will is reduced to waste paper, should be generally known.

But as the statute abolishes revocation on the ground of a presumed intention from an alteration of circumstances (q), marriage is now the only extrinsic circumstance capable of working a revocation.

Change of circumstances.

The statute also abolishes revocation by means of a conveyance (r), except so far as the conveyance, by substantially alienating the property, withdraws it from the testator's control. A devise, therefore, unless specially restricted, will operate on whatever interest the testator may have in the property at his death, notwithstanding any new modification or partial alienation of his ownership, which may have taken place subsequently to the execution of the will. The constructive revocation of devises, by the execution of conveyances designed only to create a charge upon the estate or to effect some other limited purpose, but stretched by technical reasoning far beyond the intention, often produced injustice (s).

New modification of the estate.

Under the old law, a will might have been revoked by burning, tearing, cancelling, or obliterating, without the presence or attestation of any witness; proof or presumption that the act was that of the testator sufficed. The statute, however, makes this important distinction between the act of burning, tearing, or otherwise destroying the substance of the will, and a mere obliteration of its contents:—it allows the former acts, if done animo revocandi, still and inter-

to have a revoking effect, though unattested and unseen by any witness (t); while any obliteration, whether of the whole or part only of the will, as well as an interlineation, is required to be executed and attested with the same solemnity as an original will (u), except that (and here the legislature must be allowed to speak its own peculiar language) "the will, with such alteration as part thereof, shall be deemed to be duly executed, if the signature of the testator, and the subscription of the witnesses, be made in the margin, or on some other part of the will, opposite or near to such alteration, or at the foot or end of or opposite to a memorandum referring to such alteration, and written at the end or some other part of the will."

Cancellation.

It is important to bear in mind the fact that this statute does not, like the former law (x), admit of the revocation of a will by cancellation, without more; and, therefore, if a testator, meaning to annul his will, should draw his pen across the sheets, or through his signature, or have recourse to any other mode of defacing the writing, still the instrument, so far as its contents might yet be discernible, would remain in full force as his will, unless such cancellation were executed and attested as the statute requires in the case of a will.

revoked wills.

Before we close this head, attention should be particularly pointed to the circumstance, that the revival of a revoked will, whether revoked before or after the statute came into operation, can be effected only by re-execution, or by a codicil expressive of an intention to revive the will.

VI. AS TO THE LAPSE OF DEVISES AND BEQUESTS.

VI. Considerable alterations have been made in the doctrine of lapse. Lapse is the failure of a testamentary gift by the death of its object in the lifetime of the testator. Where the interest given is circumscribed by the life of the deceased devisee or legatee, or depends upon a circumstance which is personal to him and which has not occurred (as his attainment of the age of twenty-one), the gift necessarily fails; and though the interest should be capable of transmission to his representatives, yet, as it never vested in him, his heirs, executors, or administrators could take it only by force of special words of substitution. If the whole and absolute interest was given, then, under the old law, the death of the devisee or legatee caused an intestacy as to the subject of the lapsed gift, unless it were personal property and the will also contained a residuary bequest; if less than the whole and absolute interest was given, then the expectant dispositions, if any, were accelerated. Thus, if Blackacre was devised to A., who died before the testator, in fee, and the residue of the real estate was devised to B., Blackacre did not fall into the residue, but descended to the testator's heir: while, if a lease for years, or any other subject of personal estate, was bequeathed to A., who died before the testator, and the residue of the personal estate was bequeathed to B., the subject of the lapsed bequest fell into and passed as part of the residue to B. But if real or personal estate was given to A., who died before the testator, for the life of B., and, on the death of B., to C., then the remainder to C. took effect immediately on the testator's death (and, unless the case were within the provisions about to be noticed as to children and issue of the testator dying in his lifetime, would still take effect) as an immediate gift in possession, notwithstanding B. should survive the testator. So, if Blackacre was devised to A., who died before the testator, in tail, and on failure of his issue to B., the devise to B. took effect presently, notwithstanding A. left issue who survived the testator. Such was the general state of the law, which has been altered as to real value, by enlarging the operation of a residuary devise, and by carrying out the intended effect of a devise in tail; and, as to both real and personal estate, by attributing new force to gifts in favour of the testator's children or his more remote issue.

Under the present law, if a devisee in fee of specific lands die in the testator's lifetime, the estate comprised in such lapsed devise, instead of devolving on the heir, passes to the residuary devisee (y); and so, generally, the property or interest comprised in every devise, lapsing or incapable of effect from any cause whatever, falls into the residue of the realty. The result of this alteration, taken in connexion with the extension, already noticed, of the disposing power to after-acquired lands (z), is, that a testator, whose will contains a complete and operative general or residuary devise in fee, cannot die intestate in regard to any portion of his real estate. Hence there can no longer be any occasion for a subsequent adoption or recognition of the will, in order to extend the operation of a general or of a residuary devise to real estate bought void devises,

or otherwise acquired since the execution of the will, or comprised in any devise which has lapsed by the death of a devisee in fee.

Devises in tail of realty.

The other alterations in the doctrine of lapse are confined to particular cases. The devise for an estate tail in realty to any person dying in the testator's lifetime is made to take effect if any issue in tail be living at the time of the testator's death (a).

Devises and bequests to the testator's issue.

The remaining enactment, under this head, provides, that an interest in real or personal estate, given to a child or other issue of the testator himself, dying in the lifetime of the testator, leaving issue, shall, if any such issue—and the word such does not necessarily refer to the very issue left by the deceased devisee or legatee (b)—should survive the testator, not lapse, but belong to the representatives of the child or other issue to whom the devise or bequest purports to be made, as part of his or her own real or personal estate (c); and, as such, it will be subject, of course, to the testamentary disposition, if any, of the same child or issue—provided, as to real estate, the will of the child or issue be within the statute, and consequently of force to pass after-acquired real estate—notwithstanding that such disposition may have the effect of wholly excluding the issue required, by this enactment, to be living at the death of the testator. Of course, where the will itself disposes prospectively, in the event which has happened, of the interest of the deceased child or issue, the operation of the statutory provision is excluded.

Effect of the rules as to lapse.

In both the preceding cases, of the gift in tail, and of the gift to a child or other issue of the testator, the statute places the persons claiming under the intended devisee or legatee in the same situation as if such devisee or legatee, instead of dying before, had died immediately after the testator.

Their inapplicability where the gift is to a class.

But neither of the provisions in question can apply where the requisite of surviving the testator is involved in the very description of the objects, and where, consequently, nothing can lapse by the death of an individual in his lifetime, as in the case of a gift to "sons," "daughters," "children," or "grandchildren," as a class, for there, according to the established rules of construction, sons, daughters, children, or grandchildren dying before the testator, would be considered as not originally within the contemplation of the gift (d). It follows, therefore, that where a testator gives his property to a class (for example, to his children equally), and wishes that in case of the death of any child, his or her children (i.e. the testator's grandchildren) should be substituted, there should be inserted express words under which the grandchildren would take by substitution; otherwise any child dying in the testator's lifetime would never come within the class, and would consequently take nothing. But where a testator gives property to his children nominatim, and one dies in his lifetime (e), the subject-matter of the gift will form part of the estate of the deceased child, subject to the dispositions of his will and to his debts.

(a) Sect. 32.

(b) See p. 75.

(c) Sect. 33.

VII. We now approach the most questionable part of the statute, the construction clauses (f): questionable, both as regards the general expediency of legislating on such subjects, and as regards the frame of these clauses in particular. An Act of Parliament is but a blind expositor of legal instruments—objects too minute for its comprehensive vision; and the interpreting, for all future testators, of a few phrases, gleaned from bygone cases of ignorance and mistake, seems not less unbecoming the dignity than it is foreign to the functions of a great legislative body. In framing documents, for which the legislature has evinced such critical anxiety, we shall be apt either to lose sight of the enacted signification, or to be perplexed between our preconceived notions of the force of a word and its statutory sense. Happily, this interference with the rules of construction is limited to a few instances. The conflict of legal doctrines with popular opinion, on one or two of the questions of construction to which this branch of the statute extends, was certainly to be deprecated not only because the rule of law often disappointed the intention, but because the conviction that it did so produced in judges a strong disposition to find some plausible excuse for departing from the strict construction. Hence arose the numerous cases in which devises, without words of limitation, were held to pass the fee, when combined with circumstances affording an inference that the testator meant to give a larger interest than an estate for life, as the use of the word "estate," the imposition of a charge on the devisee, or the introduction of a devise over in the event of the prior devisee dying under age. Hence, too, arose the cases, almost as numerous, in which the question was, whether, in the construction of gifts to take effect on the failure of issue, indefinitely, of a given person, the words referring to the failure of issue were, by force of the context, restrained to import a leaving of issue at the death of that person, or at some other period within the limits of the rule against perpetuities.

devise passes
leaseholds
and copy-holds.

The rule (g) that a general devise did not pass leaseholds for years where there were freeholds to satisfy it is abolished (h). The enactment extends to copyholds, but unnecessarily; it having been held that since the statute which dispensed with a surrender to the use of the will (i), copyholds would pass under a general devise (k), as they would have done before that statute when preceded by such a surrender.

Indefinite
the fee.

The rule which required that an intention to give to a devisee an estate in fee, as distinguished from an estate for life, should be indicated by words of limitation, or by some equivalent expression, is likewise abolished; so that now a devise of a "messuage" or a "close of land" to J. S., without more, will pass the fee, unless a contrary intention appear (l).

Construction of words importing a failure of issue.

The statute also provides that words referring to a failure of issue shall, unless the context requires a different construction, be held to import a failure of issue at the death, and not, as formerly, a failure of issue at any the remotest period (m). The effect of this statutory modification of the rule may be illustrated, in regard to both real and personal estate, by the simple case of a gift of real and personal estate to A., and if he shall die without issue, then to B. in fee; here, supposing the will to have been made before the 1st of January, 1838, when the statute came into operation, A. would take (the words "without issue" being construed, according to the old law, to import an indefinite failure of issue) an estate tail in the real estate (n), with remainder to B. in fee, while the whole interest in the personal estate (which is incapable of an entail) would belong to A. absolutely (o). Whether, therefore, A. had any issue or not, the gift to B. would fail, as regards the personal estate; and it might by the act of A., i.e. his enrolled conveyance (p), be defeated, as regards the real estate. If, however, the gift in question occurred in a will made on or after the 1st of January, 1838, then (the words "without issue" being construed, according to the present law, to refer to a leaving of issue at the death), A. would take the fee of the real estate, and the whole interest in the personal estate, but defeasible, as to both, by his dying without leaving issue living at his death, in which event B. would become entitled by way of executory devise or executory bequest, notwithstanding any act of A.

The provisions for ascertaining the effect of devises to trustees (q) are of a purely technical character. They were intended to relieve the expositors of wills from a most embarrassing portion of their duty. The doctrine that no greater quantity of legal estate should be taken by trustees, under an indefinite devise, than was sufficient for the purposes of the trust, though bearing primâ facie the appearance of reason, rendered it nearly impossible to say, without a judicial decision, what quantity or quality of legal estate was, in certain cases, actually vested in them; and though in some of the reported cases it may have been decided negatively, that the whole fee was not vested in the trustees, yet it would be difficult to express, by any technical phrase, what precise estate they were considered to have taken. The difficulty is now transferred to the statute-book.

As the enactment which makes testamentary dispositions speak and take effect, with respect to the property (not to the objects) comprised in them, as if the will were actually executed the instant before the death of the testator (r), was hardly requisite to complete the dominion over after-acquired property, both real and personal estate having been already placed (s) on that liberal footing whereon personal estate alone formerly stood, this enactment may be considered as having, for the most part, a distinct object, and as designed to communicate a novel effect to one species of gift, namely, specific devises and bequests, at which it seems to be tacitly aimed. Cases sometimes occurred, under the old law, in which, between the date of the will and the death of the testator, the identical subject of a specific bequest had been removed or destroyed, but other property, equally answering the description, had been substituted. In such a case, without republication of the will, the legatee would not, under the old law, have been entitled to the substituted property (t), but he will take it by the operation of the present Act unless a contrary intention appears. If the very subject of property should be gone, but the testator should have, at the time of his death, another subject to which the words apply, that subject will pass: the statute imputing to the testator an intention to make this new application of his words, unless he manifests a contrary intention on the face of the will. A testator, intending that a specific gift shall pass no other subject of property than that which answers the description at the execution of the will, should make such his intention apparent.

effect of the present law with regard to the forms
of wills.

In these accessions to the testamentary power and changes in the rules of construction, however important, there is nothing to excite apprehension in the mind of the draftsman, lest, by essentially affecting the forms of wills, they should oblige him to unlearn the old and acquire a new testamentary language. These rules of construction may, on the one hand, dictate caution in regard to the intended scope of general as well as of specific devises and bequests; and, on the other hand, induce the framers of wills either to withdraw their attention from some points which used formerly to exercise it (such, for instance, as the expressing, in general or residuary devises or bequests, of an intention to exercise general powers of appointment; the mention of leaseholds in a general or residuary devise, intended to comprise lands of that tenure; and the insertion of words of limitation in devises intended to pass the fee), or to direct their attention to those points from other motives or for other purposes. As, under the present law, the consequence of silence, in these instances, is to pass the subject of the power, the leaseholds, or the fee, a contrary intention, if entertained, should be distinctly expressed. And it is always to be remembered, that the context of the will may raise an argument for excluding the application of the rules of construction propounded by the legislature. A testator's meaning and intentions are to be gathered from the whole of his will taken together, and those intentions will be carried out by the Court, even though some expressions have to be discarded or modified, and others to be supplied by implication (u). And in order to determine a testator's meaning, the Court must read his language in the sense which he himself appears to have attached to it; with this qualification, that when a rule of law has affixed a certain determinate meaning to technical expressions, that meaning must be given to them, unless the testator, by his will, has beyond all doubt excluded such construction (u).

Testator's meaning to be gathered from the will as a whole.

The statute expressly excludes Scotland from its purview (x); and, by the general law, such of our colonial dependencies as have not imported or adopted this statute, either generally as part of the laws of England, or specially, are also unaffected by its operation.

Scotland and colonies not within the statute.

The statute does not apply to a donatio mortis causâ (y). But where the circumstances indicate an intention to make a testamentary gift, and the intention fails for want of proper attestation, a donatio mortis causâ will not be presumed (z).

touched. But they exhibit (or they have failed of their object) the broad features of the law—much less, indeed, than it behoves the professional adviser to learn and meditate, but all, or nearly all, that it concerns the general reader, and even the general practitioner, to know.

We may now close, not unprofitably, we trust, our view of this statute, by suggesting that testators should reconsider their wills, from time to time, as important changes affect the state of their property or the objects of their bounty, and rather endeavour to provide for events as they arise, than rely on the prospective care either of themselves or of the legislature; by deprecating, as more or less perilous, all attempts to engraft alterations of intention on previous testamentary papers, whether by interlineation or obliteration or by codicil, and all attempts to incorporate, by reference, the contents of ledgers, journals, or other detached writings; by cautioning both testators and their advisers against the too confident assumption of the responsible, morally responsible, office of a will-maker, in cases of magnitude and difficulty, which often try the gravest experience; by urging upon unprofessional persons the good sense, duty, and economy of taking regular advice, in a matter that involves, perhaps, all their hard-earned gains, all their tenderest affections—nor less upon professional men, who may have acquired some repute by framing or advising on the wills of others, the folly of jeopardising it by making their own (a); and (if we may be allowed to mingle, yet further, morals

The will of Sir Samuel Romilly was also inartificially penned, and that of Chief Baron Thompson was the subject of Chancery proceedings. devise, upon the validity of which his executors, Maynard, Holt, and Pollexfen, all great lawyers, were divided in opinion (4 R. P. Com. Rep. App. 24). The will of Bradley, the celebrated conveyancer, was set aside by Lord Thurlow for uncertainty (Martin's Conv. Recital Book, 35, n.). Lord Thurlow's own will did not contain any power to appoint new trustees, and the omission was supplied by Act of Parliament. The will of the late Dr. Tristram, author of a work on Probate Practice, was imperfectly executed, and the will of Lord St. Helier, late President of the Probate Division, was only admitted to probate after an action, St. Helier v. Jeune, 1905, 119 L. T. J. 157.

(b) The most remarkable modern instances are afforded by the wills of Thellusson (see Thellusson v. Woodford, 4 Ves. 227; 11 Ves. 112; Oddie v. Woodford, 3 M. & C. 584; 7 L. J. (O. S.) Palmer*, 10 Bing. 140; 7 Bli. N. S. 200). With respect to Thellusson's scheme, the enormous accumulation once anticipated, which seemed almost to threaten the equipoise of the State, vanished in chancery management, &c.; and as Parliament had interposed by a Public Act (39 & 40 Geo. 3, c. 98) to limit accumulation, so it interposed by a private Act (3 & 4 Will. 4, c. xxvii.) to correct, in some degree, the particular mischief. Bengough's will, which was settled by Mr. Preston, and contained directions for a funeral with civic honours and a costly monument, was established after a vigorous contest, by a judgement of the House of Lords (7 Bli. N. S. 202).

SUGGESTIONS

TO

PERSONS TAKING INSTRUCTIONS FOR AND PREPARING WILLS.

OF all the duties which devolve upon the legal practitioner, none, perhaps, so imperatively demands the exercise of a wise discrimination as that of taking instructions for and preparing a will. Intending testators too often postpone the testamentary act until they are prevented by disease or physical weakness from explaining in detail to their professional adviser the situation of themselves, their family, and their property, and to the discretion of that adviser the particular provisions of the instrument are left. Indeed, many persons are ignorant of the ordinary modes of disposition under similar circumstances of family and property, and require to be advised as to the plan best adapted to those circumstances; and he who would efficiently discharge this important branch of a lawyer's duty should be prepared with some sound and well-considered notions on the subject. This perhaps will be facilitated by suggesting some of the particulars on which accurate information should be obtained in taking instructions for a will, and by pointing out briefly the comparative advantages of the several modes of testamentary disposition adapted to ordinary circumstances.

It is obvious that the nature of the inquiries in every case must be greatly regulated by the situation in life and other circumstances of the intending testator. It is equally obvious that on the part of the latter there should be that full confidence which induces him to explain his position to his professional adviser without concealment and without reserve.

In the course of a judgement in a will case (c) in 1885, Mr. Justice Pearson said: "I cannot part with the case without expressing an opinion which I have entertained for a great many years (and which the experience of the last three weeks in this Court has most strongly confirmed), that I regret exceedingly that not only ordinary laymen, but, as it seems to me, professional men, do not understand the great difficulty there is in drawing wills, and do not bestow a little more care and pains in endeavouring to draw them in such a way as that the numerous questions which often arise on them should be avoided. I regret to say that these questions often throw a great deal of expense on parties interested under the wills, and are the cause of great heartburnings and most bitter animosities. . . . Very often a will is most carefully drawn, so far as the phrasology goes, but either the person who draws it is improperly instructed, or in some other way a mistake is made which creates difficulty and worse than difficulty. During the last three weeks I have disposed of not less than thirty will cases in which questions have arisen through some mistake."

1. Instructions for a will should, if possible, be taken from the testator himself, rather than from third persons, especially where such persons are interested. Instructions, from whom to be taken.

2. Full inquiry should be made as to the personal position of the testator himself, of his family, and of the objects of his bounty (d). Inquiries as to matters personal to the testator.

Is the testator legitimate or illegitimate? Is he married or unmarried? If married, when, and was a marriage settlement executed? Is there any doubt of the fact or of the legality of his marriage, or of the legitimacy of any of his children or other objects of his favour? Is there a probability of the birth of other children? Is there any question as to the place of domicile of the testator, or of any of the objects of his bounty? Is the testator engaged in trade, in partnership either in his general business, or in a particular adventure?

3. Full inquiry should be made as to the nature and extent of the testator's property. Nature and extent of testator's property.

Where is the realty (if any) situate? Is it freehold, leasehold, or copyhold? What is the precise interest of the testator therein, and how did he acquire it? Is any of it mortgaged? If so, is the mortgaged estate to bear the burden in exoneration of the personal estate (see note (a), Prec. 16)? Has the testator contracted to sell or buy any real estate? Is any of the realty to be specifically devised? Are the rents current at the testator's death to be apportioned or to belong wholly to the devisee? Has the testator any powers of appointment? Is any provision to be made for carrying on his trade? Is any special fund to be appropriated for the payment of debts and legacies? Is he a shareholder in joint-stock companies?

(d) The testator should be warned, if necessary, that scandalous and defamatory words are liable to be directed to be omitted from the probate, In b. Robert White, 1914, W. N. 228. Matter objected to by the military authorities may in certain circumstances be similarly omitted, In b. Heywood, 1916, P. 47; 85 L. J. P. 24.

Let it now be supposed that the person taking instructions for the will has fully and accurately acquainted himself with the situation of the testator's family and other intended objects of his bounty, and of the property upon which his will is designed to operate.

Objects of gift.

I. As to the objects of gift.

Where a testator is married but has no child, provision should nevertheless be made for children hereafter to be born (unless it is unreasonable to contemplate his having children by his present wife), or the will should expressly be made contingent on his leaving no issue surviving him. Similarly, provisions for the children of a married testator should not be confined to those in esse at the date of the will.

Provision for widow.

An immediate legacy to the widow, to defray the current expenses of the family, is generally proper. In making a permanent provision for the widow, it is to be considered whether the testator will give her a life income only, or an absolute transmissible interest in any portion of his property. The law, in its provision for widows, furnishes an example of each mode: dower, which is the widow's provision out of the realty, being a life interest; and her share in the personalty, under the Statutes of Distribution, or the Intestates' Estates Act, 1890, or the Intestate Husband's Estate (Scotland) Act, 1911, being an absolute property. The former mode of provision seems in general most consistent with testamentary arrangements, especially where there are children, whom the testator commonly intends to take ultimately the bulk of his property. Indeed, even the life interest of the widow is frequently made to cease on her marrying again, where the testator has children, to whom such an event might be prejudicial; otherwise the restriction is not ordinarily to be recommended.

If any of the testator's children are minors, or are otherwise incapable of providing for themselves, it is advisable to charge the widow (if she takes a life interest in the whole property) with the obligation of maintaining them, unless the testator feels himself secure in leaving this duty to the spontaneous exercise of parental affection. It may sometimes be desirable also to confide to the widow, when she takes only a life interest, and there is a gift over to children equally and absolutely, a power by will to regulate and modify the shares of the children so as to adapt them to any change of circumstances occurring in her lifetime; and such power, if confided, should extend to enable the donee to appoint to more remote issue; for various circumstances (such as the bankruptcy, imprudence, or mental imbecility of a child) might render it advisable to exclude him from any share, and substitute his issue as objects of the testator's bounty. Another salutary effect of such a power is, that it imposes some check on the sale or mortgage by the children of their reversionary interests.

Widow's position in regard to testator's children.

If it is deemed advisable that the children should take some benefit in possession during their mother's lifetime, a certain portion of their shares, say one-half or a third, may be made to vest in possession at majority or marriage in the lifetime of the widow, or, which is more common, a pecuniary legacy may be given to them, payable at majority or marriage; and this more especially deserves consideration, if the children's shares are made contingent (but this is seldom advisedly done) on their surviving the testator's widow, and she has no power of appointment by deed or of advancement, as she would then be unable to accelerate the payment of the children's shares.

The mode of providing for children is of course a more fertile, and therefore more difficult, topic of remark; but, before offering any suggestion on this head, it should be observed, that, where a testator is about to provide for his wife and children, it should be ascertained whether they take any and what interests under any marriage or other settlement of the testator, which may greatly influence the dispositions in the will. Testators often treat settled property as their own; and the assertion by some of the legatees of their claims under the settlement deranges the testamentary

As to the advancement of, and loans to, children.

Another point to be ascertained is, whether any of the children have been or are likely to be advanced by the testator in his lifetime, and whether such advancements are to be deducted out of their shares, and whether any children to whom money may have been advanced by way of loan are to be treated as debtors of the estate in respect of such advances or not.

Period of vesting of children's shares.

The shares of sons are in general made to vest absolutely at majority, and those of daughters at majority or marriage; and the advantage of this plan is, that, if they afterwards die during the life of the widow (whom we suppose to take a life interest), the provision does not fail by such event, but devolves upon their personal representatives. If the vesting of the shares is postponed until the death of the widow, care should be taken that the issue of such of the children as antecedently die are made to stand in their parent's place, though even this is less eligible than making the shares vest at majority or marriage; because, by the latter plan, a child marrying in the lifetime of the widow is enabled to make a settlement upon, and to communicate a benefit to, the objects of such marriage.

Postponement of vesting until widow's decease, inexpedient.

Where all the intended objects are adult, and are to take absolute shares, the will may be very simple in its form, as the disposition in favour of the children will consist of a mere absolute trust; and, indeed, unless the widow takes a previous life or other temporary interest, there will be no occasion for any trust at all. The whole of the testator's property may be given to his children, in equal or (as the intention may be) unequal shares.

Mode of providing for married daughters.

Where, however, any of the children are daughters who are married, it is generally advisable that their shares should be subjected to such trusts as will take them out of marital control. If the matter is left to the operation of the Married Women's Property Act, 1882, or if the share in question (supposing it to be personal estate) is simply given in trust for the daughter for her separate use absolutely, the effect is to authorize the executors to pay or transfer the fund or property to the daughter, without the concurrence of the husband; but this does not prevent the daughter herself from handing it over to the husband, so that the testator's object is but inadequately attained. In order effectually to exclude marital influence in the affair, the power of the daughter herself must be curtailed; to effect which it is usual to vest the property in trustees for the daughter during her life, and while married, for her separate and inalienable use, and, after her decease, in trust for her children or more remote issue as she shall appoint; and, in default of appointment, in trust for her children equally; and, in default of children, in trust for such persons as the daughter shall by deed or will appoint; and, in default of appointment, for her next of kin. A trust for children, however, is not essential to secure the property as an inalienable provision for the daughter. If it is intended to give her all the control which is consistent with this object, the trust should be for her separate and inalienable use during coverture, with remainder to such persons as she shall by deed or will appoint; and, in default, to her next of kin: in which case, of course, the property is effectually devoted to the prescribed trusts during the coverture of the daughter, after the expiration of which (the restraint on anticipation being at an end) she would be able, by an exercise in her own favour of her power of appointment by deed, to acquire the absolute interest, and entitle herself to call for a transfer of the fund. Sometimes the power is confined to appointment by will, with the view of precluding an irrevocable appointment in favour of a husband or any other person.

Similar trusts should be created of the shares of unmarried daughters, unless the testator can confide to their prudence the task of making proper settlements for themselves on marriage. As to unmarried daughters.

With respect to unmarried daughters, however, it is not in the power of the testator to make a life provision absolutely inalienable, as the legatee, if unmarried at the death of the testator, or at any subsequent period, may, while sole, disregard any restriction on the anticipation of her life interest, though the testator may of course visit such act with the penalty of forfeiture; but this is a strong measure, and not in ordinary cases to be recommended. The trusts adapted to coverture, unless defeated by a positive act on the part of the daughter herself, while sole, will take effect when such coverture occurs.

A testator may choose to give to the surviving husband of a daughter, whose share after her decease is settled on her children, a life interest in the property, or (which seems better) to empower the daughter herself to limit such an interest; and if this power is made exercisable by will only it has the effect of securing to the As to giving life interests to husbands of daughters.

Powers to trustees to settle shares of daughters marrying during minority.

18 & 19 Vict. c. 43.

Sometimes it may be proper to give to trustees a power of settling the shares of children who marry during minority, especially in the case of a daughter who has a reversionary share in a money fund; in such a case it was not, until recently, in the power of either of the marrying parties, even though the intended husband was adult, to make an absolute settlement, as his marital interest (which, if the fund was an interest in possession, would render the settlement effectual) was subject to the wife's contingent right of survivorship, which her minority prevented her from binding before, and her coverture after, the marriage. But now that, by the 18 & 19 Vict. c. 43, male infants not under 20, and female infants not under 17, can, with the sanction of the Chancery Division (to be obtained by summons, without the institution of a suit), make a valid and binding settlement upon or in contemplation of marriage (e), there is less necessity for investing trustees with discretionary powers of making settlements of the shares of daughters marrying during minority.

Gifts to a reputed wife or to illegitimate children should be given free from legacy duty; and in providing for the latter persons, care should be taken to dispose of the property in the event of their death during minority, or without having themselves effectually disposed of the same.

If any of the legatees are debtors to the testator, it should be shown whether the debts are to be brought into account; and if any of them are creditors of the testator, whether the legacies are to go in satisfaction of their claims.

It is often convenient to authorize the payment of legacies which may be small in amount to the parents or guardians of infant legatees, with a direction that the receipts of those persons shall discharge the executors or trustees. And generally the investment of legacies belonging to minors should be authorized instead of leaving the executors to pay them into Court under the Trustee Act, 1893, s. 42 (56 & 57 Vict. c. 53).

Subjects of gift.

II. As to the subjects of gift.

It remains to be considered what are the modes of disposition best adapted to various species of property.

(e) Whether an infant can make a post-nuptial settlement, quære, Re Sampson and Wall, 25 Ch. D. 482; 53 L. J. Ch. 457; Seaton v. Seaton, 13 App. Cas. 61; 57 L. J. Ch. 661.

Household goods and other perishable articles should, in general, be given to the immediate takers out and out. It is seldom intended that they should be sold; and the creation of life or other partial interests in such property is attended with much inconvenience. Where such partial interests are bequeathed, it should be ascertained whether the temporary possessor is to give any security to the ulterior taker for the preservation of the chattels in question. The creation of a partial interest in live stock is also objectionable, on account of the difficulty of regulating the precise mode of enjoyment, and of adjusting the relative claims of the immediate and ulterior takers (f). It is better either to give such property absolutely in possession, or, if the testator wishes to create a life interest, to direct the stock to be sold, and the proceeds invested, and the income to be paid to the intended legatee for life, the capital being made divisible at his death.

Household goods, &amp;c.

Live stock.

Where the general residue of personal estate is given to a person for life, it should be distinctly ascertained and shown whether the legatee is to enjoy the use or income of the property in its actual state, or whether it is to be converted, and the proceeds invested upon government or real securities. This is especially important where any part of the property is of a wasting or deteriorating nature, as annuities or leaseholds of short duration, since property of this description obviously throws into the hands of the immediate taker a larger income than an investment of the proceeds would yield. On the other hand, if any part of the residue consists of reversionary or other future interests, the case is reversed, and the legatee for life is the person interested in requiring an immediate sale. A want of explicitness as to this point has occasioned much litigation. In general, where the purposes of the will require (as they commonly do) that some part of the residuary property should be sold, the best course is to subject the whole to a trust for sale and conversion, and to give the trustees a discretionary power of continuing the property in its actual state so long as they may deem it expedient so to do, and of paying the income to the persons who would be entitled to the interest of the invested fund. If real estate is included in the trust, it should be expressed that this discretion is not to affect the transmissible quality of the estate, which, under the absolute trust for conversion, would be that of personality.

Trusts for conversion.

(f) See Paine v. Warwick (Countess), 1914, 2 K. B. 486; 83 L. J. K. B. 895.

As to giving realty in undivided
shares.

Where a testator has real estate which he intends to be enjoyed by members of his family in undivided shares, it is in general advisable that the property should be impressed with a trust for sale and conversion, with a power to the trustees (as above suggested) to suspend indefinitely the execution of the trust, as a joint ownership or ownership in common is inconvenient, and commonly terminates either in a partition, which is often an expensive and operose measure (especially if any of the parties interested are under personal incapacity), or in a sale; and it is to be remembered that the existence of an absolute trust for sale and conversion does not prevent the parties beneficially entitled, all concurring (g), from electing to retain the property in entirety as land. The plan pursued by some conveyancers of eminence is to give the trustees the legal estate, and then a discretionary power of sale; and this method has been found in practice to work well. If, for any reason, this plan is not adopted, care should be taken to express that the devisees are to take as tenants in common and not as joint tenants.

where property is subject to incumbrances.

If any of the real estate is in mortgage, it should be ascertained whether the devisee is to take it exonerated from the incumbrance; the law being, that, in the absence of any evidence of intention to the contrary, the personal estate is not applicable in discharge of the mortgage, but the devisee takes the estate cum onere; and a direction that the testator's debts be paid out of his personal estate is insufficient to exonerate the mortgaged real estate, unless the direction refers expressly to mortgaged debts, or the will otherwise shows unmistakably that the testator intended the devisee to take sine onere. And here it may be remarked, that an estate in mortgage ought never to be devised to uses in strict settlement or otherwise subjected to limitations in favour of infants or unborn persons, without being accompanied by a power of sale, or without some other effectual means being provided for raising the money, if called in by the mortgagee. The same remark applies where the testator has charged the estate so devised with the payment of his debts; and it is to be remembered that the law,

Charge of debts.

(g) And their estates being absolute and indefeasible, Sisson v. Giles, 3 D. J. & S. 614; 32 L. J. Ch. 606; but as to election during a contingency, see Meek v. Devenish, 6 Ch. D. 566; 47 L. J. Ch. 57.

without any act of the testator, has now brought this burden (though in a somewhat different mode) on the land; so that if the real estate is likely to be resorted to for this purpose, the proper machinery should be provided for rendering it conveniently available by sale or mortgage. When a testator subjects his real estate to debts, legacies, or annuities, it should be ascertained and distinctly indicated whether he intends to make the land the primary fund, or merely that it should supply any deficiency in the personal estate. The latter would be presumed where the contrary does not appear; but obscurity on the point has been a prolific source of litigation.

Another and very important suggestion is, that whenever the enjoyment of the subject of gift (whatever be its nature) is postponed to a period subsequent to the testator's decease, it should be ascertained whether the vesting is also to be deferred; in other words, whether the devisee or legatee is immediately to take such an interest as will pass to his representatives in the event of his dying before the period of enjoyment. Where the vesting is postponed until majority, or any other period, the destination of the income in the meantime should be provided for.

Whether the vesting or the enjoyment only is to be postponed.

The extent of the discretionary authority of trustees is always a point upon which a testator's intention should be carefully ascertained (h). The nature of the powers adapted to various circumstances will be collected from the Precedents. Liberality, without excessive indefiniteness, is the desideratum. If special and onerous duties are imposed on trustees, a large discretion should be confided, and, in such cases, a pecuniary allowance for the extraordinary trouble of management may be a prudential measure. This remark particularly applies where executors are directed to carry on a business, as such a duty involves a greater amount of risk and trouble than can be fairly exacted from the gratuitous

Discretionary powers of trustees.

(h) A direction by a testator that a certain person should be employed as agent and manager of the testator's estates, whenever his trustees should have occasion for the services of a person in that capacity, was held not to create a trust which such person could enforce, Finden v. Stephens, 2 Ph. 142; 17 L. J. Ch. 342; and see Shaw v. Lawless, 5 C. & F. 129. So, also, a direction that a particular person shall be solicitor to the estate imposes no obligation to employ that person as solicitor, Foster v. Elsley, 19 Ch. D. 518; 51 L. J. Ch. 275. But see the Public Trustee Act, 1906, s. 11 (2), and Miscellaneous Forms, post, p. 388.

Testator's engagements and responsibility as partner or otherwise.

services of a trustee. Even in ordinary cases, a pecuniary legacy to executors for their trouble seems proper, especially if they are strangers, taking no beneficial interest under the will. And here it may be remarked, that, with a view to the protection of the trustees, and the making provision for the due administration of the affairs, the extent of a testator's engagements to third persons, and especially his rights and responsibilities with respect to any partnership concern, or any joint stock company, in which he may be engaged, may be a proper subject for inquiry and provision.

General suggestions.
Specific devise.

III. General suggestions.

Where real estates are to be specifically devised, it is well to see the title deeds, or an abstract of the recent title. Misdescription, omission of parcels, mis-statements of tenure, &c., may thus be avoided; and if the lands are described by their situation and occupancy, it should be seen that the two parts of the description are co-extensive.

Settlement.

A marriage or other settlement of the testator should be inspected.

Contract for purchase or sale.

If any contract for the purchase or sale of realty is likely to be pending at the testator's death, the destination of the estate or of the purchase-money should be provided for.

Partnership.

If the testator is in partnership, it would be well to examine the partnership articles, to see if they contain any power to be exercised by will.

Charge of debts.

Especial care should be taken to provide for the payment of debts and legacies; for the exoneration therefrom of such parts of his property as the testator may wish to exclude; and if the realty is charged therewith, whether in exoneration or only in aid of the personalty, the requisite machinery for working out the charge should be expressly provided.

Gift to a class.

Where there is an immediate gift to a class, the components of which may not be in existence at the death of the testator, the destination, in that event, of the intermediate income should be ascertained. Moreover, in every gift to a class, the period at which the class is to be ascertained should be made clear beyond the possibility of doubt.

Survivorship.

In all cases where there are limitations to survivors, the period to which the survivorship is to be referred should be most clearly expressed.

Precatory words.

Precatory words, or words of recommendation, should be avoided. If it be intended to impose a legal obligation, a definite trust should be created.

General powers vested in the testator over the beneficial interest in realty and personalty will be exercised by a general disposition, unless a contrary intention appears. It should be borne in mind, however, that as to powers, whether general or special, testators may wish the property to go as in default of appointment; and this wish may (especially as regards powers of revocation) be defeated by an unguarded general disposition. Powers.

If annuities are given, it should be shown how they are to be raised; whether by the purchase by the executors of a government or other annuity, or by the appropriation of a particular fund, or as a charge on a particular estate. Annuities.

Annuities, rent-charges, and life interests should be given clear of legacy duty. A saving is effected by giving all legacies clear of duty. Legacy duty.

Provision should be made for lapse; and in the case of contingent gifts for the non-occurrence of the contingency. Lapse.

In disposing of copyholds, a power of appointment should invariably be given, either to trustees or to the beneficial owner, or to both. Copyhold.

Powers to trustees of investment, and to vary securities, should be inserted when it is not thought desirable to rely on the powers to invest conferred by the Trustee Act, 1893; as to which, see note (b), Prec. 4; and power to apply a definite portion of the shares of minors for their advancement should be inserted as a matter of course. The power to apply income for the maintenance of infants, and the common power to give discharges, may now be omitted; but a power to appoint new trustees may or may not be necessary. The common indemnity clauses to trustees are of little or no importance. Trustees' powers.

If a solicitor is appointed an executor or trustee, and it is intended that he should be remunerated, a clause should be inserted entitling him to charge for all work done by him in connexion with the executorship or trust, in the same manner and to the same extent as if, not being himself such executor or trustee, he had been employed by the executors or trustees to do such work professionally as their solicitor. Solicitor-trustee.

In limiting gifts over to take effect upon the failure or determination of prior interests, great care should be taken that the Gifts over.

events, upon the happening of which such gifts over are to take effect, should correspond exactly with the events upon the happening of which such prior interests are to fail or to be determined.

Illegitimate
children.

In leaving property to children as a class, or otherwise, it should be ascertained that all the children intended to be benefited are legitimate. If any of them are illegitimate, the intention of the testator that they should participate should be clearly expressed.

As to preparing codicils.

Lastly, no person should attempt to prepare a codicil which is intended to revoke, alter, or modify any disposition in the will, or in a previous codicil, without seeing such prior testamentary document, the contents of which are often very imperfectly recollected and stated by the testator.

See, further, Form of Questions to be put to an Intending Testator, Encyclopædia of Forms and Precedents, Vol. 15, p. 392; and post, note (a) to Prec. 8.

DIRECTIONS AS TO THE EXECUTION OF A WILL.

THE will must be signed at the foot or end thereof by the testator, or by some person in his presence and by his direction. If the will consists of several sheets, it is well, though not essential, that the testator sign each sheet, for the purpose of identifying it, and of preventing interpolation.

In addition to the signature at the end of the will, the testator should sign, or cause to be signed, his name or initials in the margin opposite to any interlineation, erasure, or other alterations which may have been made before the execution of the will.

The signature at the end must be made or acknowledged by the testator in the presence of two witnesses present together; and they, immediately thereafter, without separating and without quitting the testator's presence, should sign their names under the attestation clause.

The attestation clause should be written at the end of the will. Before or immediately after the witnesses have thus subscribed their names, they should sign their names or place their initials in the margin opposite to any such interlineation, erasure, or other alteration as is hereinbefore referred to. It is proper, though not essential, that the attestation clause should be read over by or to the witnesses before they subscribe their names.

It must be carefully borne in mind that the execution of the will should be one transaction, and that the testator should be in such a position as that he might see the witnesses in the act of attesting and subscribing his will.

No person to whom or to whose wife or husband any beneficial devise or bequest is made by the will should be an attesting witness, for thereby such devise or bequest is rendered void, and a trustee who is a solicitor and is authorized by the will to charge professionally is precluded from doing so if he attests the will. See notes to sect. 15 of the Wills Act, ante, p. 35.

No alteration whatever should be made in the will after it is executed; any change should be effected by a new will or by a codicil, which must be executed in the same way as a will is required to be executed.

It is highly desirable, though not absolutely essential, that the witnesses should be aware of the testamentary character of the instrument.

To facilitate the proof of the will, the occupation and place of abode of each witness should be added.

PUNCTUATION.

Punctuation. It is well known that from legal instruments punctuation and parentheses are excluded; or, if admitted, that they are disregarded in the construction of the instrument. Stops, though used in the printed copies of Acts of Parliament, are omitted from the Parliament rolls. The absence of stops from conveyances, and the framing of the sentences so as to be independent of their aid, has been attributed to the natural desire that everyone must feel that the title to his estates should not depend on so trivial a circumstance as the insertion or omission of a comma or semicolon (i); while the necessity of expressing the meaning unequivocally, without the aid of such marks, has been alleged as one cause of the apparent tautology and verbosity of legal instruments (k). It would seem, however, that, in construing wills, marks of punctuation occurring in the original (l), parentheses, capital letters, &c., may be taken into consideration. But it is from the words and the context, not from the punctuation, that the testator's meaning is to be collected; though where the words are of doubtful meaning, the punctuation and other circumstances

The convenient practice of drawing wills in numbered paragraphs—a line being drawn from the last word of a paragraph to the margin, should the last word of a paragraph not reach the margin—has now become common, and it has been considered desirable that the forms in this work should be so drawn. In this edition, therefore, the forms are given in numbered paragraphs in accordance with that practice.

married woman in a will made under a power, In b. Hughes, 4 Sw. & Tr. 209; In b. Bridger, 4 P. D. 77; 47 L. J. P. 46. Any married woman may also, without her husband's consent, bequeath personalty settled to her separate use, Fettiplace v. Gorges, 1 Ves. J. 46; and devise or bequeath real or personal property by virtue and in exercise of a power duly created for that purpose. Where real estate is given to trustees in fee upon trust for the separate use of a married woman in fee (the terms of the trust being such that the separate use attaches upon the corpus, Troutbeck v. Boughey, L. R. 2 Eq. 534; 35 L. J. Ch. 840), she has the same power of disposition by deed or will over the equitable fee as if she were a feme sole, Taylor v. Meads, 4 D. J. & S. 597; 34 L. J. Ch. 208. And if the legal fee is in the married woman herself, she can devise the equitable fee, and the heir-at-law is a trustee of the legal estate for her devisee, Hall v. Waterhouse, 5 Gif. 64.

NOTES TO
PREC. 1.

Power to devise fee settled to her separate use.

As to the testamentary power of a woman judicially separated from her husband, see 20 & 21 Vict. c. 85, s. 25. And as to the will of a married woman who, deserted by her husband, had obtained a protection order under 20 & 21 Vict. c. 85, s. 21, see In b. Faraday, 2 Sw. & Tr. 369; 31 L. J. P. 7; In b. Elliott, L. R. 2 P. & D. 274; 40 L. J. P. 76. In In b. How, 1 Sw. & Tr. 53; 27 L. J. P. 37, where the husband of the testatrix had not been heard of for seven years, probate was granted as if the testatrix had died a widow.

Separated from her husband.

Protection order.

A woman married before 1883, and the title to whose property was acquired before that date, can make a valid will of personalty which is not settled to her separate use, but requires the consent of her husband, Elliot v. North, 1901, 1 Ch. 424, 430; 70 L. J. Ch. 217. In such case the death of the husband in his wife's lifetime revokes his assent to the will, Willock v. Noble, L. R. 7 H. L. 580; 44 L. J. Ch. 345, and the husband can revoke his consent at any time during his wife's life. When the husband has once assented after his wife's death, he cannot revoke his assent, though probate has not been granted, Maas v. Sheffeld, 1 Rob. 364. See Deane, Wills, 65; see also In b. Reay, 4 Sw. & Tr. 215; 31 L. J. P. 151; In b. Cooper, 6 P. D. 34; 50 L. J. P. 41. In Budeley v. Lyte, a wife's will submitted (but not consented) to by the husband, who was ignorant of his power of giving or withholding consent, was pronounced against (Prob. Ct., 16th December, 1859). The husband must have full knowledge of his rights to render his consent binding.

Will of personalty with consent of husband.

Husband's
power of revocation of consent.

(b) The word "will" only is now sufficient and is used throughout these forms. See p. 84, note (e).

(c) The 18th section of the Married Women's Property Act, 1882, 45 & 46 Vict. c. 75, empowers a married woman to act as executrix without her husband, and the Married Women's Property Act, 1907, extends her power to real as well as personal property held by her as trustee or personal representative (sect. 1). 7 Edw. 7, c. 18.

If the sole object is to give an absolute interest for the separate use of a married woman, or place her in the position of a feme sole as regards the property, there is no longer any reason why the will should differ in form from a testamentary disposition in favour of any other beneficiary taking absolutely; but see note (f), Prec. 9. But if it is desired to impose a restraint on anticipation, the next following Precedent should be adopted, which will probably be better suited to the majority of cases in which provision is made for a married woman.

NOTES TO

(d) Express revocation is desirable. The statement "This is the only will of me" is not a sufficient revocation, see Simpson v. Foxon, 1907, P. 54; 76 L. J. P. 7. The clause of revocation given in this Precedent is employed throughout these forms, and is comprehensive, and the useless variations of the clause in the forms in former editions of this work have been abandoned. See the notes to sect. 20 of the Wills Act, ante. The clause may be, and often is, inserted at the end of the will, as in this form, instead of at the beginning.

clause.

(e) It is suggested that the attestation clause should be complete in itself without requiring any reference to the body of the will. The form given in the text complies with all the requirements of sect. 9 of the Wills Act and the decisions thereon. No unnecessary words are inserted in it, unless it be such as it would, in the absence of further decision, be unsafe to omit. Though not essential, it is highly desirable that the witnesses should know that the writing they attest is a will. Witnesses of intelligence and respectability should be selected, and preference is to be given to professional men, whose subscription of the memorandum of attestation raises a presumption that the formalities of execution have been strictly attended to. Moreover, there is greater facility in finding such witnesses, if living, and in proving their handwriting, if dead. The witnesses should not be persons who, or whose wives or husbands, take any benefit under the will.

Formal execution of instructions
for will.

The Wills Act, by subjecting wills of every kind to the requisitions of signature and attestation, has of course deprived mere unattested instructions, in the handwriting of a third person or even of the testator himself, of all operation. It seems advisable, therefore, where a testator is in extremis, that the instructions should, if adequately expressed to convey his intention, be duly signed and attested according to the statute, in order to guard against sudden death or incapacity occurring before the preparation and execution of the more formal instrument. Moreover, practitioners would be well advised to make it their practice to preserve all written instructions which they may receive from the testator, inasmuch as if any question should arise as to the competency of the testator, or as to his knowledge or approval of the contents of his will, such instructions may prove of the utmost importance. A convenient practice is to keep such instructions with the draft will.

For forms of testimonium and attestation clauses, see Miscellaneous Forms, post, p. 448 et seq., and see the Wills Act, s. 9, ante, and notes.

Appointment
of executors
and trustees.

4. I APPOINT the said — and — to be executors and trustees of this my will and trustees for the purposes of the Settled Land Acts 1882 to 1890.

IN WITNESS whereof I have hereunto set my hand this — day of — 19

NOTES to Precedent 2.

Registration of wills in York and Middlesex.

(a) Probates of wills devising lands in Yorkshire or Middlesex should be registered in the Registry Offices of those counties. The Registry for the West Riding of Yorkshire is at Wakefield, for the East Riding is at Beverley, for the North Riding is at Northallerton. The Middlesex Registry is at the Land Registry, Lincoln's Inn Fields, and at 18, Portugal Street, W.C.

The Registry Act for Yorkshire is the Yorkshire Registries Act, 1884 (47 & 48 Vict. c. 54), amended by 48 & 49 Vict. c. 4, and 48 & 49 Vict. c. 26.

The Registry Act for Middlesex is the Middlesex Registry Act, 1708 (7 Anne, c. 20), amended by 54 & 55 Vict. c. 64.

By sect. 127 of the Land Transfer Act, 1875 (38 & 39 Vict. c. 87) (subject to the exception contained in the Land Transfer Act, 1897 (60 & 61 Vict. c. 65), Sched. I.), land registered under that Act is exempt from the jurisdiction of the Yorkshire and Middlesex Registries.

The Land Transfer Act, 1897, s. 20, enables His Majesty, by Order in Council, to render registration compulsory on sale in any one county to be selected by the Order.

For the procedure under the Acts, and for the effect of registration in giving priority to registered over unregistered instruments, the reader is referred to the Acts themselves and the rules made thereunder.

See Brickdale and Sheldon's Land Transfer Acts, p. 135, and for forms of clauses in a will of registered land, ibid., pp. 610, 611.

Trustee
clauses.

(b) Unless it should be considered desirable in any particular case to amplify or abridge the powers and indemnities conferred upon executors and trustees by the Trustee Act, 1893 (56 & 57 Vict. c. 53), it is unnecessary now to insert in wills any clauses of the character formerly considered necessary.

The sections of the Act which are referred to are as follows:—

NOTES TO
PREC. 2.

Sect. 13.—“(1.) Where a trust for sale or a power of sale of property is vested in a trustee, he may sell or concur with any other person in selling all or any part of the property, either subject to prior charges or not, and either together, or in lots, by public auction or by private contract, subject to any such conditions respecting title or evidence of title or other matter as the trustee thinks fit, with power to vary any contract for sale, and to buy in at any auction, or to rescind any contract for sale and to resell, without being answerable for any loss.”

Power of trustee for sale to sell by auction, &c.

(2.) This section applies only if and so far as a contrary intention is not expressed in the instrument creating the trust or power, and shall have effect subject to the terms of that instrument and to the provisions therein contained.

(3.) This section applies only to a trust or power created by an instrument coming into operation after the 31st December, 1881.”

Sect. 14.—“(1.) No sale made by a trustee shall be impeached by any beneficiary upon the ground that any of the conditions subject to which the sale was made may have been unnecessarily depreciatory, unless it also appears that the consideration for the sale was thereby rendered inadequate.”

Power to sell subject to depreciatory conditions

(2.) No sale made by a trustee shall, after the execution of the conveyance, be impeached as against the purchaser upon the ground that any of the conditions subject to which the sale was made may have been unnecessarily depreciatory, unless it appears that the purchaser was acting in collusion with the trustee at the time when the contract for sale was made.

(3.) No purchaser, upon any sale made by a trustee, shall be at liberty to make any objection against the title upon the ground aforesaid.

(4.) This section applies only to sales made after the 24th day of December, 1888.”

Sect. 15.—“A trustee who is either a vendor or a purchaser may sell or buy without excluding the application of section two of the Vendor and Purchaser Act, 1874.”

Power to sell under 37 & 38 Vict. c. 78.

Sect. 17.—“(1.) A trustee may appoint a solicitor to be his agent to receive and give a discharge for any money or valuable consideration or property receivable by the trustee under the trust, by permitting the solicitor to have the custody of, and to produce, a deed containing any such receipt as is referred to in sect. 56 of the Conveyancing and Law of Property Act, 1881; and a trustee shall not be chargeable with breach of trust by reason only of his having made or concurred in making any such appointment; and the producing of any such deed by the solicitor shall have the same validity and effect under the said section as if the person appointing the solicitor had not been a trustee.

(2.) A trustee may appoint a banker or solicitor to be his agent to receive and give a discharge for any money payable to the trustee under or by virtue of a policy of assurance, by permitting the banker or solicitor to have the custody of and to produce the policy of assurance with a receipt signed by the trustee, and a trustee shall not be chargeable with a breach of trust by reason only of his having made or concurred in making any such appointment.

(3.) Nothing in this section shall exempt a trustee from any liability which he would have incurred if this Act had not been passed, in case he permits any such money, valuable consideration, or property to remain in the hands or under the control of the banker or solicitor for a period longer than is reasonably necessary to enable the banker or solicitor (as the case may be) to pay or transfer the same to the trustee.

(4.) This section applies only where the money or valuable consideration or property is received after the 24th day of December, 1888.

(5.) Nothing in this section shall authorise a trustee to do anything which he is in express terms forbidden to do, or to omit anything which he is in express terms directed to do, by the instrument creating the trust."

Power to insure building.

Sect. 18.—“(1.) A trustee may insure against loss or damage by fire any building or other insurable property to any amount (including the amount of any insurance already on foot), not exceeding three equal fourth parts of the full value of such building or property, and pay the premiums for such insurance out of the income thereof, or out of the income of any other property subject to the same trusts, without obtaining the consent of any person who may be entitled wholly or partly to such income.

(2.) This section does not apply to any building or property which a trustee is bound forthwith to convey absolutely to any beneficiary upon being requested to do so.

(3.) This section applies to trusts created either before or after the commencement of this Act, but nothing in this section shall authorise any trustee to do anything which he is in express terms forbidden to do, or to omit to do anything which he is in express terms directed to do, by the instrument creating the trust."

trustees of renewable leaseholds to renew and raise money for the purpose.

Sect. 19.—“(1.) A trustee of any leaseholds for lives or years which are renewable from time to time, either under any covenant or contract, or by custom or usual practice, may, if he thinks fit, and shall, if thereto required by any person having any beneficial interest, present or future, or contingent, in the leaseholds, use his best endeavours to obtain from time to time a renewed lease of the same hereditaments on the accustomed and reasonable terms, and for that purpose may from time to time make or concur in making a surrender of the lease for the time being subsisting, and do all such other acts as are requisite: Provided that where by the terms of the settlement or will the person in possession for his life or other limited interest is entitled to enjoy the same without any obligation to renew or to contribute to the expense of renewal, this section shall not apply unless the consent in writing of that person is obtained to the renewal on the part of the trustee.

(2.) If money is required to pay for the renewal, the trustee effecting the renewal may pay the same out of any money then in his hands in trust for the persons beneficially interested in the lands to be comprised in the renewed lease, and if he has not in his hands sufficient money for the purpose, he may raise the money required by mortgage of the hereditaments to be comprised in the renewed lease, or of any other hereditaments for the time being subject to the uses or trusts to which those hereditaments are subject, and no person advancing money upon a mortgage purporting to be under this power shall be bound to see that the money is wanted, or that no more is raised than is wanted for the purpose.

NOTES TO

Sect. 20.—“(1.) The receipt in writing of any trustee for any money, securities, or other personal property or effects payable, transferable, or deliverable to him under any trust or power shall be a sufficient discharge for the same, and shall effectually exonerate the person paying, transferring, or delivering the same from seeing to the application or being answerable for any loss or misapplication thereof.

trustees to give receipts.

(2.) This section applies to trusts created either before or after the commencement of this Act."

Sect. 21.—“(1.) An executor or administrator may pay or allow any debt or claim on any evidence he thinks sufficient.

Power for executors and trustees to compound,
&c.

(2.) An executor or administrator, or two or more trustees, acting together, or a sole acting trustee, where by the instrument, if any, creating the trust a sole trustee is authorised to execute the trusts and powers thereof, may, if and as he or they may think fit, accept any composition or any security, real or personal, for any debt or for any property; real or personal, claimed, and may allow any time for payment for any debt, and may compromise, compound, abandon, submit to arbitration, or otherwise settle any debt, account, claim, or thing whatever relating to the testator's or intestate's estate or to the trust, and for any of those purposes may enter into, give, execute, and do such agreements, instruments of composition or arrangement, releases, and other things as to him or them may seem expedient, without being responsible for any loss occasioned by any act or thing so done by him or them in good faith.

(3.) This section applies only if and as far as a contrary intention is not expressed in the instrument, if any, creating the trust, and shall have effect subject to the terms of that instrument, and to the provisions therein contained.

(4.) This section applies to executorships, administratorships, and trusts constituted or created either before or after the commencement of this Act."

Sect. 22.—“(1.) Where a power or trust is given to or vested in two or more trustees jointly, then, unless the contrary is expressed in the instrument, if any, creating the power or trust, the same may be

Powers of two or more trustees.

PREC. 2.

exercised or performed by the survivor or survivors of them for the time being.

2.) This section applies only to trusts constituted after or created by instruments coming into operation after the 31st day of December, 1881."

Exoneration of trustees in respect of certain powers of attorney.

Sect. 23. "A trustee acting or paying money in good faith under or in pursuance of any power of attorney shall not be liable for any such act or payment by reason of the fact that at the time of the payment or act the person who gave the power of attorney was dead or had done some act to avoid the power, if this fact was not known to the trustee at the time of his so acting or paying.

Provided that nothing in this section shall affect the right of any person entitled to the money against the person to whom the payment is made, and that the person so entitled shall have the same remedy against the person to whom the payment is made as he would have had against the trustee."

of trustees.

Sect. 24. "A trustee shall, without prejudice to the provisions of the instrument, if any, creating the trust, be chargeable only for money and securities actually received by him, notwithstanding his signing any receipt for the sake of conformity, and shall be answerable and accountable only for his own acts, receipts, neglects, or defaults, and not for those of any other trustee, nor for any banker, broker, or other person with whom any trust moneys, or securities may be deposited, nor for the insufficiency or deficiency of any securities, nor for any other loss, unless the same happens through his own wilful default; and may reimburse himself, or pay or discharge out of the trust premises, all expenses incurred in or about the execution of his trusts or powers."

Power for trustees and executors, engaged on war service, to delegate the execution of trusts was conferred by the Execution of Trusts (War Facilities) Act, 1914, and the Execution of Trusts (War Facilities) Amendment Act, 1915.

(c) The object of leaving a legacy to the daughter is to provide her with ready money for mourning or other necessities before she comes into receipt of income. If not considered desirable in any particular case, this legacy may be omitted.

WILL disposing of Real and Personal Estate in favour of the Testator's Widow and two Adult Sons, the Widow taking a Legacy, and subject thereto a Life Estate in the Entirety.

THIS IS THE LAST WILL of me [testator's name residence and quality].

1. I REVOKE all other wills and testamentary dispositions by me heretofore made.

2. I DEVISE all the real estate to which I shall be entitled at the time of my death UNTO and to the use of my wife [name] (a) for her life without impeachment of waste AND after her decease To the use of my two sons [name] and [name] as tenants in common in fee simple in equal moieties.

Devise of real estate to widow for life ;
—remainder to sons equally in fee.
Bequest of personal estate.
Upon trust to convert and invest ;
—income to widow for life ;
—after her death, capital to sons, equally.

3. I BEQUEATH all the chattels real and personal estate to which I shall be entitled at the time of my death unto my said wife and said sons Upon trust to sell and convert into money such parts thereof as shall not consist of money and out of the moneys to arise therefrom and all other moneys arising from or forming part of my residuary estate to pay my debts and funeral and testamentary expenses and a legacy of £—— to my said wife (which legacy I direct shall be paid as soon as possible after my decease) (b) and to invest the clear residue thereof (c) And upon trust to permit my said wife to receive the income of the said investments during her life and after her death to divide the capital thereof equally between my said two sons their respective executors administrators or assigns.

4. I DECLARE that no apportionment of the rents of my said real estate shall take place in respect of the period current at my death but such rents when received shall be paid to my said wife as income.

5. I APPOINT my said wife and said sons executrix and executors and trustees of this my will and trustees for the purposes of the Settled Land Acts 1882 to 1890.

IN WITNESS &c.

NOTES to Precedent 3.

(a) This applies only to the person who at testator's death is in the status and position of his wife. Therefore, if the testator in his lifetime obtains a divorce from his wife, the divorced woman will not take anything under this devise, Re Morrieson, 40 Ch. D. 30; 58 L. J. Ch. 80; in which case Kay, J., commented adversely on Bullmore v. Wynter, 22 Ch. D. 619; 52 L. J. Ch. 456. Also if in a will there is a gift to the wife of another person, and there is at the date of the will and of the death of the testator a woman living known to the testator as the wife of that person, the gift primâ facie refers to that existing wife, and not to any subsequent wife that the other person may have, Re Coley, 1903, 2 Ch. 102. Compare this last case with Re Drew, 1899, 1 Ch. 336. As to a reputed wife, see Jarm. Wills. ch. 43, and Re Pearce, 1914, 1 Ch. 254.

(b) The object of leaving a legacy to the wife is to provide her with ready money until she comes into the receipt of income. If not considered desirable in any particular case, this legacy may be omitted.

No. IV

WILL of a WIDOWER devising his Real Estate to an only Son; bequeathing his Personal Estate to his adult unmarried Daughters, and on the Death or Marriage of all, the Capital to be equally divided amongst all his Daughters and the Children or remoter Issue of deceased Daughters.

THIS IS THE LAST WILL of me [testator's name residence and quality].

1. I REVOKE all other wills and testamentary dispositions by me heretofore made.

2. I APPOINT my son — and — of &c. to be the executors and trustees of this my will.

Devise of real estate to son.

3. I DEVISE all my freehold and copyhold estates to my said son his heirs and assigns.

Bequest of real personal
estate,
—for spinster
daughters.

4. I BEQUEATH to my said trustees all my personal estate upon the trusts following that is to say As to my household furniture and effects UPON TRUST that my trustees shall permit such of my daughters as shall not be or have been married to have the use and enjoyment thereof so long as they or any of them shall live and remain spinsters or a spinster And subject thereto to hold the same upon the trusts hereinafter declared concerning my residuary personal estate AND AS to my chattels real and all the residue of my personal estate UPON TRUST that my trustees shall call in or sell and convert into money such parts thereof as shall not consist of money and out of the moneys to arise therefrom and all other moneys arising from or forming part of my residuary estate pay my debts and my funeral and testamentary expenses and a legacy of £—— to each of my said unmarried daughters (such legacies to be paid as soon as possible after my decease) (a) And invest the net surplus AND upon further trust that my trustees shall pay the annual income of the said investments to such of my daughters as for the time being shall not be or have been married so long as they or any of them shall live and remain spinsters or a spinster AND when and so soon as each and every one of my daughters shall have either died or married then and thenceforth shall hold both the capital and the income of the said trust funds UPON TRUST for all my daughters living at the aforesaid period of distribution and the children then living of any daughters of mine then dead as tenants in common in course of distribution according to the stocks the children of a deceased daughter taking by substitution as tenants in common the share only which their mother if living at the period of distribution would have taken Provided that if any daughter of mine shall die having had any child or children who shall not be living at the period of distribution but who shall have left issue who shall be living at such period then such issue shall take and if more than one equally between them the share or shares which his her or their parent or parents would have taken had such parent or parents been alive at such period.

PREC 4.

On death or marriage of all, to be divided amongst all the daughters and the children of deceased daughters.

5. [Investment clause if desired] (b).

6. I DECLARE that the expression my trustees shall where the context so admits include the trustees or trustee for the time being of this my will.

Interpretation clause.

IN WITNESS &c. (c).

NOTES to Precedent 4.

(a) The object of leaving legacies to the daughters is to provide them with ready money until they come into the receipt of income. If not considered desirable in any particular case, these legacies may be omitted.

(b) Having regard to the wide range of trust investments authorized by the Trustee Act, 1893 (56 & 57 Vict. c. 53), investment clauses are not so requisite as formerly, and no investment clauses were given in the Precedents in the last edition of this work. In practice, however, an investment clause is often asked for, and where it is desired to extend the trustees' powers of investment the following clause or so much of it as may be desired, may be inserted in the will:—

Moneys liable to be invested under this my will may be invested by my trustees in their names or under their legal control in manner following that is to say

(A) In or upon any investment or security for the time being authorized by law for the investment of trust moneys.

(B) In the purchase of any hereditaments or heritable properties in England Scotland or Wales but not in Ireland and whether freehold or copyhold or leasehold for years held for a term whereof sixty years at the least shall be unexpired at the time of such purchase whether such freehold copyhold or leasehold premises shall be already subject to covenants conditions or stipulations of a restrictive nature or otherwise or not or shall be sold subject to the purchaser entering into such covenants conditions or stipulations or not or shall or shall not be subject to leases either reserving ground rents or improved rents or rack rents or otherwise or to tenancies or other rights or any easements.

(C) In any freehold copyhold leasehold or chattel real securities in England Scotland or Wales but not in Ireland including securities upon rent charges or first charges registered under the Land Transfer Acts 1875 to 1897 on freehold or leasehold hereditaments in England or Wales but so that any leaseholds shall have at least sixty years unexpired at the date of making such investment And any such investment on mortgage security or registered charge may be made whether the hereditaments constituting the security shall be subject to any covenants conditions or stipulations of a restrictive nature or otherwise or not or shall or shall not be subject to leases either reserving ground rents or improved rents or rack rents or otherwise or to tenancies or other rights or any easements.

(D) In the purchase of any perpetual rentcharges or fee farm rents secured upon or issuing or arising out of freehold hereditaments in England or Wales but not in Ireland or in the purchase of any feu duties in Scotland.

(E) In stocks funds or securities of any British Colony Dependence or Dominion or Province thereof.

(F) In loans funds bonds stocks or securities of any Municipal Corporation County Council Board of Works or Local Authority or public body in the United Kingdom or India or any British Colony Dependency or Dominion or Province thereof authorized to borrow.

PREC. 4.

(G) In Bonds Mortgages Debentures or Debenture Stock or Guaranteed or Preference Shares or Guaranteed or Preference Stock issued or guaranteed by any company incorporated by Royal Charter or by Special Act or under any general Act of the Imperial Parliament or the legislature of any British Colony Dependency or Dominion or Province thereof in or carrying on business in the United Kingdom or any British Colony Dependency or Dominion and having paid dividends on its ordinary capital at a rate of not less than three per centum per annum for at least five years next preceding the time of making the investment of which fact a letter purporting to be signed by the Secretary of the Company or by an English Banker or Member of a firm of English Bankers or by the Secretary or Manager of a Joint Stock Bank in England or any branch thereof shall be sufficient evidence.

(H) In the purchase or upon the mortgage of a life interest in real or personal property in Great Britain but not in Ireland under any Settlement Deed or Will provided that the capital so invested shall be secured by a policy or policies effected with some respectable Insurance Office on the life of the person on whose death such life interest will determine for an amount exceeding by one-fifth such invested capital and the premiums payable on the policy or policies shall if paid by any trustees be treated as payable out of income and the amount of the policy or policies shall so far as it or they shall belong to the said trust premises be treated as capital.

AND my trustees may transpose any investments into others of any nature hereinbefore authorized.

Or the following brief but comprehensive form may be adopted in lieu of the preceding items:—

(a) In the purchase of any securities or investments having an official quotation on the London Stock Exchange other than shares in mining companies.

Investment clause (a short form).

(b) Upon the security of personal property of any nature.

A trust to invest implies a power to vary investments. Re Pope's Contract, 1911, 2 Ch. 442; 80 L. J. Ch. 692.

Having regard to sect. 10 (1) of the Conveyancing Act, 1911, it is unnecessary to confer a power of sale upon trustees in the case where the authorized investments comprise hereditaments, but in such a case the following clause should be added:—

PREC. 4.

AND I declare that my Trustees may manage and cultivate any real or leasehold property for the time being vested in them on the trusts of this my will with all the powers in that behalf of absolute owners including power to cut timber and underwood for sale repairs or otherwise and to repair and insure houses and buildings and to make allowances to and arrangements with tenants and others and to accept surrenders of leases and tenancies and may out of the income or capital of my residuary estate make any outlay for the purposes aforesaid.

And if investment in the stock or shares of a particular company is authorized, the event of an alteration in the constitution of the business should be provided for, and the authority should be to invest—

In or upon any Debentures Debenture Stock Preference or Ordinary or other shares or stock of [name of Company] or of any other company which upon a reconstruction or amalgamation or otherwise may be formed to acquire or may in fact acquire the business or any part of the business now carried on by [name of Company].

The provisions of the Trustee Act, 1893, with reference to investments, are as follows:—

investments.

Sect. 1. "A trustee may, unless expressly forbidden by the instrument (if any) creating the trust, invest any trust funds in his hands, whether at the time in a state of investment or not, in manner following, that is to say:

- (a) In any of the parliamentary stocks or public funds or Government securities of the United Kingdom:
- (b) On real or heritable securities in Great Britain or Ireland:
- (c) In the stock of the Bank of England or the Bank of Ireland:
- (d) In India Three and a half per cent. stock and India Three per cent. stock, or in any other capital stock which may at any time hereafter be issued by the Secretary of State in Council of India under the authority of Act of Parliament, and charged on the revenues of India:
- (e) In any securities the interest of which is for the time being guaranteed by Parliament:
- (f) In consolidated stock created by the Metropolitan Board of Works, or by the London County Council, or in debenture stock created by the Receiver for the Metropolitan Police District:
- (g) In the debenture or rentcharge or guaranteed or preference stock of any railway company in Great Britain or Ireland incorporated by special Act of Parliament, and having during each of the ten years last past before the date of investment paid a dividend at the rate of not less than three per centum per annum on its ordinary stock:

- (h) In the stock of any railway or canal company in Great Britain or Ireland whose undertaking is leased in perpetuity or for a term of not less than two hundred years at a fixed rental to any such railway company as is mentioned in sub-section (g), either alone or jointly with any other railway company:
- (i) In the debenture stock of any railway company in India the interest on which is paid or guaranteed by the Secretary of State in Council of India:
- (j) In the 'B' annuities of the Eastern Bengal, the East Indian, and the Scinde Punjaub and Delhi Railways, and any like annuities which may at any time hereafter be created on the purchase of any other railway by the Secretary of State in Council of India and charged on the revenues of India, and which may be authorised by Act of Parliament to be accepted by trustees in lieu of any stock held by them in the purchased railway; also in deferred annuities comprised in the register of holders of annuity Class D. and annuities comprised in the register of annuitants Class C. of the East Indian Railway Company:
- (k) In the stock of any railway company in India upon which a fixed or minimum dividend in sterling is paid or guaranteed by the Secretary of State in Council of India, or upon the capital of which the interest is so guaranteed:
- (l) In the debenture or guaranteed or preference stock of any company in Great Britain or Ireland, established for the supply of water for profit, and incorporated by special Act of Parliament or by Royal Charter, and having during each of the ten years last past before the date of investment paid a dividend of not less than five pounds per centum on its ordinary stock:
- (m) In nominal or inscribed stock issued, or to be issued, by the corporation of any municipal borough having, according to the returns of the last census prior to the date of investment, a population exceeding fifty thousand, or by any county council, under the authority of any Act of Parliament or Provisional Order:
- (n) In nominal or inscribed stock issued or to be issued by any commissioners incorporated by Act of Parliament for the purpose of supplying water, and having a compulsory power of levying rates over an area having, according to the returns of the last census prior to the date of investment, a population exceeding fifty thousand, provided that during each of the ten years last past before the date of investment the rates levied by such commissioners shall not have exceeded eighty per centum of the amount authorised by law to be levied:
- (o) In any of the stocks, funds, or securities for the time being authorised for the investment of cash under the control or subject to the order of the High Court, and may also from time to time vary any such investment."

Purchase at a premium of redeemable stocks.

Sect. 2.—“(1.) A trustee may under the powers of this Act invest in any of the securities mentioned or referred to in section one of this Act, notwithstanding that the same may be redeemable, and that the price exceeds the redemption value.

(2.) Provided that a trustee may not under the powers of this Act purchase at a price exceeding its redemption value any stock mentioned or referred to in sub-sections (g), (k), (l), and (m) of section one, which is liable to be redeemed within fifteen years of the date of purchase at par or at some other fixed rate, or purchase any such stock as is mentioned or referred to in the sub-sections aforesaid, which is liable to be redeemed at par or at some other fixed rate, at a price exceeding fifteen per centum above par or such other fixed rate.

(3.) A trustee may retain until redemption any redeemable stock, fund, or security which may have been purchased in accordance with the powers of this Act."

Discretion of trustees.

Sect. 3. "Every power conferred by the preceding sections shall be exercised according to the discretion of the trustee, but subject to any consent required by the instrument, if any, creating the trust with respect to the investment of the trust funds."

Application of preceding sections.

Sect. 4. "The preceding sections shall apply as well to trusts created before as to trusts created after the passing of this Act, and the powers thereby conferred shall be in addition to the powers conferred by the instrument, if any, creating the trust."

Enlargement of express powers of
investment.

Sect. 5.—“(1.) A trustee having power to invest in real securities, unless expressly forbidden by the instrument creating the trust, may invest and shall be deemed to have always had power to invest—

(a) on mortgage of property held for an unexpired term of not less than two hundred years, and not subject to a reservation of rent greater than a shilling a year, or to any right of redemption or to any condition for re-entry, except for non-payment of rent; and

(b) on any charge, or upon mortgage of any charge, made under the Improvement of Land Act, 1864.

(2.) A trustee having power to invest in the mortgages or bonds of any railway company or of any other description of company may, unless the contrary is expressed in the instrument authorising the investment, invest in the debenture stock of a railway company or such other company as aforesaid.

(3.) A trustee having power to invest money in the debentures or debenture stock of any railway or other company may, unless the contrary is expressed in the instrument authorising the investment, invest in any nominal debentures or nominal debenture stock issued under the Local Loans Act, 1875.

(4.) A trustee having power to invest money in securities in the Isle of Man, or in securities of the government of a colony, may, unless the contrary is expressed in the instrument authorising the investment, invest in any securities of the Government of the Isle of Man, under the Isle of Man Loans Act, 1880.

PRINC. 4.

(5.) A trustee having a general power to invest trust moneys in or upon the security of shares, stock, mortgages, bonds, or debentures of companies incorporated by or acting under the authority of an Act of Parliament, may invest in, or upon the security of, mortgage debentures duly issued under and in accordance with the provisions of the Mortgage Debenture Act, 1865."

Sect. 6. "A trustee having power to invest in the purchase of land or on mortgage of land may invest in the purchase, or on mortgage of any land, notwithstanding the same is charged with a rent under the powers of the Public Money Drainage Acts, 1846 to 1856, or the Landed Property Improvement (Ireland) Act, 1847, or by an absolute order made under the Improvement of Land Act, 1864, unless the terms of the trust expressly provide that the land to be purchased or taken in mortgage shall not be subject to any such prior charge."

Power to invest, notwithstanding drainage charges.

Sect. 7.—“(1.) A trustee, unless authorised by the terms of his trust, shall not apply for or hold any certificate to bearer issued under the authority of any of the following Acts, that is to say:

Trustees not to convert inscribed stock into certificates to bearer.

(a) The India Stock Certificate Act, 1863;

(b) The National Debt Act, 1870;

(c) The Local Loans Act, 1875;

(d) The Colonial Stock Act, 1877.

(2.) Nothing in this section shall impose on the Bank of England or of Ireland, or on any person authorised to issue any such certificates, any obligation to inquire whether a person applying for such a certificate is or is not a trustee, or subject them to any liability in the event of their granting any such certificate to a trustee, nor invalidate any such certificate if granted."

Sect. 8.—“(1.) A trustee lending money on the security of any property on which he can lawfully lend shall not be chargeable with breach of trust by reason only of the proportion borne by the amount of the loan to the value of the property at the time when the loan was made, provided that it appears to the Court that in making the loan the trustee was acting upon a report as to the value of the property made by a person whom he reasonably believed to be an able practical surveyor or valuer instructed and employed independently of any owner of the property, whether such surveyor or valuer carried on business in the locality where the property is situate or elsewhere, and that the amount of the loan does not exceed two equal third parts of the value of the property as stated in the report, and that the loan was made under the advice of the surveyor or valuer expressed in the report.

Loans and investments by trustees not chargeable as breaches of trust.

(2.) A trustee lending money on the security of any leasehold property shall not be chargeable with breach of trust only upon the ground that in making such loan he dispensed either wholly or partly with the production or investigation of the lessor's title.

PREC. 4.

(3.) A trustee shall not be chargeable with breach of trust only upon the ground that in effecting the purchase of or in lending money upon the security of any property he has accepted a shorter title than the title which a purchaser is, in the absence of a special contract, entitled to require, if in the opinion of the Court the title accepted be such as a person acting with prudence and caution would have accepted.

(4.) This section applies to transfers of existing securities as well as to new securities, and to investments made as well before as after the commencement of this Act, except where an action or other proceeding was pending with reference thereto on the twenty-fourth day of December one thousand eight hundred and eighty-eight."

Liability for loss by reason of improper investments.

Sect. 9.—“(1.) Where a trustee improperly advances trust money on a mortgage security which would at the time of the investment be a proper investment in all respects for a smaller sum than is actually advanced thereon the security shall be deemed an authorised investment for the smaller sum, and the trustee shall only be liable to make good the sum advanced in excess thereof with interest.

(2.) This section applies to investments made as well before as after the commencement of this Act except where an action or other proceeding was pending with reference thereto on the twenty-fourth day of December one thousand eight hundred and eighty-eight."

As to sub-sect. (o) of sect. 1 of the Trustee Act, 1893, supra, see Ord. XXII. r. 17 of the Rules of the Supreme Court, which extends the investments authorized in sub-sect. (g) to cases where a dividend, whatever the amount, shall have been paid for ten years next before the date of investment. To the investments authorized by the Trustee Act, 1893, have been further added stock created under the Metropolitan Water Act, 1902 (s. 17 (4)), and all colonial stocks which are registered in the United Kingdom in accordance with the provisions of the Colonial Stock Acts, 1877 to 1900, and listed by the Treasury in the London and Edinburgh Gazettes subject to the restrictions of s. 2 (2) of the Trustee Act, 1893. (Colonial Stock Act, 1900.)

By the Trustee Act, 1893, Amendment Act, 1894, it is provided:—

Liability of trustee in case of change of character of investment.

Sect. 4. “A trustee shall not be liable for breach of trust by reason only of his continuing to hold an investment which has ceased to be an investment authorised by the instrument of trust or by the general law.”

A direction to invest in a particular way does not “expressly forbid” an investment authorized by the Trustee Act, 1893, Re Burke, 1908, 2 Ch. 248; 77 L. J. Ch. 597. As to investment of capital money under the Settled Land Acts, see Settled Land Act, 1882, s. 21.

(c) The above precedent is one which should only be adopted in special circumstances. It is appropriate to a case where the testator's personal estate is not large and is not capable of yielding a larger income than the last daughter remaining unmarried will require for her support. The circumstance that the income left for the daughters or daughter remaining unmarried would be inadequate if the daughters marrying took their shares of the capital is the only justification for such a disposition as is made by this precedent. The inconveniences which may attend the adoption of the precedent are obvious enough:— For example, a testator leaves three daughters, two marry and have children and grandchildren, the third never marries, but outlives her married sisters and, perhaps, some or all of their children also. In such a case, neither of the married daughters nor their deceased children will have derived any benefit from the bequest.

WILL disposing of Real and Personal Estate in favour of two Sons, of whom one is an Adult and the other a Minor.—Direction to purchase a Life Annuity.

THIS IS THE LAST WILL of me [testator's name residence and quality].

1. I REVOKE all other wills and testamentary dispositions by me heretofore made.

2. I APPOINT my son [name] and [names &c.] executors and trustees of this my will and trustees for the purposes of sect. 42 of the Conveyancing Act 1881 and for the purposes of the Settled Land Acts 1882 to 1890 (a).

3. I DEVISE the dwelling-house at — in which I now reside with the garden orchard and appurtenances thereto belonging and the pieces of land called respectively [names] now in my occupation situate in the said parish of — with the easements and appurtenances therewith usually occupied or enjoyed (b) unto my said son his heirs and assigns (c).

Devise of real estate to uses in favour of elder son.

4. I DEVISE my messuage and lands (d) situate at — now in the occupation of [tenant] as tenant thereof with the easements and appurtenances therewith usually occupied or enjoyed To my younger son [name] his heirs and assigns But in case my said younger son shall die under the age of twenty-one years then I DEVISE the last-mentioned hereditaments and premises to my said elder son his heirs and assigns.

Devise of other real estate to like uses in favour of younger son.

5. I DECLARE that any mortgage debts affecting the hereditaments hereinbefore devised to my younger son shall be discharged and satisfied out of my personal estate (e) AND that no apportionment of rents current at my death shall take place as between my said sons and my executors.

PREC. 5.
Direction to executors to
life annuity.

6. I DIRECT my trustees to purchase in their names an annuity of £20 (f) for the life of my servant [name] to begin from my death and to be payable half-yearly or quarterly such purchase to be made in the discretion of my trustees either from Government or any public company or from any private person or persons but so that the annuity if purchased from any private person or persons shall be well secured on real or leasehold property And I direct that until such purchase shall be made a like annuity shall be paid to her out of the income of my residuary estate in equal quarterly portions And I declare that the said [annuitant] shall not be allowed to have the value of the said annuity in lieu thereof And I further declare that in case of the happening of any act or event whereby the said annuity or any part thereof if belonging to her absolutely would become vested in or charged in favour of some other person or persons or a corporation the said annuity whether purchased or not shall cease to be payable to her and shall thenceforth form part of the income of my residuary estate.

Bequest to younger son of stock
legacy.

7 I BEQUEATH to my younger son if he shall attain the age of twenty-one years the sum of 2,000*l.* in Two and a-half per Cent. Consolidated Stock to be transferred to him within three calendar months after he shall attain that age or if he should attain it in my lifetime within three calendar months after my death.

Direction to pay legacy
duty.

8. I DIRECT that the legacy duty and expenses incident to the bequests of the annuity and stock legacy hereinbefore respectively bequeathed shall be paid out of my residuary personal estate.

9. AS TO THE RESIDUE (g) of the real and personal property which may belong to me at my death I DEVISE AND BEQUEATH the same to my eldest son his heirs executors and administrators absolutely.

Appointment
of guardians.

10. I APPOINT the said — and — guardians of my younger son during his minority (h).

11. Trustee interpretation clause as in Prec. 4. clause 6.

IN WITNESS &c.

NOTES to Precedent 5.

(a) Under sect. 42 of the Conveyancing Act, 1881, amended by sect. 14 of the Conveyancing Act, 1911, so as to extend to the case of married female infants, and under sect. 58 (1) (ii) and (2), and sects. 59 and 60 of the Settled Land Act, 1882, trustees so appointed will have powers of management and other powers during the minority of the infant devisee, see Re Helyar, 1902, 1 Ch. 391; 71 L. J. Ch. 209.

(b) On the effect of the words "easements and appurtenances therewith usually occupied or enjoyed," see Pheysey v. Vicary, 16 M. & W. 484; Wardle v. Brocklehurst, 1 E. & E. 1058; Ewart v. Cochrane, 4 Macq. 117; Pearson v. Spencer, 3 B. & S. 761; Polden v. Bastard, L. R. 1 Q. B. 156; 35 L. J. Q. B. 92; Smith v. Ridgway, L. R. 1 Ex. 331; 35 L. J. Ex. 11; Kay v. Ooley, L. R. 10 Q. B. 360; 44 L. J. Q. B. 210; Barkshire v. Grubb, 18 Ch. D. 616; 50 L. J. Ch. 731. And as to the limits of the doctrine of the "disposition of the owner of two tenements" (Gale, Easements, 111), see Suffield v. Brown, 4 D. J. & S. 185; 33 L. J. Ch. 249; Watts v. Kelson, L. R. 6 Ch. 166; 40 L. J. Ch. 126; Wheeldon v. Burrows, 12 Ch. D. 31; 48 L. J. Ch. 853.

NOTES TO
PREC. 5.
Easements usually enjoyed.

(c) If the property devised should be of copyhold tenure, it would be well, instead of devising it to the son in the simple form suggested, to give him a power of appointment over it, and to devise it to him in default of appointment: thus, "I devise [description of property as in the case of a simple devise] to such person or persons for such estate or estates and generally in such manner as my elder son [name] by any deed or deeds or by his last will shall appoint and in default of such appointment I devise the same unto my said son his heirs and assigns."

Copyholds.

The advantage of reserving to a devisee a power of appointment over copyholds, instead of simply giving the property to him in fee, is that the insertion of the power (which it is clear may be created by will, Flack v. Downing College, 17 Jur. 697) enables the donee to appoint to a purchaser or any other person without being admitted, and therefore without incurring the fine and fees for admittance. The appointee or nominee is considered as coming in immediately under the will, Holder v. Preston, 2 Wils. 400; Beal v. Shepherd, Cro. Jac. 199; Rex v. Lord of Manor of Oundle, 1 A. & E. 283; 3 L. J. (N. S.) K. B. 117; Glass v. Richardson, 2 D. M. & G. 658; 22 L. J. Ch. 105; Reg. v. Sir T. Wilson, 3 B. & S. 201. And see Sissons v. Chichester-Constable, 1916, 2 Ch. 75; 85 L. J. Ch. 489. Unless, however, the sale speedily follows the testator's decease, the lord of the manor can, by his right of seizing the land quousque, compel the admittance of the person or persons entitled to the legal ownership in the meantime, either under the will or by descent, Glass v. Richardson, ubi sup. To support the lord's right of seizure pro defectu tenentis, it has been held that there must be three proclamations at consecutive courts, Doe v. Trueman, 1 B. & Ad. 736; 9 L. J. K. B. 119. Where the lord had seized quousque, and had held for forty years, the customary heir was barred by the Statute of Limitations, Walters v. Webb, L. R. 5 Ch. 531; 39 L. J. Ch. 677. A devise by an unadmitted surrenderee confers no legal estate on the devisee, Matthew v. Osborne, 13 C. B. 919; 22 L. J. C. P. 241; and the lord cannot, in the absence of a special custom, be compelled to accept a surrender to the uses of an appointment by deed inter vivos, Flack v. Downing College, 17 Jur. 697; 22 L. J. C. P. 229, see 17 Jur. pt. 2, p. 274.

Therefore, the only advantage of using the form of devise suggested at the beginning of this note is that it facilitates a sale by the devisee of the property if he should be desirous of selling it speedily after the testator's decease.

NOTES TO
PREC. 5.

In the remaining precedents, the direct and simple form of devise is adopted.

Heir in
by devise.

According to 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 106, s. 3, regulating the law of inheritance, the testator's elder son will take as a purchaser under the devise, and not by descent. In case of his death intestate, the land will descend to his heir, not to the heir of the testator. But where any issue of a testator takes under a devise, in remainder after other limitations, to "my own right heirs," and dies intestate, the descent is traced from the testator (sect. 4). As to whether the devisee could disclaim all interest under the will, but retain the estate as heir—a question of importance with respect to the amount of fine payable on admittance to copyholds—see Bickley v. Bickley, L. R. 4 Eq. 216; 36 L. J. Ch. 817.

What words embrace realty—
"estate,"
"property."

(d) Uncertainty as to the scope of expression descriptive of the subject of the gift is a frequent source of difficulty in the construction of wills. Sometimes the doubt is whether the terms embrace real as well as personal estate. The words "estate" and "property" clearly extend to and comprise realty. "Estate" in a will is genus generalissimum, and of its own force, without any proof aliunde, carries realty as well as personalty; and is not to be confined to personalty only, unless a clear intention can be gathered from the whole will, or from the way in which the word is used in the particular part in question, Mayor of Hamilton

"Estate and effects."

v. Hodsdon, 6 Moo. P. C. 76. And where a testator devised and bequeathed all his "estate and effects" to A., to be paid, assigned, and transferred to him on his attaining twenty-one, it was held that copyholds of inheritance passed by the devise, notwithstanding the words of payment and transfer, which strictly were applicable only to personalty, Stokes v. Salomons, 9 Ha. 75; 20 L. J. Ch. 343; D'Almaine v. Moseley, 1 Drew. 629; 22 L. J. Ch. 971; Phillips v. Beal, 25 Be. 27; Lloyd v. Lloyd, L. R. 7 Eq. 458; 38 L. J. Ch. 458; Kirby-Smith v. Parnell, 1903, 1 Ch. 483; 72 L. J. Ch. 468. But a different decision was given in Coward v. Holderness, 20 Be. 147; 24 L. J. Ch. 388, grounded on the special circumstances in that case. The words "I constitute A. and B. my residuary legatees," will not give them the testator's real estate, W'indus v. W'indus, 6 D. M. & G. 549; 26 L. J. Ch. 185; Re Methuen and Blore's Contract, 16 Ch. D. 696; 50 L. J. Ch. 464; but the expression is not of invariable meaning, Hughes v. Pritchard, 6 Ch. D. 24; 46 L. J. Ch. 840; Singleton v. Tomlinson, 3 App. Cas. 404; Re Gibbs, 1907, 1 Ch. 465; 76 L. J. Ch. 238. That the words "estate" and "property" may be restrained by the context, see Timewell v. Perkins, 2 Atk. 102; Doe v. Rout, 7 Tau. 79; Doe v. Hurrell, 5 B. & Al. 18; Saunderson v. Dobson, 16 L. J. (N.S.) Ex. 249. What constitutes a restraining context can only be learnt by a minute examination of the cases, which will be found to present some very nice distinctions, particularly respecting the effect of the association, with the words "estate" and "property," of terms descriptive of personalty only, Roberts v. Thorp, 56 S. J. 13; and of the introduction into the devise of trusts inapplicable to real estate. But the inclination of the present day is to hold lands to pass under words capable per se of comprehending them, in spite of their association with words applicable only to personalty, see Attree v. Attree, L. R. 11 Eq. 280; 40 L. J. Ch. 192; Smyth v. Smyth, 8 Ch. D. 561; 38 L. T. 633. As the word "estate" or any other term of comprehensive import may be restrained to personalty by its more limited associates, so terms in themselves loose and ambiguous may be extended to real estate by force of the intention collected from the whole will, i.e., there may be an enlarging as well as a restraining context, Wilce v. Wilce, 7 Bing. 664; 9 L. J. C. P. 197; see the comments on this case in Cook v. Jaggard, L. R. 1 Ex. 125; 35 L. J. Ex. 76. Even the words "personal estates" have been held sufficient upon the context to pass realty, Doe v. Tofield, 11 Ea. 246. See also 1 Jarm. Wills, ch. 22, and Hawkins, Constr. Wills, p. 72 et seq.

PRÆC. 5.

Enlarging context.

If, owing to the testator having several properties answering the description in the will, it is impossible to say, either from the will itself or from such extrinsic evidence as is admissible, which of these properties the testator referred to, the gift fails for uncertainty, as the Court cannot, to avoid an intestacy, construe the will as giving the legatee the option of electing which property he will take, Asten v. Asten, 1894, 3 Ch. 260; 63 L. J. Ch. 834. As to right of selection see also Re Cheville, 1900, 2 Ch. 620; 69 L. J. Ch. 753, where Asten v. Asten was considered.

The word "lands" will carry houses, unless both words occur in the will and stand in opposition. Thus, if a testator having a house and lands devises generally all his lands, the whole will pass; but if he devises his house to one, and his lands to another, the house of course will not pass under the latter devise, Heydon's Will, 2 And. 123. A devise of lands does not generally embrace incorporeal hereditaments, as tithes, rents, &c.; but such hereditaments would pass under a devise of lands at a particular place, if the testator had no other property answering to that locality, Rich v. Sanders, Sty. 261. So a devise of a particular manor has been held to carry a rent issuing out of such manor, the testator having no other interest therein, Inchley v. Robinson, 2 Leon. 41, pl. 57. A devise of lands in a named county to A. will not pass moneys arising from the sale which are subject to a trust for re-investment in lands in England, but the moneys will pass under a residuary devise of realty, Re Duke of Cleveland's Settled Estates, 1893, 3 Ch. 244; 62 L. J. Ch. 955. See also Re Gosselin, 1906, 1 Ch. 120; 75 L. J. Ch. 88; Re Glassington, 1906, 2 Ch. 305; 75 L. J. Ch. 670. To avoid such questions, it is advisable to use descriptive terms more comprehensive than the word "lands"—such as "tenements," "hereditaments," or "real estate." As to the meaning of "personal and landed estates," see Hoare v. Byng, 10 C. & F. 508.

Word
"lands" comprises what.

There seems to be no material difference between the technical and popular signification of the word "messuage." Two acres of land situate four miles distant from a messuage have been held not to pass under the devise of a messuage cum pertinentiis, Hearn v. Allen, Cro. Car. 57. In another instance, a much larger quantity was adjudged to be included in a devise of "three messuages with all houses, stables, &c., that stand upon or belong to the said messuages," by reason, it would seem, of the land having been conveyed to the testator by the description of a messuage or tenement, with the appurtenances, Gulliver v. Poyntz, 2 W. Bl. 726; but the case is not to be relied on, the evidence being clearly inadmissible to affect the construction. In another case, the devise of a house was held to carry land employed by the testator to raise hay and corn for his own consumption, because he had directed that the devisee should be at the charge of housekeeping, servants' wages, and coach horses; these horses were used to plough the land in question, and the Court considered the testator as having directed that they should continue to be so used; but in the will, as stated, there is no such direction, Blackborn v. Edgley, 1 P. W. 600. In Heach v. Pritchard, W. N. 1882, p. 140, a devise of "my cottage and garden" included an adjoining orchard.

"Premises,"
how construed.

The word "premises" signifies what has gone before, and therefore may, with propriety, be used in relation to any preceding subject or subjects. Thus, where a testator devised a certain messuage and the furniture in it to A. for life, and after his decease he gave the said messuage and premises to B., the latter gift was held to carry the furniture as well as the messuage to B., Sanford v. Irby, 4 L. J. Ch. 23. See also Doe v. Meakin, 1 Ea. 456; Fitzgerald v. Field, 1 Rus. 416; 4 L. J. (O. S.) Ch. 171; Lethbridge v. Lethbridge, 3 D. F. & J. 523; 30 L. J. (N. S.) Ch. 388; Hibon v. Hibon, 1 N. R. 532; 32 L. J. Ch. 374.

Questions often arise whether the word "share," or other such term, applies to one, or more than one, of several preceding subjects of gift: as to which, see Doe v. Stopford, 5 Ea. 501; Hardman v. Johnson, 3 Mer. 347; Doe v. Gell, 2 B. & C. 680; Doe v. Bowling, 5 B. & Al. 722; Adshead v. Willetts, 29 Be. 358.

"In or near a place."

Local indefiniteness is always to be avoided, such as devising lands in or near a place. A devise of "all my estates in or near Latchington, near Maldon," was held not to include a close which was from four to six miles from L., and was in the town of Maldon, Doe v. Pigott, 7 Tau. 553. In applying this and every other term of description, local or otherwise, property to which the words might have been stretched for want of a more appropriate subject will be excluded by the existence of one more nearly answering to the term in question, Doe v. Bower, 3 B. & Ad. 453; 1 L. J. (N. S.) K. B. 156; Webber v. Stanley, 16 C. B. N. S. 698; 33 L. J. C. P. 217; Smith v. Ridgway, L. R. 1 Ex. 331; 35 L. J. Ex. 11; Pedley v. Dodds, L. R. 2 Eq. 819. A devise of "my freehold property at Masbrough" (in the parish of Rotherham) did not pass property at Rotherham, though the testator never had any at Masbrough, Barber v. Wood, 4 Ch. D. 885; 46 L. J. Ch. 728.

Peculiar construction of words of local description
rejected.

Though a testator may shew by the context of his will that he uses a local appellation in a peculiar and extraordinary sense, yet this conclusion will not be adopted upon slight or equivocal grounds, Doe v. Johnson, 5 Nev. & M. 281; 4 L. J. (N. S.) K. B. 242.

In devising a property by name, uncertainty is sometimes produced by describing it to be in the occupation of a person whose occupancy embraces less than the whole. In such a case, the reference to occupancy is not generally restrictive, Goodtitle v. Southern, 1 M. & S. 299; Down v. Down, 7 Tau. 343; Doe v. Carpenter, 16 Q. B. 181; 20 L. J. Q. B. 70.

NOTES TO
PREC. 5.

As to reference to occupancy.

Words of suggestion or affirmation, added to a definite description, are as a general rule not restrictive. As where a testatrix having devised all that her Briton Ferry estate, with all the manors, &c. thereunto belonging, afterwards, when describing another estate, added, "which, as well as my Briton Ferry estate, is situate in the county of Glamorgan;" part of the Briton Ferry estate was in Breconshire; but it was held that the words did not exclude the Breconshire portion of the estate, Doe v. Earl of Jersey, 1 B. & Al. 550. So, where a testator devised all his lands at S., given him by his brother's will, it was held that the devise was not confined to what he took by his brother's will, Welby v. Welby, 2 V. & B. 187. And see Norman v. Norman, 1919, 1 Ch. 297. In Travers v. Blundell, 6 Ch. D. 436, an appointment was not limited by an incomplete enumeration of closes of land. And where a testatrix devised all her interest in the lands known by the name of D., situate in the parish of K., and in the occupation of E., it was held that the devise included closes in the parish of L. and a close situate in the parish of K., but occupied by M., Hardwick v. Hardwick, L. R. 16 Eq. 168; 42 L. J. Ch. 636. In this case Lord Selborne stated these two rules:—1. If all the terms of description fit some particular property, they cannot be enlarged by extrinsic evidence, so as to include anything which any part of those terms does not accurately fit. 2. If the words of description when examined do not fit with accuracy, and if there must be some modification of some part of them in order to place a sensible construction on the will, then the whole thing must be looked at fairly in order to see what are the leading words of description, and what is subordinate matter, and for this purpose evidence of extrinsic facts may be regarded. In Re Bright-Smith, 31 Ch. D. 314; 55 L. J. Ch. 365, where a testator devised his "freehold" farm and land situate at E., and now in the occupation of J. B., and the farm comprised about 76 acres, of which 26 were copyhold, the word "freehold" was held to be only the subordinate description, and the whole farm passed under the devise. In this case there was no residuary devise, so that, if the copyhold portion had been held to be excluded, there would have been an intestacy, which the Court always leans against. Although the absence of a residuary devise sufficed to distinguish this case from Hall v. Fisher, 1 Coll. 47; and Stone v. Greening, 13 Sim. 390, Chitty, J., questioned these decisions. See also Whitfield v. Langdale, 1 Ch. D. 61; 45 L. J. Ch. 177; Re Brocket, 1908, 1 Ch. 185; 77 L. J. Ch. 245. A devise of "freeholds" will include "customary freeholds," unless there is reason to suppose that the testator has used the term "freehold" in its strict and technical sense, Re Steel, 1903, 1 Ch. 135; 72 L. J. Ch. 42. A gift of "all my Bank stock and foreign securities,' was held not to be narrowed by the addition of the words "as invested by L., broker," Drake v. Martin, 23 Bea. 89; 26 L. J. Ch. 786, and the words "my property not in England, in the hands of my attorney W., consisting of, &c.," passed all the property abroad (ib.).

As to reference to
locality only.

It would seem that where the property is described by a reference to its locality only, and not by name, as where a testator devises all his messuages, lands, &c., at A. in his own occupation, the devise will not extend to a messuage and piece of land at A. not in his own occupation, there being a house and land at A. exactly answering to the description, Doe v. Parkin, 5 Tau. 321; see also Doe v. Ashley, 10 Q. B. 663; 16 L. J. Q. B. 356; Doe v. Hubbard, 15 Q. B. 227; 20 L. J. (N. S.) Q. B. 61; Homer v. Homer, 8 Ch. D. 758; 47 L. J. Ch. 635. Sometimes the occupancy, being more comprehensive than any other particular in the description, has the effect of enlarging instead of restricting the extent of a devise, Press v. Parker, 2 Bing. 456; 3 L. J. C. P. 96. Where a testator devised an estate called D. "as now enjoyed by me," the devise was held to include closes belonging to an adjoining estate, which the testator had added to D. by removing the fences, and which were then in his occupation, Bodenham v. Pritchard, 1 B. & C. 350; 1 L. J. K. B. 131. See notes to sect. 24 of the Wills Act, ante. So, under a devise of "the house I live in and garden," stables and a yard in a ring-fence, and a coal-pen on the opposite side of the road, which were used by the testator partly for domestic purposes and partly in trade, were held to pass, Doe v. Collins, 2 T. R. 498. See also Hibon v. Hibon, 1 N. R. 532. In Re Seal, 1894, 1 Ch. 316; 63 L. J. Ch. 275, the devise was of "my residence called S. House, and premises thereto, as the same are now occupied by me." Some years before making this devise, testator had let to two of his sons, for the purposes of their business, an office standing in the yard of S. House, and the stable and coach-house belonging to the house, except a room on the first floor of the coach-house to which the only access was through the house, and the sons were in occupation till testator's death. Held (C. A.), that the devise included the room over the coach-house, but did not include the rest of the coach-house and stable nor the office, for that the property which was in the testator's own occupation answered the whole of the description, and that being so the Court could not enter into the question of inconvenience, and reject the reference to occupation as falsa demonstratio. But a devise of "my capital messuage or mansion-house wherein I now live, and the buildings, gardens, grounds, and appurtenances to the same belonging, or therewith used," has been decided not to comprise cottages on the opposite side of a road, and in the occupation of tenants, though the testatrix was in the habit of using the space between two of the cottages for turning her carriage, Hougham v. Sandys, 2 Sim. at p. 151; 6 L. J. (O. S.) Ch. 67. See also Josh v. Josh, 5 Jur. N. S. 225; 28 L. J. (N. S.) C. P. 100. A devise of a manor with the lands "thereunto belonging" was partly, by the aid of the context, extended to lands not properly parcel of the manor.

though in a popular sense situate within the manor, Doe v. Langton, 2 B. & Ad. 680. But under a devise of lands "in the parish of C., with their appurtenances," outlying pieces in other parishes, though held with the C. lands, did not pass, Evans v. Angell, 26 Be. 202. A mansion with 166 acres of land was held to pass by a devise of "all my estate in Shropshire called Ashford Hall," Ricketts v. Turquand, 1 H. L. C. 472, where parol evidence was admitted to shew what the testator had been accustomed to consider the Ashford Hall estate. See Jarm. Wills, ch. 35, sect. iii; and Re Mayell, 1913, 2 Ch. 488; 83 L. J. Ch. 40.

PREC. 5.

Personal chattels are sometimes described by a reference to locality, as where a testator bequeaths the "household goods," "things," "property," or "effects," which are in and about his place of residence. See note (a) to Prec. 8, and see Jarm. Wills, ch. 30, iii. (6). A gift of "goods," "chattels," or "effects" in or about a house, will in general pass cash (including notes payable on demand, which are considered as cash), but not securities for money, these being only the evidence of title to property situated elsewhere, Green v. Symonds, 1 Bro. C. C. 129, n.; Moore v. Moore, ib. 127; Fleming v. Brook, 1 Sch. & Lef. 318 (discussed in Arnold v. Arnold, 2 M. & K. 365; 4 L. J. (N. S.) Ch. 123); Brooke v. Turner, 7 Sim. 671; 5 L. J. (N. S.) Ch. 176; Jones v. Lord Sefton, 4 Ves. 166; Stuart v. Marquis of Bute, 11 Ves. 657, 662; Hertford v. Lowther, 7 Be. 1; 13 L. J. Ch. 41; Collier v. Squire, 3 Rus. 467; 5 L. J. (O. S.) Ch. 186; Swinfen v. Swinfen, 29 Be. 207; 4 L. J. (N. S.) Ch. 194 (discussed in Campbell v. McGrain, Ir. R. 9 Eq. 397, and Northey v. Paxton, 60 L. T. 30); 2 Wms. Exors. 1040. But see Gibbs v. Lawrence, 9 W. R. 93; 30 L. J. (N. S.) Ch. 170; Roberts v. Kuffin, 2 Atk. 112. In Hall v. Hall, 1892, 1 Ch. 361; 61 L. J. Ch. 289, the context shewed that "effects" included real estate. Under a gift of "furniture, goods and chattels," in testator's house, only chattels ejusdem generis as furniture passed, such in fact as would, if the house had been let as a furnished house, have passed to a tenant taking the house, and not such articles as jewellery, gems, or scientific instruments, Manton v. Tabois, 30 Ch. D. 92; 54 L. J. Ch. 1008. See also Re Seton-Smith, 1902, 1 Ch. 717; 71 L. J. Ch. 386. Where a testator gave "half my property at Rothschild's Bank," choses in action were held to pass to the legatee, Re Prater, 37 Ch. D. 481; 57 L. J. Ch. 342; and where the gift was of a desk, "with the contents thereof," choses in action found therein, such as a cheque to the order of the testator, but undorsed, promissory notes payable to the testator or order, and also undorsed, and a promissory note payable on demand, passed to the legatee. The desk also contained the key of a security box, and it was held that the key gave no title to the contents of the box, this box not being itself in the desk, Re Robson, 1891, 2 Ch. 559; 60 L. J. Ch. 851. In this case Chitty, J., remarked on the risk run in making bequests of this nature. Under a bequest of "property," or "all my estate and effects," described as being in a certain locality, debts due from persons in that locality to the testator will be included, Nisbett v. Murray, 5 Ves. 149; Arnold v. Arnold, 2 M. & K. 365; 4

"Goods," &c., in or about a house.

NOTES TO
PREC. 5.

L. J. (N. S.) Ch. 123; Earl of Tyrone v. Marquis of Waterford, 1 D. F. & J. 613; 29 L. J. Ch. 486; Guthrie v. Walrond, 22 Ch. D. 573; 52 L. J. Ch. 165; Re Clark, 1904, 1 Ch. 294; 73 L. J. Ch. 188. A gift of a "house and its contents" does not, as a general rule, pass things which are evidence of property outside the house, e.g., title deeds to land or stock and share certificates, Re Craven, 99 L. T. 390; 100 L. T. 284.

Exception
from bequest.

But if a testator expressly excepts any particulars to which the bequest would not otherwise have extended, such exception will have the effect of enlarging the construction, see Hotham v. Sutton, 15 Ves. 319. And if in a general devise or bequest the testator introduces an exception of uncertain extent, the effect of such uncertainty is merely to neutralise the exception, and not to invalidate the disposition containing it, Blundell v. Gladstone, 14 Sim. 83, reversed on evidence 3 Mac. & G. 692.

and effects."

A bequest of "chattels and effects" standing alone and unrestricted is clearly adequate to pass the whole personal estate, Kendall v. Kendall, 4 Russ. 370; 6 L. J. (O. S.) Ch. 111; yet, where these words are collocated with household goods, they may be and frequently are restrained to articles ejusdem generis, Woolcombe v. Woolcombe, 3 P. W. 112; Timewell v. Perkins, 2 Atk. 102; Porter v. Toarnay, 3 Ves. 311; Rauclings v. Jennings, 13 Ves. 39; Sutton v. Sharp, 1 Russ. 146. And where a testator gave his household furniture, books, pictures, engraving-, plate, linen, china, and other effects to two persons in equal shares, it was held that the word "effects" ought to be limited to things of the same kind as those previously enumerated, and that articles of jewellery could not fall under that description, Re Hammersley, 81 L. T. 150. See also In b. O'Loughlin, L. R. 2 P. & D. 102; 39 L. J. P. 53. But in Gover v. Davis, 29 Be. 222; 30 L. J. Ch. 505; Nugee v. Chapman, 29 Be. 291; and Hodgson v. Jex, 2 Ch. D. 122; 45 L. J. Ch. 388, property not ejusdem generis was held to be included. Again, the word "effects," though prima facie comprising only personalty (Hawkins, Constr. Wills, 74), has been held on the context to pass real estate, Milsome v. Long, 3 Jur. N. S. 1073; see also Stelfox v. Stelfox, 1874, W. N. 161; Smyth v. Smyth, 8 Ch. D. 561; Doe v. Tofield, 11 Ea. 246. See further as to the force and extent of particular words of description, Jarm. Will., ch. 27 and ch. 28.

(e) See note (a), Prec. 16.

As to the modes of providing for the payment of annuities

(f) There are two ordinary modes of providing for the payment of annuities not charged on any specific property. One is, by directing the executors to invest an adequate sum in the purchase of stock or some other security yielding income, until the decease of the annuitant, when the fund falls into the residue; and the other by directing an annuity to be purchased, as in the text. The former is the more usual, and is, in general, the more eligible mode. It has the effect, however, of absorbing presently a larger portion of the capital to provide for the annuity, and is attended with this (sometimes inconvenient) consequence, that it protracts the final distribution of the residuary personal estate until the expiration of the annuity; so that, where the testator is desirous that as large a portion of income as possible shall be immediately available for the general trusts, or where (as in the present instance) the residue is disposed of in such a manner as, independently of the annuity, to admit of a speedy distribution, it seems advisable to direct the executors to purchase the annuity. This is, in fact, equivalent to leaving the annuitant a legacy equal in amount to the estimated value of his annuity; for the annuitant (or, if the purchase be not made in his lifetime, his personal representative) can elect to receive the value, Dawson v. Hearn, 1 R. & M. 606; 8 L. J. Ch. 153; Woodmeston v. Walker, 2 R. & M. 197; 9 L. J. Ch. 257; Barnes v. Rowley, 3 Ves. 305; Re Browne's Will, 27 Be. 324. If the testator directs a sum of money to be laid out at a future time in the purchase of an annuity, and the annuitant dies before that time, his representatives will be entitled to the money, Bayley v. Bishop, 9 Ves. 6; Day v. Day, 1 Drew. 569; 22 L. J. Ch. 878; Palmer v. Craufurd, 3 Swanst. 482. If an annuity is directed to be purchased for a person on the happening of a contingent event, and he dies before that event, his representatives have no claim; but if he dies after the event and before purchase of the annuity, his representatives will be entitled to the money, Re Mabbett, 1891, 1 Ch. 707; 60 L. J. Ch. 279; Re Brunning, 1909, 1 Ch. 276; 78 L. J. Ch. 75. See also Power v. Hayne, L. R. 8 Eq. 262; Re Draper's Trust, 57 L. J. Ch. 942; Re Strange, 1916, W. N. 251; in which cases Day v. Day, 1 Drew. 569; 22 L. J. Ch. 878, was not followed; Re Robbins, 1907, 2 Ch. 8; 76 L. J. Ch. 531. An express declaration in the will that the annuitant shall not be allowed to have the value in lieu of the annuity, if standing alone, is inoperative, Stokes v. Cheek, 28 Be. 620; 29 L. J. Ch. 922; for such a prohibition would not prevent the annuitant from selling or encumbering the annuity as soon as it was purchased, and it would be idle to make a purchase of that which the annuitant could immediately afterwards resell; the subsequent declaration in the text, as to cesser, is therefore necessary, Hatton v. May, 3 Ch. D. 148. But where a testator has covenanted to pay a life annuity, it does not follow, if after the death of the testator his estate is sufficient and the payments are made, that the annuitant is entitled to require a portion of the estate to be sold for the purpose of having the value of the annuity paid, Yates v. Yates, 28 Be. 637; 29 L. J. Ch. 872. As to the power of the Court, in the absence of any special direction in the will, to set apart out of the residuary estate a sufficient sum to answer the annuity, see Harbin v. Masterman, 1896, 1 Ch. 351; 65 L. J. Ch. 195; and see Re Evans and Bettell's Contract, 1910, 2 Ch. 438; 79 L. J. Ch. 609.

Residue.

"money which may remain after payment of my debts," see Stocks v. Barré, Joh. 54. For an instance of a constructive gift of residue, see Hodgkinson v. Barrow, 2 Ph. 578; 17 L. J. Ch. 131; Re Johnson, 92 L. T. 357; and for a case where the words "residue of my things" were held, in the circumstances, not to comprise the whole of the testator's property, In b. Ludlow, 1 Sw. & Tr. 29; 27 L. J. P. 7. As to the effect of exceptions in a residuary bequest, see West v. Lahing, 12 Jur. 129; Blight v. Hartnoll, 23 Ch. D. 218; 52 L. J. Ch. 672; Re Fraser, 1904, 1 Ch. 726; 73 L. J. Ch. 481. As to whether a bequest is residuary or specific, see Sargent v. Roberts, 12 Jur. 429; 17 L. J. Ch. 117; Clarke v. Butler, 1 Mer. 304; Re Kendall's Trusts, 14 Be. 608; 21 L. J. Ch. 278; Fitzwilliams v. Kelly, 10 Ha. 266; 22 L. J. Ch. 1016; Fielding v. Preston, 1 De G. & J. 438; Robertson v. Broadbent, 8 App. Cas. 812; 53 L. J. Ch. 266; Re Green, 40 Ch. D. 610; 58 L. J. Ch. 157. As to the effect of the Wills Act upon a general devise, see ante, pp. 61 et seq.

Intermediate
income.

A general residuary bequest, though contingent, carries with it the intermediate income, which does not go to the next of kin, but accumulates until the determination of the contingency, Green v. Ekins, 2 Atk. 473; Trevanion v. Vivian, 2 Ves. S. 430. See Re Taylor, 1901, 2 Ch. 134; 70 L. J. Ch. 535. And a gift of real and personal estate, blended, though contingent in terms, carries the intermediate rents of the realty as well as the income of the personalty, and consequently the interim rents of the real estate, as well as the interim income of the personalty, must be accumulated until the happening of the contingency, and will follow the destination of the corpus. To constitute a blending of the real and personal estate, it is not necessary that both should be given together on one page of the will. If the will shew an intention on the testator's part to effect a blending, this is enough, Genery v. Fitzgerald, Jac. 468; Re Dumble, 23 Ch. D. 360; 52 L. J. Ch. 631; Re Burton's Will, 1892, 2 Ch. 38; 61 L. J. Ch. 702. But the intermediate income

arising from a specific bequest does not pass to the legatee until the period of vesting, and, pending the vesting, falls into the residuary personalty, Wyndham v. Wyndham, 3 Br. C. 58; Hodgson v. Earl of Bective, 1 H. & M. 376; 32 L. J. Ch. 489; Holmes v. Prescott, 3 N. R. 559; 33 L. J. Ch. 264; Guthrie v. Walrond, 22 Ch. D. 573; 52 L. J. Ch. 165; Re Eyre, 1917, 1 Ch. 351; 86 L. J. Ch. 257; and is regarded as undisposed-of income merely, as between the parties entitled to the residue, Fullerton v. Martin, 1 Dr. & S. 31; 29 L. J. Ch. 469; Edmunds v. Waugh, 2 N. R. 408; unless the specific bequest be segregated and vested in trustees for the benefit of the object of the gift when the contingency happens, within the principle of Re Medlock, 55 L. J. Ch. 738; Re Clements, 1894, 1 Ch. 665; 63 L. J. Ch. 326; Re Woodin, 1895, 2 Ch. 309; 64 L. J. Ch. 501. And a power to the trustees to apply the whole, or such part as they may think fit, of the income, before vesting, for the maintenance of those in whom, if they live long enough, the legacy will vest, will not operate to vest the legacy, Re Wintle, 1896, 2 Ch. 711; 65 L. J. Ch. 863. See also Re Turney, 1899, 2 Ch. 739; 69 L. J. Ch. 1. But see Long v. Ovenden, 16 Ch. D. 691; 50

L. J. Ch. 314, as to the intermediate income of a fund vested in interest, but the enjoyment of which is postponed. And see Re Williams, 1907, 1 Ch. 180; 76 L. J. Ch. 41; Re Hume, 1912, 1 Ch. 693; 81 L. J. Ch. 382; Jarm. Wills, pp. 1410 et seq. An executory devise of real estate alone, which does not take effect until the happening of some contingency, does not carry with it the intermediate rents, but the same, being undisposed of, belong to the heir-at-law, Hopkins v. Hopkins, Ca. t. Talb. 44; Hawkins, Constr. Wills, 61; Hodgson v. Earl of Bective, 1 H. & M. 376; 32 L. J. Ch. 489; Countess of Bective v. Hodgson, 10 H. L. C. 656; 33 L. J. Ch. 601; and see Re Eddel's Trusts, L. R. 11 Eq. 559; 40 L. J. Ch. 316; Wade-Gery v. Handley, 3 Ch. D. 374; 45 L. J. Ch. 712; Astley v. Micklethwaite, 15 Ch. D. 59, 66; 49 L. J. Ch. 672.

PREC. 5.
Realty only.

In Goodale v. Gawthorne, 2 S. & G. 375; 23 L. J. Ch. 878, it was held that the rents of real estate becoming due between the death of an intestate and the birth of his posthumous heir, which rents were not actually received by the presumptive heir before the birth of the posthumous heir, belonged on his birth to the latter. But in Richards v. Richards, Joh. 754; 29 L. J. Ch. 836, V.-C. Wood declined to follow Goodale v. Gawthorne, and held that a posthumous heir is entitled to the rents of a descended estate only from his birth, whether the intermediate rents have or have not been actually received by the presumptive heir. And where there was a devise to trustees, to the use of the first and other sons of M. in tail male, with a residuary devise, the residuary devisees were held entitled to the intermediate rents from the testator's death to the birth of a tenant in tail, Re Mowlem, L. R. 18 Eq. 9; 43 L. J. Ch. 353.

WILL of a MARRIED MAN, giving the Income of his Property to his Wife during Widowhood; subject thereto, the Capital equally among his Children, the Children of a deceased Child taking their Parent's Share.

THIS IS THE LAST WILL of me [testator's name residence and quality].

1. I REVOKE all other wills and testamentary dispositions by me heretofore made.

2. I APPOINT — and — executors and trustees of this my will.

3. I BEQUEATH to my wife [name] a legacy of £ to be paid to her within one calendar month [or immediately] after my death free of duty and in priority to all other bequests hereby made (a).

Immediate
legacy.

PREC. 6.

Household effects to wife.

Real and residue of personal estate to trustees.

Upon trust to sell :

—and invest the proceeds :

—to pay income to wife during widowhood :

—on her death or marriage capital equally among children ;

—issue of deceased child taking parent's share.

Power to postpone conversion.

Widow's income to be made up to a certain sum.

4. I BEQUEATH to my said wife all articles of personal or domestic or household use or ornament (b) [free of duty].

5. As to all the rest of my estate and effects both real and personal I DEVISE AND BEQUEATH the same unto and to the use of my trustees hereinbefore named their heirs executors administrators and assigns (c) Upon trust that my trustees shall sell call in and convert into money such parts thereof as shall not consist of money And invest the moneys arising from such sale calling in and conversion and all other moneys arising from or forming part of my residuary estate And pay the annual income of such investments to my wife during her life if she shall so long continue my widow And from and after her death or marriage again as to the capital and income of the same investments hold the same in trust for my children in equal shares the respective shares of such children to be absolutely vested on my death (d) Provided that if any child of mine shall die in my lifetime leaving issue who shall survive me and who being male shall attain the age of twenty-one years or being female shall attain that age or marry under that age such issue shall take and if more than one equally between them the share which their his or her parent would have taken of and in my residuary estate if such parent had lived to attain a vested interest (e).

6. I DECLARE that my trustees shall have a discretionary power to postpone for such period as to them shall seem expedient the sale calling in or conversion of any parts of my real or personal estate but the unsold real estate and the outstanding personal estate shall be subject to the trusts hereinbefore contained concerning the investments aforesaid and the rents and yearly produce thereof shall be deemed annual income for the purposes of such trusts and the unsold real estate shall be deemed to be converted as from the time of my death and be transmissible as personal estate accordingly.

7 I DECLARE that if at any time or times during the widowhood of my wife the annual income of my estate shall be less than £—— it shall be lawful for my trustees to raise out of the capital thereof and pay to my widow such a sum as will make her income up to £—— a year (f).

8. [Investment clause. See note (b) to Prec. 4.]

9. Trustee interpretation clause as in Prec. 4, clause 6.

10. I DECLARE that so long as my wife lives and continues unmarried the power of appointing new trustees conferred by statute shall be exercisable by her (g). PREC. 6.
New trustees.

IN WITNESS &c.

NOTES to Precedent 6.

(a) Immediate legacies are liable to abatement unless priority is expressly given, Re Schweder, 1891, 3 Ch. 44; 60 L. J. Ch. 656; or unless given in lieu of dower, Blower v. Morret, 2 Ves. S. 420, when the wife is entitled to dower, Re Greenwood, 1892, 2 Ch. 295; 61 L. J. Ch. 558. The words "after making provision" for certain legacies will give them priority over a subsequent bequest, Re Olivieri, 56 S. J. 613.

(b) This is a short comprehensive form. For a fuller form, see Prec. 8, clause 3 and note thereto.

(c) If the testator is possessed of copyhold property, it should not be devised to the executors upon trust for sale, but the executors should be given power to sell it. See note to Prec. 5, ante, p. 151. In such a case the following form might be adopted:—

"As to all my copyhold property I direct my executors to sell the same as soon as conveniently may be after my decease and to hold the proceeds of such sale upon the same trusts as are hereinafter declared concerning the moneys to arise from the sale of the residue of my real and personal estate and as to all the rest of my estate and effects" [continue as in precedent].

(d) This form of gift to children is only appropriate to cases where all the testator's children have attained twenty-one years of age at the date when the will is made.

If the children have not all attained that age, the following form should be adopted:—

"Upon trust for such of my children as shall survive me and being sons or a son shall have attained or shall attain the age of twenty-one years and being daughters or a daughter shall have attained or shall attain that age or shall have married or shall marry under that age and if there shall be more than one such child then as tenants in common in equal shares."

(e) If the gift is to such children only as being sons or a son attain twenty-one, or being daughters or a daughter attain that age or marry, according to the form given in note (d), the substitutional gift will be in the following terms:—

"Provided that if any son or daughter of mine shall die in my lifetime or if any son of mine shall survive me but die before attaining the age of twenty-one years and in either of such cases any such son or daughter so dying shall leave issue born in my lifetime who shall survive me and if male attain the age of twenty-one years or if female attain that age or marry under that age such issue shall take and if more than one equally between them the share which their his or her parent would have taken in my residuary estate if such parent had survived me and attained a vested interest therein."

PREC. 6.

This form meets the case of a son who survives the testator and marries but dies under twenty-one years of age leaving issue.

(f) Great care should be taken in adopting this clause, which is only suitable to special cases. If the testator's circumstances were to change for the worse between the date of the will and his death, the insertion of such a clause might operate to exhaust the whole estate during the lifetime of the widow.

(g) The statutory power of appointing new trustees referred to in the above precedent is that conferred by the Trustee Act, 1893 (56 & 57 Vict. c. 53), which contains provisions (sects. 10, 11, and 12) superseding and replacing the corresponding provisions of the Conveyancing Acts, 1881 and 1882. But as it is desirable that the trustees should be independent of a tenant for life having powers under the Settled Land Acts, the power conferred by clause 10 of this precedent is not in all cases advisable. Sects. 10, 11, and 12 of the Trustee Act, 1893, are as follows:—

appointing
new trustees.

Sect. 10.—“(1.) Where a trustee, either original or substituted, and whether appointed by a Court or otherwise, is dead, or remains out of the United Kingdom for more than twelve months, or desires to be discharged from all or any of the trusts or powers reposed in or conferred on him, or refuses or is unfit to act therein, or is incapable of acting therein, then the person or persons nominated for the purpose of appointing new trustees by the instrument, if any, creating the trust, or if there is no such person, or no such person able and willing to act, then the surviving or continuing trustees or trustee for the time being, or the personal representatives of the last surviving or continuing trustee may, by writing, appoint another person or other persons to be a trustee or trustees in the place of the trustee dead, remaining out of the United Kingdom, desiring to be discharged, refusing, or being unfit or being incapable, as aforesaid.

(2.) On the appointment of a new trustee for the whole or any part of trust property—

- (a) the number of trustees may be increased; and
- (b) a separate set of trustees may be appointed for any part of the trust property held on trusts distinct from those relating to any other part or parts of the trust property, notwithstanding that no new trustees or trustee are or is to be appointed for other parts of the trust property, and any existing trustee may be appointed or remain one of such separate set of trustees; or, if only one trustee was originally appointed, then one separate trustee may be so appointed for the first-mentioned part; and
- (c) it shall not be obligatory to appoint more than one new trustee where only one trustee was originally appointed, or to fill up the original number of trustees where more than two trustees were originally appointed; but, except where only one trustee was originally appointed, a trustee shall not be discharged under this section from his trust unless there will be at least two trustees to perform the trust; and

NOTES TO
PREC. 6.

- (d) any assurance or thing requisite for vesting the trust property, or any part thereof, jointly in the persons who are the trustees, shall be executed or done.

(3.) Every new trustee so appointed, as well before as after all the trust property becomes by law, or by assurance or otherwise, vested in him, shall have the same powers, authorities, and discretions, and may in all respects act, as if he had been originally appointed a trustee by the instrument, if any, creating the trust.

(4.) The provisions of this section relative to a trustee who is dead include the case of a person nominated trustee in a will but dying before the testator, and those relative to a continuing trustee include a refusing or retiring trustee, if willing to act in the execution of the provisions of this section.

(5.) This section applies only if and as far as a contrary intention is not expressed in the instrument, if any, creating the trust, and shall have effect subject to the terms of that instrument and to any provisions therein contained.

Sect. 11.—“(1.) Where there are more than two trustees, if one of them by deed declares that he is desirous of being discharged from the trust, and if his co-trustees and such other person, if any, as is empowered to appoint trustees by deed consent to the discharge of the trustee and to the vesting in the co-trustees alone of the trust property, then the trustee desirous of being discharged shall be deemed to have retired from the trust, and shall, by the deed, be discharged therefrom under this Act, without any new trustee being appointed in his place. Retirement of trustees.

(2.) Any assurance or thing requisite for vesting the trust property in the continuing trustees alone shall be executed or done.

(3.) This section applies only if and as far as a contrary intention is not expressed in the instrument, if any, creating the trust, and shall have effect subject to the terms of that instrument and to any provisions therein contained.

Sect. 12.—“(1.) Where a deed by which a new trustee is appointed to perform any trust contains a declaration by the appointor to the effect that any estate or interest in any land subject to the trust or in any chattel so subject, or the right to recover and receive any debt or other thing in action so subject, shall vest in the persons who, by virtue of the deed, become and are the trustees for performing the trust, that declaration shall, without any conveyance or assignment, operate to vest in Vesting of trust property in new or continuing trustees.

those persons as joint tenants, and for the purposes of the trust, that estate, interest, or right.

(2.) Where a deed by which a retiring trustee is discharged under this Act contains such a declaration as in this section mentioned by the retiring and continuing trustees, and by the other person, if any, empowered to appoint trustees, that declaration shall, without any conveyance or assignment, operate to vest in the continuing trustees alone, as joint tenants, and for the purposes of the trust, the estate, interest, or right to which the declaration relates.

(3.) This section does not extend to any legal estate or interest in copyhold or customary land, or to land conveyed by way of mortgage for securing money subject to the trust, or to any such share, stock, annuity, or property as is only transferable in books kept by a company or other body, or in manner directed by or under Act of Parliament.

(4.) For purposes of registration of the deed in any registry, the person or persons making the declaration shall be deemed the conveying party or parties, and the conveyance shall be deemed to be made by him or them under a power conferred by this Act.

(5.) This section applies only to deeds executed after the 31st of December, 1881."

Public
Trustee.

Under the Public Trustee Act, 1906 (6 Edw. 7, c. 55), the Public Trustee, who is a corporation sole with perpetual succession (sect. 1 (2)), may be appointed a trustee or (sect. 4) a custodian trustee. (Miscellaneous Forms, post, p. 388.) See Re Cherry's Trusts, 1914, 1 Ch. 83; 83 L. J. Ch. 142. The fees of the Public Trustee are regulated by the Public Trustee (Fees) Order, 1912. The Order is set out in 1912 W. N. pt. 2, p. 187; Current Index, 1912, p. clxix. And see Re Bentley, 1914, 2 Ch. 456; 84 L. J. Ch. 54. The Order of 1912 has been amended by the Public Trustee (Fees) Order, 1917, which will be found in 1917 W. N. pt. 2, p. 113.

I EMPOWER my trustees in their discretion but during any prior interest only with the consent of the person or persons having such interest to raise any part or parts not exceeding in the whole one moiety of the then expectant presumptive or vested share of any child or other issue of mine in the said trust fund and to pay or apply the same for the advancement or benefit of such child or other issue whether under the age of twenty-one years or not.

6. I DECLARE that if any son or daughter of mine shall die in my lifetime and any child or children of such son or daughter shall be living at my death then the said trust fund or the share thereof whereto the son or each son so dying would if living at my death and if then of the age of twenty-one years or whereto the daughter or each daughter so dying would if living at my death have been entitled under the trusts aforesaid shall be held by my trustees upon such trusts and subject to such provisions in favour of the child or children of such son or daughter respectively as the same would have been held upon if as regards a son so dying such son were a daughter and had died immediately after my death or as regards a daughter so dying such daughter had died immediately after my death AND subject to the trusts and powers hereinbefore declared and to every exercise of such powers I direct my trustees to hold the same fund IN TRUST for such persons for such interests and generally in such manner as my wife she continuing my widow at her death shall by her will or a codicil thereto appoint AND in default of such appointment or subject to any partial appointment IN TRUST for the person or persons who at the death or future marriage of my wife shall be of my blood and of kin to me and who under the statutes for the distribution of the personal effects of intestates would be entitled to my personal estate if I were to die intestate immediately after the death or marriage of my widow such persons if more than one to take in the proportions prescribed by the same statutes.

7. I APPOINT after the death or future marriage of my wife the said — and — or the survivor of them to be the guardians or guardian of my children during their respective minorities (g.

IN WITNESS &c.

NOTES to Precedent 7.

(a) See note (k) to Prec. 8.

(b) If a testator should be possessed of copyhold property, refer to notes to last precedent, note (c).

(c) Seised is a technical word, signifying "possession of such an estate in land as was anciently thought worthy to be held by a free man" (Williams on Seisin), and in the absence of a qualifying context the word is construed according to its technical meaning. Thus, a testator devised all real estate of which he might die seised; lands to which he was lawfully entitled, but which were in the wrongful possession of strangers, the testator having no "seisin" either at law or in fact, did not pass by the devise, Leach v. Jay, 9 Ch. D. 42; 47 L. J. Ch. 876.

(d) Any land, or any estate or interest in land, which under a will is subject to a trust or direction for sale, and for the application or disposal of the money to arise from the sale, or the income of that money, or the income of the land until sale, for the benefit of any person or persons for life, or any other limited period, and whether absolutely or subject to a trust for accumulation of income for payment of debts or other purpose, is deemed to be settled land within the meaning of the Settled Land Acts, and the person for the time being beneficially entitled to the income of the land until sale is deemed the tenant for life thereof; and the provisions of those Acts as to settled land apply to such land; but, the powers of those Acts are not to be exercised without the leave of the Court. The powers of sale given in the will to the trustees for sale may be exercised by them as long as no order has been made by the Court giving leave to exercise the powers conferred by the Settled Land Act. The order of the Court requires registration as a lis pendens, otherwise any person dealing with the trustees of the settlement will not be affected by the order; 45 & 46 Vict. c. 38, s. 63; 47 & 48 Vict. c. 18, ss. 6 and 7.

(e) See note (b), Prec. 4.

(f) By the 26th section of Lord Cranworth's Act (23 & 24 Vict. c. 145), a maintenance clause was imported into all wills executed after the 28th August, 1860. As to that clause, see Re Breed's Will, 1 Ch. D. 226; 45 L. J. Ch. 191; Re Cotton, 1 Ch. D. 232; 45 L. J. Ch. 201; Re George, 5 Ch. D. 837; 47 L. J. Ch. 118. Maintenance of infants.

That section was repealed by the Conveyancing Act, 1881, and is amended and superseded by sect. 43 of the latter Act, which, if a contrary intention is not expressed, applies to all wills, whenever executed; and authorizes the application for maintenance of the income of a trust fund to which an infant is entitled only in contingency. But this section does not authorize the allowance of maintenance where, apart from the Act, the infant, on attaining twenty-one, would only be entitled to the legacy without interest. For instance, a simple legacy to an infant contingent on attaining twenty-one is not "property held in trust for an" 44 & 45 Vict. c. 41, s. 43.

infant contingently on his attaining twenty-one:" such a legacy does not carry interest, the residuary legatee takes the whole residue and the whole income thereof unless and until the infant attains twenty-one, Re Inman, 1893, 3 Ch. 518; 62 L. J. Ch. 940, and there is nothing to which the section can apply. But it has been held that the section does apply to the case of a legacy in trust for an infant for life contingently on attaining twenty-one, Re Boulter, 1918, 2 Ch. 40; 87 L. J. Ch. 385; and some of the decisions given before that case upon maintenance in the case of contingent legacies now appear doubtful. If the legacy, notwithstanding the contingency, is given with interest in the meantime, the section will apply, and it will be necessary for the executors to set apart the legacy and invest it; any income not applied for maintenance must be accumulated, and the accumulations to the time of the legatee's death will, if the legatee should die in infancy, belong to the infant, Re Buckley's Trusts, 22 Ch. D. 583; 52 L. J. Ch. 439; Re Judkin's Trusts, 25 Ch. D. 743; 53 L. J. Ch. 496; Re Dickson, 29 Ch. D. 331; 54 L. J. Ch. 510; Re Wells, 43 Ch. D. 281; 59 L. J. Ch. 113; Re Bowlby, 1904, 2 Ch. 685; 73 L. J. Ch. 810. See Re Holford, 1894, 3 Ch. 30; 63 L. J. Ch. 637; Russell v. Russell, 1903, 1 Ir. R. 168. And see post, p. 236.

Where there is a gift by will of a share of residue, to be paid or transferred to the legatee on his attaining a particular age, with a direction that in the meantime the income of the share shall be applied for his maintenance, the share is vested and not contingent, Re Gossling, 1903, 1 Ch. 448; 72 L. J. Ch. 433. And compare Re Kirkley, 1918, W. N. 36; 87 L. J. Ch. 247.

As to the accumulations if the infant attains twenty-one, see Re Humphreys, 1893, 3 Ch. 1; 62 L. J. Ch. 498.

As to reading sect. 43 as incorporated with the will, see Re Moody, 1895, 1 Ch. 101; 64 L. J. Ch. 174; Re Abrahams, 1911, 1 Ch. 108; 80 L. J. Ch. 83.

Where there is a bequest of personalty upon trust to divide it equally between such of the children of A. as shall survive the testator and attain twenty-one, the first child who attains twenty-one is not entitled, in addition to his share of the corpus and the income of such share, to the whole of the income of the fund until another child attains twenty-one (as was decided by North, J., in Re Jeffery, 1891, 1 Ch. 671; 60 L. J. Ch. 470), but the income will be divisible into as many parts as there are children in existence, and the first of such children who attains twenty-one will be entitled to his share of such income only, the remaining shares of income being applicable to the maintenance of the infant children, Re Holford, ubi sup., and this is so whether the class is or is not capable of increase, Re Jeffery, 1895, 2 Ch. 577; 64 L. J. Ch. 830. And see Re Williams' Settlement, 1911, 1 Ch. 441; 80 L. J. Ch. 249.

Where a testator has by his will made a settlement of his estate, subject to a prior trust for the accumulation of the whole income during a term of years not exceeding the legal limit, the Court has, in the absence of special circumstances, no jurisdiction to order an allowance to be paid out of the income for maintenance and education of the person who will, if he is living at the end of the term, be the tenant for life, even if there is no other way in which a provision can be made for his maintenance and education, Re Alford, 32 Ch. D. 383; 55 L. J. Ch. 659. As to what will constitute special circumstances, see Havelock v. Havelock, 17 Ch. D. 807; 50 L. J. Ch. 778, in which case, however, the devisee entitled to the accumulations in the event of the infants dying under age consented to the order for maintenance. This circumstance is not referred to in the head-note to the report in 17 Ch. D. 807, and has been frequently overlooked.

Where there was a direction in the will to set apart the legacy, the Court of Appeal held that this amounted to a gift of the intermediate income, Re Medlock, 55 L. J. Ch. 738. See Re Clements, 1894, 1 Ch. 665; 63 L. J. Ch. 326; Re Woodin, 1895, 2 Ch. 309; 64 L. J. Ch. 501.

In Brophy v. Bellamy, L. R. 8 Ch. 798; 43 L. J. Ch. 183, where trustees of a will were authorized to apply income of presumptive shares towards the maintenance of infants, notwithstanding the father's ability, the Court, in a suit for administration of the estate, would not control the discretion of the trustees, and at the request of the trustees made an order for payment of the income of a fund in Court to the father, on his undertaking to apply it for the benefit of the infants. In Re Bryant, 1894, 1 Ch. 324; 63 L. J. Ch. 197, trustees who had a discretionary power to allow maintenance declined to exercise the power, the mother of the infants having an ample income and maintaining them sufficiently, and the Court refused to interfere with the trustees in the exercise of their discretion. In Re Howarth, L. R. 8 Ch. 415; 42 L. J. Ch. 316, it was held that on an application by an infant for maintenance, the Court has jurisdiction, without suit, to charge expenses of past maintenance and the costs of the application on the corpus of freeholds to which the infant was entitled in fee simple. But see Cadman v. Cadman, 33 Ch. D. 397; 55 L. J. Ch. 833, where Re Howarth was doubted. And see Re Badger, 1913, 1 Ch. 385; 82 L. J. Ch. 264, where Cadman v. Cadman was followed.

NOTES to Precedent 8.

(a) For a short form of a bequest of personal effects, see Prec. 6, clause 4. It often happens that particular articles which the testator would have wished to be the subject of a specific bequest are left to pass under the general words of such a bequest as this, or to pass to a residuary legatee. It would be well, therefore, to inquire whether the testator attaches any particular value to such of the following articles as he may possess or desires any particular one of the following items of property to be included in or excepted from a general gift.

1. Time-pieces, clocks, watches.

2. Jewels, necklaces, pendants, ear-rings, brooches, tie-pins, bracelets, bangles, watch-chains, paste ornaments.

NOTES TO
PREC. 8.

3. Military, naval, civil, masonic, or athletic prizes, medals, or decorations, Brooke v. Warwick, 2 De G. & S. 425.

4. Pewter or enamel articles.

5. Silks, furs, or lace.

6. Books, albums, portfolios, manuscripts, Willis v. Curtois, 1 Be. 189; 8 L. J. (N. S.) Ch. 105; Re Fortlage, 1916, W. N. 214 (stamp album), disapproved in Re Masson, 1917, W. N. 252; 86 L. J. Ch. 753.

7. Portraits, pictures, pastels, drawings, sketches, cartoons, engravings, lithographs, prints, etchings, mezzotints, aquatints, photographs, photo-gravures, statuary, bas-reliefs, Re Whaley, 1908, 1 Ch. 615; 77 L. J. Ch. 367; Re Layard, 85 L. J. Ch. 505; Re Du Maurier, 32 T. L. R. 579.

8. Artistic and scientific utensils and appliances; e.g. easels, paints, paint-brushes, telescopes, sextants, photographic cameras, &c., Brooke v. Warwick, ubi sup.

9. Musical instruments, pianolas, player-pianos, phonographs, gramophones, musical boxes.

10. Horses, mares, ponies, jennets, donkeys, mules, colts, foals, fillies.

11. Carts, carriages, broughams, landaus, ralli-carts, governess-carts, dog-carts, outside-cars, phaetons, victorias, waggons, waggonettes, gigs, drays; saddlery, harness-sets, saddles, spurs, driving and riding whips, hunting-crops; motor cars, auto-cars, motor and other bicycles; airships, aeroplanes, monoplane, biplanes; stable, coach-house and garage furniture and utensils. Re Howe, 1908, W. N. 223; Re Hall, 1912, W. N. 175; Re Ashburnham, 1912, W. N. 234; Re White, 1916, 1 Ch. 172; 85 L. J. Ch. 368; Re Fortlage, 1916, W. N. 214.

12. Yachts, launches, boats, canoes, punts, oars, sculls, paddles, punting-poles.

13. Firearms, cannons, guns, air-guns, rifles, fowling-pieces, pistols, swords, lances, daggers, dirks, shields, bows, arrows, weapons.

14. Garden tools and implements, plants in pots, orchids, &c., Re Owen, 78 L. T. 643; farming stock both live and dead, farming implements, Blake v. Gibbs, 5 Russ. 13, n.; Swinfen v. Swinfen, 29 Be. 207; 4 L. J. (N. S.) Ch. 194; Burbridge v. Burbridge, 16 W. R. 76; 37 L. J. Ch. 47.

15. Musical, dramatic or literary copyrights, Copyright Act, 1911, ss. 5 (2), 17 (2).

16. Dogs, cats, birds, domestic pets, Cole v. Fitzgerald, 1 S. & St. 189; 3 Russ. 301 and note; Re Fothergill, Sol. J. vol. 60, p. 652.

17. Collections of moths, butterflies, postage-stamps, autographs, coins, curios, &c., Dutton v. Hockenhull, 22 W. R. 701; and as to stamps, see cases under 6 above.

See note (d) to Prec. 5. And see Jarm. Wills, ch. 35, iv. B (2).

Bequests of household
furniture.

Household furniture comprises everything that contributes to the use or convenience of the householder, or the ornament of the house. Kelly v. Powlet, Amb. 605. In that case books were held not to pass; but under a gift of the testator's furniture and all his other articles of domestic use or ornament, books have been held to pass, Cornewall v. Cornewall, 12 Sim. 303; 10 L. J. Ch. 364. Where a testator devised his dwelling-house, garden and premises to E. for her life, "and also all and singular the household furniture and other household effects " of and belonging to him in the said dwelling-house and premises at the time of his decease, not only books, but wines and liquors, turning-lathes and a sawing-machine, a stock of ivory and mahogany, and a pair of pistols, were held to be included, Cole v. Fitzgerald, 1 N. & S. 189; 1 L. J. (O. S.) Ch. 91, and V.-C. Shadwell was of opinion that a pony, cow, and four fowling pieces would pass if proved to be kept for the (use and) defence of the house, and that a haystack, if for use, would pass, but not if it were for sale; see the same case, on appeal, 3 Rus. 301. Books and wines were held to pass by a bequest of all the testator's " furniture, linen, plate, pictures, carriages, horses, and other live and dead stock in his use and possession," Hutchinson v. Smith, 1 N. R. 513. In a bequest of all the furniture " except plate and pictures " in the testator's house at his death, it was held that the exception applied only to plate properly so called, and not to plated goods, Holden v. Ramsbottom, 4 Gif. 205. Under a bequest of all the goods and chattels whatsoever in and about testator's dwelling-house and outhouses at T. at his death, it was held that running-horses passed, Gower v. Gower, 2 Ed. 201. In Brooke v. Warwick, 2 De G. & S. 425, telescopes were held to pass under the words " household furniture "; and under a bequest of the pictures and books which might be at testator's death in, upon or about his mansion, it was held that pictures removed from the mansion to be cleaned, and books sent to be repaired, passed; but that articles purchased for the mansion, but not sent home at testator's death, did not pass; but as to these last-mentioned articles, compare Field v. Peckett, 29 Be. 573; 30 L. J. Ch. 813. So also in Pellew v. Horsford, 25 L. J. Ch. 352, an astronomical clock, which had been thirty years at a chronometer maker's, who had directions to sell it if a fair price could be obtained, passed under the specific bequest of testator's " household furniture." See also Willis v. Curtois, 1 Be. 189; 8 L. J. (N. S.) Ch. 105; Domville v. Taylor, 32 Bea. 604; Rawlinson v. Rawlinson, 3 Ch. D. 302. Where a testator bequeathed as follows: " all my interest in my house at L., the furniture, books, pictures, wines, &c., &c.," and after the date of his will removed from L., taking his furniture, &c., with him to S., where he afterwards purchased more of such articles, and subsequently died at S., it was held that the legatee was entitled to the furniture, books, pictures, wines and plate, which the testator had at his death, Norris v. Norris, 2 Col. 719; 15 L. J. Ch. 420; but see Colleton v. Garth, 6 Sim. 19; 2 L. J. (N. S.) Ch. 75; Houlding v. Cross, 1 Jur. N. S. 250. Words of locality thus placed in connexion with gifts of chattels often render it doubtful whether they are intended to restrict the gift to the chattels actually at the locality referred to; but a general gift of all in a certain locality " or elsewhere " will pass the general personal estate, In b. Scarborough, 6 Jur. N. S. 1166; 30 L. J. P. 85. A gift of furniture in a particular house will not pass plate sometimes there used, sometimes elsewhere, Wilkins v. Jodrell, 11 W. R. 588. Under a bequest of " household effects of every description and all other the contents of the said dwelling-house," jewellery deposited at a bank was held to pass as notionally in the house, Re Lea, 104 L. T. 253.

Fixtures.

A bequest of "household furniture" has been held to carry tenants' fixtures, Paton v. Sheppard, 10 Sim. 186; but, as a general rule, such a bequest will not pass the tenants' fixtures in a leasehold house occupied by the testator, Finney v. Grice, 10 Ch. D. 13; 48 L. J. Ch. 247; Re Seton-Smith, 1902, 1 Ch. 717; 71 L. J. Ch. 386. See also Amos & Ferard, On Fixtures, 248 et seq.; and see Norton v. Dashwood, 1893, 2 Ch. 497; 65 L. J. Ch. 737; and Re Chesterfield's Settled Estates, 1911, 1 Ch. 237; 80 L. J. Ch. 183. The cases on bequests of "household furniture," "household goods," and "household stuff," will be found collected in 1 Rep. Leg. 253 et seq.; see also Jarm. Wills, ch. 35; Manning v. Purcell, 7 D. M. & G. 55; 24 L. J. Ch. 522; Tempest v. Tempest, 2 K. & J. 635; 26 L. J. Ch. 501.

articles.

Wines and other consumable stores should always be given to the legatee absolutely, and no attempt be made to create life or other temporary interests in property of this description, of which the enjoyment consists in their consumption. Indeed, the effect of giving a life interest in consumable articles is to entitle the legatee absolutely, Randall v. Russell, 3 Mer. 194; Andrew v. Andrew, 1 Col. 690; see also Twining v. Powell, 2 Coll. 262. But this does not apply to the stock-in-trade of a wine merchant, Phillips v. Beal, 32 Be. 25, or to farming stock and implements of husbandry, Groves v. Wright, 2 K. & J. 347; Myers v. Washbrook, 1901, 1 K. B. 330; 70 L. J. K. B. 357, or other consumable articles forming part of the stock-in-trade of a business bequeathed to one for life, Cockayne v. Harrison, L. R. 13 Eq. 432; 41 L. J. Ch. 509. A gift of farming implements and stock to a person for life, but with a direction that he is not to be liable to account for depreciation, carries the absolute interest, Breton v. Mockett, 9 Ch. D. 95; 47 L. J. Ch. 754. As to wearing apparel, see Re Hall's Will, 1 Jur. N. S. 974. Deer in a park do not belong to this class of things, Paine v. Warwick (Countess), 1914, 2 K. B. 483; 83 L. J. K. B. 895.

A distinction, however, is to be taken between a specific and a residuary gift for life of goods quæ ipso usu consumuntur: if the gift is specific, it is an absolute gift of the property, but if residuary, the things must be sold, the produce invested, and the interest thereof paid to the legatee for life. See 2 Wms. Exors. 1127.

(b) Compare Prec. 11, clause 17, and see note (l) thereto.

(c) As to legacies to charities, see Prec. 24, clause 6, and note.

(d) If the testator is possessed of copyhold property, refer to note (c), Prec. 5.

(e) In Re Dowling's Trusts, L. R. 14 Eq. 463, the gift was in trust for all the testator's children who being sons should attain twenty-one, or being daughters should attain that age or marry, and if any of his children should die before attaining a vested interest leaving issue, their shares to go to their children, with a proviso that on the marriage of any daughter a moiety of her share should be settled; it was held that the proviso applied only to marriage under twenty-one, and that a daughter who had attained twenty-one and not married was absolutely entitled to the whole of her share.

If the trusts of a daughter's share do not exhaust the whole interest originally given to her, the absolute interest remains subject to the trusts so far only as they are effectual, Hancock v. Watson, 1902, A. C. 14; Re Cohen, 1915, W. N. 361; Re Harrison, 1918, 2 Ch. 59; 87 L. J. Ch. 433.

NOTES TO
PREC. 8.

(f) By the Trustee Act, 1893 (56 & 57 Vict. c. 53), s. 44, as altered by the Trustee Act, 1894 (57 Vict. c. 10, s. 3), it is enacted, in reproduction of and in substitution for sect. 2 of the Confirmation of Sales Act, 1862 (25 & 26 Vict. c. 108), which is repealed, as follows:—

Sect. 44.—“(1.) Where a trustee or other person is for the time being authorised to dispose of land by way of sale, exchange, partition, or enfranchisement, the High Court may sanction his so disposing of the land with an exception or reservation of any minerals, and with or without rights and powers of or incidental to the working, getting or carrying away of the minerals, or so disposing of the minerals, with or without the said rights or powers, separately from the residue of the land.

Power to sanction sale of land or minerals separately.

(2.) Any such trustee, or other person with the said sanction previously obtained, may, unless forbidden by the instrument creating the trust or direction, from time to time, without any further application to the Court, so dispose of any such land or minerals.

(3.) Nothing in this section shall derogate from any power which a trustee may have under the Settled Land Acts, 1882 to 1890, or otherwise.”

Sect. 17 of the Settled Land Act, 1882, effects the same object as sect. 44 of the Trustee Act, but does away with the necessity of obtaining the previous sanction of the Court. Unless it is thought desirable to set out the trustees' powers, the words in brackets may be left out, and the provisions of the Trustee and Settled Land Acts be relied upon. Executors selling as such, can reserve mines and minerals without the leave of the Court, Re Cavendish and Arnold's Contract, 1912, W. N. 83. As to a sale by mortgagees, see Conveyancing Act, 1911, s. 4.

Executors.

(g) It is enacted by 33 & 34 Vict. c. 35, that from the 1st August, 1870, “all rents, annuities, dividends and other periodical payments in the nature of income (whether reserved or made payable under an instrument in writing or otherwise) shall, like interest on money lent, be considered as accruing from day to day, and shall be apportionable in respect of time accordingly.” The Act does not apply to policies of assurance (sect. 6), and its provisions do not extend to any case in which it is expressly stipulated that no apportionment shall take place (sect. 7); Re Edwards, 1918, 1 Ch. 142; 87 L. J. Ch. 248.

Apportionment Act, 1870.

See, as to this Act, Clive v. Clive, L. R. 7 Ch. 433; 41 L. J. Ch. 386; and as to its affecting the construction of a will of earlier date, Jones v. Ogle, L. R. 8 Ch. 192; 42 L. J. Ch. 334. In Whitehead v. Whitehead, L. R. 16 Eq. 528, it was held that dividends on shares specifically bequeathed were not apportionable as between the specific legatee and the testator's estate; but see Pollock v. Pollock, L. R. 18 Eq. 329; 44 L. J. Ch. 168. The rents of real estate devised are apportionable between the executor of the testator and the devisee, Capron v. Capron, L. R. 17 Eq. 288; 43 L. J. Ch. 677, whether the devise is residuary or specific, Hasluck v. Pedley, L. R. 19 Eq. 271; 44 L. J. Ch. 143; see also Re Ford, 1911, 1 Ch. 455; 80 L. J. Ch. 355. And the Act applies to all instruments whether coming into operation before or after the passing of the Act, Re Cline's Estate, L. R. 18 Eq. 213; Hasluck v. Pedley, ubi sup.; Constable v. Constable, 11 Ch. D. 681; 48 L. J. Ch. 621. A share of profits of a newspaper was not within the Act, Re Cox's Trusts, 9 Ch. D. 159; 47 L. J. Ch. 735; but a bonus to the shareholders of a public company was apportioned, Re Griffith, 12 Ch. D. 655, distinguished in Re Sale, 1913, 2 Ch. 697; 83 L. J. Ch. 180. And as to dividends declared after the death of a tenant for life, see Re Muirhead, 1916, 2 Ch. 181; 85 L. J. Ch. 598. In Swansea Bank v. Thomas, 4 Ex. D. 94; 48 L. J. Ex. 344, the Act was applied in a case between lessor and the trustee of a liquidating lessee; but see the reporter's query. Parish rates are not within the Act, Re Wearmouth Crown Glass Co., 19 Ch. D. 640.

(i) See note (g), Prec. 12.

(k) The dispositions of the testator's property effected by this and the preceding form are substantially the same; but in Prec. 7 the trustees' powers of management, investment, &c., are intermingled with the beneficial trusts, thereby interfering, to some extent, with the continuity, and preventing an easy grasp of the general effect of the will: whereas in Prec. 8 the trusts are first declared, in the simplest form, unencumbered by any details of management, and the ancillary powers are relegated to the latter part of the will. It is submitted that this is the preferable course, and that clauses and provisions which are nothing more than machinery for carrying out the will should not be interspersed amongst the disposing clauses. The trustees' powers are only means to an end, which is shewn by the trusts declared, and the means should not obscure the end. It is a great advantage when the general effect of a will can be readily understood by layman and lawyer alike, and it is conceived that this advantage is likely to be best attained if the principal trusts, defining the extent of the interests of the beneficiaries, are kept distinct from the secondary powers, defining the authority of the trustees and indicating their modus operandi.

Waste.

Tenant for life.

Equitable waste.

Owner of defeasible fee.

(b) Where it is intended that the cestui que trust shall enjoy the proceeds to arise from the fall of timber, &c., the estate of the trustees should be made unimpeachable for waste. Tenant for life, impeachable for waste, cannot cut timber at all, except periodically on a timber estate where the growth and cutting of timber is the mode of cultivation of the estate; but the general law as to what is timber is varied by the special customs of different localities, Honywood v. Honwood, 1. R. 18 Eq. 306; 43 L. J. Ch. 652; Dashwood v. Magniac, 1891, 3 Ch. 306; 60 L. J. Ch. 809. Tenant for life under a written instrument which expressly declares his estate to be without impeachment of waste, may cut timber in a husbandlike manner for his own benefit, may open mines, and commit other similar acts with impunity, Waldo v. Waldo, 12 Sim. 107; 10 L. J. Ch. 312; Lord Lovat v. Duchess of Leeds, 2 Dr. & S. 75; but he cannot pull down or deface the family mansion, or fell ornamental timber, or commit other injuries of a like nature, Wellesley v. Wellesley, 6 Sim. 497; Duke of Leeds v. Lord Amherst, 2 Ph. 117. See also Micklethwait v. Micklethwait, 1 De G. & J. 504; 26 L. J. Ch. 721; Morris v. Morris, 3 De G. & J. 323; 28 L. J. Ch. 329; Gent v. Harrison, Joh. 517; 29 L. J. Ch. 68; Gordon v. Woodford, 6 Jur. N. S. 59; 29 L. J. Ch. 222; Weld-Blundell v. Wolseley, 1903, 2 Ch. 664; 73 L. J. Ch. 45. And an owner in fee, whose estate is defeasible by an executory devise over on his dying without leaving issue living at his death, is, as to equitable waste, in the same position as a tenant for life unimpeachable for waste, Turner v. Wright, 2 D. F. & J. 234; 29 L. J. Ch. 598; Blake v. Peters, 1 D. J. & S. 345; 32 L. J. Ch. 200. Where tenant for life impeachable for waste cut timber, but not otherwise than in due course of management, he was held entitled to the income of the proceeds, and on his death the next tenant for life, who was dispunishable for waste, was held entitled to the capital, Lowndes v. Norton, 6 Ch. D. 139; 46 L. J. Ch. 613. And where tenant for life, unimpeachable for waste, cut ornamental timber, but under such circumstances that the Court would have directed it to be cut, he was held entitled to the proceeds, Baker v. Sebright, 13 Ch. D. 179; 49 L. J. Ch. 65. As to cutting ripe timber, where tenant for life is impeachable for waste, see sect. 35 of the Settled Land Act, 1882. See also, on the subject of waste in general, the notes to Bowles' Case, in Tud. L. C. R. P.; to Garth v. Cotton, in 1 Wh. & Tud. L. C. Eq., and the first chapter of Yool's Treatise on Waste, Nuisance, and Trespass. As to working new seams of an existing mine, see Spencer v. Scurr, 31 Be. 334; 31 L. J. Ch. 808; and as to abandoned or dormant mines, Bagot v. Bagot, 32 Be. 509; 33 L. J. Ch. 115. See also Earl Cowley v. Wellesley, 35 Be. 635; Elias v. Snowdon Slate Quarries Co., 1 App. Cas. 454, 466; 48 L. J. Ch. 811.

PREC. 9.

(c) By the ordinary rule, an executor is allowed, for the payment and satisfaction of pecuniary and specific legacies, twelve months from the testator's decease; this being considered a reasonable time for enabling him to ascertain the solvency of the estate, and get in the assets, Benson v. Maude, 6 Mad. 15; Brooke v. Lewis, ib. 358. An executor, however, may, if he chooses, discharge a legacy at an earlier period, since it is due at the testator's decease, and the postponement of a year is merely made for convenience, which may in some cases require less; for if the solvency of the estate is beyond all question, and the property is immediately available, there is no reason for deferring payment; and the adherence, in such circumstances, to the rule which allows a year, is an abuse of it. Of course, a direction to pay or deliver legacies at an earlier period operates only as between claimants under the will and ought not, any more than the general rule which allows a year, to be acted upon by an executor until the ascertained circumstances of the estate justify the measure, in other words, until he is satisfied of its sufficiency to answer debts and legacies; if indeed, looking at the possible existence of latent demands, the sufficiency of the estate can ever be said to be completely ascertained.

When legacies are to be paid.

Direction to pay at an earlier period.

(d) The general rule is that where an annuity is given to a person by a will creating the annuity, the annuitant takes for life only, Yates v. Maddan, 3 M'N. & G. 532; 21 L. J. Ch. 24, and the authorities there discussed. A bequest of an annuity simply implies no more than a gift for life, unless there is something else in the will to enlarge the bequest, Potter v. Baker, 13 Be. 273; Blewitt v. Roberts, Cr. & Ph. 274; 10 L. J. Ch. 342; Nichols v. Hawkes, 10 Ha. 342; 22 L. J. Ch. 255; Lett v. Randall, 2 D. F. & J. 388; 30 L. J. Ch. 110; but the question is entirely one of intention, to be deduced from the words of the whole will, Banks v. Braithwaite, 32 L. J. Ch. 198. An annuity is perpetual where the testator indicates an intention to that effect by segregating and appropriating a portion of his property, from the profits of which the annuity is to be paid; or where the testator dedicates the whole of his property, or the whole of a fund, to the payment of annuities, in such a way as to shew that he treats the annuities as a mode of calculating the shares which the annuitants take in the property or fund, Stokes v. Heron, 12 C. & F. 161. And an annuity to A. directed "to be purchased in the British funds," accompanied with a direction to sell certain lands, "the produce to go to the carrying out of the aforesaid annuity," was held to be perpetual annuity, Kerr v. Middlesex Hospital, 2 D. M. & G. 576; 22 L. J. Ch. 355; see, however, Re Grove's Trusts, 1 Gif. 74; 28 L. J. (N. S.) Ch. 536. A direction to buy an annuity in the public funds means to purchase such an amount in the funds as

Annuity for life, or perpetual.

PREC. 9.

will suffice to produce the annuity; and where a fund is to be purchased for A., that fund so purchased belongs to A., Ross v. Borer, 2 J. & H. 469; 31 L. J. Ch. 709. And if a certain amount per annum is given, and on the construction of the whole will this is held to be a gift in perpetuity, but the testator has not specified out of what particular property or fund the annual sum is to be provided, the annuitant is entitled to the best security to be obtained, Hill v. Rattey, 2 J. & H. 634; 31 L. J. Ch. 380; Hicks v. Ross, 1891, 3 Ch. 499; 60 L. J. Ch. 853. See also Hedges v. Harpur, 3 De G. & J. 129; 27 L. J. Ch. 742; Mansergh v. Campbell, 3 De G. & J. 232; 28 L. J. Ch. 61; Hicks v. Ross, L. R. 14 Eq. 141; 41 L. J. Ch. 677; Hawkins, Constr. Wills, 165. In Wilkins v. Jodrell, 13 Ch. D. 564; 49 L. J. Ch. 26, the testator bequeathed an annuity to A., and in the event of her death to be continued to her children for their maintenance and education; the annuity endured throughout the life of the last survivor of A.'s children. In Re Morgan, 1893, 3 Ch. 222; 62 L. J. Ch. 789, annuities were bequeathed to several annuitants "or their descendants." It was held that the several annuitants took annuities for life only, with substitutionary gifts to the respective descendants, if any, living at the testator's death, of such of them as should not survive the testator. In Townsend v. Ascroft, 1917, 2 Ch. 14; 86 L. J. Ch. 517, a testator gave to his daughter an annuity of 30*l.* for her life, with a general power of leaving it by will. The annuity was charged on the testator's real estate. The daughter married and by her will appointed "the said annuity of 30*l.*" to her daughter absolutely. It was held that the appointee was entitled to a perpetual annuity of 30*l.* Also where a testator directed his trustees to pay a "further annuity" to his widow for the maintenance and education of his infant daughter till his daughter should attain the age of twenty-one, and the widow died during the minority of the daughter, it was held that the further annuity did not cease with the death of the widow, Re Yates, 1901, 2 Ch. 438; 70 L. J. Ch. 725.

Income of fund inadequate.

Another point which has frequently occurred in gifts of annuities is, whether, in the event of the annual income of the estate or fund out of which the annuity is payable proving inadequate for the purpose, the corpus or capital is applicable to supply the deficiency.

Cases in which corpus is not applicable to make good the deficiency.

The question is entirely one of intention, to be gathered from the words of the particular will. If the annuity is made payable out of the rents and profits of real estate devised to trustees, who are directed on the death of the annuitant to convey the estate to others, Foster v. Smith, 1 Ph. 629; 15 L. J. Ch. 183; or out of the interest, dividends, and produce of a fund, followed by a trust to transfer the corpus on the death of the annuitant, expressed in words indicating an intention to leave the corpus undiminished, Earle v. Bellingham, 24 Be. 445; or if the testator in any way manifests an intention that the fund shall be preserved in its integrity during the life of the annuitant, and in that state go over, Baker v. Baker, 6 H. L. C. 616; 27 L. J. Ch. 417; Michell v. Wilton, L. R. 20 Eq. 269; 44 L. J. Ch. 490; then the corpus is not applicable to make good the deficiency. See also Miller v. Huddlestons, is applicable.

But where real estate is devised subject to and chargeable with the payment of an annuity, Picard v. Mitchell, 14 Be. 103; Byam v. Sutton, 19 Be. 553; or a residue is given "from and after payment" of an annuity "and subject thereto," Birch v. Sherratt, L. R. 2 Ch. 644; 36 L. J. Ch. 925; Re Mason, 8 Ch. D. 411; 47 L. J. Ch. 660; or where chattels real are charged with an annuity, and there is no direction that the annuity is to be paid out of income only, Pearson v. Helliwell, L. R. 18 Eq. 411; or if the testator directs the setting apart or the investment of so much money as will produce a certain annual sum, May v. Bennett, 1 Rus. 370; Wright v. Callender, 2 D. M. & G. 652; 21 L. J. Ch. 787; Mills v. Drewitt, 20 Be. 632; 48 L. J. Ch. 266; Miner v. Baldwin, 1 S. & G. 522; Bright v. Larcher, 3 De G. & J. 148; 28 L. J. Ch. 837; Carmichael v. Gee, 5 App. Cas. 588; 49 L. J. Ch. 829; or if the testator directs that not only the interest of a fund, but the fund itself, is to be held in trust to pay an annuity, Hickman v. Upsall, 2 Gif. 124; or if there be a gift of rents and profits or income, without restriction as to time, for the purpose of meeting the annuity, followed by a gift over of the residue, Phillips v. Gutteridge, 3 D. J. & S. 332; 32 L. J. Ch. 1; but compare Stelfox v. Sugden, Joh. 234; then the corpus is applicable to make good the deficiency. In Booth v. Coulton, L. R. 5 Ch. 684; 39 L. J. Ch. 622; and Taylor v. Taylor, L. R. 17 Eq. 324; 48 L. J. Ch. 314, annuities were held to be a continuing charge on rents and profits, but not a charge on the corpus of the estate, which in the latter case was devised in strict settlement. The principal of the cases quoted in this paragraph are reviewed and distinguished in Re Boden, 1907, 1 Ch. 132; 76 L. J. Ch. 100; Re Bigge, 1907, 1 Ch. 714; 76 L. J. Ch. 413 (overruled by Re Watkins' Settlement, 1911, 1 Ch. 1; 80 L. J. Ch. 102); Re Howarth, 1909, 2 Ch. 19; 78 L. J. Ch. 687. In effect there can be but little distinction between a continuing charge on income and a charge on corpus. See Re Young, 1912, 2 Ch. 479; 81 L. J. Ch. 817, in which Taylor v. Taylor was treated as overruled by Re Howarth.

When an annuity charged upon the corpus of settled real estate is in arrear, the Court has power to order the arrears to be raised by sale or mortgage of the estate, but the making of such an order is a matter, not of course, but of discretion, Re Tucker, 1893, 2 Ch. 323; 62 L. J. Ch. 442. And see Hambro v. Hambro, 1894, 2 Ch. 564; 63 L. J. Ch. 627.

As to marshalling funds or estates for the payment of annuities, see Marshalling. Fielding v. Preston, 1 De G. & J. 438; Yates v. Yates, 28 Be. 637; 29 L. J. Ch. 872.

Where an annuity was left to A., to be paid by the testator's executor and residuary legatee B., who was empowered to require A. to attend personally at a particular place to give receipts, it was doubted whether such a condition was good; but whether good or not, it was held that the annuity was assignable, Arden v. Goodacre, 11 C. B. 883; 21 L. J. C. P. 129.

PARC. 9.

Registration.

Gift of an annuity "free from taxes;"
annuitant pays the income-tax.

Annuities given by will are not required to be registered. See 18 & 19 Vict. c. 15, s. 14.

Annuities should, in general, be given free from legacy duty, 7 Byth. Jarm. 824.

A gift by will of an annuity or of a rentcharge "clear of legacy duty and every other deduction whatsoever," will not exempt the person entitled to the annuity or charge from payment of the property or income tax. See 5 & 6 Vict. c. 35, ss. 73, 102, 103; 16 & 17 Vict. c. 34, now repealed and consolidated in the Income Tax Act, 1918 (8 & 9 Geo. 5, c. 40). The thing that is given is the thing that is to pay the tax, Wall v. Wall, 15 Sim. 513; 16 L. J. Ch. 305; and the income tax is not properly a deduction out of the estate or legacy, but a charge which the legislature has fixed on the person himself who receives the benefit, Lethbridge v. Thurlow, 15 Be. 335; 21 L. J. Ch. 538. See also Sadler v. Rickards, 4 K. & J. 302; Abadam v. Abadam, 33 Be. 475; 33 L. J. Ch. 593; Peareth v. Marriott, 22 Ch. D. 182; 52 L. J. Ch. 221; Re Saillard, 1917, 2 Ch. 401; 86 L. J. Ch. 749; Re Loveless, 1918, 2 Ch. 1; 87 L. J. Ch. 461. But a testator may so explain the word "deduction" as to shew that he intends it to include income tax, and then effect will be given to his intention, Turner v. Mullineux, 1 J. & H. 335; Re Buckle, 1894, 1 Ch. 286; 63 L. J. Ch. 330. As to super tax, see Re Crawshaw, 1915, W. N. 412; Re Bowring, 1918, W. N. 265. Where a testator devised a mansion and lands to his wife for life, and directed his trustees, out of the rents of other real estates, during the wife's life to insure and repair and pay all taxes, parliamentary, parochial, or otherwise, affecting the hereditaments given to his wife, it was held that income tax came within the words "affecting the hereditaments," that the direction did not contravene the terms of the Income Tax Acts, and that the trustees were bound to pay the income or property tax payable in respect of the widow's interest, Lord Lovat v. Duchess of Leeds, 2 Dr. & S. 62; 31 L. J. Ch. 503. And where lands were devised to trustees to the use that M. should receive during her life one yearly rentcharge of 2,200*l.*, to be charged upon and issuing out of the lands mentioned, to be paid half-yearly "without any deduction or abatement whatsoever, on account of any taxes, charges, or assessments already or to be thereafter taxed, charged, assessed, or imposed on the same hereditaments, or on the said rentcharge of 2,200*l.*, or on the said M. or her assignees in respect thereof, by authority of parliament, or otherwise howsoever," it was held that M. was entitled to receive the rentcharge in full, without any deduction in respect of income tax, Festing v. Taylor, 3 B. & S. 235; 32 L. J. Q. B. 41. See also Re Bannerman's Estate, 21 Ch. D. 105; 51 L. J. Ch. 449. Where there are no words to shew that the annuity is given free of tax, the income tax must be borne by the annuitant, Re Sharp, 1906, 1 Ch. 793; 75 L. J. Ch. 458. Monthly payments may be an "annuity," Re Cooper, 62 S. J. 230.

beginning.

(e) Where the time of first payment is fixed by the will, the payment must of course be made as directed, if the executor is satisfied of the sufficiency of the estate to answer debts and legacies; but if no time of payment is fixed, an annuity begins from the day of the testator's death, and the first payment is to be made at the end of twelve months from that day, 2 Wms. Exors. 1116; Houghton v. Franklin, 1 S. & S. 392. But it seems doubtful whether this rule would hold in a case where the annuity is given out of a residue, Storer v. Prestage, 3 Mad. 168. And as to the distinction in this respect between an annuity and a legacy for life, see Gibson v. Bott, 7 Ves. 97.

NOTES TO
PREC. 9.

and first payment of annuity.

To say that the first quarterly or half-yearly payment of an annuity shall be made at a given period does not necessarily imply that the annuity is to begin from the beginning of the quarter or half-year ending at such day of payment. For instance, where a testator gave an annuity to A. for life, and directed the first payment to be made within one month from his (the testator's) death, the annuity was held to begin from the death of the testator; and though the first year's payment was to be made at the appointed time, the second annual payment did not become due until the end of the second year, Irvin v. Ironmonger, 2 R. & M. 531. It will be observed that, in this case, to have held the annuity to be payable continuously from the first payment, would have had the effect of giving it a beginning in the lifetime of the testator. See also Williams v. Wilson, 5 N. R. 267, as to apportionment of the first payment of an annuity directed to be paid on the usual quarter days, and note (g), Prec. 8.

(f) The Married Women's Property Act, 1882, would, of course, render the sisters' shares their separate property if these words were omitted. The insertion of these words may, however, in certain circumstances, have important consequences to the legatees.

Where a marriage settlement contains a provision for settlement of after-acquired property of the wife, excepting property which may be bequeathed to her for her separate use (which is a form of covenant for settlement of after-acquired property formerly common), property bequeathed to her, but not expressed to be for her separate use, will be bound by the covenant, whilst property bequeathed to her, and expressed to be for her separate use, will be exempt from such covenant. This curious result is brought about by sect. 19 of the Married Women's Property Act, 1882, which excepts settlements from the operation of the Act. The consequence is that if the words within brackets are omitted, the sisters' shares may possibly be bound by covenants contained in their marriage settlements to settle after-acquired property, which might not be the case if such words were inserted, Re Whitaker, 34 Ch. D. 227; 56 L. J. Ch. 251. And this result does not appear to be affected by sect. 2 of the Married Women's Property Act, 1907, unless the married woman was an infant at the time of the execution of the settlement.

(g) An additional trustee cannot be appointed under the provisions of the Trustee Act, 1893, unless a vacancy occurs.

No. X.

WILL devising Real Estate to Trustees, Upon Trusts for raising Money by Mortgage in aid of the Personal Estate to pay Debts and Legacies; and, subject thereto, for the Testator's Son and his Issue in strict Settlement; and, failing such Issue, for raising certain sums; and, subject thereto, for collateral Relations.—Specific Bequest of Leaseholds for Years, and other Specific Legacies.—Bequest of Annuities and Pecuniary Legacies.

THIS IS THE LAST WILL of me [testator's name residence and quality].

1. I REVOKE all other wills and testamentary dispositions by me heretofore made.

Appointment
of executors
and trustees.

2. I APPOINT — and — executors and trustees of this my will and trustees for the purposes of section 42 of the Conveyancing Act 1881 as amended by section 14 of the Conveyancing Act 1911 and for the purposes of the Settled Land Acts 1882 to 1890.

Devise of freeholds and copyholds to
trustees;

—upon trust
to raise money by mortgage, in aid of the personal estate, to pay debts, &c.;

—and subject thereto, in trust for testator's son and his issue, in strict settlement;
and, failing
such issue,

3. I DEVISE all the freehold and copyhold manors messuages lands tenements and hereditaments to which I may be entitled at my death unto and to the use of the said [trustees] in fee simple upon the trusts following (namely) UPON TRUST that in the first place my trustees shall with or out of the rents and profits of the said devised estates or by mortgaging (a) or charging the same or a competent part or parts thereof raise in aid of my personal estate (if insufficient) so much money as shall be requisite to satisfy my debts (b) and funeral and testamentary expenses and the annuities and pecuniary legacies hereinafter bequeathed together with the expenses of executing this trust and apply the money to be so raised accordingly And subject thereto hold the same IN TRUST for my son [name] during his life and as to the said freehold hereditaments without impeachment of waste (c) And immediately after his death IN TRUST for the sons of my said son successively according to seniority in tail [or in tail male] (d) And failing such issue IN TRUST for the daughters of my said son equally as tenants in common in tail with cross remainders between such daughters in tail as to both the original and the accruing shares And failing such issue UPON

TRUST with or out of the rents and profits of the said devised estates or by mortgaging or charging the same or a competent part or parts thereof to raise and pay to the respective persons or classes of persons next hereinafter named or described if living at the time of the failure of the antecedent trusts the several sums of money which immediately follow their respective names or descriptions (that is to say) [name &c.] £— [name &c.] £— &c. The children of my sister [name] who being a son or sons shall attain the age of twenty-one years or being a daughter or daughters shall attain that age or be married £— apiece The children of &c. £— apiece And subject thereto as to one undivided moiety of my said devised estates IN TRUST for my brother [name] in fee simple And as to the other undivided moiety thereof IN TRUST for my nephews (e) [names] equally as tenants in common in fee simple.

PREG. 10.

—upon trust to raise and pay certain sums; and, subject thereto,

—in trust for collateral relations.

4. I BEQUEATH the messuage in which I now reside situate at — and held by me under a lease dated &c. to my wife [name] for her life if my term therein shall so long endure and after her death to my said son [name] for the then residue of such term.

Bequest of leasehold house to wife for life, and then to son absolutely.

5. I BEQUEATH the several specific legacies following (namely) To my wife all the wines liquors fuel and other consumable household stores and provisions which shall belong to me at my death for her absolute use To A. and B. and the wife of B. equally my holding in Consols (f) To &c.

Bequest of specific legacies.

6. I BEQUEATH to the several persons next hereinafter named for their respective lives the several annuities which follow their respective names (that is to say) To my wife £— a year in addition to the provision made for her by the settlement on our marriage To each of my sisters [names] £— a year (g) To &c. AND I DIRECT such annuities to be paid in equal portions on the four usual quarterly days of payment of rent and the first portion to be paid on such of the said days as shall occur next after my death but proportionate parts of the said annuities shall not be payable for the days elapsed at the deaths of the respective annuitants of the then current quarter (h) AND I DIRECT funds to be appropriated in the names of my trustees out of my personal estate but not by mortgaging or charging my real estate sufficient at the period of appropriation to answer by means of the income thereof the payment of the same annuities with direction to set apart funds.

Bequest of annuities;

PREC. 10.

which funds on the dropping of the respective annuities shall follow the destination of the residue of my personal estate.

Bequest of pecuniary legacies.

7. I BEQUEATH to the several persons next hereinafter named the several legacies which follow their respective names (that is to say) To my niece [name] in addition to the provision made for her by the settlement executed by me on her marriage the sum of £—— To my niece [name] the sum of £—— in satisfaction of a legacy bequeathed to her by the will of —— and received by me To my nephew [name] the sum of £—— which legacy together with the sum of £—— advanced by me for his benefit makes up the sum of £—— which I originally promised to leave him AND I DIRECT the said pecuniary legacies to be paid at the end of —— calendar months next after my death.

Bequest of residue to son.

8. I BEQUEATH the residue of my personal estate unto my said son [name] for his absolute benefit.

9. Investment clause. See note (b) to Prec. 4.

10. Trustee interpretation clause as in Prec. 4, clause 6.

IN WITNESS &c.

NOTES to Precedent 10.

Of limiting a term to raise money for payment of debts and legacies.

(a) The object of providing a fund, in aid of the personal estate, may be attained by limiting a term of years only to the trustees; but while that plan has the advantage of giving legal estates to the ulterior takers, and consequently of superseding the necessity for a future conveyance by the trustees, it is not so well adapted to the present mode of framing mortgages, which are commonly made to embrace the fee simple.

Freehold and copyhold estates of deceased persons subjected to their simple contract debts.

(b) By 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 104, the freehold and copyhold estates of persons dying on or since the 29th August, 1833, who have not by will charged their real estates with the payment of debts, are constituted assets to be administered in the Courts of Equity for the payment of debts, due as well on simple contract as on specialty; and by 32 & 33 Vict. c. 46, it is enacted that in the administration of the estate of any person dying after 1869, all creditors, as well specialty as simple contract, shall be treated as standing in equal degree, and be paid accordingly out of the assets, whether legal or equitable, but without prejudice to any security.

By the Land Transfer Act, 1897, s. 2, sub-s. (3), "In the administration of the assets of a person dying after the commencement of this Act, his real estate shall be administered in the same manner, subject to the same liabilities for debt, costs, and expenses, and with the same incidents, as if it were personal estate; provided that nothing herein contained shall alter or affect the order in which real and personal assets respectively are now applicable in or towards the payment of funeral and testamentary expenses, debts, or legacies, or the liability of real estate to be charged with the payment of legacies."

NOTES TO
PREC. 10.

But, though a testamentary provision for the payment of debts is not now dictated by the same imperative considerations as formerly, yet such provision is still useful, Re Balls, 1909, 1 Ch. 791; 78 L. J. Ch. 341.

The Wills Act makes no alteration in the law which made real estate assets for the payment of debts, Eddels v. Johnson, 1 Gif. 22; 27 L. J. Ch. 302. The order of application of the several assets in the payment of debts is given, Jarm. Wills, ch. 54—iii.

Order in which funds to be applied in payment of testator's debts.

A testator ought never to devise real estate to infants or unborn persons until he has made ample provision for the payment of his debts; and where such provision is made out of real estate, means should, notwithstanding the Act 22 & 23 Vict. c. 35, be also expressly provided for effecting a sale or mortgage, or both, under trusts or powers properly framed for the purpose. Formerly, this precaution was requisite only where there were creditors by specialty, or the testator's lands were by the will subjected to the payment of debts, but, under the existing law, it applies with equal force whether there be any such charge or not, as creditors by simple contract are entitled, in the absence of any express charge, to have the estate made available for their debts by means of a sale under the direction of the Court; though it is to be observed that creditors whose claims are founded on the recent statute have no lien on the estate in the hands of an alienee of the heir or devisee, which creates an important difference between such creditors and those who claim under a general charge; though even in the latter case a purchaser for money or a mortgagee is exempt from seeing to the application of the money.

Provision should be made for payment of debts, before realty devised to infants.

See further as to the liability of lands in fee simple to debts, the notes to Taltarum's and Seymour's Cases, in Tud. L. C. R. P.

A devise of real estate in trust for the payment of debts does not revive a debt which at the time of the testator's death has been barred by the Statute of Limitations, Burke v. Jones, 2 V. & B. 275. A direction to pay a specific debt may, however, operate for the benefit of a creditor whose debt is barred at the testator's death, Williamson v. Naylor, 3 Y. & C. Ex. 208.

Effect of a devise upon trust to pay debts;

But in respect of debts not barred at the testator's death, a bequest of personalty for the payment of debts does not prevent the operation of the statute, Scott v. Jones, 4 C. & F. 382; 9 L. J. (N. S.) Ch. 252; Freaker v. Cranefeldt, 3 M. & C. 499; 8 L. J. (N. S.) Ch. 61; Evans v. Tweedy, 1 Be. 55; 8 L. J. (N. S.) Ch. 46. But a trust or charge for payment of debts generally out of real estate is available for twelve years, 37 & 38 Vict. c. 57, ss. 8, 10; Re Stephens, 43 Ch. D. 39; 39 L. J. Ch. 109. As to a trust to pay out of a mixed fund, see Re Raggi, 1913, 2 Ch. 206; 82 L. J. Ch. 396.

(c) This clause as to waste is properly confined to the freeholds, because waste, voluntary or permissive, unauthorized by the custom, works a forfeiture of copyholds, Co. Litt. 60, a.

Copyholds, waste.

NOTES TO PREC. 10.
What may be the subject of an entail. Bar of quasi estates tail by unenrolled deed.	(d) Real estate of inheritance, including therein copyholds held of manors in which there is a custom to entail, can alone be the subject of a proper entail. When leaseholds for lives are limited to A. and the heirs of his body, he is said to take a quasi estate tail, which is barrable without an enrolled deed pursuant to 3 & 4 Will. 4, c. 74. But if there is a tenant for life and a tenant in tail in remainder of leasehold for lives, the consent of the tenant for life is necessary to enable the tenant in tail to bar the subsequent remainders, 1 Hayes, Conv. 197; Allen v. Allen , 2 Dr. & War. 307; Edwards v. Champion , 3 D. M. & G. 202; 23 L. J. Ch. 123; Pickersgill v. Grey , 30 B. 352; 31 L. J. Ch. 394. If copyholds, held of manors in which there is no custom to entail, are limited to A. and his heirs of his body, A. will take an estate in those copyholds analogous to an estate in fee simple conditional at the common law, Doe v. Clark , 5 B. & Al. 458; Doe v. Simpson , 4 Bing. N. C. 333, 340; 7 L. J. (N.S.) C. P. 156. And if leaseholds for years, or other personal estate, is limited to A. and the heirs of his body, A. takes at once the absolute property, just as he would take it under a simple indefinite gift, Leventhorpe v. Ashbie , Roll. Ab. 831, pl. 1; and see the notes to that case in Tud. L. C. R. P.
Copyholds.
Leaseholds for years.
Gifts to relatives:	(e) A gift in a will to a class of persons described by relationship will, in the absence of an overruling context, be construed as a gift to all persons answering the relationship, whether of the whole blood or of the half-blood. Therefore a bequest simply to the sisters of A. will extend to A.'s sisters of the half-blood, Re Reed , 57 L. J. Ch. 790; and the description of nephews and nieces will include children of a half-blood brother or sister, Grieves v. Rawley , 10 Ha. 63; 22 L. J. Ch. 625. But see Re Dowson , 1903, W. N. 245. If a testator gives a legacy to the "children" of a deceased person, mentioning that person as dead, and at the date of the will there are no children of that person, but there are grandchildren, the gift may take effect in favour of the grandchildren, Berry v. Berry , 3 Gif. 134; Fenn v. Death , 23 B. 73. But if the testator mentions the "children" of several persons, of whom some have left children, and one has left grandchildren only, the word children having been only once used cannot have two meanings attributed to it, Radclyffe v. Buckley , 10 Ves. 195; with which compare, Re Kirk , 52 L. T. 346; Re Smith , 35 Ch. D. 558; 56 L. J. Ch. 771. But the question is one of construction of the particular will, Re Atkinson , 1918, 2 Ch. 138; 87 L. J. Ch. 505, where the cases were discussed. If the testator shews an intention to use the word "children" in its normal and ordinary meaning, by himself having mentioned grandchildren as well as children, the word children will receive its ordinary meaning. See Jarman, Wills, p. 1656. And "issue" may, by reference to their parent, be restricted to mean children, Sibley v. Perry , 7 Ves. 522; followed in Re Timson , 1916, 2 Ch. 332; 85 L. J. Ch. 561; distinguished in Re Swain , 1918, 1 Ch. 399, 574; 87 L. J. Ch. 305; Re Burnham , 1918, 2 Ch. 196. A gift to "nieces" means nieces in the first degree, Crook v. Whitley , 7 D. M. & G. 490; 26 L. J. Ch. 350, and a gift to the "present nieces of A." is identical with "the nieces of A." (ib.);
half-blood,
"children,"
"nieces,"

"nephews and nieces" will not include grandnephews and grandnieces if there are proper nephews and nieces to answer the description, Thompson v. Robinson, 27 Be. 486; 29 L. J. Ch. 280; Williamson v. Moore, 10 W. R. 536; Re Blower's Trusts, L. R. 6 Ch. 351; 42 L. J. Ch. 24; Re Fish, 1894, 2 Ch. 83; 63 L. J. Ch. 437. Where a widow bequeathed to her nephews and nieces simply, it was held that this did not include the nephews and nieces of her husband, Smith v. Lidiard, 3 K. & J. 252; Re Green, 1914, 1 Ch. 134; 83 L. J. Ch. 248; and though a testatrix gave a specific legacy to a niece of her husband as "my niece A. B.," and gave her residue to "all my nephews and nieces," the nephews and nieces by blood of the testatrix took the residue to the exclusion of A. B., Wells v. Wells, L. R. 18 Eq. 504; 43 L. J. Ch. 681; Merrill v. Morton, 17 Ch. D. 382; 50 L. J. Ch. 249; Re Cozens, 1903, 1 Ch. 138; 72 L. J. Ch. 39; Re Winn, 1916, W. N. 366; but if the testatrix had had no nephew or niece, the nephews and nieces of the husband would have taken, Hogg v. Cook, 32 Be. 641; Sherratt v. Mountford, L. R. 8 Ch. 928; 42 L. J. Ch. 688; Re Fish, 1894, 2 Ch. 83; 63 L. J. Ch. 437, and where a married man bequeathed to his nephews and nieces "on both sides," the gift was held to extend to the nephews and nieces of his wife, Frogley v. Phillips, 3 D. F. & J. 466. The word "cousins" used simpliciter is held to mean first cousins, Culdecott v. Harrison, 9 Sim. 457; 9 L. J. (N.S.) Ch. 331; Stoddart v. Nelson, 6 D. M. & G. 68; 25 L. J. Ch. 116; Stevenson v. Abingdon, 31 Be. 305; Burbey v. Burbey, 9 Jur. N. S. 96. In Re Taylor, 34 Ch. D. 255; 56 L. J. Ch. 171, "cousin" was construed to mean the wife of a cousin. In Mayott v. Mayott, 2 Bro. C. C. 125, a gift to "first and second cousins," where there were no second cousins either at the date of the will or at the death of the testator, was held to mean first cousins and first cousins once removed. See also Slade v. Fooks, 9 Sim. 386; 8 L. J. Ch. 41; Re Bonner, 19 Ch. D. 201; 51 L. J. Ch. 83; Wilks v. Bannister, 30 Ch. D. 512; 54 L. J. Ch. 1139. In Silcox v. Bell, 1 S. & S. 301; 1 L. J. (O.S.) Ch. 137, first cousins twice removed were held entitled under a gift to relations who could prove themselves to be either "first or second cousins or their representatives"; and this was followed in Charge v. Goodyer, 3 Russ. 140; but both these cases were disapproved by Jessel, M. R., in Re Parker, 15 Ch. D. 528, aff. 17 Ch. D. 262; 50 L. J. Ch. 639. Under a bequest to "first cousins or cousins german" the children of first cousins did not take, the "cousins german" being considered as explanatory of, or merely synonymous with the "first cousins," Sanderson v. Bayley, 4 M. & C. 56; 8 L. J. (N.S.) Ch. 18. In Corporation of Bridgnorth v. Collins, 15 Sim. 541, it was held that under a gift to "second cousins" those only who had either the same great-grandfather or great-grandmother were second cousins. In Re Parker, 17 Ch. D. 262; 50 L. J. Ch. 639, children or grandchildren of first cousins were excluded from a gift to "second cousins," where there existed second cousins capable of taking the gift. It appears from these cases that although the construction of the words has not been uniform, the tendency of later decisions has been to give them their strict meaning unless and nieces,"

there be no person answering to the strict description. As to the meaning of "half-cousin," see Re Chester, 1914, 2 Ch. 580; 84 L. J. Ch. 78.

"family,"

That "family" is a flexible term, see Blackwell v. Bull, 1 Ke. 176; 5 L. J. (N.S.) Ch. 251. It may, in a devise of freehold estates, mean the heir-at-law, Lucas v. Goldsmid, 29 Be. 657; 30 L. J. Ch. 935; though that is not its natural meaning; it may mean the next of kin, and either living at testator's death, or at the death of some other person, Green v. Marsden, 1 Drew. 646; 22 L. J. Ch. 1092. The primary meaning of the word in a will as regards personal estate is "children," Re Terry's Will, 19 Be. 580; Pigg v. Clarke, 3 Ch. D. 672; 45 L. J. Ch. 849; and it may have this meaning in a devise of real estate, Burt v. Hellyar, L. R. 14 Eq. 160; 41 L. J. Ch. 430; Re McCann, 1916, 1 Ir. R. 255. Where there is an immediate absolute legacy for the benefit of "A.'s family," the children of A., and those only, to the exclusion of A. himself, are entitled, Barnes v. Patch, 8 Ves. 604; a legacy by a married man to his family is a gift to his children, to the exclusion of his wife, Re Hutchinson and Tenant, 8 Ch. D. 540; and where a legacy is given to trustees for a married woman and her family, the married woman and her children are entitled, to the exclusion of her husband, M'Leroth v. Bacon, 5 Ves. 166. A bequest to "A. and his family" will create a joint tenancy between A. and his children living at the testator's death, Re Parkinson's Trust, 1 Sim. N. S. 242; 20 L. J. Ch. 224. The context of the will must in each case determine the intended recipients under this general term, see Re Sadler, 1915, W. N. 348. Under a devise or bequest to "relations" the next of kin according to the Statute of Distributions will be entitled, see 1 Rep. Leg. 100—119; Rayner v. Mowbray, 3 Bro. C. 234; Doe v. Over, 1 Tau. 263; Re Swan, 1911, 1 Ir. R. 405; Lees v. Massey, 3 D. F. & J. 113; Eagles v. Le Breton, L. R. 15 Eq. 148; 42 L. J. Ch. 362. A power to appoint to relations is not confined to relatives within the statutes, Harding v. Glyn, 1 Atk. 469; secus, as to a power to distribute a fund among relations, Finch v. Hollingsworth, 21 Be. 112; 25 L. J. Ch. 55; Salisbury v. Denton, 3 K. & J. 529; 26 L. J. Ch. 851; Re Caplin's Will, 2 Dr. & S. 527; 34 L. J. Ch. 578. In Snow v. Teed, L. R. 9 Eq. 622; 39 L. J. Ch. 420, a power to a spinster to appoint a fund amongst "her own family or next of kin" was held not to be confined to statutory next of kin, but to include any relation.

Where in a will a word descriptive of persons has a clear and definite meaning when used in one part, but has not when used in another, there is a presumption that the word is intended to bear the same meaning in the latter case as in the former, Re Birks, 1900, 1 Ch. 417; 69 L. J. Ch. 124.

(f) A devise or bequest to a man and his wife and to a third person is construed as a gift of a moiety to the husband and wife, and of the other moiety to the third person, this rule having been founded on the doctrine that husband and wife were, for most purposes, one person. But any indication, however slight, of an intention that each shall take separately has been held to defeat the application of the rule, Bricker v. Whatley, 1 Vern. 233; Warrington v. Warrington, 2 Harv. 54; Re Wylde, 2 D. M. & G. 724; 22 L. J. Ch. 87; Dias v. De Livera, 5 App. Cas. 123; 49 L. J. P. C. 26; Re March, 27 Ch. D. 166; 54 L. J. Ch. 143. Kay, J., held, in Re Jupp, 39 Ch. D. 148; 57 L. J. Ch. 774, that the rule has not been altered by the Married Women's Property Act, 1882, in the case of wills made since the Act came into operation; as between the husband and the wife, however, the Act operates to give the wife one half of the share taken by the husband and wife as her separate property, the other half going to the husband. See the comments by North, J., upon Re Jupp, in Re Dixon, 42 Ch. D. 306, followed in Re Jeffery, 1914, 1 Ch. 375; 83 L. J. Ch. 251, where, upon construction, Re Jupp was not followed.

 said brother [name] during the minority of the nephew or the minority and discoveriture of the niece to whom the same shall belong in order that such yearly produce may be applied by my said brother at his discretion for the benefit of such nephew or niece and without his being obliged to render any account of the application thereof AND I DECLARE that if any of my said nephews shall die under the age of twenty-one years or any of my said nieces shall die under that age without having been married then the legacy of each of them so dying and the unapplied yearly produce and accumulations thereof if any shall sink into the residue of my personal estate.

—to trustees, 17 I BEQUEATH to my trustees three sums of 500*l.*, 1,000*l.*
 of several and 2,000*l.* upon the trusts hereinafter declared thereof respecsums of money upon tively To each of my executors £—— as an acknowledgment for Annuities also 6,000*l.* Three per Cent. Metropolitan Consolidated Stock upon the trusts hereinafter declared thereof respectively Also to my nephew [name] 1,000*l.* Bank Stock. PREC. 11.

20. I DIRECT my executors to deliver the specific legacies aforesaid within one calendar month after my death and to pay or set apart the money (o) and stock legacies aforesaid within six calendar months after my death or sooner if they shall think fit. Time fixed for delivery of legacies.

21. I DIRECT my trustees to stand possessed of the said legacy of 500*l.* money UPON TRUST to invest the same in their names and to accumulate the yearly income by similar investments until my nephew [name] shall attain the age of twenty-one years or die under that age and if he shall attain that age thereupon to transfer to him both the original fund and the accumulations but if he shall die under that age then to dispose thereof as part of the residue of my personal estate. Trusts of a pecuniary legacy—to invest and accumulate till a nephew attains twenty-one, then to transfer the fund to him.

22. I DIRECT my trustees to stand possessed of the said legacy of 1,000*l.* money IN TRUST for my reputed son [name] (p) but if he shall die under the age of twenty-one years without leaving issue the same legacy shall sink into the residue of my personal estate AND I DIRECT my trustees to invest the same legacy in their names and I EMPOWER them during the minority of the said [reputed son] to apply so much not exceeding one-half as they shall think fit of the capital of the same legacy for his advancement in life or otherwise for his benefit. Trusts of another pecuniary legacy for a reputed son—if he dies under twenty-one without leaving issue, to sink into residue.

23. I DIRECT my trustees to stand possessed of the said legacy of 2,000*l.* money UPON TRUST with the consent in writing of my cousin [name] and after his death in the discretion of my trustees to invest the same legacy in their names AND to permit the said [cousin] during his life to receive the annual income of the same legacy or the investment thereof and after his death as to as well the capital of the same legacy or investment as the annual income thereof thenceforth to accrue due IN TRUST for the child if only one or all the children if more than one of the said [cousin] who either before or after his death shall attain the age of twenty-one years or marry and if more than one equally And with power for my trustees with the consent in writing of the said [cousin] and after his death in their discretion to apply so much not exceeding one-half as they shall think fit of the capital of the share of each child while such share shall be contingent for the advancement in life or otherwise for the benefit of the same child And Trusts of another pecuniary legacy, —for a cousin for life— for his children—advancement.

PREG. 11. if no child of the said [cousin] shall attain the age of twenty-one years or marry then (subject to the powers aforesaid) the same legacy with the accumulations shall sink into the residue of my personal estate.

Trusts of a stock legacy, —for a niece at twenty-one, or marriage with consent—interim dividends to be applied for her maintenance.

24. I DIRECT my trustees to stand possessed of the said legacy of 3,000*l.* Two and a half per Cent. Consolidated Stock IN TRUST for my niece [name] if she shall attain the age of twenty-one years or be married with the previous consent in writing of her guardian or guardians but if she shall die under that age without having been married with such consent as aforesaid the same legacy shall sink into the residue of my personal estate AND I DIRECT my trustees to apply the dividends of the same legacy during the minority and discoveriture of my said niece for her maintenance and education or at their option to pay the same to her guardian or guardians to be so applied but for whose due application thereof my trustees shall not be responsible.

Trusts of a stock legacy —for the personal maintenance of a nephew, to be applied at the discretion of trustees, or, at their option, disposed of as part of the residue.

25. I DIRECT my trustees to stand possessed of the said legacy of 4,000*l.* Two Pounds Fifteen Shillings per Cent. Annuities UPON TRUST at any time or from time to time to apply the whole or such part as my trustees shall think fit of the capital or the income or both for the personal maintenance and support or otherwise for the personal benefit (q) of my nephew [name] or to pay the same or such part thereof as they shall think fit to any person or persons to be so applied without liability on the part of my trustees to inquire into the application thereof or at the option of my trustees to pay the whole or such part as they shall think fit of the capital or the income or both to my executors or administrators to be disposed of as part of the residue of my personal estate to the intent that my trustees may be enabled to adapt the disposition of the fund to the circumstances for the time being of my said nephew and thereby to secure as far as possible his personal enjoyment thereof and prevent the same from becoming the property of his alienees or creditors with power for my trustees to invest in their names so much of the fund as shall from time to time remain unapplied and to accumulate the same by repeated investments of the dividends but so that the accumulations shall not be carried beyond the period of twenty-one years from my decease AND I DECLARE that so much of the capital income and accumulations as shall remain in the hands of my trustees at the death of my said nephew shall fall into the residue of my personal estate.

26. I DIRECT my trustees to stand possessed of the said legacy of 5,000*l*. Two Pounds Ten Shillings per cent. Annuities IN TRUST for the children of my sister [name] who either before or after her death shall attain the age of twenty-one years or marry in equal shares but the distribution of the capital to be postponed till my said sister shall die or attain the age of [fifty] years [or till my said sister shall die or till she shall have attained the age of [fifty] years and my trustees shall in writing under their hands declare that there has in their opinion ceased to be any probability (r) of the birth of a future child or children of my said sister] in order that no child attaining the said age or marrying may in the ordinary course of nature be excluded (s) and I DIRECT my trustees to apply the income of the contingent share of each child whether liable to reduction by an increase in the number of objects or not for his or her maintenance and education or at the option of my trustees to pay the same income to my said sister to be so applied by her but without liability to account AND I EMPOWER my trustees to apply so much not exceeding one-half as they shall think fit of the capital of the share of each child whether vested or contingent and whether liable to reduction by an increase in the number of objects or not for his or her advancement in life or otherwise for his or her benefit AND I DIRECT the income of the share of each child whose share shall be vested or of so much thereof as shall not be applied as last aforesaid to be paid to such child during the postponement of the distribution.

Trusts of another stock legacy—for the children of a sister, postponing the distribution in order to let in all the children—maintenance and advancement.

Advancement.

27. I DIRECT my trustees to stand possessed of the said legacy of 6,000*l*. Three per Cent. Metropolitan Consolidated Stock UPON TRUST to divide the same into four equal shares and to settle the yearly produce of one of such shares on each of my four nieces [names] in such manner as the counsel of my trustees shall advise and approve as most effectual for securing to her the personal receipt and enjoyment thereof during her life inalienably (the costs of such settlement to be defrayed out of the said yearly produce) and after her death as to her share and the yearly produce thenceforth to accrue due for the same IN TRUST for her children equally or her child (as the case may be) who either before or after her death shall being a son or sons attain the age of twenty-one years or being a daughter or daughters attain that age or be married And if any of my four last-mentioned nieces shall Trusts of stock standing in testator's name for four nieces and their children, with cross-limitations, and a direction to settle the income to their separate use.

PREC. 11.

not have any child who shall being a son attain the age of twenty-one years or being a daughter attain that age or be married then as to as well the share or shares originally limited to the niece or nieces not having any such child as last aforesaid as the share or shares limited to such niece or nieces by this cross executory limitation IN TRUST for the others in equal shares or the other of my said four nieces for their or her respective lives or life and after their or her respective deaths or death for their or her respective children or child in manner hereinbefore expressed respecting her or their original share or respective shares And if none of my said four nieces shall have any child who shall being a son attain the age of twenty-one years or being a daughter attain that age or be married then the whole fund shall sink into the residue of my personal estate.

Direction to purchase a Government annuity to be applied at the discretion of trustees; as a personal provision for an imbecile.

28. I DIRECT the sum of £—— to be invested within three calendar months after my death in the purchase in the names of my trustees of an annuity from the Government Commissioners to be payable during the life of my nephew [name] and to be held by my trustees UPON TRUST in their discretion and of their uncontrolled authority to manage and administer the said annuity and to pay and apply the whole or such portion only of the said annuity as they shall think expedient to or for the clothing board lodging maintenance and support or otherwise for the personal and peculiar benefit of my said nephew during his life whether infant or adult and whether competent or incompetent to give an acquittance or discharge at such time or times in such portions and in such manner in all respects as my trustees shall think most conducive to his comfort and convenience AND I DECLARE that if my said nephew shall die before the investment of the said sum by my trustees in the purchase of an annuity as aforesaid or if at his death any portion of the annuity shall remain in the hands of my trustees unapplied to the purposes of the trust last aforesaid then the uninvested or unapplied money shall sink into the residue of my personal estate.

Bequest of annuities;
—to one for life;
—to two and the survivor;
—to one for two joint-lives;

29. I BEQUEATH the annuities following (t) namely To [name] an annuity of £—— for his life To [name] and [name] his wife and the survivor of them for their lives and the life of the survivor an annuity of £—— To [name] an annuity of £—— for the joint lives of himself and his father [name] To my trustees an annuity of £—— for the life of my nephew [name] UPON TRUST to pay the same annuity to my last-mentioned nephew until he shall do commit or permit some act or default whether voluntary or involuntary which if the trust for payment to him of the same annuity were to continue would be inconsistent with his personal enjoyment of the whole benefit of such trust and thenceforth to apply the same annuity for the maintenance or otherwise for the benefit of his wife and children for the time being or any of those objects in such manner as my trustees shall in their discretion think fit so long as there shall be any such objects in existence and after such act or default and failure of such objects as aforesaid the same annuity shall cease To my trustees an annuity of £—— for the life of [name] the wife of [name] IN TRUST for her but so that during her present coverture my trustees shall pay the same as the portions thereof shall accrue due and not by way of anticipation into her proper hands and for her separate use I DIRECT that the annuities aforesaid shall be paid in equal portions quarterly AND I DIRECT my executors to appropriate or purchase in their names within six calendar months after my death funds in any of the modes of investment hereinafter authorized sufficient at the period of appropriation to answer by means of the dividends thereof the payment of the said annuities respectively (which funds on the death of the respective annuitants shall fall into the residue of my personal estate) and in the meantime until such appropriation to pay the said annuities out of my general personal estate.

PREC. 11.

—to trustees, for life of a nephew, in trust for him till alienation, &c., and then for his wife and children,

—for the life of a married niece, for her separate use, inalienably.

Direction as to payment of annuities; funds to be set apart for answering annuities.

30. I DIRECT my executors to pay the legacy duty and incidental expenses chargeable on the specific pecuniary and stock legacies and the annuities aforesaid so that the legatees and annuitants may receive the full amount thereof (u).

Directions to executors to pay legacy duty.

31. As to the residue of my personal estate (including the said sum of £—— with which my residuary freehold and leasehold estates are hereinbefore charged) I BEQUEATH the same to my trustees upon the trusts following (namely) As to one equal third part of the said residue UPON TRUST with the consent in writing of my elder brother [name] and [name] his wife or the survivor of them and after the decease of such survivor in the discretion of my trustees to invest the same in the names of my trustees AND UPON FURTHER TRUST to empower the said [elder brother] during his life and after his death the said [wife] his wife during her life to receive the annual income of the same

Bequest of residue to trustees. As to one-third to invest—income to a brother for life—his wife for life—capital to their children—advancement.

32. I EMPOWER my trustees to exercise their judgement and discretion in regard to the conversion of such parts of the residue of my personal estate (including shares in joint stock companies) as shall not be of a perishable or determinable nature and I declare that the yearly proceeds of such parts thereof as they may accordingly permit to remain unconverted shall be deemed yearly income for the purposes of the trusts hereinbefore declared of such residue to conversion.

33. Investment clause. See note (b) to Prec. 4.

34. I DECLARE that if any of the stocks [funds shares] or securities hereinbefore bequeathed shall by any means otherwise than by a sale by me be converted into money or into some other form of investment or security then the bequest thereof shall not be deemed but the money or other investment or security which shall at the time of my death have been substituted therefor or shall in any other way represent the same shall be deemed to be included in the place thereof respectively (x).

Proviso against
ademption.

35. I DECLARE that if both of my trustees herein named shall die in my lifetime or shall refuse to accept the trusts of my will it shall be lawful for my said brother [name] or his executors or administrators for the time being to appoint within six calendar months after my decease a fit person or fit persons to supply the vacancies occasioned by such deaths.

testator's
lifetime, and disclaimer.

36. Trustee interpretation clause as in Prec. 4, clause 6.

IN WITNESS &c.

NOTES TO
PREC. 11.

As to the mode of limiting crossremainders.

(a) The expression "cross remainders" is well understood. See Challis R. P. 370 et seq. It is therefore better to limit cross-remainders in the simple form in the text than to attempt the more ample limitation which is generally inaccurate.

(b) See note (h), Prec. 28.

Tenancy in common.

(c) That the words "equally," "equally to be divided," "to be distributed in joint and equal proportions," "share and share alike," "respectively;" and to several "between" or "amongst" them, or to "each" of several persons, will create a tenancy in common in a will, see Jarm. Wills, 1790. As to a direction that younger children should "participate" with the eldest son, see Liddard v. Liddard, 28 Be. 266; 29 L. J. Ch. 619; as to the word "participate," see also Robertson v. Fraser, L. R. 6 Ch. 696; 40 L. J. Ch. 776. As to joint-tenancy and tenancy in common, see Morley v. Bird, 3 Ves. 629; and the notes on that case in Tud. L. C. R. P.; Jarm. Wills, ch. 44; Morgan v. Britten, L. R. 13 Eq. 28; 41 L. J. Ch. 70; Attorney-General v. Fletcher, L. R. 13 Eq. 128; 41 L. J. Ch. 167; and see Welland v. Townsend, 1910, 1 Ir. R. 177; and Bennett v. Houldsworth, 104 L. T. 304. A direction that a share is to "be paid" to several persons does not prevent a joint-tenancy, Re Clarkson, 1915, 2 Ch. 216; 84 L. J. Ch. 881; Re Schofield, 1918, 2 Ch. 64; 87 L. J. Ch. 510. As to the effect of an advancement clause, see Re Dunn, 1916, 1 Ch. 97; 85 L. J. Ch. 168.

Joint-tenancy.

(d) See note (e), Prec. 10.

Whether substituted issue are, like their parents, to outlive a period of distribution.

(e) Sometimes clauses, letting in the issue of children dying before a prescribed period, fail to express that the issue are to be substituted only in case they also outlive the period in question. A point of extreme nicety then arises, namely, whether the qualification expressly engrafted on the gift to the children is, by implication, to be extended to their issue. After great conflict of authorities, it has been decided that the substituted issue (in the absence of a contrary invention manifested by the context) are not required to outlive the period of distribution, Martin v. Holgate, L. R. 1 H. L. 175; 35 L. J. Ch. 789; Re Woolley, 1903, 2 Ch. 206; 72 L. J. Ch. 602; see also Jarm. Wills, ch. 36; Hawkins, Constr. Wills, 302. Where the gift to the issue is substitutional, no interest vests in issue who predecease their parent, Crause v. Cooper, 1 J. & H. 207; Humfrey v. Humfrey, 2 Dr. & S. 49; 31 L. J. Ch. 622; Re Orton's Trusts, L. R. 3 Eq. 375; 36 L. J. Ch. 279; Hurry v. Hurry, L. R. 10 Eq. 346; 39 L. J. Ch. 824; see also Selby v. Whittaker, 6 Ch. D. 239; 47 L. J. Ch. 121; Re Ibbetson, 88 L. T. 461; though if the gift is an original and not a substitutional one, it is not necessary that the issue survive their parent, Re Smith's Trusts, 7 Ch. D. 665; 47 L. J. Ch. 265; and see Re Walker, 1917, 1 Ch. 38; 86 L. J. Ch. 196. And notwithstanding that the children take as tenants in common, the substituted issue will, in the absence of words of severance repeated in the gift to the issue, or of words implying a severance, Re Dunn, 1916,

1 Ch. 97; 85 L. J. Ch. 168, take in joint-tenancy amongst themselves, Coe v. Bigg, 1 N. R. 536. See note (f), Prec. 18.

NOTES TO
PREC. 11.

In a substitutional gift in a will "in the event of either of my grandchildren dying before becoming entitled to any share of my estate," it was held, upon the construction of the will, that "becoming entitled" meant becoming entitled in possession, not becoming entitled in interest, Re Maunder, 1903, 1 Ch. 451; 72 L. J. Ch. 367. And see Re White, 56 S. J. 109.

(f) It is no longer necessary to insert powers of distress for the recovery of rentcharges, as these are now supplied by the Conveyancing Act, 1881, s. 44. See Conveyancing Act, 1911, s. 6 (2).

(g) Words of request, entreaty, recommendation and desire, addressed to a devisee or legatee, respecting the destination of the property which is the subject of gift, may possess the force of an obligation. To prevent this consequence, which probably is seldom intended, and, still more, to prevent the litigation which such questions too often engender, it should always be distinctly shewn that the devisee's discretion is not to be fettered by the injunction imposed upon his conscience, or, if the contrary is intended, a trust should be unequivocally created. Thus, such words as "will and desire," Eeles v. England, 2 Ver. 466; "request," Eade v. Eade, 5 Mad. 118; "wish and request," Foley v. Parry, 5 Sim. 138; "recommend," Tibbits v. Tibbits, 19 Ves. 656; "entreat," Prevost v. Clarke, 2 Mad. 458; "not doubting," Parsons v. Baker, 18 Ves. 476; "in the fullest confidence," Wright v. Atkins, 17 Ves. 255; 19 Ves. 299, considered and explained in Re Williams, 1897, 2 Ch. 12; 66 L. J. Ch. 485; Shovelton v. Shovelton, 32 Be. 143; "authorize and empower," Brown v. Higgs, 4 Ves. 708; "well know," Briggs v. Penny, 3 M.N. & G. 546; and others of similar import, have been held to be imperative and to amount to a trust. See Malim v. Keighley, 2 Ves. J. 333, 531; not followed, Re Hamilton, 1895, 2 Ch. 370; 64 L. J. Ch. 799; Reeves v. Baker, 18 Be. 372; 23 L. J. Ch. 599; Williams v. Williams, 1 Sim. N. S. 358; 20 L. J. Ch. 280; Bernard v. Minshull, Joh. 276; 28 L. J. Ch. 549; Knight v. Knight, 3 Beav. 148; 9 L. J. (N. S.) Ch. 354; affirmed, 11 Cl. & F. 513; and Irvine v. Sullivan, L. R. 8 Eq. 673; 38 L. J. Ch. 635. But the latest decisions indicate a disposition in the judges of the present day not to carry the doctrine a step beyond the limits assigned to it by their predecessors; and in Lambe v. Eames, L. R. 6 Ch. 597; 40 L. J. Ch. 447, it was said that the "officious kindness of the Court of Chancery in interposing trusts" where none were intended had been "a very cruel kindness"; the Court has in fact seized hold of words explanatory of the testator's intention to make, or of his reason for making, an absolute gift, and has used them to cut down the absolute gift. It is not necessary, to exclude a legatee from a beneficial interest, that an effectual trust shall be created; it is only necessary that it clearly appears that a trust was intended. In Curnick v. Tucker, L. R. 17 Eq. 320, and Le Marchant v. Le Marchant, L. R. 18 Eq. 414, it was held that trusts were created; but in Mackett v. Mackett, L. R. 14 Eq. 49; 41 L. J. Ch. 704; Re Bond, 4 Ch. D. 238; 46 L. J. Ch. 488; Stead

Precatory words, effect of, to create a trust.

The doctrine not now to be extended.

PREC. 11.

v. Mellor, 5 Ch. D. 225; 46 L. J. Ch. 880; Re Hutchinson and Tenant, 8 Ch. D. 540; Parnall v. Parnall, 9 Ch. D. 96; and Mussoorie Bank v. Raynor, 7 App. Cas. 321; 51 L. J. P. C. 72. that trusts were not created. The current of modern authority has set strongly against holding particular expressions to impose precatory trusts. Recent authorities have established that in considering whether a precatory trust is constituted, the Court will be guided by the intention of the testator apparent in the will, and not by any particular words in which the wishes of the testator are expressed, Re Adams and the Kensington Vestry, 27 Ch. D. 391; 52 L. J. Ch. 758; Re Diggles, 39 Ch. D. 253; Re Hamilton, 1895, 2 Ch. 370; 64 L. J. Ch. 799; Re Williams, 1897, 2 Ch. 12; 66 L. J. Ch. 485; Re Jones, 1898, 1 Ch. 438; 67 L. J. Ch. 211; Re Oldfield, 1904, 1 Ch. 549; 73 L. J. Ch. 433. But see Comiskey v. Bowring-Hanbury, 1905, App. Cas. 84; 74 L. J. Ch. 263. Very little reliance can be placed upon the older authorities, many of which are only of value in so far as they may serve as warnings to the draftsman to avoid similar forms of expression. See also Merborough (Earl) v. Sarile, 88 L. T. 131; Re Atkinson, 103 L. T. 860; Re Jeavons, 56 S. J. 72; In b. Hammer, 80 L. J. P. 119. Where a testator left a farm to his wife, "she to have and manage same to the best advantage to herself and her five children" (named), it was held that she took as trustee for herself and the children as joint tenants, Re Campbell, 1918, 1 I. R. 429.

A testator, after appointing his wife sole executrix and giving her a life interest in his property, continued as follows: "I desire and empower her by her will or in her lifetime to dispose of my estate in accordance with my wishes verbally expressed by me to her." It was held that parol evidence was not admissible to explain the testator's wishes, and that, subject to the widow's life estate, there was an intestacy, Re Hetley, 1902, 2 Ch. 866; 71 L. J. Ch. 769.

See further on the subject of implied trusts, and powers in the nature of a trust, Jarm. Wills, 24—ii. (2); and the notes to Harding v. Glyn, 1 Atk. 469, in 2 Tud. L. C. Eq.

Gift to
"legal," or
"personal representatives," or to
"executors
or administrators," how construed.

(h) The construction of gifts to "legal" or "personal representatives," or to "executors or administrators," has been the subject of much controversy; the questions being (1) whether the gift to representatives applies to executors or administrators, or to the next of kin; and if to the former, then (2) whether the executors or administrators take the property beneficially, or only as part of the personal estate of the testator.

That the word "representatives" means the same as "legal personal representatives," see Re Crawford's Trusts, 2 Drew. 230; 23 L. J. Ch. 625; Atherton v. Crowther, 19 Be. 448; Re Henderson, 28 Be. 656. And that "legal representatives," "personal representatives," or "legal personal representatives," ordinarily and primò facie mean "executors or administrators," see Price v. Strange, 6 Mad. 159; Smith v. Barneby, 2 Col. 728; 16 L. J. Ch. 466; Re Turner, 2 Dr. & S. 501; 34 L. J. Ch. 660; Re Ware, 45 Ch. D. 269; 59 L. J. Ch. 717; Hawkins, Constr. Wills, 141. But the expressions "personal" and "legal representatives" are not necessarily identical in meaning, Kilner v. Leech, 10 Be. 362; 16 L. J. Ch. 503. See also Topping v. Howard, 4 De G. & S. 268, and Re Roberts, 1903, 2 Ch. 200; 72 L. J. Ch. 597.

PREC. 11.

To hold the executors or administrators of a legatee to be beneficially entitled is so manifestly contrary to the probable intention, that the case of Evans v. Charles, 1 Anst. 128, in which this construction prevailed, has been generally condemned; the judge whose solitary approbation it has elicited did not think proper to follow its authority; see Long v. Blackall, 3 Ves. 486; and it is now overruled by several later cases. See Long v. Watkinson, 17 Be. 471; 21 L. J. Ch. 844; Ellcock v. Mapp, 3 H. L. C. 492; 18 L. J. Ch. 217; Reed v. Stedman, 26 Be. 495; 28 L. J. Ch. 481; Williams v. Roberts, 27 L. J. Ch. 177; Re Valdez's Trusts, 40 Ch. D. 159; 58 L. J. Ch. 861. And see Meyon v. Collett, 8 Be. 386; 14 L. J. Ch. 369, where it was held that the next of kin were entitled under a limitation by deed of a fund "to the executors or administrators" of the settlor "to and for his and their own use and benefit."

Executors or administrators not entitled for their own benefit.

By express enactment (11 Geo. 4 & 1 Will. 4, c. 40), executors are excluded from taking beneficially, by virtue of their office, even the undisposed-of personality of their testator, unless it appear by the will to be otherwise intended, see Saltmarsh v. Barrett, 3 D. F. & J. 279; 30 L. J. Ch. 853; Barrs v. Fewkes, 2 H. & M. 60; 33 L. J. Ch. 484; Bird v. Harris, L. R. 9 Eq. 204; 39 L. J. Ch. 226; Chester v. Chester, L. R. 12 Eq. 444; Travers v. Travers, L. R. 14 Eq. 275. Accordingly, in Stocks v. Dodsley, 1 Ke. 325, where a testator bequeathed 500*l.* to B. after the death of A., and if B. should die in the lifetime of A., then to such persons as B. should by will appoint, and in default of such appointment, to the executors and administrators of B. absolutely, it was held that the executor of B. did not take beneficially, but was bound to apply the legacy according to the purposes of the will of B. It is, however, a question of intention, to be gathered from the will itself, whether a person is to have a beneficial interest or take as executor, Williams v. Arkle, L. R. 7 H. L. 606; 45 L. J. Ch. 590, where the intention of the Executors Act, 1830, was considered. See also Re Roby, 1908, 1 Ch. 71; 77 L. J. Ch. 169. And see note (1), infra. Where a testatrix directed that the residue "shall be at the discretion of my executor and at his own disposal," it was held in Re Howell, 1915, 1 Ch. 241; 84 L. J. Ch. 209, that he took beneficially. This statute applies only as between executors and next of kin, Hawkins v. Hawkins, 7 Sim. 173; 4 L. J. Ch. 9; Taylor v. Haygarth, 14 Sim. 8; Re Knowles, 49 L. J. Ch. 625. Where, owing to the illegitimacy of the testator, there exist no next of kin, the old law, as it existed before the statute, must still be applied, Re Bacon's Will, 31 Ch. D. 460; 55 L. J. Ch. 368; Attorney-General v. Jefferys, 1908, A. C. 411; 77 L. J. Ch. 684.

11 Geo. 4 & 1 Will. 4, c. 40 (Executors Act, 1830).

This question cannot arise, unless it is adjudged that the executors or administrators are the intended objects of the gift, which seems not to be the invariable construction; for, in some cases, a gift to "legal," Price v. Strange, 6 Mad. 159, or "personal" representatives, Robinson

Next of kin, under the statute take when.

NOTES TO
PREC. 11.

"Legal representatives."

"Personal representatives."

"Executors and administrators," &c., when words of limitation.

Whether wife and representatives of next of kin entitled under gift to next of kin or its synonyms.

v. Smith, 6 Sim. 47; 2 L. J. Ch. 76, has been held to apply to next of kin, who, as persons entitled under the Statute of Distributions to the personal estate of the deceased, may be said in a general and popular sense to "represent" him.

In Bridge v. Abbott, 3 Br. C. 224, which is a leading authority for this construction (see also Long v. Blackall, 3 Ves. 486), a testatrix having made a bequest to certain persons, and in case of the death of any of them before her, to their "legal representatives," the next of kin under the statutes were held entitled. So, in Baines v. Ottey, 1 M. & K. 465; 1 L. J. (N. S.) Ch. 210, where a testator gave certain real and personal estate to trustees, in trust for such persons as A., a married woman, should appoint, and in default of appointment for her separate use, and at her decease to convey the real estate to such person as would be the heir-at-law of the said A., and to assign the personal estate to or amongst such persons as would be the "personal representatives" of A., the next of kin under the statute were held entitled, see also Cotton v. Cotton, 2 Be. 67; 8 L. J. (N. S.) Ch. 349; Smith v. Barneby, 2 Col. 728; 16 L. J. (N. S.) Ch. 466; Walker v. Marquis of Camden, 16 Sim. 329; 17 L. J. Ch. 488; Stockdale v. Nicholson, L. R. 4 Eq. 359; 36 L. J. Ch. 793; Re Gryll's Trusts, L. R. 6 Eq. 589. In Re Horner, 37 Ch. D. 695; 57 L. J. Ch. 211, "representatives" was held not to mean "executors and administrators," and it was not necessary in the circumstances to decide whether it meant next of kin or descendants, see Re Clay, 54 L. J. Ch. 648.

From cases of this class, however, we must carefully distinguish those in which the words "executors and administrators" or "legal representatives" are used as words of limitation, as in the case of a gift to A. and his executors or administrators, or to A. and his legal representatives, which will, beyond all question, vest the absolute interest in A., Lugar v. Harman, 1 Cox, 250; Mackenzie v. Mackenzie, 3 M. & G. 559; 21 L. J. Ch. 465; Attorney-General v. Malkin, 2 Ph. 64; Re Seymour's Trusts, Joh. 472; 28 L. J. Ch. 765; Johnson v. Routh, 27 L. J. Ch. 305; Devall v. Dickens, 9 Jur. 550; Alger v. Parrott, L. R. 3 Eq. 328; Meryon v. Collett, 8 Be. 386; 14 L. J. Ch. 369; Hames v. Hames, 2 Ke. 646; 7 L. J. Ch. 123; Morris v. Howes, 4 Ha. 599; 16 L. J. Ch. 121; Price v. Strange, 6 Mad. 159. In Grafftey v. Humpage, 1 Be. 46; 8 L. J. Ch. 98, where under a bequest to A. and B. and the survivor, for life, and on a certain contingency to such persons as B. should appoint, and in default of appointment to the executors, administrators, or assigns of B., B. was held to be entitled absolutely, see also Holloway v. Clarkson, 2 Ha. 521; Co. Litt. 54, b. It seems to be clear that neither the widow, Garrick v. Lord Camden, 14 Ves. 372; Lee v. Lee, 1 Dr. & S. 85; 29 L. J. Ch. 788; nor the husband, Milne v. Gilbert, 5 D. M. & G. 510; 23 L. J. Ch. 828, is entitled under a gift in terms either to the next of kin simpliciter, or by reference to intestacy or the Statutes of Distribution. The claim of the representatives of next of kin under a gift to "next of kin," however, had been the subject of many conflicting decisions and dicta, until the case of Elmsley v. Young, 2

M. & K. 82, 780; 4 L. J. Ch. 200, in which the Lords Commissioners decided in favour of the strict construction, and held that, under a gift to next of kin, a surviving brother was entitled, in exclusion of the children of a deceased brother. See also Withy v. Mangles, 10 C. & F. 215; Avison v. Simpson, Joh. 43; Rook v. Attorney-General, 31 Be. 313; 31 L. J. Ch. 791; and Halton v. Foster, L. R. 3 Ch. 505; 37 L. J. Ch. 547, where under gifts of personalty to "the next of kin" it was held that the nearest of kindred in blood were entitled, and not those who would be entitled under the Statutes of Distribution. See also Re Richards, 1910, 2 Ch. 74; 79 L. J. Ch. 500. And the nearest in blood, if more than one, take as joint tenants, Stockdale v. Nicholson, L. R. 4 Eq. 359; 36 L. J. Ch. 793. The terms "next of kin" and "next or nearest of blood" are synonymous, Cooper v. Denison, 13 Sim. 290; 12 L. J. Ch. 275. See further note (f) to Prec. 24.

PARC. 11.

In Scott v. Moore, 14 Sim. 35; 13 L. J. Ch. 283, the Court had to decide between the conflicting claims of the next of kin and the residuary legatee of a testator, under a declaration that a trust fund in a certain event should be considered as part of his personal estate, and go in due course of administration; the legatee was held entitled. And see Hewitson v. Todhunter, 22 L. J. Ch. 76, where a legacy was bequeathed to A., and in case he should die in testator's lifetime (which happened) it was directed that the legacy should devolve upon A.'s "personal representatives"; Sir J. Stuart, V.-C., decided against both the executor and the next of kin of A., and in favour of his residuary legatee.

But see Comfort v. Brown, 10 Ch. D. 146; 48 L. J. Ch. 318. As to "heir of my family," see Tetlow v. Ashton, 20 L. J. Platel*, 5 Bing. N. C. 434; 37 L. J. (N. S.) C. P. 249. In Re Amos, 1891, 3 Ch. 159; 60 L. J. Ch. 570, a devise to A. "for his life and the life of his heir" was held legally valid, the effect being to give A. an estate during his own life and the life of the person who should be ascertained to be his heir at the time of his death.

On gifts to "family" or "relations" compare note (e) to Prec. 10; see also on this subject, and generally on gifts to descendants (Re Hickey, 1917, 1 Ch. 601; 86 L. J. Ch. 385), issue, next of kin, personal representatives, executors or administrators, and persons of testator's blood and name, Jarm. Wills, ch. 41. As to the payment of legacies to minors.

c. 53.

(i) An executor is not authorized, without an express direction, to pay even a vested legacy to, or apply it for the benefit of, a minor legatee; still less is he warranted in so dealing with a legacy which (like that in the text) is contingent until the majority of the legatee. But an executor can discharge himself of a legacy which belongs to an infant by paying it into Court under the Trustee Act, 1893, s. 42. In order to avoid the necessity of resorting to this proceeding, which of course is attended with some expense, it seems in general advisable to give to the executors, where the legacy is small, a power of applying it for the benefit of the legatee during minority, unless the testator chooses absolutely to postpone his bounty until majority.

(k) See note (f) to Prec. 7.

As to legacies
to executors.

(l) These words are inserted to shew that the executor is to have the legacy whether he proves the will or not. See Hawkins, Constr. Wills, 362. The intention on this point should always be indicated in framing legacies to executors. The effect of declaring a legacy to be in consideration of the executor's trouble, and indeed of giving it simply to the executor without any explanatory declaration of the motive, would be to annex the legacy to the office, Calvert v. Sebbon, 4 Be. 222; Slaney v. Watney, L. R. 2 Eq. 418; 35 L. J. Ch. 783, and this probably is in general the intention. Secus, where it is expressed to be as a mark of esteem, Burgess v. Burgess, 1 Col. 367; or "as a remembrance," Bubb v. Yelverton, L. R. 13 Eq. 131, or where it is given to one of the executors exclusively in addition to a previous legacy to all, though the bequest be to them nominatim, without any allusion to the office, Cockerell v. Barber, 2 Russ. 585; 5 L. J. Ch. 77. See also Compton v. Bloxham, 2 Col. 201; 14 L. J. Ch. 380; Hollingsworth v. Grossett, 15 Sim. 52; Wildes v. Davies, 1 S. & G. 475; 22 L. J. Ch. 495; Angermann v. Ford, 29 Be. 349; Re Denby, 3 D. F. & J. 350; 31 L. J. Ch. 184; 4 Dav. Conv. 95. Where there was a gift of residue to the executors equally, as a recompense for their trouble, and one died in the testator's lifetime, it was held that there was no lapse, and the survivors took the whole, Knight v. Gould, 2 M. & K. 295; but where one renounced, probate, his share lapsed, Barber v. Barber, 3 M. & C. 688; 8 L. J. (N. S.) Ch. 36. And in Hoare v. Osborne, 33 L. J. Ch. 586, where one died in testator's lifetime, and another attested the will, it was held that both shares lapsed. As to what is sufficient acting as executor, or intention to act, see Lewis v. Mathews, L. R. 8 Eq. 277; 38 L. J. Ch. 510. In Jewis v. Lawrence, L. R. 8 Eq. 345, the inequality and the difference in the nature of the subject-matter of two bequests to the persons named as executors rebutted the presumption of the legacy being conditional on the executors proving the will, but the Court of Appeal in Re Appleton, 29 Ch. D. 893; 54 L. J. Ch. 954, doubted Jewis v. Lawrence, and held that there is no general rule, that a difference either in the nature or amount of the legacies given to the persons named as executors is enough to shew that the gifts are not attached to the office. Cotton, L. J., said that parol evidence is admissible to rebut the presumption that the gift is annexed to the office. And see Re Bacon's Will, 31 Ch. D. 460; 55 L. J. Ch. 368. But see Wigram, Extr. Evidence, 227. In Re Reece's Trusts, 4 Ch. D. 841; 46 L. J. Ch. 412, the presumption was rebutted by the legacy not being payable until the death of tenant for life. Where a testator gave to his trustees, "for their services and collecting of rents, &c.," an annuity of 25*l.*, and they employed a collector of the rents and the chief clerk allowed the trustees in taking their accounts a sum of 80*l.* paid to the collector, they were held not entitled to the annuities, Re Muffet, 56 L. J. Ch. 600.

(m) A bequest to testator's "servants" includes those who are in his service at the date of the will, Parker v. Marchant, 1 Y. & C. 290; Re Bell, 1914, W. N. 89; though the gift may be construed to include those only in his service at his death, Jones v. Henley, 2 Ch. Rep. 162. As to those occasionally employed, see Townshend v. Windham, 2 Ver 546; Thrupp v. Collett, 26 Be. 147; a temporary absence from actual service at the testator's death does not disentitle one otherwise entitled, Herbert v. Reid, 16 Ves. 486; Re Cole, 1919, 1 Ch. 218.

A bequest "to each of my servants one year's wages over and above what may be due to them at the time of my decease," is confined to servants hired by the year, Booth v. Dean, 1 M. & K. 560; 2 L. J. (N. S.) Ch. 162; Blackwell v. Pennant, 9 Ha. 551; 22 L. J. Ch. 155; Re Ravensworth, 1905, 2 Ch. 1; 74 L. J. Ch. 353. But if the bequest is of a gross sum to be divided amongst the servants, persons continuously employed at weekly wages are included, Thrupp v. Collett, ubi sup. And see, where the preceding cases are distinguished, Re Sheffield (Earl), 1911, 2 Ch. 267; 80 L. J. Ch. 521.

In estimating the amount of a gift of "a sum equivalent to two months of their respective current salaries or wages at my decease," payments by commission were not taken into consideration, Re Smith, 1915, W. N. 12.

A gift to "servants in my domestic establishment," includes only indoor servants, Ogle v. Morgan, 1 D. M. & G. 359; Re Ogilby, 1903, 1 Ir. R. 525; and in Jones v. Henley, ubi sup., where the gift was simply "100*l.* a piece to all my servants," it was held that those only were entitled who lived in the house with the testator. But in Townshend v. Windham, ubi sup., the expression "such of my servants as shall be living with me at my death," was held not to exclude servants living in a different house; and similar decisions were given in Blackwell v. Pennant and Thrupp v. Collett, ubi sup. As to "domestic servant," see Re Lawson, 1914, 1 Ch. 682; 83 L. J. Ch. 519; considered in Re King, 1917, 2 Ch. 420; 87 L. J. Ch. 3. And see as to a farm labourer, Re Forrest, 1916, 2 Ch. 386; 85 L. J. Ch. 784, and a hospital nurse, Re Travers, 1916, W. N. 348. A bequest "to each man who shall have been in my employ over ten years," held to extend to a man who had been in the testator's employ for fifteen years, but who was not in his employment at the time of his death, Re Sharland, 1896, 1 Ch. 517; 65 L. J. Ch. 280.

See also Armstrong v. Clavering, 27 Be. 226; Darlow v. Edwards, 1 H. & C. 547; 32 L. J. Ex. 51; Venes v. Marriott, 31 L. J. Ch. 519. See post, p. 251.

stock.

(o) The word "money" in a will does not pass stock in the public funds, unless its meaning is enlarged by the context, Lowe v. Thomas, 5 D. M. & G. 315; 23 L. J. Ch. 616; Collins v. Collins, L. R. 12 Eq. 455; 40 L. J. Ch. 541; Re Sutton, 28 Ch. D. 464; 54 L. J. Ch. 613; or it can be gathered from the whole will, and the facts of the case, that such was the testator's intention, Chapman v. Reynolds, 28 Be. 221; 29 L. J. Ch. 594; Gover v. Davis, 29 Be. 222; 30 L. J. Ch. 505; Re Townley, 53 L. J. Ch. 516; Re Cadogan, 25 Ch. D. 154; 53 L. J. Ch. 207; Montagu v. Earl of Sandwich, 33 Be. 324; Nevinson v. Lady Lennard, 34 Be. 487. See also Cowling v. Cowling, 26 Be. 449, where stock in the funds was held not to pass by a bequest of "my goods and furniture, my plate and linen, all money and notes that may be due to me at my decease." The addition of "&c." to a bequest like the above will carry only things ejusdem generis, Newman v. Newman, 26 Be. 220; Barnaby v. Tassell, L. R. 11 Eq. 363; but where the will shews an intention to dispose of everything, "&c." will carry the whole personal estate, Chapman v. Chapman, 4 Ch. D. 800; 46 L. J. Ch. 104. South Sea Stock and 3¼ per Cents. were held, on the context, to pass by the expression "surplus money," Newman v. Newman, 26 Be. 218. See also Thomas v. Thomas, 27 Be. 537; 29 L. J. Ch. 281, in which case the testator left to his grandson "all the bank stock which he should be possessed of or entitled to at the time of his death"; on the 27th Dec., 1858, he directed the purchase of 5,000*l.* bank stock, obviously with a view of increasing the legacy to his grandson; the stock was bought at the earliest possible moment, but the testator died on the day of, but five hours before, the purchase; the grandson was held not to be entitled to the 5,000*l.*

PREC. 11.

A bequest of "my bank stock," was held to pass 3¼ per Cents., the testator having no other stock, either at the date of his will, or at his death, Drake v. Martin, 23 Be. 89; 26 L. J. Ch. 786. But where a testator has stock which answers the description in his will, though different in amount, the description will not be extended so as to include stock of a different description, Gilliat v. Gilliat, 28 Be. 481. Bank stock will not pass under a bequest of "money and securities for monies," Ogle v. Knipe, L. R. 8 Eq. 434; 38 L. J. Ch. 692. As to what securities are within the meaning of "stocks in the foreign funds," see Ellis v. Eden, 23 Be. 543; 25 Be. 482; 26 L. J. Ch. 533. In Hull v. Hill, 4 Ch. D. 97, Australian bonds did not pass under a bequest of foreign bonds. Long annuities pass as "stock and money in the funds," Grant v. Mussett, 2 L. T. 133; or as "public funds or government securities," Wilday v. Sandys, L. R. 7 Eq. 455.

Bequest of
"money."

In the absence of any other bequest of residuary personalty, a bequest of "money that may remain after the payment of my debts" includes the general residue of personalty; and such a bequest of "money" has been held to pass the testator's reversionary interest in a sum charged on real estate, Stocks v. Barré, Joh. 54. And see Montagu v. Sandwich, 33 Be. 324; In b. White, 7 P. D. 65; 51 L. J. P. 40; Re Egan, 1899, 1 Ch. 688; 68 L. J. Ch. 307; O'Connor v. O'Connor, 1911, 1 Ir. R. 263; Re Capel, 1914, W. N. 465; Re Skillen, 1916, 1 Ch. 518; 85 L. J. Ch. 383; Re Gliddon, 1917, 1 Ch. 174; 86 L. J. Ch. 253; Re Woolley, 1918, 1 Ch. 33; 87 L. J. Ch. 169.

A bequest of "ready money" includes not only cash in the house, but cash at a banker's upon an ordinary account current, Parker v. Marchant, 1 Ph. 356; 12 L. J. Ch. 385; or in a savings-bank, such money being payable on demand or the required notice to pay having been given and the time expired before the testator's death, Re Powell's Trust, Joh. 49. But a bequest of "ready money" does not include promissory notes or notes of hand, ib. And money on deposit at a bank withdrawable at fourteen days' notice is not "ready money," Re Wheeler, 1904, 2 Ch. 66; 73 L. J. Ch. 576; secus, if withdrawable without notice, Re Boorer, 1908, W. N. 189; nor is it a "pecuniary investment," Re Price, 1905, 2 Ch. 55; 74 L. J. Ch. 437. And see Re Sudlow, 1914, W. N. 424. But a bequest of "moneys owing" will pass money to the testator's credit on a deposit account, because the relationship existing between the testator and his banker is that of debtor and creditor, Re Derbyshire, 1906, 1 Ch. 135; 75 L. J. Ch. 95. A bequest of money deposited in the post office savings-bank will include consolidated stock bought through the post office savings-bank with money standing to the credit of the testator's deposit account, Re Adkins, 98 L. T. 667; secus, where there is a residuary gift, Re Mann, 1912, 1 Ch. 388; 81 L. J. Ch. 217.

Where the question is as to what is included in some general popular term or description, it seems impossible to lay down any rule; the intention of the testator must be gathered from the whole instrument. Accordingly, in Langdale v. Whitfield, 4 K. & J. 426; 27 L. J. Ch. 795, the word "moneys" in a codicil was held to comprise not only money in hand, but moneys due upon securities or otherwise; and this notwithstanding express mention in the will of "moneys and securities for money." As to what is included in a bequest of "money in bank," see Harper's Trustees v. Bain, 5 F. 716 (Ch. of Sess.); Re Glendinning, 1918, W. N. 370; and what is a bequest of "securities," see Re Johnson, 89 L. T. 520; Re Rayner, 1904, 1 Ch. 176; 73 L. J. Ch. 111. See, however, Williams v. Williams, 8 Ch. D. 789; 47 L. J. Ch. 850.

Under a bequest of "all moneys deposited or invested in banks or institutions or owing to me," a sum in consols was held to pass. Re Harding, 55 S. J. 93.

Money on deposit at bank.

An IOU, containing no promise to pay, is not a "security for money," Barry v. Harding, 1 J. & L. 483; and a banker's receipt for money on deposit is a mere IOU, evidence of a debt but not a security, Hopkins v. Abbott, L. R. 19 Eq. 222; 44 L. J. Ch. 316; but a vendor's lien for unpaid purchase-money is a "security for money," Callow v. Callow, 42 Ch. D. 550; 58 L. J. Ch. 698. See Jarm. Wills, ch. 35, iv. —B (2).

Construction of gifts to illegitimate
children.

(p) A gift to children or issue means legitimate children or issue only, unless it appears from the context or from the circumstances that illegitimates must have been intended, Wilkinson v. Adam, 1 V. & B. 422. The person or persons intended to take should therefore be described as unmistakably as possible. See Jarm. Wills, ch. 43; Hawkins, Constr. Wills, ch. 8; and see Re Hammond, 1911, 2 Ch. 342; 80 L. J. Ch. 690; Re Pearce, 1914, 1 Ch. 254; 83 L. J. Ch. 266; Re Helliwell, 1916, 2 Ch. 580; 86 L. J. Ch. 15. As to restraints on alienation.

(q) The law of England does not allow the owner of property to bestow it on another deprived of its incidents. Of these incidents the right of alienation is one of the most important, and it has been guarded with a jealousy natural in a commercial country, whose obvious policy it is to promote the free circulation and interchange of property. Hence it has become an established doctrine, that where real and personal estate is given to a man during his life, or for any definite estate or interest of greater or less extent, accompanied with the strongest injunction against his aliening it, the prohibition is nugatory, and the devisee or legatee enjoys unfettered his disposing power, see Renaud v. Tourangeau, L. R.

2 P. C. 4; 37 L. J. P. C. 1. Upon a similar principle, and for reasons of policy still more obvious, the most positive and emphatic expression of a wish to devote the property to the personal and exclusive benefit of the devisee or legatee does not, in the event of his becoming bankrupt, prevent it from devolving to the trustees in whom the law in such case has vested his general property, Brandon v. Robinson, 18 Ves. 429; Graves v. Dolphin, 1 Sim. 66; 5 L. J. (N.S.) Ch. 45; Youngehusband v. Gisborne, 1 Col. 400, affirmed 15 L. J. Ch. 355.

PREG. 11.

The mere ownership of income, however, though it cannot (except in one instance presently noticed, p. 224) be the subject of an inalienable trust, may be made to cease on alienation, bankruptcy, or other such event, see Martin v. Margham, 14 Sim. 230; 13 L. J. Ch. 392; Rochford v. Hackman, 9 Ha. 475; 21 L. J. Ch. 511; Re Dickson's Trust, 1 Sim. N. S. 37; 20 L. J. Ch. 33; Jones v. Wyse, 2 Ke. 285; 7 L. J. Ch. 107; Montefiore v. Enthoven, L. R. 5 Eq. 35; 37 L. J. Ch. 43; Hurst v. Hurst, 21 Ch. D. 278; 51 L. J. Ch. 729; Re Bedson's Trusts, 28 Ch. D. 523; 54 L. J. Ch. 644; and it is in every day's practice to subject life interests, both in real and personal property, to determining provisos of this nature.

Income to cease on alienation.

But an estate of inheritance in lands, or the entire interest in personality, cannot be made liable to divestment even on alienation or bankruptcy, Ware v. Cunn, 10 B. & C. 433; 8 L. J. K. B. 164; Bradley v. Peixoto, 3 Ves. 324; Ross v. Ross, 1 Jac. & W. 154; Holmes v. Godson, 8 D. M. & G. 152; 25 L. J. Ch. 317; Whitfield v. Prickett, 2 Ke. 608; 7 L. J. Ch. 187; Re Machu, 21 Ch. D. 838; Re Dugdale, 38 Ch. D. 176; for the power of alienation is incidental to an estate in fee or a complete ownership of personality, and any attempted general restraint on the exercise of this incident to ownership is repugnant to the estate, and therefore void; see the notes to Bradley v. Peixoto in Tud. L. C. R. P. In cases of this nature, the only mode of effectuating the design, often anxiously entertained by donors, of securing the corpus of the property against the acts of the donee himself and the claims of his creditors, is to invest a third person with a discretionary power either to give or to withhold it, as he may think proper; in short, absolutely to defer all proprietary title in the intended object of bounty until its actual application to his use by the testator's nominee, and ultimately to give to another (for this seems to be essential to the consistency, and effectiveness of the scheme) what remains so unapplied at his decease. Nor is this all, for, according to the doctrine of Piercy v. Roberts, 1 M. & K. 4; 28 L. J. Ch. 17, in order to exclude the claim of the trustees in bankruptcy, the power should be made incapable of being exercised in favour of the bankrupt (supposing him to be the sole object of the power) after such event, or, in other words, the power should, on bankruptcy, be exerciseable in favour of other persons, or the property given over as on death; otherwise it is considered as an unlawful attempt to continue the property in the bankrupt after the law has taken away his capacity to retain it, and consequently what remains unapplied belongs to the trustees. See also Kearsley v. Woodcock, 3 Ha. 185; Wallace v.

Anderson, 16 Be. 533; Sharp v. Cosserat, 20 Be. 470; Re Smith, 1916, 2 Ch. 368; 85 L. J. Ch. 657. Of course, there is no objection to the power, in the event of bankruptcy, being made exercisable in favour of the wife or children of the bankrupt.

Care must, however, be taken to prevent a discretionary trust being, by reason of the objects, void for remoteness. It can only be limited for a life or lives in being and twenty-one years afterwards, Re Blew, 1906, 1 Ch. 624; 75 L. J. Ch. 373.

As to a power to alien in favour of defined objects.

The doctrine which prohibits the imposition of any general restraint on the alienation of the inheritance of lands and the absolute property in personalty has been held not to prevent the aliening power from being confined in its exercise to certain objects; as in the case of a gift to A. in fee, upon condition that, in a certain event, he shall have no power to dispose of the property, unless to his sisters and their children; this was held to be valid, Doe v. Pearson, 6 Ea. 173; as to which see Attwater v. Attwater, 18 Be. 330; 23 L. J. Ch. 692; and Re Macleay, L. R. 20 Eq. 186; 44 L. J. Ch. 441. A restraint extending to particular modes of conveyance is not admissible, and a devisee in fee must be left at liberty to dispose of the property by any and every species of assurance which is adapted to the nature of his estate, Ware v. Cann, 10 B. & C. 433; 8 L. J. K. B. 164.

Alienation by a married woman may be restrained.

The single exception to the general doctrine respecting restraints on alienation is that in favour of married women who may be prevented from disposing of annual income given for their separate use (to which the power of alienation is otherwise incident) by mere words of restriction without any clause of forfeiture, Jackson v. Hobhouse, 2 Mer. 483. The restraint may be annexed to an absolute gift if the intention is clear, Re Bown, 27 Ch. D. 411; 53 L. J. Ch. 881; Re Grey's Settlements, 34 Ch. D. 712; 56 L. J. Ch. 511.

But restraint on anticipation of rents does not prevent an equitable tenant in tail from barring the entail, with the concurrence of her husband, and devising the equitable fee simple, Cooper v. Macdonald, 7 Ch. D. 288; 47 L. J. Ch. 373.

Doctrine not applicable to unmarried women.

Separate use, future coverture.

But a woman not under coverture is no more capable of being the object of an inalienable trust than a man. And where the cestui que trust is discovert at the death of the testator, and afterwards marries, the futurity of the latter event cannot detract from the force of the restriction, which will be exactly co-extensive with the coverture when-ever contracted; and if the cestui que trust does not avail herself of the privilege of alienation resulting from her temporary discoverture, the restriction will adhere to her during any subsequent coverture, as firmly as if she had been married at the testator's decease. See the elaborate judgements of Lord Langdale and Lord Cottenham in Tullett v. Armstrong, 4 M. & C. 377; 9 L. J. (N.S.) Ch. 41; and 1 Hayes, Conv. 499. And see as to marriage after divorce, Shafte v. Butler, 40 L. J. Ch. 308.

Tullett v. Armstrong.

Since the Married Women's Property Act, 1882, a restraint on anticipation may be imposed without the words "separate use," Re Lumley, 1896, 2 Ch. 690; 65 L. J. Ch. 837.

NOTES TO
PREC. 11.

A married woman restrained from anticipation cannot assign an apportioned part of current interest up to the date of the assignment. Re Brettle, 2 D. J. & S. 79; 33 L. J. Ch. 471.

When once the restraint on anticipation was imposed, and by reason of coverture had become effectual, it was only by the determination of the coverture that the restraint could, until 1882, be removed. Thus, where a testator gave a legacy to a married woman upon condition that she conveyed within twelve months an estate devised to her by another testator for her separate use with a clause against anticipation, it was held that the Court had no power to interfere for the purpose of enabling the married woman to comply with the condition, Robinson v. Wheelwright, 6 D. M. & G. 535; 25 L. J. Ch. 385. And where a fund had been settled by order of the Court to the separate use of a married woman without power of anticipation, the Court would not disturb it, Chapman v. Lamport, 8 W. R. 466. But by s. 7 of the Conveyancing Act, 1911, replacing s. 39 of the Conveyancing Act, 1881, the Court can bind a married woman's interest in any property, notwithstanding a restraint, by order made with her consent and if it is for her benefit: see Re Little, 40 Ch. D. 418. It has been held, though the decision is not convincing, that a settlement may be varied during a coverture after a divorce so as to override the restraint, under the Matrimonial Causes Act, 1859 and 1878, Churchward v. Churchward, 1910, P. 195; 79 L. J. P. 59. By s. 61 of the Settled Land Act, 1882, a restraint on anticipation does not prevent the exercise by a married woman of powers conferred by that Act.

Restraint on anticipation can be dispensed with by the Court.

(r) Though the legal possibility of issue continues down to the last moment of life, without distinction of sex, Jee v. Audley, 1 Cox, 324, yet Courts of Equity will liberate a fund, when, from the advanced age of a female, the probability of the birth of children is at an end, see Re White, 1901, 1 Ch. 570; 70 L. J. Ch. 300, and cases there cited; and see Seton, ch. 44, sect. 27 and notes.

(s) The rules for ascertaining the objects of gifts to children as a class, so far as relates to the period of their coming into existence, are as follows: First, If no period of distribution is named, the class is ascertained at the death of the testator; and a gift which takes effect in possession immediately on the testator's decease in favour of the "children" of A., whether A. be living or dead, extends to children in existence at the death of the testator, if there are any such, and those only, Hill v. Chapman, 3 Br. C. 391; Viner v. Francis, 2 Cox, 190. Secondly, When a period of distribution is named, that is the time for ascertaining the class, Hagger v. Payne, 23 Be. 474; 26 L. J. Ch. 617. Thirdly, A gift to children, the distribution of whose shares is postponed

until majority or some other age (which none of the class at the testator's decease has attained), embraces the children living at the testator's decease, and also those who come in esse before the eldest attains the prescribed age, when the distribution pro tanto (i.e. to such eldest child) takes place, and children born after that time are excluded, Andrews v. Partington, 3 Br. C. 401; Gilbert v. Boorman, 11 Ves. 238; Gilman v. Daunt, 3 K. & J. 48; Gimblett v. Purton, L. R. 12 Eq. 427; 40 L. J. Ch. 556; as to a child en ventre, see Re Hallett, 1892, W. N. 148. But this rule applies only to the gift of an aggregate fund and not to a gift of income. In this case children coming into being after the eldest attains the prescribed age are let in to share in the periodical distribution of the income, Re Wenmoth's Estate, 37 Ch. D. 266; 57 L. J. Ch. 649. See also Re Powell, 1898, 1 Ch. 227; 67 L. J. Ch. 148; and Re Stephens, 1904, 1 Ch. 322; 73 L. J. Ch. 3; and Jarm. Wills, 1688 et seq. Fourthly, A gift to children, preceded by a life interest, includes the children living at the death of the testator, and those who come in esse in the lifetime of the prior devisee or legatee, whose death is made the period of distribution, Derisme v. Mello, 1 Br. C. 537; Leigh v. Leigh, 17 Be. 605; 23 L. J. Ch. 287; Odell v. Crone, 3 Dow. 61; and such is the rule whenever the distribution is postponed to a future period, Gardner v. James, 6 Be. 170. But see Re Shaw, 56 S. J. 380. Fifthly, Where no child is in existence at the testator's decease, the devise or bequest though framed as a gift in possession, will extend to all the children who afterwards come in esse, Weld v. Bradbury, 2 Ver. 705; Harris v. Lloyd, T. & R. 310. And a gift which appears on the face of the will as a future disposition in favour of children, but is reduced, by events happening in the testator's lifetime, to a gift in possession, falls within this rule, Haughton v. Harrison, 2 Atk. 329. And there is some ground to contend that the same doctrine applies where the gift in favour of children is preceded by a life interest which determines before any child is born, Chapman v. Blissett, Ca. t. Talb. 145; Hutcheson v. Jones, 2 Mad. 124; Horseman v. Abbey, 1 J. & W. 381; but see Bartleman v. Murchison, 2 R. & M. 136. In Re Bedson's Trusts, 28 Ch. D. 523; 54 L. J. Ch. 644, the gift to children at twenty-one was preceded by a life estate, but there was a proviso that in case of the bankruptcy of the tenant for life the fund and income should thenceforth go and be payable to or for the benefit of the child or children of the tenant for life "in the same manner as if he was naturally dead." The tenant for life having become bankrupt, it was held that the children who attained twenty-one would take whether born before or after the bankruptcy. But see Re Curzon, 56 S. J. 362.

Where there is a gift to children at twenty-one, the general rule is that the class is fixed when the eldest child attains twenty-one, and no child born after can take. But if maintenance or advancement is continued after the eldest attains twenty-one—if, for instance, advancement is directed out of vested shares—all children will be let in, Re Courtenay, 74 L. J. Ch. 654. And compare Re Deloitte, 1919, 1 Ch. 209.

Freeholds of inheritance—

With respect to freeholds of inheritance, if the legal estate were devised to A. for life, and after his death to his children, who "either before or after his death" shall attain twenty-one, or to the children of B., born "either before or after" the death of A., all children attaining majority or born after A.'s death would take by executory devise, Re Lechmere and Lloyd, 18 Ch. D. 524, followed in Miles v. Jarvis, 24 Ch. D. 633; 52 L. J. Ch. 796; Dean v. Dean, 1891, 3 Ch. 150; 60 L. J. Ch. 553; Re Wrightson, 1904, 2 Ch. 95; 73 L. J. Ch. 742; and White v. Summers, 1908, 2 Ch. 256; 77 L. J. Ch. 506. "An executory devise is a limitation by will of a future estate or interest in land, which cannot, consistently with the rules of law, take effect as a remainder. . . . A remainder may be described to be a limitation which is so framed as to be immediately expectant on the natural determination of a particular estate of freehold, limited by the same instrument," Jarm. Wills, p. 1432. The rule is, that when a devise is capable, according to the state of the objects at the death of the testator, of taking effect as a remainder, it is not construed as an executory devise; to constitute the ulterior limitation an executory devise, the precedent estate must necessarily be determinable before the ulterior devise takes effect; if it be merely liable to determine before the ulterior devise takes effect, the liability only renders the remainder contingent. But as regards wills executed after the 2nd August, 1877, the distinction has been rendered less important by the Contingent Remainders Act, 1877 (40 & 41 Vict. c. 33), whereby it is enacted that every contingent remainder created by any instrument executed after that date which would have been valid as a springing or shifting use or executory devise or other limitation had it not had a sufficient estate to support it as a contingent remainder, shall, in the event of the particular estate determining before the contingent remainder vests, be capable of taking effect in all respects as if the contingent remainder had originally been created as a springing or shifting use or executory devise or other executory limitation. See also the Conveyancing Act, 1882, s. 10. The want of a preceding estate of freehold never caused a failure of an equitable contingent remainder, Abbis v. Burney, 17 Ch. D. 211; 50 L. J. Ch. 348; Re Brooke, 1894, 1 Ch. 43; 63 L. J. Ch. 159; and such remainders retain their immunity from failure although subsequently clothed with the legal estate by the executors' assent under the Land Transfer Act, 1897, Re Robson, 1916, 1 Ch. 116. Whether the rule against perpetuities applies to contingent remainders is doubtful, Challis, R. P. 197; Re Ashforth, 1905, 1 Ch. 535; 74 L. J. Ch. 361.

c. 33.

In construing words expressly restricting or enlarging the class of children who are the objects of the gift, there seems in general to be no extension of the range of objects by the introduction of the word "all," Scott v. Harwood, 5 Mad. 332. It is also clear that the words "hereafter to be begotten," added to a future gift to children (i.e. a gift under which the possession or distribution is postponed to a period subsequent to the death of the testator), have no effect in extending the class to objects born after the period of distribution, Paul v. Compton, 8 Ves. 375; Whitbread v. Lord St. John, 10 Ves. 152; Gilbert v. Boorman, restrict the

PREC. 11.

11 Ves. 238. Nor, on the other hand, do these words exclude existing children, Hebblethwaite v. Cartwright, Ca. t. Talb. 30; Almack v. Horn, 1 H. & M. 630; 32 L. J. Ch. 304; though a bequest in a codicil to "each child that may be born" to A. was held to apply only to children born after the date of the codicil, Early v. Middleton, 14 Be. 453; Townsend v. Early, 28 Be. 429; affirmed 3 D. F. & J. 1. But if the gift be immediate, i.e. to take effect in possession on the death of the testator, such words as "to be born" or "to be begotten," annexed to a general devise or bequest to children, have the effect of extending it to all the children who shall ever come into existence, Mogg v. Mogg, 1 Mer. 654; see also Gooch v. Gooch, 3 D. M. & G. 366; 22 L. J. Ch. 1089. See, however, Jarm. Wills, 1694 et seq. But this construction does not apply to pecuniary legacies where the consequence of letting in children born after testator's death would be the postponement of the distribution of the testator's general estate until the death of the parent of the legatees, Ringrose v. Bramham, 2 Cox, 384; Storrs v. Benbow, 2 M. & K. 46; 2 L. J. (N. S.) Ch. 201; Butler v. Lowe, 10 Sim. 317; Mann v. Thompson, Kay, 638; Rogers v. Mutch, 10 Ch. D. 25; 48 L. J. Ch. 133; in such cases the words of futurity are held to refer to the interval between the date of the will and the death of the testator. See also Dias v. De Livera, 5 App. Cas. 123; 49 L. J. P. C. 26.

Effect of events happening in testator's life.

It should seem that if the event, on the occurrence of which the persons constituting the class of children entitled are to be ascertained, happens in the lifetime of the testator, as in the case of a bequest to the children of A. who shall be living at the death of B., as tenants in common, and B. dies in the lifetime of the testator, the gift extends to the children of A., and those only, who are living at the death of B.; see Allen v. Callow, 3 Ves. 289; Harvey v. Harvey, 3 Jur. 949; but such a gift is still a gift to a class, Lee v. Pain, 4 Ha. 250; 14 L. J. (N. S.) Ch. 346; and if any child living at the death of B. afterwards dies in the testator's lifetime, the share of such child does not lapse, but the surviving children take the whole, Leigh v. Leigh, 17 Be. 605; 23 L. J. Ch. 287; Cruse v. Howell, 4 Drew. 215; Dimond v. Bostock, L. R. 10 Ch. 358.

If the gift be to the "children of A., to wit, B., C. and D.," it is considered to be made to the children, not as a class, but as individuals, Bain v. Lescher, 11 Sim. 397; and consequently the share of one who died in the testator's lifetime was held to be undisposed of. Also if from the terms of the will it appears that a bequest is made to persons, not as a class, but as individuals, and the share of one of them is revoked by a codicil, and the will is in other respects confirmed, the revoked share will fall into the residue, Orford v. Orford, 1903, 1 Ir. R. 121. But if a testator, after bequeathing to children as a class, revokes the bequest as to one of them, the entire subject of gift devolves to the rest, Shaw v. M'Mahon, 4 Dr. & War. 431. A gift to nephews and nieces, except A. and B., is a gift to a class, Dimond v. Bostock, sup.; and a gift to "all my grandchildren with the exception of one, viz.:—," was held to be a gift to the class not affected by the incomplete exception, Illingworth v. Cooke, 9 Ha. 37; 20 L. J. Ch. 512. The question is one as to the form of the gift. If the form is that of a class gift, the legatees take as a class and not as individuals, Re Stanhope's Trusts, 27 Be. 201; Re Jackson, 25 Ch. D. 162; 53 L. J. Ch. 180; Kingsbury v. Walter, 1901, A. C. 187; 70 L. J. Ch. 546; Re Venn, 1904, 2 Ch. 52; 73 L. J. Ch. 507. But see Capes v. Dalton, 86 L. T. 129; and sub nomine Kekewich v. Barker, 88 L. T. 130.

In ascertaining the persons to take under a gift to children as a class after a previous life estate, the Court adopts the rule of including as many objects of the gift as possible, consistently with the declared purpose of the testator, Bouverie v. Bouverie, 2 Ph. 349; 16 L. J. Ch. 411; Jackson v. Dover, 2 H. & M. 209. See also Re Knowles, 21 Ch. D. 806; 51 L. J. Ch. 851; Kekewich v. Barker, 88 L. T. 130.

It may be observed, that a child en ventre sa mère is regarded as a child in esse; and this construction obtains as well where the gift is to children generally, as where it is to children "living" at a prescribed period, Clarke v. Blake, 2 Ves. 672; or even to children "born" at such period, Rawlins v. Rawlins, 2 Cox, 425; Whitlock v. Heddon, 1 B. & P. 243; Trower v. Butts, 1 S. & S. 181; the word being evidently used in a general popular sense, without the particular design of distinguishing between children born and children procreated. To fall within the class, the child en ventre must be legitimately procreated, as well as legitimately born, Re Corlass, 1 Ch. D. 460; 45 L. J. Ch. 118. And a child en ventre is treated as "living" or "born" only where such construction is necessary for the benefit of that child, e.g. when the words are used in the description of the objects of a bequest, or to prevent a gift to it from being divested, Pearce v. Carrington, L. R. 8 Ch. 969; 42 L. J. Ch. 900; not when used merely for the purpose of ascertaining a period of time, Blasson v. Blasson, 2 D. J. & S. 665; 34 L. J. Ch. 18. But see Re Burrows, 1895, 2 Ch. 497; 65 L. J. Ch. 52; Re Wilmer's Trusts, 1903, 2 Ch. 411; 72 L. J. Ch. 670; Villar v. Gilbey, 1907, App. Cas. 139; 76 L. J. Ch. 339; Re Salaman, 1908, 1 Ch. 4; 77 L. J. Ch. 60. In Re Burrows there was a devise to A. for life, and upon her death to B. "for her absolute use and benefit, in case she has issue living at the death of A., but in case she has not issue then living," then over. At the time of the death of A., who survived the testator, B. was enceinte, and the following day was delivered of a living child. Held, that B. took absolutely under the devise. Of course, a fourth child, en ventre at the date of the will, was not entitled under a gift to "each of the three children of my niece," Re Emery's Estate, 3 Ch. D. 300.

If there is a gift "amongst all the children of A. B., and the said Y. Z.," the class is constituted of the children of A. B., together with Y. Z. personally, and not together with the children of Y. Z. For the latter interpretation, the gift should be "amongst all the children of A. B., and of the said Y. Z.," Lugar v. Harman, 1 Cox, 250; Peacock v. Stockford, 3 D. M. & G. 73; Hawes v. Hawes, 14 Ch. D. 614; Re Featherstone's Trusts, 22 Ch. D. 111; 52 L. J. Ch. 75. See also Re Walbran, 1906, 1 Ch. 64; 75 L. J. Ch. 105; Re Harper, 1914, 1 Ch. 70; 83 L. J. Ch. 157.

Suggestion as to legacy
duty.

(u) As the Act of 36 Geo. 3, c. 52, has not subjected to legacy duty money which is to be appropriated in payment of the duty on legacies, a saving is effected by directing the duty to be paid out of the general estate. In the case of annuities, it is often advisable to relieve the legatee from the burthen, which, being payable out of his income (by four equal annual instalments), is much felt. This observation, however, is not applicable to annuities which are directed to be purchased; in which case the Act of 36 Geo. 3, c. 52, makes the duty attach on the price of the annuity as a pecuniary legacy.

A gift of legacy duty on a specific or pecuniary legacy is a common pecuniary legacy, and, in the event of deficiency of the estate, abates along with other pecuniary legacies, Farrer v. St. Catherine's College, L. R. 16 Eq. 19; 42 L. J. Ch. 809. And where a testator gave legacies free of duty simpliciter, and other legacies free of duty, with a direction that the duty should be paid out of his residuary estate; the legacies having been paid, the residue was insufficient to pay the duty; it was held that the gift of duty out of the residue failed pro tanto, and that the legatees, whose duty was to be borne by the residue, must themselves bear the duty to the extent to which the general personal estate was insufficient, Wilson v. O'Leary, L. R. 7 Ch. 448; 41 L. J. Ch. 342; Re Turnbull, 1905, 1 Ch. 726; 74 L. J. Ch. 438.

Exemption from legacy
duty.

The following expressions exempt legatees from legacy duty. A direction to pay all legacies "without any deduction," Barksdale v. Gilliat, 1 Sw. 362; to pay annuities and legacies, "clear of property tax and all expenses whatsoever attending the same," Courtroy v. Vincent, T. & R. 433; "free from all expense," Hoslen v. Dotterill, 1 M. & K. 56; 2 L. J. (N. S.) Ch. 15; "clear of all taxes and outgoing," Louch v. Peters, 1 M. & K. 489; 3 L. J. (N. S.) Ch. 167; "free from any charge or liability in respect thereof," Warbrick v. Farley, 30 Be. 241; and generally, a gift of a "clear" annuity of definite amount involves an exemption from duty, Haynes v. Haynes, 3 D. M. & G. 590; Wilks v. Groom, 4 W. R. 697; 25 L. J. Ch. 724; Re Currie, 57 L. J. Ch. 743; but a direction to invest sufficient stock to produce a clear yearly income does not, Banks v. Braithwaite, 32 L. J. Ch. 35; see, however, Re Coles' Will, L. R. 8 Eq. 271; and Re Saunders, 1898, 1 Ch. 17; 67 L. J. Ch. 55. A gift to testator's employés of six months' "full" salary is not a gift free from legacy duty, Re Marcus, 56 L. J. Ch. 830. As to the duty on the proceeds of real estate devised upon trust for sale, see White v. Lake, L. R. 6 Eq. 188.

Estate duty.

As to what words will grant an exemption from estate duty, under the Finance Act, 1894, see Re Parker-Jervis, 1898, 2 Ch. 643; 67 L. J. Ch. 682; Re Lewis, 1900, 2 Ch. 176; 69 L. J. Ch. 406; Re Leveridge, 1901, 2 Ch. 830; 71 L. J. Ch. 23; Re Dyet, 87 L. T. 744; Re Pimm, 1904, 2 Ch. 345; 73 L. J. Ch. 627. And see Re Waller, 1916, 1 Ch. 153; 85 L. J. Ch. 188.

A direction in a will that the duty on legacies "herein" given shall be paid out of the testator's estate was held not to exempt legacies given by codicil, Early v. Benbow, 2 Col. 355; 15 L. J. Ch. 169; but see Jauncey v. Attorney-General, 3 Gif. 308; Byne v. Currey, 2 Cr. & M. 603; 3 L. J. (N. S.) Ex. 177; Re Sealy, 85 L. T. 451; and as to application of a codicil to words in a will, Re Smith, 1916, 2 Ch. 368; 85 L. J. Ch. 657. See also Chatteris v. Young, 2 Rus. 183; Cooper v. Day, 3 Mer. 154; Re Trinder, 56 S. J. 74; and note (d) to Prec. 9, ante, p. 190.

PREC. 11.

As to whether the words "free of all duty" will exonerate a gift from duties imposed by the legislature after the testator's death, see Re Snapp, 1915, 2 Ch. 179; 84 L. J. Ch. 803; Re Palmer, 1916, 2 Ch. 391; 85 L. J. Ch. 577; Re Stoddart, 1916, 2 Ch. 444; 86 L. J. Ch. 29. And see as to the construction of various phrases intended to make gifts free of duty, Re Brown, 1916, W. N. 103; Re Hatch, 1916, W. N. 240; 86 L. J. Ch. 454; Re Kennedy, 1917, 1 Ch. 9; 86 L. PREC. 12.

WILL of a MARRIED MAN, providing for a Wife and his Son, an only Child (a).—Appointment of Executors and Guardians.—Bequest of Personal Effects to Wife.—Pecuniary Legacy to Testator's Mother for Life, then to his Sister absolutely.—Devise of Real Estates to Wife for Life.—Remainder to Son absolutely, with an Executory Devise, on his Death under Age, to Wife absolutely.—Bequest of Residuary Personal Estate to Trustees for Conversion and Investment.—Income to Wife for Life.—Capital to Son, with Executory Bequest on his Death under Age to Wife.—Provision for Advancement of Son.—Power to sell Real Estate and invest the Produce, to be held upon the Trusts of the Personal Estate; to postpone the Conversion of Personal Estate.

THIS IS THE LAST WILL of me [testator's name residence and quality].

I REVOKE all other wills and testamentary dispositions by me heretofore made.

PREC. 12.

Appointment of trustees, executors and guardians.

Legacies to executors and to friends.

Legacies to trustees, in trust for testator's mother for life, then for his sister absolutely.

Restriction upon power to vary the investment.

Personal effects to wife absolutely.

Real estate to wife for life, remainder to testator's son absolutely, but in the event of his death under age, to wife absolutely.

Residue of personal estate to trustees upon trust to get in and invest, &c. :

—to permit wife to receive the income for her life :

2. I APPOINT [names &c.] to be executors and trustees of this my will and I APPOINT them to be the guardians of my son [name] during his minority (g).

3. I BEQUEATH to each of my executors and trustees hereinbefore named £—— individually and without reference to office [compare Prec. 8, clause 5] and to each of my friends [names &c.] £——.

4. I BEQUEATH to my said trustees the sum of £—— UPON TRUST that my trustees shall invest the same (b) and pay the annual income thereof to my mother [name] during her life and after her death transfer the principal fund to my sister [name] for her absolute use and I DECLARE that my trustees shall not have power during my mother's life to exercise the power to vary investments conferred by statute without her consent in writing.

5. I DIRECT the aforesaid legacies to be paid or set aside at the end of three calendar months after my death and the lastly bequeathed legacy to carry interest at the rate of four per cent. per annum from my death until investment thereof and I direct that the interest or income derived from such legacy shall as well during the first year after my death as afterwards be paid to my mother during her life (c).

6. Bequest of personal effects to wife as in Prec. 8, clause 3 (d).

7. I DEVISE and bequeath all the real estate of whatsoever tenure and wheresoever situate and all the chattels real to which I shall at my death be entitled either in possession reversion or otherwise unto my said wife for her life without impeachment of waste and after her death unto my son and only child [name] his heirs executors administrators and assigns but if my said son shall die whether in my lifetime or after my death under the age of twenty-one years (e) without leaving issue then I devise the same real estate and chattels real unto my wife her heirs executors administrators and assigns.

8. I BEQUEATH the residue of my personal estate to my trustees hereinbefore named UPON TRUST that my trustees shall convert and get in the same and invest the moneys to arise therefrom AND UPON FURTHER TRUST that they shall permit and empower my wife to receive the annual income of the said moneys or the securities whereon the same shall be invested during her life And after her death as to the same moneys and securities and the annual income thenceforth to become due in respect thereof hold the same

IN TRUST for my said son his executors administrators and assigns But if my said son shall die whether in my lifetime or after my decease under the age of twenty-one years without leaving issue then IN TRUST for my wife her executors administrators and assigns.

PREC. 12.
—capital to testator's son, but, in the event of his death under age, to wife.
Accumulation.

9. I DIRECT my trustees to accumulate during the minority of my said son any income of the real and personal property hereinbefore devised and bequeathed to or in trust for him not applied by them in or towards the maintenance and education or otherwise for his benefit during his minority by investing the same and to add the accumulations thereof to the capital of the personal property so bequeathed.

10. I EMPOWER my trustees with the consent in writing of my wife during her life and after her death and during the minority of my said son in the discretion of my trustees to apply any part or parts of the personal property so bequeathed as last aforesaid or of the said accumulations not exceeding in the whole the sum of £—— in or towards the advancement or preferment in the world of my said son.

Advancement to son.

11. I FURTHER EMPOWER my trustees if they shall think it advantageous so to do at any time or times with the consent in writing of my wife and after her death and during the minority of my said son in the discretion of my trustees to sell my said real estate or any part or parts thereof AND I DIRECT my trustees to invest the moneys to arise from the sale thereof and to hold the funds or securities whereon such investment shall be made upon the trusts hereinbefore contained concerning the funds or securities whereon the produce of my residuary personal estate may be invested.

Power to trustees to sell real estate, and invest produce, to be held upon the trusts before declared of the residuary personal estate.

12. I DECLARE that my trustees shall have a discretionary power to postpone for such period as to them shall seem expedient the conversion or getting in of any part of my residuary personal estate which shall at my death consist of shares in public companies or of stocks funds or securities of any description whatsoever but the outstanding personal estate shall be subject to the trusts hereinbefore contained concerning the moneys and funds and securities aforesaid and the yearly proceeds thereof shall be deemed annual income for the purposes of such trusts.

Power to postpone the getting in of personal estate—the yearly proceeds to be deemed annual income.

13. [Investment clause. See note (b) to Prec. 4 and add to any investment clause subject during my mother's life to the

PREC. 12. provision as to varying investments contained in clause 4 of this my will.]

14. Trustee interpretation clause as in Prec. 4, clause 6 (f).

IN WITNESS &c.

NOTES to Precedent 12.

(a) This Precedent should be adopted only in a case where the testator's wife is presumed to have passed the age of child-bearing. See note (v) to Prec. 11.

(b) See note (b), Prec. 4.

As to legacies carrying interest.

(c) If a legacy, whether pecuniary or of stock, is not paid at the expiration of a year from the testator's decease, or at such other period as the testator may have fixed for its payment, the legatee is entitled to interest at the rate of four per cent. (five per cent. was allowed on legacies in special circumstances, Re Burley, 1917, W. N. 115), from the end of the year, or such other period respectively, and not before. See R. S. C., O. 55, r. 64. Thus the first payment of interest does not become due until two years after the death; and there is no difference in the case of a legacy to the testator's wife, Stent v. Robinson, 12 Ves. 461; Re Whittaker, 21 Ch. D. 657; 51 L. J. Ch. 737. This rule applies to similar legacies under the will of a married woman in exercise of a power of appointment, Tatham v. Drummond, 2 H. & M. 262. And if a testator directs his executors to purchase for A. 500*l.* Three per Cent. Consols, A. is not entitled to call for a transfer until the expiration of a year after the testator's decease, and, therefore, cannot claim the dividends for the interval, Pearson v. Pearson, 1 Sch. & Lef. 10. But if the legacy were specific, as where a testator bequeaths a given portion of stock then standing in his name, the legatee would be entitled to the actual produce of the fund from the testator's decease, just as he would be entitled to the rents of a house specially devised; and see Dundas v. Wolfe Murray, 1 H. & M. 425; 32 L. J. Ch. 151. Where legacies were directed to be paid within four years after testator's decease, interest was payable, as from the expiration of one year after testator's death, on such as remained unpaid after the year, Re Olive, 53 L. J. Ch. 525; distinguishing Thomas v. Att.-Gen., 2 Y. & C. Ex. 525. A legacy to the testator's wife, in lieu of dower and freebench, carries interest only from the expiration of a year from the testator's death, Re Bignold, 45 Ch. D. 496; 59 L. J. Ch. 737. It is observable, too, that the rule which entitles a pecuniary legatee to interest only from the end of a year, applies as well to legacies which are to be invested for the benefit of a legatee for life as to those which are bequeathed to the legatee absolutely. "If an annuity is given, the first payment is paid at the end of the year from the death; but if a legacy is given for life, with remainder over, no interest is due till the end of two years. It is only interest of the legacy, and till the legacy is payable, there is no fund to produce interest"; per Lord Eldon, in Gibson v. Bott, 7 Ves. 89. But whether, if a sum of money is directed to be invested to produce an annuity, it is to be considered as a legacy payable at the end of the year, or as an annuity payable from the death, was in Gibson v. Bott, 7 Ves. 97, considered doubtful. See, however, Re Friend, 78 L. T. 222. A consequence of the doctrine that a legacy carries interest from the arrival of the time of payment, and not before, obviously is, that interest does not run on contingent legacies, as the contingency necessarily postpones the payment, Descrambes v. Tomkins, 1 Cox, 133; Tyrrell v. Tyrrell, 4 Ves. 1; Re Inman, 1893, 3 Ch. 518; Re White, 101 L. T. 780; but where demonstrative legacies are payable out of a reversionary interest, interest is payable on the legacies from the expiration of the first year from the testator's death, Re Walford, 1912, 1 Ch. 219; 1912, A. C. 658; 81 L. J. Ch. 828. A different doctrine from that above mentioned of Lord Eldon prevails with respect to a bequest of the residue of personalty for life with remainder over; contrary decisions will be found in the reports, but the preponderance of the latter cases was in favour of the claim of the residuary legatee for life to receive the income, in some shape or other, from the death of the testator; and the question was at length set at rest by a decision of the House of Lords, that the life tenant of the residue takes the whole income thereof during the first year after the testator's death, Macpherson v. Macpherson, 1 Macq. 243; see also Johnston v. Moore, 27 L. J. Ch. 453. Where maintenance during the minority of the legatee is given by a testator who is not parent or in loco parentis to the legatee, out of a contingent legacy, the legacy will carry interest, but not where maintenance is given from some other source, Re West, 1913, 2 Ch. 345; 82 L. J. Ch. 488.

NOTES TO
PREC. 12.

Contingent
legacy.

Interest on legacies.

Gift of residue for life, with gift over.

Where a sum of money is payable primarily out of rents or by mortgage of land, which is not subjected to the testator's debts, so that the payment is not involved in or dependent upon the general administration of the personal estate, the legacy carries interest from the death of the testator, Spurway v. Glynn, 9 Ves. 483; Shirt v. Westby, 16 Ves. 393; Davies v. Davies, Dan. 84; see also Pearson v. Pearson, 1 Sch. & Lef. 10; Earl of Miltown v. Trench, 4 C. & F. 276. But where land is devised upon trust for sale, and out of the proceeds of sale to pay legacies, interest is payable only from the expiration of a year from the death. Turner v. Buck, L. R. 18 Eq. 301; 43 L. J. Ch. 583. This case was characterised by Kay, J., as "a unique decision," in the course of his judgement in Re Waters, 42 Ch. D. 517; 58 L. J. Ch. 750.

Legacy
payable out
of land.

The old doctrine which made the title to interest depend on the fact whether the fund out of which the legacy is payable does or does not yield immediate profit seems to be exploded, see Gibson v. Bott, 7 Ves. 89, 97. And where the residuary personal estate of a testator comprised a bond debt, and, the debtor being insolvent, part only of the principal and interest was recovered many years subsequently to the testator's death, it was held that the tenant for life of the residue, as against those in remainder, was entitled not to the sum which had actually been recovered in respect of interest, but only to the interest at four per cent. on the sum which the bond would have realised if the testator's legacy in

estate had been administered at the end of a year after the debtor's death, Turner v. Newport, 2 Ph. 14. Where a legacy is given in satisfaction of a debt, interest is payable from the testator's death, Clark v. Sewell, 3 Atk. 96. As to the interest payable where a testator directs the payment of the debts of another person previously deceased, see Askew v. Thompson, 4 K. & J. 620. And, if a legacy is directed to be paid at a future time, as to A. on attaining twenty-three, and A. attains twenty-three in the testator's lifetime, the legacy will be an ordinary immediate legacy and carry interest from the expiration of the testator's death, Re Palfreeman, 1914, 1 Ch. 877; 83 L. J. Ch. 702.

In Noel v. Jones, 16 Sim. 309; 17 L. J. Ch. 470, a bequest to trustees upon trust to pay and apply 800*l.* in and upon the education of the godson of the testatrix was held to be an absolute gift to the godson, bearing interest from the expiration of one year from the death of the testatrix.

Interest on
children.

Legacies to infants to whom the testator stands in loco parentis are the subject of a peculiar doctrine respecting interest, arising from the moral claim which such objects are considered as possessing to an immediate provision. Such legacies, therefore, if the legatees are not otherwise provided for, will often carry interest before the prescribed time of payment, and even while contingent. Thus, if a testator bequeaths a pecuniary legacy, or the residue of his estate, to his children on their attaining majority, or to such children as shall attain majority, the children, though under twenty-one, will (subject to the qualification presently noticed) be entitled to the interest for maintenance from the day of the testator's decease, Harvey v. Harvey, 2 P. W. 21; Heath v. Perry, 3 Atk. 102; Incedon v. Northcote, 3 Atk. 438; or, in case of a posthumous child, from the birth, Rawlins v. Rawlins, 2 Cox, 425. As to the effect of express direction to accumulate the income arising from the residue of the testator's estate upon the right of the infant legatee to claim maintenance out of the interest, see Mole v. Mole, 1 Dick. 310; Kime v. Welfitt, 3 Sim. 533. And even where the testator expressly provides for maintenance during part of the minority, this does not prevent the allowance of interest for the remaining period, Chambers v. Goldwin, 11 Ves. 1; Martin v. Martin, L. R. 1 Eq. 369; 35 L. J. Ch. 281. A legacy by a parent to an infant carries interest from the death of the testator notwithstanding that the will contains a provision for the maintenance of the child out of the income of the legacy, or out of the income of a share of residue given to him equally with the other children, Re Moody, 1895, 1 Ch. 101; 64 L. J. Ch. 174. It is otherwise if the legacy is contingent upon an event having no reference to the legatee's infancy, Re Abrahams, 1911, 1 Ch. 108. And see Re Stewart, 1913, W. N. 183. The greatest extension, however, of the doctrine in favour of provisions for maintenance is exemplified by those cases in which an express allowance made by the testator has been increased, Aynsworth v. Pratchett, 13 Ves. 321; Stretch v. Watkins, 1 Mad. 253; Josselyn v. Josselyn, 9 Sim. 63; Allen v. Coster, 1 Be. 202; 9 L. J. Ch. 131; but in order to warrant such an augmentation, the inadequacy of the testator's allowance must be clearly made out, Hearle v. Greenbank, 3 Atk. 716; Long v. Long, 3 Ves. 286, n.; and the general rule undoubtedly is, that where the testator has otherwise provided for the maintenance of his infant children, the claim to interest before the period appointed for payment of the legacy cannot be supported, Wynch v. Wynch, 1 Cox, 433; Donovan v. Needham, 9 Be. 164; 15 L. J. Ch. 193. Where the gift has proceeded from the parent of the infant, or a person in loco parentis, and the subject-matter is a residuary personal estate, maintenance will be allowed to the members of a class, even when their interests are contingent, if the chances of each ultimately becoming entitled are equal, and no other person is interested, Fairman v. Green, 10 Ves. 45; Ex parte Kebble, 11 Ves. 604; Turner v. Turner, 4 Sim. 430; Errat v. Barlow, 14 Ves. 202; Cannings v. Flower, 7 Sim. 523. See also Re Colgan, 19 Ch. D. 305; 51 L. J. Ch. 180. But where the infant's interest in real estate, Green v. Ekins, 2 Atk. 473; Bullock v. Stones, 2 Ves. 8. 521; or in a particular trust fund, Leake v. Robinson, 2 Mer. 363, 384, is contingent, the intermediate income (until the happening of the contingency) will belong to the heir or residuary devisee, or to the next of kin or residuary legatee, as the case may be (see ante, note (g) to Prec. 5); and such income cannot be applied for the infant's benefit unless the application is directed or sanctioned by the will, see Re Richards, L. R. 8 Eq. 119, and Re Crane, 1908, 1 Ch. 379; 77 L. J. Ch. 212. But see Re Ramsey, 1917, 2 Ch. 64; 86 L. J. Ch. 514. The gift for the infant's benefit must proceed from its parent or from a person who has put himself in the place of its parent, for maintenance (as a rule) will be refused out of a contingent interest, or where the fund is limited over, if the gift proceeds from a stranger, or even from a grandfather to his grandchild, Errington v. Chapman, 12 Ves. 20; Crickett v. Dolby, 3 Ves. 10; but see Greenwell v. Greenwell, 5 Ves. 194; Cavendish v. Mercer, 5 R. R. 25; or where the infant is a natural child, if not recognised and adopted by its father, Lowndes v. Lowndes, 15 Ves. 301. See, however, 44 & 45 Vict. c. 41, s. 43 (ante, note (f), to Prec. 7), as to maintenance of infants out of the interest on contingent legacies, unless a contrary intention is expressed in the will.

NOTES TO
PREC. 12.

Interest on legacies to infants, for maintenance.

The doctrine which entitles children to interest by way of maintenance does not extend to adults, Lowndes v. Lowndes, 15 Ves. 301; see also Raven v. Waite, 1 Sw. 553, 558; Wall v. Wall, 15 Sim. 513; 16 L. J. Ch. 305; nor, in general, to an infant whose parent is living, as the testator, in regard to such an object, does not stand in loco parentis, Lomax v. Lomax, 11 Ves. 48; Errington v. Chapman, 12 Ves. 20; unless there is distinct evidence of an intention to assume the parental office in regard to providing for the infant, Powys v. Mansfield, 3 M. & C. 359; 7 L. J. (N.S.) Ch. 9; nor, it is presumed, would it apply where the infant is married. It has often been a question whether the title to maintenance, under an express provision, ceases on marriage, Chambers v. Goldwin, 11 Ves. 1; Bowden v. Laing, 14 Sim. 113; Conolly v. Farrell, 8 Be. 347; 14 L. J. (N.S.) Ch. 189; see also Staniland v. Staniland, 34 Be. 536; Scott v. Key, 35 Be. 291; Re Booth, 1894, 2 Ch.

by the law.

(e) The day of a person's birth is included in computing his age for testamentary purposes; which, coupled with the fact that the law does not generally recognise fractions of a day (fractionem diei non recipit lex), leads to the singular result that a person may, according to legal computation, attain his majority nearly two days before he has actually completed twenty-one years. Thus, suppose A. to be born (however short a time) before midnight on the 5th November, 1833, that day is to be included; if he lived (however short a time) beyond midnight of the 3rd November, 1854, so as to have entered upon the 4th November, the latter day must also be counted, fractions not being recognised; and thus A. legally attained his majority, and could execute a valid will, at the first instant of the 4th November, 1854; although, computing the time de momento in momentum, nearly forty-eight hours would still be wanting to complete twenty-one years from the instant of his birth, see the Anonymous Case, cited by L. C. J. Holt, 1 Ld. Raym. 480, and Re Shurey, 1918, 1 Ch. 263; 87 L. J. Ch. 245. And see note (a) to sect. 7 of the Wills Act, ante, p. 7.

A person attains "his twenty-fifth year" when he becomes twenty-four years old, Grant v. Grant, 4 Y. & C. Ex. 256; 10 L. J. (N. S.) Ex. Eq. 5. To recur to the former example, A. attained his twenty-fifth year, in legal computation, at the first instant of the 4th November, 1857.

If an act is required to be done within six calendar months after the death of testator, the computation is exclusive of the day of the death; so that if the death takes place on the 12th of January, the last day for performance of the act is the 12th of July, Lester v. Garland, 15 Ves. 248; Gorst v. Lowndes, 11 Sim. 434; 10 L. J. Ch. 161.

Fractions of a day recognised in some cases.

The law, however, does not, for all purposes, reject fractions of a day. Thus, several deeds executed on the same day take effect in the order of their delivery, and when they relate to the same subject-matter the Court will inquire which was executed first, Gartside v. Silkstone, &c. Co., 21 Ch. D. 762; 51 L. J. Ch. 828.

(g) Previously to 4 & 5 Ph. & Mar. c. 8 (repealed by 9 Geo. 4, c. 31), a man had no power to appoint by his will guardians of his children. But the 2nd section of that Act, by construction, enabled a father to appoint, by his last will and testament, or otherwise, guardians for his female children under the age of sixteen. This power was extended by 12 Car. 2, c. 24 (14 & 15 Car. 2, c. 19, Ireland), the 8th section of which authorized a father, whether of age or not, to dispose, by deed or by his last will and testament, of the custody and tuition of any of his children under the age of twenty-one years and unmarried at the time of his death, during the time such child or children should remain under the age of twenty-one years, or for any less time; and the Act sanctions his giving authority to a surviving guardian to nominate a guardian in the place of one who has died, In b. Parnell, L. R. 2 P. & D. 379; 41 L. J. P. 35. The Wills Act expressly includes within its scope (ante, p. 1) "a dis- position by will and testament or devise of the custody and tuition of any child" by virtue of the above statute, and deprives a father who is under twenty-one (sect. 7, ante), of the power of appointing by will guardians of his children; see, however, the note to sect. 11 for the power now conferred upon testators under that section. His power of appointing by deed, however, still remains. The stat. 12 Car. 2, c. 24, does not extend to illegitimate children, Steele v. Wilson, L. R. 13 Eq. 36, although the Court will usually appoint the person named by the reputed father to be the guardian of such children, Ward v. St Paul, 2 Br. C. 583; Peckham v. Peckham, 2 Cox, 46; Chatteris v. Young, 1 J. & W. 106. See the statute quoted in Appendix I. (post, p. 453).

1 Vict. c. 26.

Illegitimate.

The power of appointing guardians does not extend to infant children who are married at the father's death; yet, if then unmarried, the guardianship is not determined by the subsequent marriage of sons, Earl of Shaftesbury's Case, cited 3 Atk. 625; but it is by the subsequent marriage of daughters, Mendes v. Mendes, 1 Ves. S. 91; Roach v. Garvan, ib. 160.

Married children.

As to what words in a will are sufficient to appoint a guardian, see Miller v. Harris, 14 Sim. 540; Re G., 1892, 1 Ch. 292; 61 L. J. Ch. 490; and as to revocation of an appointment of guardians see Ex parte Lord Ilchester, 7 Ves. 348.

By the Guardianship of Infants Act, 1886 (49 & 50 Vict. c. 27), on the death of the father of an infant, the mother becomes guardian, either alone when no guardian has been appointed by the father, or jointly with any guardian appointed by the father. The mother of any infant may by deed or will appoint any person to be guardian of such infant after the death of herself and the father of such infant (if such infant be then unmarried), and where guardians are appointed by both parents they are to act jointly. She may also by deed or will provisionally nominate some fit person or persons to act as guardian or guardians after her death jointly with the father, and the Court, after her death, may confirm the appointment, if it be shewn to its satisfaction that the father is for any reason unfitted to be sole guardian of his children.

Guardianship of Infants Act, 1886.

The Act does not affect a father's right to decide the religious education of his child, or the duty of a guardian to educate a child in the father's religious faith, Re Scanlan, 40 Ch. D. 200; 57 L. J. Ch. 718. But the Court may depart from the father's wishes in the child's welfare, Re Newton, 1896, 1 Ch. 740; 65 L. J. Ch. 641.

Religion.

It is not necessary to prove a testamentary appointment of guardians in the Probate Court, but such appointment is to be proved in the

Where several testamentary guardians are appointed, the right of guardianship will vest in the survivors or survivor, although the will contains no words declaring that it shall survive, *Eyre v. WILL of a MARRIED MAN, providing for a Wife and Younger Children by Name; the Eldest Son having been provided for.—Rent-Charge to Wife, reducible on Marriage.—Residue (Real and Personal) to Younger Children, with Executory Limitations between them and the Eldest Son (a).

THIS IS THE LAST WILL of me [testator's name residence and quality].

1. I REVOKE all other wills and testamentary dispositions by me heretofore made.

Appointment
of trustees,
executors and
guardians.

2. I APPOINT my friends [names d.c.] to be executors and trustees of this my will and trustees for the purposes of section 42 of the Conveyancing Act 1881 as amended by section 14 of the Conveyancing Act 1911 and for the purposes of the Settled Land Acts 1882 to 1890 and I APPOINT them to be guardians of my children during their respective minorities (b).

Personal
effects to wife.

3. Bequest of personal effects to wife as in Prec. 8, clause 3.

Immediate
legacy.

4. Immediate legacy to wife as in Prec. 6, clause 3.

Pecuniary legacy to eldest son.

5. I BEQUEATH to my eldest son [name] (for whom I have already provided) the sum of £—— only to be paid to him at the end of —— calendar months next after my death.

Rent-charge
to wife, reducible on
marriage.

6. I DEVISE to my said wife a yearly rent-charge of £—— for her life if she shall so long continue my widow but if she shall marry again then a yearly rent-charge of £—— only for the remainder of her life the said yearly rent-charge of £—— or £—— (as the case may be) to be charged upon and issuing out of all the freehold hereditaments [or the freehold hereditaments situate in the county of ——] to which I shall be entitled at my death and to be payable half-yearly the first payment of the said yearly rent-charge of £—— to be made at the end of six calendar months from my death if my said wife shall be then living and my widow and the first payment of the said yearly rent-charge of £—— to be made at the end of six calendar months from the second marriage of my said wife (c) but so that during any coverture she shall not have power to anticipate such rent-charge.

PREG. 13.

7. I DEVISE AND BEQUEATH all the real estate and the residue of the personal estate to which I shall be entitled at my death (but as to my freehold hereditaments so charged as aforesaid subject to such of the said rent-charges as shall for the time being be payable) unto my younger children [names] absolutely in equal shares But if any of them shall die in my lifetime under the age of twenty-one years without leaving issue living at my decease or shall survive me but die under the age of twenty-one years without leaving issue Then I DEVISE AND BEQUEATH the share or shares as well accruing as original of such of them as shall so die to my said eldest son and to the others or other of my said younger children absolutely in equal shares.

Real estate and residue of personal estate among younger children, with executory limitations between them and the eldest son.

8. I EMPOWER my trustees during the minorities of such of my younger children as shall be under age at my death to apply in or towards the advancement (d) in the world of such children respectively any part not exceeding one-half of the principal or value of their respective shares of my real and residuary personal estate and for that purpose to raise by mortgaging or charging my real estate or any part or parts thereof such sum or sums of money as my said trustees shall think fit I ALSO DIRECT my trustees to convert and get in my residuary personal estate as and when they shall think fit and to invest the net proceeds thereof until the same shall become distributable under the dispositions hereinbefore contained.

Provisions for advancement of younger children.

Power to convert residue of personalty.

9. I DECLARE that a new trustee or new trustees of my will may from time to time be appointed by my said wife during her widowhood and subject as aforesaid in the manner prescribed by law and if my wife and the said [names of above trustees] shall all have predeceased me I declare that it shall be lawful for [name] or his executors or administrators for the time being to appoint

Power to appoint trustees.

PREC. 13. within six calendar months after my death not less than two fit persons as trustees of this my will.

10. Investment clause. See note (b) to Prec. 4.

11. Trustee interpretation clause as in Prec. 4, clause 6.

IN WITNESS &c.

NOTES to Precedent 13.

(a) This precedent disposes of the testator's property amongst his children nominatim. In case of the death of any child in the testator's lifetime leaving issue, any of whom survive the testator, the ownership of such deceased child's share would be governed by the provisions of 1 Vict. c. 26, s. 33 (ante, p. 74). But the will does not provide for after-born children, or for the possible case of the testator's wife being pregnant at the time of his death. This form, like the previous one, ought not to be adopted except in the case of a testator whose wife is presumed to have passed the age of child-bearing.

(b) See note (a) to Prec. 5, and note (g) to Prec. 12.

(c) Powers of distress and entry for securing the rent-charge are now supplied by sect. 44 of the Conveyancing Act, 1881. And see Conveyancing Act, 1911, s. 6.

Advancement
of infants.

(d) Without the sanction of the Court, trustees cannot with safety, in the absence of an express power, break in upon the capital of a trust fund for the advancement of an infant, Walker v. Wetherell, 6 Ves. 472. Powers of advancement must be followed strictly; for example, where a power was to be exercised with the concurrence of two trustees, an advancement made by one only was not allowed on passing the accounts, although that one alone had acted in the trust, Palmer v. Wakefield, 3 Be. 227.

As to the practice of the Court, see Re Tollemache, 1903, 1 Ch. 457, 459; 72 L. J. Ch. 539; and Seton, ch. 38, sect. iv. Where two trustees differed in exercising their discretion, the Court ordered an advancement in Klug v. Klug, 1918, 2 Ch. 67; 87 L. J. Ch. 569.

No. XIV

WILL of a MARRIED MAN, providing for a Wife and Adult Children.—Bequest to Wife of Wines, &c., and the Use of Furniture.—Real Estate and Residue of Personal Estate vested in Trustees for Sale and Conversion; Income to Wife for Life.—Legacy out of Capital to one Child, and Surplus among the other Children.—Trustees not to sell real Estate in Wife's Lifetime without her Consent, and to be at liberty to postpone the Conversion of Personality.—Power to appoint Trustees.

THIS IS THE LAST WILL of me testator's name residence &c.].

1. I REVOKE all other wills and testamentary dispositions by me heretofore made.

2. I APPOINT [names &c.] to be executors and trustees of this my will.

3. I BEQUEATH the wines liquors fuel and other consumable household stores and provisions and the linen china and glass of which I shall die possessed to my wife [name] absolutely.

Bequest of wines, &c., to wife.

4. I BEQUEATH to my said wife the use and enjoyment during her life of the household furniture (a) and effects not hereinbefore bequeathed and the plate books pictures and prints of which I shall die possessed she keeping the same properly insured against fire and in good repair and preservation reasonable wear and tear excepted And after her death I DIRECT the same articles to be disposed of as part of the residue of my personal estate [or I BEQUEATH the same to my four children [names] to be divided between them as nearly as may be in equal shares and if any dispute (b) shall arise concerning the division thereof then such division shall be made by the trustees or trustee for the time being of my will whose determination shall be final] AND I DIRECT my trustees to cause an inventory to be taken of the same articles before the delivery thereof to my said wife and two copies of such inventory to be signed by my said wife of which copies one shall be delivered to her and the other be kept by my executors (c).

Bequest of furniture, &c., to wife for life, then to fall into the residue;

—[or, to be divided between testator's children].

Inventory of furniture, &c., to be taken.

5. I DEVISE all the real estate to which I shall be entitled at my death and I bequeath the residue of the personal estate to which I shall be then entitled to [names of trustees] their heirs

Real and residuary personal estate to trustees,

- PREC. 14. executors administrators and assigns respectively UPON TRUST that my trustees shall sell my real and leasehold estates and convert and get in my other residuary personal estate and invest the moneys to arise from such real and leasehold and residuary personal estate in manner hereinafter authorized and I DECLARE that during the life of my said wife the power to vary investments shall be exerciseable by my trustees only with her consent in writing AND UPON FURTHER TRUST that my trustees shall permit and empower my wife to receive the annual income of the said moneys or the stocks funds and securities whereon the same shall be invested during her life And after her death as to the same money stocks funds and securities and the annual income thenceforth to become due for the same UPON TRUST that my trustees shall pay thereout to my [said] son [name] his executors administrators or assigns the sum of £—— which sum shall be absolutely vested in him on my death (d) and shall carry interest after the rate of 4 per cent. per annum from the death of my said wife until payment thereof And subject to the payment of the same sum and interest upon trust that my trustees shall hold the same IN TRUST for my other children [names] to be divided equally among them their respective executors administrators and assigns the shares of such children to be absolutely vested in them on my death (e).
- upon trust to sell, get in and invest.
- Restriction on power to vary investments ;
- to permit wife to receive the income for life ;
- after her death to pay legacy to one of testator's children, with interest from her death ;
- to divide the surplus between the other children.
- Trustees prohibited from selling real estate in wife's lifetime without her consent, and empowered to postpone the conversion of personal estate—unsold real estate to be deemed personal.
- Power to appoint new trustees.
6. I DECLARE that no sale of my real estate or any part thereof shall be made in the lifetime of my said wife without her previous consent in writing and that my trustees shall have a discretionary power to postpone for such period as to them shall seem expedient the conversion or getting in of any part of my residuary personal estate which shall at my death consist of stocks funds shares or securities of any description whatever but the unsold real estate and outstanding personal estate shall be subject to the trusts hereinbefore contained concerning the moneys stocks funds and securities aforesaid and the rents and yearly produce thereof shall be deemed annual income for the purposes of such trusts and such real estate shall be transmissible as personal estate under the ultimate trust hereinbefore contained (f).
7. I DECLARE that a new trustee or new trustees of my will may from time to time be appointed by my said wife during her life and that if my said wife and the said [names of above trustees] all predecease me it shall be lawful for [name] or his executors or administrators for the time being to appoint within six calendar months after my death not less than two fit persons as trustees of my will (g).

Prec. 14.

8. Investment clause. See note (b) to Prec. 4, and add to the investment clause subject during the life of my said wife to the provision as to varying investments contained in clause 5 of this my will.

9. Trustee interpretation clause as in Prec. 4, clause 6.

IN WITNESS &c.

NOTES to Precedent 14.

(a) See note (a) to Prec. 8.

(b) Where specific chattels are given to a number of persons in common, it seems necessary, or at all events desirable, to give to some person or persons a power to divide or distribute them, or to sell the whole and divide the proceeds. In the absence of such a power, what is to be done with (say) a collection of paintings bequeathed to six persons, each person taking an undivided sixth share in each picture, and the six being unable to agree to (or any one of them refusing to concur in) either a division or sale of the whole?

Executor's discretion; distribution of specific chattels.

(c) This direction is in accordance with the rule of equity, by virtue of which the interference of the Court on the part of an ulterior legatee of chattels is at present restricted to the requisition of an inventory from the legatee for life. To support the demand of security, formerly required, a special case of actual danger must now be made out, Foley v. Burnell, 1 Br. C. 279; Conduitt v. Soane, 1 Col. 285; 13 L. J. Ch. 390. Indeed, even where a pecuniary legacy is made liable to be defeated by a subsequent contingency, the legatee (the time of payment having arrived) is entitled to receive it without giving security, as the Court will not exact from a legatee what the testator has not required. Thus, where a testator bequeathed 1,000*l.* to A., but on condition that, if she succeeded to a particular estate, by the determination of a certain estate tail then subsisting in B., the legacy should be void; it was held, that A. was entitled to be paid the legacy in the lifetime of B. without security, Fawkes v. Gray, 18 Ves. 131. See also Griffiths v. Smith, 1 Ves. 97.

As to security required from legatees for life, or conditional legatees.

(d) Having regard to the established rules of construction respecting the vesting of estates and interests, this declaration may appear superfluous; but in preparing legal instruments in general, and more especially wills, some concession may be usefully made to popular notions; for it seems desirable, if possible, that wills should be so framed as to disclose the testator's intention to the most unlearned reader of the document. Considering how often the vesting of legacies is a subject of dispute, scarcely any degree of explicitness on the point can be deemed excessive.

Express direction as to vesting.

(e) The children being named and not described as a class, the provisions of sect. 33 of the Wills Act will be applicable in case any child predecease the testator. See Wills Act, s. 33, ante, p. 74.

NOTES TO
PREC. 14.

Propriety of an express authority to suspend the conversion.

(f) A declaration to this effect should always be inserted where a discretionary power is lodged in trustees or others to suspend the conversion of the property, as otherwise the question occurs, whether the property is to be considered, for the purposes of transmission, as converted, until it actually becomes so. Where the direction to sell and convert forthwith is absolute and imperative, the doctrine that the property, in contemplation of equity, becomes immediately impressed with the qualities belonging to its destined character is so well settled and known (see Fletcher v. Ashburner, 1 Br. C. 497), that a clause declaratory of the testator's intention on the point is less important. But a mere declaration will not cause conversion unless there is an imperative trust for sale, Re Walker, 1908, 2 Ch. 705, 712; 77 L. J. Ch. 755.

It is immaterial in regard to the converting effect of a direction to sell, whether the persons who are so directed to sell take the legal estate upon trust for sale, or only a power for sale, provided that the power is imperative, and therefore in the nature of a trust, Elliott v. Fisher, 12 Sim. 505.

Failure of purposes of conversion.

Where a testator directs the sale of realty for purposes which wholly fail, his heir takes as realty; but if the failure be partial only, the heir takes the surplus of the conversion fund as personalty, Smith v. Claxton, 4 Mad. 484; Bagster v. Fackerell, 26 Be. 469; Wilson v. Coles, 28 Be. 215; Jessopp v. Watson, 1 M. & K. 665; 2 L. J. Ch. 197; Att.-Gen. v. Lomas, L. R. 9 Ex. 29; 43 L. J. Ex. 32; Re Richerson, 1892, 1 Ch. 379; 61 L. J. Ch. 202.

See the doctrine of conversion discussed in the notes to Fletcher v. Ashburner, 1 Wh. & Tud. L. C. Eq.; and Jarm. Wills, ch. 22.

Wife's consent made necessary.

The actual produce of investments to be deemed income.

Power to appoint trustees.

7. I EMPOWER my trustees to permit my personal estate invested at my decease in or upon any stocks funds shares or securities whatsoever yielding income to continue in the same state of investment as long as they shall think fit but subject to such discretionary power I direct them to get in my residuary personal estate not consisting of authorized investments and to invest the proceeds in their names (c) [Or I EMPOWER my trustees at any time or times during the widowhood of my wife if they shall think fit so to do and I direct them after the death or marriage of my widow to convert or get in such part or parts of my residuary personal estate as shall not consist of authorized investments and to invest in their names the moneys to arise from the personal estate so converted or gotten in which moneys and the investments thereof shall be subject to the trust hereinbefore declared concerning my residuary personal estate AND I DECLARE that my trustees shall not incur any responsibility by permitting so much of my residuary personal estate as shall at my death be constituted of lifehold or leasehold interests or other determinable property (d) or be invested in or upon any stocks funds securities or other pecuniary investments whatsoever whether foreign or British real or personal permanent or determinable to remain wholly or in part so invested or by permitting my wife to receive the whole amount of the yearly produce thereof during her widowhood or by permitting so much of my residuary personal estate as shall not be so constituted or invested to remain unconverted or by permitting my wife to have the use or enjoyment thereof during her widowhood].

8. I DECLARE that during the widowhood of my wife my trustees shall not exercise the power of varying investments or exercise the foregoing power relative to the continuing of investments without her previous consent in writing.

9. I DECLARE that the actual yearly produce of my residuary personal estate whether consisting of investments to be made by my trustees as aforesaid or of investments of whatever nature to be continued by them as aforesaid shall as well during the first year after my death (and without any apportionment of periodical payments current at my decease) as in subsequent years be deemed the income of such personal estate for the purposes of my will.

10. I DECLARE that my wife shall while she remains my widow have the power to appoint new trustees of my will (e).

11. [Investment clause. See note (b) to Prec. 4, and add to PREC. 15.

NOTES to Precedent 15.

(a) See note (g), Prec. 12.

(b) A gift by will primâ facie imports bounty; and yet, in spite of this seemingly obvious principle, it has been long an established doctrine that where a person who is under an obligation to pay a sum of money bequeaths by his will to his creditor a pecuniary legacy equal to, or greater than, the amount of such debt, he is presumed to mean to discharge the obligation, and not to confer an additional benefit on the legatee, except, indeed, so far as the legacy may happen to exceed the debt, Brown v. Dawson, Prec. Ch. 240; Talbot v. Duke of Shrewsbury, ib. 394; Fowler v. Fowler, 3 P. W. 353; Bensusan v. Nehemias, 4 De G. & S. 381; 20 L. J. Ch. 536; Atkinson v. Littlewood, L. R. 18 Eq. 595; Re Fletcher, 38 Ch. D. 373; 67 L. J. Ch. 1032. In the last case, North, J., held that it was not necessary either that the debt should still be in existence at the testator's death, or that the special purpose for which the legacy was given should appear in the will. See further, Pankhurst v. Howell, L. R. 6 Ch. 136; Re Smythies, 1903, 1 Ch. 259; 72 L. J. Ch. 216; Re Rattenberry, 1906, 1 Ch. 667; 75 L. J. Ch. 304. But a legacy of less amount is not a satisfaction even, pro tanto, Eastwood v. Vinke, 2 P. W. 613; and it seems that, where there are several debts, a legacy equal to one of them will not satisfy such debt, Graham v. Graham, 1 Ves. S. 262; nor in any case will a debt be satisfied by a general or residuary bequest, Barret v. Beckford, 1 Ves. S. 519; Devese v. Pontet, 1 Cox, 188; nor à fortiori, by the gift of something entirely different. Thus, the gift of an estate, or an annuity, would not bar the right of the devisee or legatee to a pecuniary debt, or vice versâ, Cranmer's Case, 2 Salk. 508; Richardson v. Elphinstone, 2 Ves. 463. It is clear, too, that a debt will not be satisfied by a legacy of equal or greater amount, payable expressly at a more distant period, Nicholls v. Judson, 2 Atk. 300; Haynes v. Mico, 1 Br. C. 129; Adams v. Lavender, M.C. & Y. 41; nor will a debt, absolutely payable, be satisfied by a legacy which is subject to a contingency, Tolson v. Collins, 4 Ves. 483; though contra, it seems, if a legacy originally contingent becomes absolute from circumstances occurring in the lifetime of the testator, Mathews v. Mathews, 2 Ves. S. 635; sed qu. A very slight variation in the mode of payment, rendering the legacy less beneficial than the debt, is sufficient to rebut the presumption; such as the circumstances of the legacy being payable a month after the testator's death, and the debt instantly, Clark v. Sewell, 3 Atk. 96; or the circumstances that the debt is payable within three months of testator's death and no time is fixed for payment of the legacy. Re Horlock, 1895, 1 Ch. 516; 64 L. J. Ch. 325; or (where the subject is an annuity) the circumstance of the bequeathed annuity having a later beginning than the annuity to which the legatee is entitled, Richardson v. Elphinstone, 2 Ves. 463; or of the former being subject to deductions from which the latter is exempt, Atkinson v. Webb, Prec. Ch. 236; nor is the effect of differences of this nature neutralised by a superiority in other respects, rendering the legacy upon the whole more valuable than the debt, Lee v. Brown, 4 Ves. 362. See also Charlton v. West, 30 Be. 124; 30 L. J. Ch. 815; Smith v. Smith, 3 Gilf. 263; 31 L. J. Ch. 91. In Wathen v. Smith, 4 Mad. 325, it was held that the presumption of satisfaction was not negatived by the circumstance of the legacy being payable at an earlier period than the debt; but see Cole v. Willard, 25 Be. 568. If a deed by which the testator covenants to pay a sum of money at his death is contemporaneous with his will by which he gives a sum of the same amount to the covenantee, so that both documents are present to the donor's mind when he executes each of them, this is a strong reason against holding the gift in one to be a satisfaction of the obligation to pay, under the other, Horlock v. Wiggins, 39 Ch. D. 142; 58 L. J. Ch. 46.

A legacy given to a creditor in satisfaction of the testator's debt to him abates with the general legacies in case of insufficiency of assets. A debt forgiven by a will is a specific legacy, and does not abate with the general legacies, Re Wedmore, 1907, 2 Ch. 277; 76 L. J. Ch. 486. And a legacy on condition that the legatee releases a claim under a settlement will abate with other legacies and has no priority, Re Whitehead, 1913, 2 Ch. 56; 82 L. J. Ch. 302.

The doctrine of satisfaction does not apply to a debt due upon a negotiable security, which may not be in the hands of the legatee, Carr v. Eastabrooke, 3 Ves. 561; nor to a debt constituted of the balance of a running account, the result of which may be unknown to the testator, Rawlins v. Powell, 1 P. W. 299; nor, under the old law, was it applicable to debts contracted after the making of the will, Graumer's Case, 2 Salk. 508; nor where the will contains an express trust or direction for the payment of debts and legacies, Chancey's Case, 1 P. W. 408; Richardson v. Greese, 3 Atk. 65; Hassell v. Hawkins, 4 Drew. 468; and a direction to pay debts, without mentioning also legacies, is sufficient to rebut the presumption of satisfaction, Pinchin v. Simms, 30 Be. 119; Re Huish, 43 Ch. D. 260; 59 L. J. Ch. 135; disapproving Edmunds v. Low, 3 K. & J. 318; 26 L. J. Ch. 432.

Where a testator directed his executors and trustees to pay his just debts, including the debts not paid in full proved under a commission of bankruptcy, it was held that such a direction must be regarded as bounty, not only in favour of the creditors who survived the testator, but of the representatives of those who predeceased him, Turner v. Martin, 7 D. M. & G. 429; 26 L. J. Ch. 216.

Satisfaction
of debts.

The judges have considered the doctrine as too firmly established to be broken through; but they have for years steadily refused to push the doctrine one step further than their predecessors had gone, and have gladly availed themselves of any circumstances however trifling, or discrepancies however slight, between the debt and the thing given, in order to remove cases out of a rule which has been judicially characterised as a "false principle," see Kindersley, V.-C., in Hassell v. Hawkins, 4 Drew. 468. The presumption of satisfaction is based upon the maxims Debitor non presumitur donare, and "Be just before you are generous"; but, as was remarked by Lord Chancellor King, Chancey's Case, 1 P. W. 408, "When a man left such an estate and fund for his debts and legacies, as that he might thereout be both just and bountiful, in such case I do not see but it would be as reasonable that the whole legacy should take effect as a legacy, and that the debt should be paid besides."

NOTES TO
PREC. 15.

It is not quite clear whether debts owing to servants for wages are liable to be satisfied by legacies. In the case of Richardson v. Greese, 3 Atk. 69, Lord Hardwicke observed that legacies to servants had never been held to be in satisfaction of debts. No such exception was suggested in Chancey's Case, 1 P. W. 408, where the legatee was a servant; but the case did not raise the point; and it is observable that Lord Eldon, in Wallace v. Pomfret, 11 Ves. at 546, where also the legatee was the testator's servant chose to rest his decision in favour of the legatee upon other grounds. Where a particular motive is assigned for the gift, satisfaction of a debt will not be presumed, Mathews v. Mathews, 2 Ves. S. 635; and any mention of lengthened or meritorious services, or an expression of the testator's esteem for the legatee, would probably be held to be a sufficient assignment of motive to remove the case from the operation of the rule; but the question should be prevented from occurring, by an explicit declaration of the testator's intention that the legacy is to be in addition to the sum owing for wages.

Whether servants' claims for wages are satisfied by legacies.

See further respecting the satisfaction of debts by legacies, the notes to Ex parte Pye, 18 Ves. 140; Sir John Talbot v. Duke of Shrewsbury, Prec. Ch. 394; and Chancey's Case (sup.), in 2 Tud. L. C. Eq.

But though the leaning of the Courts is against the presumption of satisfaction of debts, there is, on the other hand, a leaning in favour of the presumption of the satisfaction of portions by legacies. Where a legacy from a parent, or person in loco parentis, is as great as, or greater than, the portion previously secured to the legatee, such legacy is presumed to be intended as a complete satisfaction, Hinchcliffe v. Hinchcliffe, 3 Ves. 516; and so strong is the inclination of equity against double portions, that if the legacy be smaller in amount than the previous provision, it is presumed to be a satisfaction pro tanto, Warren v. Warren, 1 Cox, 41; and slight differences between the previous settlement and the will are not sufficient to rebut the presumption, Hinchcliffe v. Hinchcliffe, sup.; Sparkes v. Cator, 3 Ves. 530; Pole v. Somers, 6 Ves. 309; Russell v. St. Aubyn, 2 Ch. D. 398; 46 L. J. Ch. 641. A bequest of a residue or the part of a residue may be a satisfaction of a portion, either altogether or pro tanto according to the amount, Thynne v. Glengall, 2 H. L. C. 131. The question of satisfaction is one of intention, Chichester

A testator, on the marriage of his son, had covenanted to bequeath a sum not less than 2,500*l.*, to be held upon the trusts of the settlement; by his will he appointed 2,500*l.* out of a fund over which he had a special power of appointment in favour of his children, and to which his children were entitled in default, and he declared that such appointment should be taken in full discharge of the covenant; it was held that the appointment was not a satisfaction of the covenant, and that the covenant constituted a specialty debt of the testator for 2,500*l.*, Graham v. Wickham, 1 D. J. & S. 474.

Performance of covenants and satisfaction by intestacy.

Analogous to cases of satisfaction previously considered, but distinct therefrom (see 1 P. W. 324, n.; and 1 Sw. 220), are cases of performance of covenants to leave sums of money, or make other testamentary provisions, by allowing property to devolve by intestacy. The rule in this class of cases is, that where a person covenants to do a certain thing, and he does what is wholly or partially equivalent to the performance of his covenant, he shall be presumed to have so done with the intention of pro tanto performing his covenant. Thus A. covenanted on his marriage to purchase lands worth 200*l.* per annum, and settle them for the jointure of his wife, and to the first and other sons of the marriage in tail; he purchased the lands, but made no settlement, and on his death the lands descended to the eldest son; it was held that the lands descended were a satisfaction of the covenant, Wilcocks v. Wilcocks, 2 Ver. 558. Again, A. covenanted, before marriage, to leave his intended wife 620*l.*; the marriage took place, and A. died intestate; the wife's share of his property amounted to more than 620*l.*, and this was held to be a satisfaction, Blandy v. Widmore, 1 P. W. 324. See also Thacker v. Key, L. R. 8 Eq. 408. That covenants may be in this way executed in part, see Lechmere v. Lord Carlisle, 3 P. W. 211; Garthshore v. Chalie, 10 Ves. 1.

Covenant not satisfied by a residue, or distributive
share.

But a gift by will of a residue will not, per se, be considered a performance of a covenant to leave a widow a certain sum, Devese v. Pontet, 1 Cox, 188. But a bequest of residuary income may satisfy a covenant to pay an annuity of less value, Re Hall, 1918, 1 Ch. 562; 87 L. J. Ch. 393. Where a husband covenanted to pay the interest of a sum of money to his widow for her life, this was held not to be satisfied by her distributive share on his intestacy, Couch v. Stratton, 4 Ves. 391. So also a covenant to leave an annuity to a widow is not performed by a distributive share devolving on the death of the husband intestate, Salisbury v. Salisbury, 6 Ha. 526; 17 L. J. Ch. 480.

NOTES TO
PREC. 15.

As to a covenant by a father, upon the marriage of his daughter, that he would, either by act inter vivos, or by will, provide for his daughter, who, however, died in her father's lifetime, see Jones v. How, 7 Ha. 267; 19 L. J. Ch. 324, in which case the Court of C. P. certified that the representative of the daughter had no good cause of action against the executors of the father, and the Equity Court concurred in the certificate. Where the covenant is to provide by will, the covenantor is not bound so to frame his will as to guard the child's interest against lapse, Re Brookman's Trust, L. R. 5 Ch. 182; 38 L. J. Ch. 585; and see L. R. 6 Ex. 302. A sum of 600*l.*, to which a married woman was entitled for her separate use, was paid to her husband, who by his will gave her 2,800*l.*, and directed his executor to pay all his debts, and to take all the residue of his property; the husband died, the widow received the 2,800*l.*, and executed a general release to the executor as to all matters under the will; the widow filed her bill for the payment of the 600*l.*; it was held that the 600*l.* existed as a debt, and that the legacy of 2,800*l.* was not intended to be in satisfaction of such debt; and that the widow was entitled to payment, notwithstanding the execution of the release, Rowe v. Rowe, 2 De G. & S. 294; 17 L. J. Ch. 357.

Separate property of married woman paid to husband, a debt undischarged by legacy of larger sum.

Where the husband covenants to pay money in his lifetime, a distributive share is no satisfaction; in such a case there is an actual breach, not a performance, of the covenant, and a debt is due to the wife, Oliver v. Brickland or Brighouse, cited 1 Ves. S. 1; 3 Atk. 420; 10 Ves. 12.

See further as to performance of covenants and satisfaction by intestacy, the notes to Wilcocks v. Wilcocks, 2 Ver. 558; and Blandy v. Widmore, 1 P. W. 324; in 2 Wh. & Tud. L. C. Eq. 413.

(c) See note (b), Prec. 4.

(d) Devises and bequests in trust, which impose on the devisees and legatees the duty of converting the property (and almost every residuary disposition includes an express or implied trust of this nature to some extent), are often defective in not giving to the trustees a discretionary power to postpone the conversion, and in omitting to dispose of the income in the meantime. An instance of the latter kind of omission occurs where a testator directs his real and personal estate to be sold, and the produce to be laid out in government or real security, of which the income is given to a person for life, with a gift over of the capital. According to the literal terms of the will, the legatees take nothing until the sale, which might be deferred, either from circumstances inevitably preventing it, or from the negligence of the trustees, for a considerable period. Such an extended postponement of the legatee's interest clearly is not meant. In comparison with such a scheme an approach to the intention would probably be made, by permitting the legatee for life to take the income of the property while unsold; but this is unauthorized by the words of the will, for they give only the income of the fund constituted of the proceeds, which obviously might yield a very different amount. For instance, supposing part of the residue to consist of leaseholds held for a short term of years; to defer the sale and pay over the rents to the legatee for life, would place an undue advantage in his hands, at the expense of the ulterior legatees: while, on the other hand, if the subject-matter were a reversion, the delay in the conversion of the property would be no less unfairly advantageous to those legatees. Equal justice to these respective parties seems to require that some period should be fixed (irrespective not only of the greater or less degree of activity of the trustees in effecting a sale, but also, even of circumstances which might, probably or necessarily, delay and impede it), at which the property shall for this purpose be considered as sold, and the parties placed, so far as may be practicable, in the same situation as if the sale had then taken place; or, in other words, that there should be a period of constructive conversion, distinct from and independent of the actual conversion. And this we shall find has been effected, not only where the income accruing before the sale or conversion of the property is undisposed of, but also where the intermediate income is expressly directed to be accumulated; for even in the latter case, it is not to be supposed that the testator intended that the beneficial interests of the legatees should be subject to all the accidents by which the sale is liable to be deferred.

Suggestions with respect to trusts for sale and conversion.

Rules
deduced from the cases.

The following positions exhibit the doctrine of the cases:—First. In the ordinary case of residuary property being directed to be sold or otherwise converted into money, and the produce (either with or without a prior express trust for payment of debts and legacies) invested upon authorized security, for the benefit of a person for life, at whose death the capital is given to other persons, without any direction to accumulate the profits accruing before the conversion, the income arising from such part of the residue as at the time of the testator's death was invested in securities of the kind authorized by the will, belongs to the residuary legatee for life from the period of the testator's death, Hewitt v. Morris, T. & R. 241; Angerstein v. Martin, T. & R. 232; 2 L. J. Ch. 88; Brown v. Gellatly, L. R. 2 Ch. 751. Secondly. In the case last described, the destination of the income arising within the year from such part of the residue as falls within the scope of the converting trust (the same not being composed of or invested upon securities such as are authorized by the will) is more doubtful: it is now settled that the tenant for life is entitled from the death of the testator, Macpherson v. Macpherson, 1 Macq. 243; but the difficulty still remains in what manner is he to have the benefit of the rule as between himself and those entitled in remainder? The true principle seems to be that, with respect to that part of the residue which at the testator's death is not invested in authorized securities, the tenant for life, during the first year after testator's death, is entitled to so much income as the property would have produced if invested according to the will, Dimes v. Scott, 4 Rus. 209; Taylor v. Clark, 1 Ha. 161; 11 L. J. Ch. 189; Morgan v. Morgan, 14 Be. 72; Holgate v. Jennings, 24 Be. 623; Re Llewellyn's Trust, 29 Be. 171; Brown v. Gellatly, L. R.

2 Ch. 751; Re Owen, 1912, 1 Ch. 519. Thirdly. Where trustees are directed to convert the property, and, until the conversion, the income is to be added to the capital, and the conversion is deferred beyond the period of a year from the testator's death, the process of accumulation ceases, and the title of the legatee for life to the income begins, at the end of such year from the testator's death, this being considered to afford a reasonable time for the conversion of the property, Sitwell v. Bernard, 6 Ves. 520, and the cases there cited, Kilvington v. Gray, 2 S. & S. 396; Vickers v. Scott, 3 M. & K. 500; 3 L. J. Ch. 223; Tucker v. Boswell, 5 Be. 607. Fourthly. With respect to such portion of the property as is converted before the end of the year following the testator's death, the legatee for life takes the actual income of the fund constituted of the proceeds from the time of its investment, and that too without regard to the fact whether there was or was not a trust to accumulate the profits until conversion, La Terriere v. Bulmer, 2 Sim. 18. Fifthly. If the property is not actually converted at the end of a year the legatee for life will be entitled to the dividends which would have accrued from the investment at that time on authorized securities. And this rule applies as well where the fund or property is of a permanent nature, as where it is terminable and temporary, as leaseholds, long annuities, &c., Dimes v. Scott, 4 Rus. 209; Mills v. Mills, 7 Sim. 501; 4 L. J. Ch. 266.

Where property is left on trust for conversion and out of the proceeds to pay a fixed sum to A. and the residue to B., and conversion is postponed, and the estate becomes greatly increased in value, A. has no claim to any share of such increased value, but only to his fixed sum with usual interest, Re Campbell, 1893, 3 Ch. 468; 62 L. J. Ch. 878.

The principle of distribution established by the case of Dimes v. Scott would, it is conceived, apply, even where the residuary clause contained no express trust for conversion, with respect to property of a limited duration, such as leaseholds for short terms, terminable annuities, &c., the income arising from which ought, from the period of the testator's death, to be carried to account as capital; and in lieu of such income the executors should pay to the legatee for life, from the testator's decease, such sum as the dividends on authorized securities, purchased with the actual produce of the sale, would amount to, in case the sale takes place within a year from the testator's death; and if not, then such sum as would be equal to the dividends arising from the investment of the proceeds of the sale, in case the same had been made at the year's end, together, in either case, with dividends on the interim income of the terminable unconverted property, Howe v. Lord Dartmouth, 7 Ves. 137; Fearn v. Young, 9 Ves. 549; Mills v. Mills, 7 Sim. 501; 4 L. J. Ch. 266; Re Whitehead, 1894, 1 Ch. 678; 63 L. J. Ch. 229 (terminable annuity—no trust for conversion); but see Crawley v. Crawley, 7 Sim. 427; 4 L. J. (N. S.) Ch. 265; and Sutherland v. Cooke, 1 Col. 503; 14 L. J. Ch. 71, where interest at four per cent. was allowed to the tenant for life. And it makes no difference that the life interest is interposed by codicil, Macdonald v. Irvine, 8 Ch. D. 101; 47 L. J. Ch. 494.

Question whether legatee for life is entitled in specie.

With respect to that part of a residue not expressly directed to be sold, which is undergoing no diminution by lapse of time, and is invested on permanent real securities, it is clear that the doctrine in question would not apply, but that the executor would be warranted in paying to the residuary legatee for life the income of the property, according to its actual state, Mills v. Mills, 7 Sim. 501; 4 L. J. Ch. 266; Howe v. Lord Dartmouth, sup.; Morgan v. Morgan, 14 Be. 72. And even in regard to decaying property, the doctrine which requires its conversion, and an investment of the proceeds in a permanent fund, will, of course, yield to expressions showing that the testator meant to give the legatee for life the actual income, according to the existing state of the property, Vincent v. Newcombe, 1 You. 599; 2 L. J. Ex. 15; Cockran v. Cockran, 14 Sim. 248; but see Re Wareham, 1912, 2 Ch. 312; 81 L. J. Ch. 578. A fortiori, trustees are not justified in converting into a permanent stock Terminable Annuities which are specifically bequeathed in trust for a person for life, and then to other persons absolutely, Lord v. Godfrey, 4 Mad. 455; see also Neville v. Lord Fortescue, 16 Sim. 333; Hubbard v. Young, 10 Be. 203; 16 L. J. Ch. 182; Goodenough v. Tremanondo, 2 Be. 514, n.; as to leaseholds, Hind v. Selby, 22 Be. 373. In Re Game, 1897, 1 Ch. 881; 66 L. J. Ch. 505, a testator directed that the rents and profits of his residuary real and personal estate should be paid to his wife for life; and after her decease he gave his residuary estate to others, in succession, subject to certain annuities, and conferred on the annuitants a power of distress. The residuary estate consisted of freeholds and leaseholds. Held, that neither the direction to pay rents nor the power of distress afforded any sufficient indication of an intention that the leaseholds should be enjoyed in specie. See also, where Re Game was followed, Re Wareham, 1912, 2 Ch. 312; 81 L. J. Ch. 578.

If the will authorizes the retention of securities which under the will would not be authorized investments, and those securities are not of a wasting nature, the tenants for life will be entitled to receive in specie the outcome of those securities, Re Sheldon, 39 Ch. D. 50; 58 L. J. Ch. 25.

Where there is a direction for conversion of personal estate, followed by a power of retention of existing securities in the absolute discretion of the trustees, and then there are trusts for tenants for life, and afterwards for remaindermen, the power of retention does not necessarily give the tenants for life the enjoyment in specie of the securities retained by the trustees in the exercise of their discretion. But the Court will look with an expectant eye for a direction that the tenant for life shall receive the income of the retained securities. See Re Thomas, 1891, 3 Ch. 482; 60 L. J. Ch. 781; Re Chaytor, 1905, 1 Ch. 233; 74 L. J. Ch. 106; Re Godfree, 1914, 2 Ch. 110; 83 L. J. Ch. 734; Re Inman, 1915, 1 Ch. 187; 84 L. J. Ch. 309. And see Re Aste, 118 L. T. 433. Where there is a gift of the testator's general estate upon trust for conversion, and the will contains a power to postpone conversion, with the usual direction that until conversion the income shall be applied in the same manner as the income of the trust estate after conversion, and the trustees carry on a business carried on by the testator, the profits of such business will be payable to the tenant for life as income, Re Chancellor, 26 Ch. D. 42; 53 L. J. Ch. 443; Re Crowther, 1895, 2 Ch. 56; 64 L. J. Ch. 537.

It may be observed, that the mere fact of the testator having expressly directed the sale and conversion of a portion of his residuary property is not sufficient of itself to take the rest of the property out of the general rule, and entitle the tenant for life to an enjoyment in specie, Cafe v. Bent, 5 Ha. 24; 13 L. J. Ch. 169.

In order to prevent questions of this nature, and to relieve executors and trustees from the onerous task of entering into the complex calculations which the doctrine of some of the cases would require, every will ought to contain a direction entitling the beneficial legatee for life to the actual income of the property until conversion, whether derived from temporary or permanent sources, Re Norrington, 13 Ch. D. 654; thereby reconciling the legal duty with the ordinary conduct of executors and trustees, and giving effect to the intention of the testators, which, there can be little doubt, is commonly defeated by applying the principle of Dimes v. Scott, ante, p. 255. In general, too, trustees who are directed to sell ought to be expressly invested with a discretion as to the period of sale, Gray v. Siggers, 15 Ch. D. 74; 49 L. J. Ch. 819; Walker v. Shore, 19 Ves. 387. Where there has been no undue delay on the part of the trustees in converting the property, and the will contains a clause entitling the tenant for life to the actual income, no allowance is made to him for any portion of the estate which is unproductive, Mackie v. Mackie, 5 Ha. 70; Rowlls v. Bebb, 1900, 2 Ch. 107; 69 L. J. Ch. 562. In Re Pitcairn, 1896, 2 Ch. 199; 65 L. J. Ch. 120, where the question arose with reference to a reversionary interest, it was held that a discretion as to conversion given to the trustees excluded the application of the rule in Howe v. Dartmouth. See also Re Bentham, 94 L. T. 307; Re Rogers, 1915, 2 Ch. 437; 84 L. J. Ch. 837.

See further, on the conversion of residue bequeathed to persons in succession, Howe v. Lord Dartmouth, 7 Ves. 137, and the notes thereto, in Tud. L. C. Eq.; and on a power to convert personalty into realty, De Beauvoir v. De Beauvoir, 3 H. L. C. 524. See also Johnston v. Moore, 27 L. J. Ch. 453; Stroud v. Gwyer, 28 Be. 130, cases relating to partnership property; and Re Evans, 1913, 1 Ch. 23; 82 L. J. Ch. 12, as to shares in a company.

The life tenant of residuary personalty is only entitled to the true residue. The income arising within a year after the testator's death from so much of his estate as is required for payment of debts and legacies is not income of residuary estate in the absence of a contrary intention expressed, Allhusen v. Whittell, L. R. 4 Eq. 295; 36 L. J. Ch. 929. But the "year" in the rule in Allhusen v. Whittell may be shortened by earlier payment of debts, Re McEuen, 1913, 2 Ch. 704. See p. 113,

NOTES to Precedent 16.

(a) It should always be expressly stated in what manner a mortgage debt or charge on specifically devised property is to be borne. Previously to the Real Estates Charges Act, 1854, commonly called Locke King's Act (17 & 18 Vict. c. 113), the heir-at-law or devisee of mortgaged real estate, in accordance with the general rule that a testator's personalty is the primary fund for the payment of his debts unless expressly or by clear implication exempted therefrom, was entitled to have the land exonerated from the mortgage, and might require that the charge should be satisfied out of the general personal estate of the testator, unless in the case of a devise it was manifest from the will that the devisee was intended to take the estate subject to the charge. As to the exoneration of devised estates in mortgage.

By Locke King's Act it was enacted that:—

“When any person shall after the thirty-first day of December, 1854, die seised of or entitled to any estate or interest in any land or other hereditaments which shall at the time of his death be charged with the payment of any sum or sums of money by way of mortgage, and such person shall not, by his will or deed or other document, have signified any contrary or other intention, the heir or devisee to whom such land or hereditaments shall descend or be devised shall not be entitled to have the mortgage debt discharged or satisfied out of the personal estate or any other real estate of such person, but the land or hereditaments so charged shall as between the different persons claiming through or under 17 & 18 Vict. c. 113, Locke King's Act.
Testator dying after 31st Dec., 1854.

the deceased person be primarily liable to the payment of all mortgage debts with which the same shall be charged, every part thereof according to its value bearing a proportionate part of the mortgage debts charged on the whole thereof: provided always, that nothing herein contained shall affect or diminish any right of the mortgagee on such lands or hereditaments to obtain full payment or satisfaction of his mortgage debt either out of the personal estate of the person so dying as aforesaid or otherwise: provided also, that nothing herein contained shall affect the rights of any person claiming under or by virtue of any will deed or document already made or to be made before the first day of January, 1855."

By the Real Estates Charges Act, 1867, the word "mortgage" (when the testator dies after December 31st, 1867) is deemed to extend to any lien for unpaid purchase-money upon any lands or hereditaments purchased by the testator. Copyholds are within the Act, Piper v. Piper, 1 J. & H. 91; 29 L. J. Ch. 719.

By the Real Estate Charges Act, 1877 (40 & 41 Vict. c. 31), it is enacted that the last-mentioned Acts "shall as to any testator or intestate dying after the 31st December, 1877, be held to extend to a testator or intestate dying seised or possessed of or entitled to any land or other hereditaments of whatever tenure, which shall at the time of his death be charged with the payment of any sum or sums of money by way of mortgage, or any other equitable charge, including any lien for unpaid purchase-money; and the devisee or legatee or heir shall not be entitled to have such sum or sums discharged or satisfied out of any other estate of the testator or intestate unless (in the case of a testator) he shall within the meaning of the said Acts have signified a contrary intention, and such contrary intention shall not be deemed to be signified by a charge of or direction for payment of debts upon or out of the residuary real and personal estate, or residuary real estate."

Leaseholds are now within the Act, Re Kershaw, 37 Ch. D. 674; 57 L. J. Ch. 599; Re Fraser, 1904, 1 Ch. 726; 73 L. J. Ch. 481. As to what amounts to a lien for unpaid purchase-money within the meaning of the Act, see Re Kidd, 1894, 3 Ch. 558; 63 L. J. Ch. 855.

It would seem that a share in the proceeds of sale of freeholds devised upon trust for sale is not an "interest in land" within the meaning of the Act, Lewis v. Lewis, L. R. 13 Eq. 218; 41 L. J. Ch. 195.

Equitable
mortgage.

An equitable mortgage of freeholds, by deposit of deeds and memorandum, is within the Act, Pembroke v. Friend, 1 J. & H. 132; Coleby v. Coleby, L. R. 2 Eq. 803; in the latter case the deposit was a collateral security for a sum borrowed on promissory note. And the absence of a memorandum makes no difference, Davis v. Davis, 24 W. R. 962.

The general rule established by the Acts is that the burden of any specific charge upon real estate, leaseholds and chattels real, whether it be legal or equitable, effected by way of mortgage or lien, or created by statute, Re Bowerman, 1908, 2 Ch. 340; 77 L. J. Ch. 594, devolves in the absence of a "contrary or other intention," with the estate charged therewith, in exoneration of the general personal estate. As to what is a "contrary or other intention" within the meaning of the Act, see Re Smith, 33 Ch. D. 195; 55 L. J. Ch. 914; Re Fleck, 37 Ch. D. 677; 57 L. J. Ch. 943; Re Campbell, 1893, 2 Ch. 206; 62 L. J. Ch. 594; Re Valpy, 1906, 1 Ch. 531; 75 L. J. Ch. 301; Re Birch, 1909, 1 Ch. 787; 75 L. J. Ch. 385. A contrary intention will not be inferred from a general direction to pay debts out of real estate or out of a mixed fund of real and personal estate, Re Newmarch, 9 Ch. D. 12; 48 L. J. Ch. 28; Elliott v. Dearsley, 16 Ch. D. 322.

See further, as to the exoneration of mortgaged estates, the notes to Duke of Lancaster v. Mayer, 1 Br. C. 454, in 1 Wh. & Tud. L. C. Eq.; Jarm. Wills, ch. 54; Williams, Real Assets, 37, 134; Carson, R. P. Statutes, 433—439.

(b) See note (b), Prec. 4.

(c) Clauses of accruer should be so framed that the shares of objects dying may go not merely to survivors properly so called, but to the others of the devisees or legatees, thereby conferring on predeceased devisees or legatees (dying in circumstances which do not subject their shares to the divesting operation of the clause) disposable and transmissible interests, Re Walter, 56 S. J. 632. In fact, under a clause of accruer, correctly framed, each object, living the rest, and during the suspense of the absolute vesting of their shares, has a present disposable interest in such shares, every one of which is ab initio limited to him by way of executory devise or bequest. Cross-remainders stand upon the same principle.

Suggestions
respecting clauses of accruer.
accruer

By way of illustration:—Suppose real or personal estate to be given by will equally among A., B., and C., with a gift over of the shares of any of them dying under the age of twenty-one years to the survivors or survivor; A. attains twenty-one and then dies; afterwards B. dies under twenty-one. Would the share of B. be divided between C. and the representatives of A., or go exclusively to C.? If the words "survivors" or "survivor" were construed literally, the share in question would belong wholly to C.; if construed "others or other," the representatives of A. would participate. It seems that the strict construction generally prevails, Crowder v. Stone, 3 Rus. 217; 7 L. J. (O. S.) Ch. 93; Milson v. Awdry, 5 Ves. 465; Re Corbett's Trusts, Joh. 591; and that "survivor" will not be read "other" unless there be an explanatory context. See Harrison v. Harrison, 1901, 2 Ch. 136; 70 L. J. Ch. 551; Inderwick v. Tatchell, 1903, A. C. 120; 72 L. J. Ch. 393; Olphert v. Olphert, 1903, 1 Ir. R. 326. On the other hand, the latter construction has certainly prevailed in a few cases, even where it was unaided by the context, Aiton v. Brooks, 7 Sim. 204; Cole v. Sewell, 2 H. L. C. 186. In the former case, Sir L. Shadwell, V.-C., E., seemed to consider the strict interpretation to apply only where the gift was to survivors simply and absolutely, and that the more liberal construction might be adopted where such gift was to take effect on a contingency; but this distinction —should be extended to others as well as survivors.

NOTES TO
PREC. 16.

does not reconcile the authorities; as, in many of the cases in which "survivor" has been construed strictly, the gift was dependent on some collateral event. See Jarm. Wills, 2103.

"Survivor."

In Re Bowman, 41 Ch. D. 525, Kay, J., formulated three rules, the first two of which are:—1. Where the gift is to A., B., and C. equally for their respective lives, and after the death of any to his children, but if any die without children to the survivors for life with remainder to their children, only children of survivors can take under the gift over. 2. If to similar words there is added a limitation over if all the tenants for life die without children, then the children of a predeceased tenant for life participate in the share of one who dies without children after their parent. The third rule in Re Bowman has been dissented from, and it is now settled that the word "survivor" will generally be construed strictly unless there is a gift over or some other clear indication of an intention to oust that construction, Harrison v. Harrison, supra; Inderwick v. Tatchell, supra; Powell v. Hellicar, 1919, 1 Ch. 138.

"Survivor," meaning "longest

As to "survivor" being construed to mean "longest liver," see King v. Frost, 15 App. Cas. 548. For the construction of a gift to "survivors and others," see Slade v. Parr, 7 Jur. 102; and to "other surviving," see Re Arnold's Trusts, L. R. 10 Eq. 252; 39 L. J. Ch. 875. The preceding long range of cases on this much-debated point strongly evinces the expediency of preventing its occurrence by an express gift to the others, omitting survivors. See Jarm. Wills, ch. 55.

Accruing shares to be subjected to the operation of clauses of accruer.

Another caution to be observed in regard to the clauses under consideration is to make them expressly embrace the accruing as well as the original shares; otherwise their operation is confined to the original shares, see Hawkins, Constr. Wills, 320. Thus, if real or personal estate is given to A., B., and C., and it is provided that, in case of the death of any of them under the age of twenty-one years, their or his shares or share shall go to the others or other of them: A. dies under twenty-one, by which event his share devolves to B. and C. in moieties; if this is followed by the death of B. who dies under twenty-one, it is clear that, in the absence of a context evincing a contrary intention, the moiety which B. derived under the clause in question of A.'s share does not go over to C. along with B.'s original share, but is transmissible to the representatives of B., as having vested in B. unaffected by the cross executory gift, Woodward v. Glasbrook, 2 Ver. 388; Ex parte West, 1 Br. C. 575; Crowder v. Stone, 3 Rus. 217; Bright v. Rowe, 3 M. & K. 316; Gibbons v. Langdon, 6 Sim. 260; Macgregor v. Macgregor, 2 Col. 192; Barker v. Lea, T. & R. 413; the rule, however (which generally contradicts the intention of the testator), may be excluded by the context shewing a clear intention to the contrary, Eyre v. Marsden, 2 Ke. 564; 7 L. J. Ch. 220; Leeming v. Sherratt, 2 Ha. 14; 11 L. J. Ch. 423; Goodman v. Goodman, 1 De G. & S. 695; 17 L. J. Ch. 103; or by shewing a clear intention that the fund in question is an "aggregate fund" designed to be kept together, Worlidge v. Churchill, 3 Br. O. 465; Douglas v. Andrews, 14 Be. 347; Dutton v. Crowdy, 33 Be. 272; 33

L. J. Ch. 241. And see Re Jarman's Trusts, L. R. 1 Eq. 71, as to separate use attaching to accrued as well as original shares.

NOTES TO
PREC. 16.

Obscurity as to the period to which survivorship refers, especially where the nature of the devise is such as to present a point of time other than the death of the testator to which it may by possibility be construed as referring, has produced numerous and conflicting decisions. In the case, for instance, of a gift "to A. for life, and after his decease to B., C., and D., as tenants in common, and the survivors and survivor of them, their or his heirs and assigns," if either of the remaindermen dies in A.'s lifetime, the question necessarily arises whether the testator means survivors at his own death or at the death of the tenant for life.

To what period sur-vivorship refers.

Cripps v. Wolcott, 4 Mad. 11, decided that if there is no previous interest given in the legacy, then the time at which survivorship is to be ascertained is the death of the testator, and the survivors at his death will take the whole legacy. But if a previous life estate is given, then the time at which survivorship is to be ascertained is the death of the tenant for life, and the survivors at such death will take the whole legacy, thus making the time for ascertaining survivorship correspond with the period of division of the fund. And in Re Gregson's Trusts, 2 D. J. & S. 428; 34 L. J. Ch. 41, it was held that the rule laid down in Cripps v. Wolcott applies to real as well as personal estate.

See as to exceptions to the rule, Re Poultney, 1912, 2 Ch. 541; 81 L. J. Ch. 748; Hawkins, Constr. Wills, 314. And see Jarm. Wills, ch. 55—iii.

“And” and

(b) In these and similar limitations great care is necessary in the use of the conjunctions “and” and “or”; difficulties are continually arising from their indiscriminate application, and accordingly we find the Courts have often been called upon to rectify blunders of this nature. It would seem that, to induce the Courts to read “or” for “and,” or vice versa, there must be shown some sort of necessity, something beyond mere probability that the testator’s own words do not indicate his real intention. The change must be made for the purpose of correcting a palpable mistake; or of avoiding an absolute absurdity; or of reconciling a contradiction or clear inconsistency; or of escaping from an uncertainty or ambiguity; or otherwise of giving effect to an indisputable intention—and cannot be made if any reasonable construction can be put upon the testator’s words as they stand, Re Hopkins’s Trust, 2 H. & M. 411, 415. The cases on this subject are collected, Jarm. Wills, 604 et seq. See also Re Crutchley, 1912, 2 Ch. 335; 81 L. J. Ch. 644.

(c) See note (g), Prec. 8.

(d) Under the old law an unadmitted heir could devise copyholds, but an unadmitted devisee or surrenderee could not. By sect. 3 of the Wills Act, ante, p. 2, either the heir or devisee or surrenderee is empowered to devise before admittance.

In the text, the copyholds are excluded from the devise of the freeholds and leaseholds, in order that a common law power of sale and disposition may be vested in the trustees, by the exercise of which they may entitle a purchaser to admission without being themselves admitted. See also 2 Hayes, Conv. 80; 9 Byth. Jarm. 426; 3 Dav. Mart. 320 (c); and note (c) to Prec. 5, ante. The restriction of the power to the period of twenty-one years is obviously to avoid infringing the rule against perpetuities, as to which see post, p. 289 et seq.

(e) There is an ambiguity in the use of the word "unmarried" which has been the cause of frequent litigation. The ordinary and primary meaning of the word is "never having been married," Dalrymple v. Hall, 16 Ch. D. 715; 50 L. J. Ch. 302; Re Sergeant, 26 Ch. D. 575; 54 L. J. Ch. 159; the less accustomed meaning is "not being married at the time in question." It would seem that the word is to be construed in one sense or the other according to the particular circumstances of each case, Maugham v. Vincent, 9 L. J. Ch. 329; a doctrine which, supposing the first construction rejected, still leaves room for dispute as to the particular epoch to which the testator intended the word "unmarried" to refer, Hall v. Robertson, 4 D. M. & G. 781; 23 L. J. Ch. 241. It needs but a slight indication of intention to give the word its secondary instead of its primary meaning, In re Sergeant, ubi sup. See also Re Lesingham's Trusts, 24 Ch. D. 703; 53 L. J. Ch. 333, where the words obtained in their secondary meaning, and Re Chant, 1900, 2 Ch. 345; 69 L. J. Ch. 601; followed in Re Jones, 1915, 1 Ch. 246; 84 L. J. Ch. 222. Refer also to Jarm. Wills, 1284.

(f) Wills are commonly framed upon the assumption that the state of circumstances existing at the time of execution will remain unchanged until the testator's decease; hence the infrequency of any provision against lapse. It is true that the event of the gift lapsing would, in most cases, be best met by a new will or a codicil, adapted to the change of circumstances; yet, as the testator may be prevented from revising his disposition or be unapprised of its partial failure, a prospective provision, if it should not be exactly suited to the exigency, may still obviate much of the inconvenience and hardship of the case. For instance, it sometimes happens that one of the objects of the testator's bounty dies, leaving issue, upon whom the testator might wish to confer the benefit intended for their parent, Re Gresley's Settlement, 1911, 1 Ch. 358; 80 L. J. Ch. 255; Re Clunies-Ross, 106 L. T. 96; Re Greenwood, 1912, 1 Ch. 392; 81 L. J. Ch. 298; and see Re Smith, 1916, 2 Ch. 368; 85 L. J. Ch. 657; his death may happen when the testator is in extremis, so as to be incapable of altering his will, or may happen at a distance remote from the testator, so that tidings of the event do not reach him before his own death. The case, however, of issue of the testator himself dying in his lifetime, and in his will referred to by name (or otherwise individually and not as one of a class), is now provided for, see Wills Act, s. 33, ante. The testator and his legatee may die in circumstances which raise the nice and difficult point respecting probable or presumed survivorship, as where they both perish on board a ship foundering at sea, see Mason v. Mason, 1 Mer. 308; Underwood v. Wing, 4 D. M. & G. 633; 24 L. J. Ch. 293. In Elliott v. Smith, 22 Ch. D. 236; 52 L. J. Ch. 222, where testator and legatee both died in a collision of steam vessels, and there was nothing to shew who died first, a gift over on the death of the legatee was held not to have taken effect, as the death of the legatee must, according to O'Mahoney v. Burdett, L. R. 7 H. L. 388; 44 L. J. Ch. 56, n., be taken to have meant death in the testator's lifetime. The bequest therefore fell into the residue.

Words providing for death of objects, to what period referable.

Whether words providing against the death of devisees or legatees apply to the event occurring in the lifetime of the testator, or at any and what subsequent period, is a question which has been frequently discussed and variously decided. One class of such cases relates to bequests simply to A., and, in case of his death, over; raising the question, therefore, whether these words are to be construed as synonymous with "at or after" the death, which could cut down the interest of the legatee to whose death reference is made to an interest for life; or whether death is to be combined with some other circumstance, in order to satisfy the terms of contingency applied to it, death being in itself a certain and inevitable event. The contingent construction has prevailed, and, in adopting it, the obvious course is to consider the uncertainty contemplated by the testator as referring to the time of death; a point which is easily disposed of when the gift, being simply to take effect in possession at the testator's decease, presents no other period to which the words in question can be referred, Lowfield v. Stoneham, 2 Stra. 1261; Hinchley v. Simmons, 4 Ves. 160; King v. Taylor, 5 Ves. 806; Cambridge v. Rous, 8 Ves. 12; Webster v. Hale, 8 Ves. 410; Ommaney v. Bevan, 18 Ves. 291; Wright v. Stephens, 4 B. & Al. 574. But this construction seems to be confined to such cases; for it has been held, that where the will supplies a period of distribution subsequent to the death of the testator, the words are referable to that period, Hervey v. M'Laughlin, 1 Pri. 264; Whitton v. Field, 9 Be. 368; Girdlestone v. Doe, 2 Sim. 225; Re Eve, 93 L. T. 235; Re Edwards, 1906, 1 Ch. 570; 75 L. J. Ch. 321; Re Fisher, 1915, 1 Ch. 302. In Edwards v. Edwards, 15 Be. 357; 21 L. J. Ch. 324, the construction of gifts of this nature was stated to be as follows: (1) a gift to A., and if he shall die, to B.; the contingency has reference to the death of the testator; (2) a gift to A., and if he shall die without children, to B.; the contingency has reference to the death of A.; (3) a gift to Z. for life, with remainder to A., and if he shall die, to B.; or (4) a gift to Z. for life, with remainder to A., and if he shall die without leaving children, to B.; in either case the contingency has reference to the death of Z. the tenant for life. See also Dean v. Handley, 2 H. & M. 635; Lewin v. Killey, 13 App. Cas. 783; Re Mackinlay, 56 S. J.

Words providing for death of objects;

Edwards v. Edwards.

142; Hawkins, Constr. Wills, 305 et seq. The canons laid down in Edwards v. Edwards were approved in Bowers v. Bowers, L. R. 5 Ch. 244; 39 L. J. Ch. 351; Re Hill's Trusts, L. R. 12 Eq. 302; 40 L. J. Ch. 594; and Re Heathcote's Trusts, L. R. 9 Ch. 45; but the last-mentioned decision was reversed in the House of Lords, and the fourth canon was overruled, O'Mahoney v. Burdett, 7 H. L. 388; 44 L. J. Ch. 56, n.; Ingram v. Soutten, 7 H. L. 408; 44 L. J. Ch. 55; Re Luddy, 25 Ch. D. 394; 53 L. J. Ch. 21; Re Schnadhorst, 1902, 2 Ch. 234; 71 L. J. Ch. 454; McCormick v. Simpson, 1907, App. Cas. 494; 77 L. J. P. C. 12. See, however, Olivant v. Wright, 1 Ch. D. 346; 45 L. J. Ch. 1; Besant v. Cox, 6 Ch. D. 604, as to what is sufficient context to restrict the contingency to the period of distribution. And see Re Poultney, 1912, 2 Ch. 541; 81 L. J. Ch. 748; Ward v. Brown, 1916, A. C. 121; 85 L. J. P. C. 183; Re Roberts, 1916, 2 Ch. 42; 85 L. J. Ch. 713; Re Brailsford, 1916, 2 Ch. 536; 85 L. J. Ch. 709. It is well established, that if a testator devises or bequeaths property to A., and in case of his death under the age of twenty-one years to B., the gift to B. will take effect in the event of A. dying under the prescribed age, either in the lifetime of the testator or afterwards, Willing v. Baine, 3 P. W. 113; Humberstone v. Stanton, 1 V. & B. 385. And it would not, it seems, be conclusive against this construction, that the gift over purported to dispose of the "share" or "legacy" of the prior devisee or legatee, who could not, strictly speaking, be an object of gift until the testator's decease, Humphreys v. Howes, 1 R. & M. 639; Walker v. Main, 1 J. & W. 1; Harris v. Davis, 1 Col. 416. See also Re Gaitskell's Trusts, L. R. 15 Eq. 386.

PREC. 18.

When there are in a will successive limitations of personal estate in favour of several persons absolutely, the first of those persons who survives the testator takes absolutely although he would have taken nothing if any previous legatee had survived and taken, the effect of the failure of an earlier gift being to accelerate, not to destroy, the later gift, Re Lowman, 1895, 2 Ch. 348; 64 L. J. Ch. 567. And as to freeholds, see Re Dunstan, 1918, 2 Ch. 304; 87 L. J. Ch. 597.

—when not referable to death in testator's
lifetime.

In some instances, however, words expressly pointing at the death of the legatee have been construed to apply exclusively to such event occurring after the testator's death; the postponement of payment affording a period subsequent to the death of the testator to which they could be referred. Thus, if a testator bequeaths property to A. for life, and after his death to his children, and provides, that, in case of the death of any of the legatees before their legacies become payable, then the legacy of each so dying shall go to his executors or administrators; these words will be construed as embracing the event of any of the children dying in the interval between the testator's death and the death of A., and not as disposing of the legacies failing by lapse, Corbyn v. French, 4 Ves. 418; Bone v. Cook, M'Cl. 168; 28 R. R. 697. These cases, however, seem to form a distinct class, and may, it is conceived, be regarded as exceptions to the general rule already stated.

mother for life; after her death, in trust for all the younger children of his two sisters, to be vested interests at twenty-one, with the usual provision for the others or other of the said children in case of the death of any under twenty-one; he then made provision for maintenance by directing the trustees to pay the interest of the presumptive share of any child during minority to its mother: it was held that the fund went to the children living at the death of the tenant for life, those dying under twenty-one having defeasible interests, Berkeley v. Swinburne, 16 Sim. 275; 17 L. J. Ch. 416. See that case explained in Re Emmet's Estate, 13 Ch. D. 484; 49 L. J. Ch. 295.

Questions as applied to gifts to classes.

Gifts to classes of persons who are not ascertainable until the death of the testator impose the necessity of particular care in preparing clauses which are intended to dispose of the shares of members of the class dying in the testator's lifetime; for, as persons so dying are not objects of the preceding gift, they are not within the clauses in question, if construed strictly as substitutional. Thus, where a testator gave the residue of his estate to the children of his brother A. and of his late brother and sister B. and C., who should be living at the death of A. and his wife, in equal proportions; and as to such of them as should be then dead leaving a child or children, such child or children was or were to be or stand in the place of his, her, or their parent or parents; it was held that the bequest was confined to the children of such of the legatees as survived the testator and afterwards died before the time of distribution; and that the children of those who died in the testator's lifetime were not entitled to participate, Butter v. Ommaney, 4 Rus. 70; 6 L. J. Ch. 54. In Re Hannam, 1897, 2 Ch. 39; 66 L. J. Ch. 471, a gift in a will, to take effect after a life estate, to a class ascertainable at the death of the testator, with a substantial gift to the children of deceased members of the class instead of their parents, did not let in the children of parents who died in the testator's lifetime, but who would have been members of the class if they had survived. In several cases, a strong disposition has manifested itself to extend clauses disposing of the "shares" of persons dying before the period of distribution to those who die in the testator's lifetime, though the preceding gift is to a class of objects (as children) not ascertainable until the testator's death, and therefore, it might seem, having no "share" or interest upon which the clause in question can operate, Willing v. Baine, 3 P. W. 113; Walker v. Main, 1 J. & W. 1; Humphreys v. Howes, 1 R. & M. 639; Smith v. Smith, 8 Sim. 353; 6 L. J. (N. S.) Ch. 175. In another case even the children of a person who had died previously to the making of the will were held to be entitled; there being a substantive original gift to the children of deceased objects concurrently with the living objects, and not a mere clause of substitution, Tytherleigh v. Harbin, 6 Sim. 329. Indeed, in several subsequent instances, clauses of substitution, though in terms applicable to future events, have been extended to let in the issue of persons who were dead when the will was made, the conclusion from the whole will being that the testator intended to embrace such objects,

PRFC. 18.

The point is, whether the gift to the issue is an original gift or a substitutional one. See Hawkins, Constr. Wills, ch. 19; Re Williams, 1914, 1 Ch. 219; affirmed, 1914, 2 Ch. 61; 82 L. J. Ch. 570, and cases there cited; Re Clerke, 1915, 2 Ch. 301; 84 L. J. Ch. 807; Re Brown, 1917, 2 Ch. 232; 86 L. J. Ch. 561.

(g) A perpetuity may be defined to be a future limitation restraining the owner of the estate from aliening the fee simple of the property discharged of such future use or estate before the event is determined or the period is arrived when such future use or estate is to arise. If that event or period be within the bounds prescribed by law, it is not a perpetuity. (Sanders on Uses and Trusts.)

Perpetuities,
definition of.

A perpetuity is a future limitation, whether executory or by way of remainder, and of either real or personal property, which is not to vest until after the expiration of, or will not necessarily vest within, the period fixed and prescribed by law for the creation of future estates and interests; and which is not destructible by the persons for the time being entitled to the property subject to the future limitation except with the concurrence of the individual interested under that limitation. (Lewis on Perpetuities.)

Rule against
perpetuities.

A limitation of estate which postpones the vesting for a life in being (including, by necessary consequence, any number of existing lives), and a further term of twenty-one years, is valid; but any limitation which postpones the vesting for a longer period is invalid as tending to a perpetuity. However, where gestation actually exists, the period of gestation is added to the above limit, Cadell v. Palmer, 1 C. & F. 372. And a child en ventre sa mère is regarded as a life in being, Re Wilmer's Trusts, 1903, 2 Ch. 411; 72 L. J. Ch. 670. The rule against perpetuities does not apply to a gift in favour of a charity. See post, p. 329.

The death of the testator, and not the date of his will, is to be considered with respect to the question of a devise being too remote, Vanderplank v. King, 3 Ha. 1; 12 L. J. (N. S.) Ch. 497; Williams v. Teale, 6 Ha. 239.

It is observable that a testator is not allowed a longer term of years on account of his not availing himself of a life; and, therefore, a gift which postpones the vesting for an absolute period of twenty-one years and one day, without a life, is void, no less than one which suspends the vesting for a life and twenty-one years and a day, Palmer v. Holford, 4 Rus. 403. In Lachlan v. Reynolds, 9 Ha. 796, a gift at the end of thirty years was supported on the ground that it was ultimately to vest in persons living at the death of the testator and at the end of the thirty years, and the vesting must therefore take place, if at all, in the life of a person in being at the testator's death.

A gift over if there should be no child or other issue of a tenant for life who should survive the testator and the tenant for life is not void for remoteness, for the word "survive" means that the person to survive shall be living at the time of the event which he is to survive, Gee v. Liddell, L. R. 2 Eq. 341; 35 L. J. Ch. 640. But as to "survive," see Re Sing, 1914, W. N. 90.

Gift cannot be moulded according to the event.

In the application of the rule under consideration, it is an established principle, that a devise or bequest which exceeds the allowed limit cannot be moulded into consistency with the rule of law, because the events have turned out to be such as would have admitted of the gifts being duly restricted; for the construction is to be made according to events which might have happened, and not according to events which have happened, Pearks v. Moseley, 5 App. Cas. 714; 50 L. J. Ch. 57.

Alternative gifts void in one event and good in another.

However, it may, and often does, occur, that a gift over is framed so as to take effect on a double contingency, one branch of which is within and the other is beyond the legal limit, which will therefore be good or bad according to the event. Thus, if a testator devises land to the first son of A. who should attain the age of twenty-two years, in fee, and if such son should die under the age of twenty-two years, or if A. should have no son, then to B. in fee; the gift to B. is precisely in this predicament. There are, it will be observed, two distinct devises to him; one to take effect if A. should have a son who should die under twenty-two, which is too remote, and is therefore void, whatever may happen to be the age at which such son dies; the other to arise in the event of A. having no son, which is good, as being necessarily to vest within a life in being, see Leake v. Robinson, 2 Mer. 363; Cambridge v. Rous, 8 Ves. 12; Minter v. Wraith, 13 Sim. 52.

These cases depend on the fact that there are really two distinct gifts over depending on two distinct and several events. If one of the events is within the limit, the gift over which depends on that event takes effect, and there can be no reason for holding that gift over invalid merely because in another event which is too remote the gift over which depends on this too remote event is invalid.

But where there is a gift over on one compound event, which includes events too remote and events not too remote, it cannot be split up so as to make it valid in case of the nearer events happening. Thus if there is a gift to A. for life, with a gift over in case he shall have no son who shall attain the age of twenty-five years, it is evident that the event on which the gift over depends might happen either within or beyond the period of the life of A. and twenty-one years after. Thus if A. had no son the event would have happened within the period allowed by the rule against perpetuities. But because the event was expressed as a compound event, it will not be split up, and the fact that the limit might be exceeded will invalidate the gift over, Proctor v. Bishop of Bath and Wells, 2 H. Bl. 358; Lord Dungannon v. Smith, 12 Cl. & F. 546; discussed in Re Fane, 1913, 1 Ch. 404; 82 L. J. Ch. 225; Monypenny

v. Dering, 2 D. M. & G. 145; 22 L. J. Ch. 313; Miles v. Harford, 12 Ch. D. 691; Abbiss v. Burney, 17 Ch. D. 211; 50 L. J. Ch. 348; Re Harvey, 39 Ch. D. 289; Re Bence, 1891, 3 Ch. 242; 60 L. J. Ch. 636. See the comments on Watson v. Young, 28 Ch. D. 436; 54 L. J. Ch. 502, by the Court of Appeal in Re Bence. If the testator had made the gift to A. for life, and in case he shall have no son who shall attain the age of twenty-five years, or if he shall have no son, then over, this would have been the case of two distinct gifts over depending on two distinct events, one valid, the other invalid; and if the valid event had occurred, the gift over would have been valid within the above first-stated rule as to gifts over. See also Evers v. Challis, 7 H. L. C. 531; 29 L. J. Q. B. 121; Hancock v. Watson, 1902, A. C. 14; 71 L. J. Ch. 149; Re Barker, 92 L. T. 831.

PREC. 18.
Rule against
perpetuities.

By sect. 10 of the Conveyancing Act, 1882 (45 & 46 Vict. c. 39), where an executory limitation is created in an instrument coming into operation after 31st December, 1882, in default or failure of the issue of a person to whom an estate is given, it is void if and as soon as there is living any issue who has attained the age of twenty-one years.

It would seem that on a bequest to persons in esse for life, and afterwards to their unborn children, with a general direction that female children should take for their "separate and inalienable use," the restriction against alienation would be too remote and would be void, Armitage v. Coates, 35 Be. 1; Re Teague's Settlement, L. R. 10 Eq. 564; Re Game, 1907, 1 Ch. 276; 76 L. J. Ch. 168.

Restriction
alienation
by married women.

An executory devise, however remote, may be engrafted on an estate tail; for such an estate being an estate of inheritance, and the owner thereof being competent to defeat the executory limitation and to alien the fee simple, the rule against perpetuities has no place, such rule only requiring that the absolute estate or interest in the subject-matter of the limitation be not kept in suspense beyond the allowed period, Nicolls v. Sheffield, 2 Br. C. 215; Re Haygarth, 1912, 1 Ch. 510; 81 L. J. Ch. 255. But the trusts of a term limited previously to an estate tail, for raising portions on the failure of the estate tail, are invalid as trenching on the rule against perpetuities, the term not being defeasible by the tenant in tail, Case v. Drosier, 5 M. & C. 246; 6 L. J. (N. S.) Ch. 353; Sykes v. Sykes, L. R. 13 Eq. 56; 41 L. J. Ch. 25.

Executory
limitation
after an estate tail not too remote.

That a devise in tail after payment of debts is not too remote, see Rimington v. Cannon, 12 C. B. 18; 21 L. J. C. P. 153. And a rent-charge by way of use, vested in an existing person and his heirs in fee simple, but to commence at an uncertain future period, is not void for remoteness, Gilbertson v. Richards, 5 H. & N. 453; 29 L. J. Ex. 213; and see Sugd. Pow. 15. But an executory interest to arise on a future event which may not happen within the perpetuity limits is void, though limited to an ascertained person who can release it any time, London and South Western Railway Co. v. Gomm, 20 Ch. D. 562; 51 L. J. Ch. 530; Edwards v. Edwards, 1909, A. C. 275; 78 L. J. Ch. 504.

PRINC. 18.

Rule against
perpetuities.

As to gifts to classes which are too
remote.

Consistently with the principle which forbids our having recourse to subsequent events in order to determine the validity of a devise, it is clear that a gift to a class extending to persons beyond the allowed line is void, although the class may happen to be entirely composed of individuals competent to have been objects of gift; for, as they claim in a collective character, the accidental circumstances of their respective situation cannot impart validity to their claim. Thus, if a gift is made to A. for life, and after his death to the children of A. who shall attain the age of twenty-two years, although all the children of A. who attain twenty-two should happen to have been born in the testator's lifetime (and who might therefore, as being persons in esse, have taken interests to vest at any age), yet the gift, not being confined to them, but embracing in its scope children born at any time during the life of A., whether in the lifetime or after the death of the testator, is too remote, on account of the postponement of the vesting beyond the age of twenty-one years, Re Dawson, 39 Ch. D. 155; 57 L. J. Ch. 1061. And the vice of remoteness affects the class as a whole, if it may affect an unascertained number of its members, Pearks v. Moseley, 5 App. Cas. 714; 50 L. J. Ch. 57; Re Mervin, 1891, 3 Ch. 197; 60 L. J. Ch. 671. See also Re Bowles, 1905, 1 Ch. 371; 74 L. J. Ch. 338.

The ordinary causes of the excessive remoteness of gifts to children as a class are, that they either include the issue of unborn persons, or defer the vesting of the shares of unborn children to an age later than majority. A testator is in less danger of overstepping the legal boundary whilst providing for his own children and grandchildren, than when the objects of his bounty are the children or grandchildren of another; since he has only to avoid protracting the vesting of his grandchildren's shares beyond their ages of twenty-one years. If the vesting of a grandchild's share is postponed until the death of the survivor of its parents, the gift is too remote; since a child of the testator may marry a person born after the testator's death, and that parent may be the survivor, Hodson v. Ball, 14 Sim. 574; 12 L. J. Ch. 80; Lett v. Randall, 3 S. & G. 83; 24 L. J. Ch. 708; Buchanan v. Harrison, 1 J. & H. 662; 31 L. J. Ch. 74. But if the vesting be not postponed beyond majority, the extension of the gift to after-born grandchildren would not invalidate it, because all the children of a testator must be in esse at his decease, and their children must be born in their lifetime, which brings it within the compass of a life in being at the death of the testator. On the other hand, a gift embracing the whole range of the grandchildren of a living person, other than the testator himself, would be clearly void, though the vesting was to take place at majority, or even at the instant of birth, for the grandfather might have children born after the testator's decease; and as the gift would extend to the children of such after-born children, it would be too remote.

In Elliott v. Elliott, 12 Sim. 276, a bequest to the children of A., "as and when they should attain their respective ages of twenty-two years," was held to refer only to the children of A. born during testator's lifetime, and to be valid. This case was followed by Stirling, J., in Re Coppard's Estate, 35 Ch. D. 350; 56 L. J. Ch. 606.

NOTES TO
PREC. 18.

A gift to the children of A. and the grandchildren of B. (a living person) is void for remoteness, the whole gift failing by reason of the failure as to part, Leake v. Robinson, 2 Mer. 363. But after a devise to A. for life, with remainder to the children of A. for their lives, equally, a devise over, of the share of any child dying, to his children, is good as to the children of such children of A. as were living at the testator's death, the gift to every member of the class being single and independent of the gift to every other member, Catlin v. Brown, 11 Ha. 372. And if the shares are necessarily ascertained within due limits, it is immaterial that, as to some particular shares, conditions are superadded which may or may not be void for remoteness, Pearks v. Moseley, 5 App. Cas. 714; 50 L. J. Ch. 57.

Rule against
perpetuities.

A gift to an unborn person, to take effect on his performance of an act which cannot be done until the attainment of an age posterior to majority, is clearly bad. Of this nature is a devise or bequest to the first unborn son of A. who shall take holy orders; for, as the canons of the Church of England require deacons to be twenty-three, and priests to be twenty-four, years of age, it follows that if A. should die, leaving a son under two years of age, the vesting would necessarily be deferred beyond a life in being and twenty-one years afterwards, Proctor v. Bishop of Bath and Wells, 2 H. Bl. 358.

Gift to an unborn person taking holy orders.

Where the act, the performance of which is made a condition precedent to the vesting, is of such a nature that it may be performed either before or after the devisee's majority, as entering at a university, taking a commission in the army, or the like, the fate of the gift seems to be more questionable; but, even in this case, it appears by the better opinion to be void, for the doctrine to be gathered from the authorities is, that the gift must necessarily take effect within the period allowed by the rule of law, or fail, Tollemache v. Earl of Coventry, 2 O. & F. 611. Indeed, even in the case before suggested, of a gift to a person taking orders, there is only a possibility of remoteness, because an unborn son of A. might attain the age of twenty-three or twenty-four, and be ordained in the lifetime of his father, and then the gift would in the event be confined within the compass of a life in being.

Where a power of appointment is created by deed or will in favour of a defined class of objects, the appointment must be made to persons competent to have taken immediately under the instrument creating the power. In exercising a special or particular power the rule against perpetuities, and, in the case of land, the rule in Whitby v. Mitchell (cited post) must be borne in mind. For the purposes of these rules the limitations created by the exercise of the special power are read as if contained in the instrument creating the power, Re Thompson, 1906, 2 Ch. 199; 75 L. J. Ch. 599; Re Nash, 1910, 1 Ch. 1; 79 L. J. Ch. 1. The power, however, is not void, because it includes, or may include, objects exceeding the perpetuity limits, Re de Sommersy, 1912, 2 Ch. 622; 82 L. J. Ch. 17; and if it is exercised in favour of persons within the limits, the appointment is a good one, Slark v. Dakyns, L. R. 10 Ch. 35; 44 L. J. Ch. 205. A general power does not interfere with the freedom of alienation, and has no tendency to a perpetuity; consequently the rule against perpetuities begins to run from the date of the instrument executing the power, Lewis, Perpet. 483; Sugd. Pow. 394—397. And this applies whether the general power is exercisable by deed or will, or by will only, Rous v. Jackson, 29 Ch. D. 521; 54 L. J. Ch. 732, in which case Chitty, J., declined to follow Re Powell's Trusts, 39 L. J. Ch. 188. Limitations depending or expectant upon a prior limitation which is void for remoteness are themselves invalid, but limitations in default of appointment under a power which is void for remoteness are not necessarily invalid unless they are themselves obnoxious to the rule against perpetuities, Re Abbott, 1893, 1 Ch. 54; 62 L. J. Ch. 46. See Jarm. Wills, 351.

Powers to appoint to the issue of a marriage are frequently vested by an ante-nuptial settlement in both or one of the marrying parties; which powers must be exercised in favour of issue born in the lifetime of the parents or one of them, which, indeed, the children of the marriage necessarily are, so that an express restriction is never required, unless the power embraces remoter issue, Robinson v. Hardcastle, 2 T. R. 241; Bristow v. Warde, 2 Ves. J. 336; Crompe v. Barrow, 4 Ves. 681. As before observed, even where a power is not in terms duly restricted, yet, if it is exercised in favour of individuals who are within the line, the appointment is valid. In the converse case, i.e. where the power is duly restricted, but the appointment is not, the latter is a mere nullity quoad the remote appointees; and therefore, even if it were made to the whole as a class, yet, as the remote appointees are not objects of the power, the extension of the appointment to them would not prevent its taking effect as to the competent objects. If, however, the power is unrestricted, and the appointment is to a class embracing objects who are too remote, it will be void in toto, according to the rule applicable to gifts in general, Routledge v. Dorril, 2 Ves. J. 357.

It is also to be observed, that where an appointment is in the first instance made in favour of certain objects who are within the scope of the power, and there is engrafted on this a clause settling the shares of one or more of the appointees in a manner not authorized by the power, and which would be void as exceeding the limit of the rule against perpetuities, the effect is not to invalidate the appointment in regard to such share or shares, but solely to detach from it the clause in question, leaving the appointment to take effect as a simple absolute disposition, according to the mode in which it originally stood, Carver v. Bowles, 2 R. & M. 301; 9 L. J. Ch. 91; Kampf v. Jones, 2 Ke. 756; 7 L. J. Ch. 63; Ring v. Hardwick, 2 Be. 352; Church v. Kemble, 5 Sim. 525; 3 L. J. Ch. 65; Lassence v. Tierney, 1 Mac. & G. 551; Cooke v. Cooke, 38 Ch. D. 202. But the clause, in a case where the appointee has executed or assented to the deed of appointment, may be valid as a settlement by the appointee.

In Re Russell, 1895, 2 Ch. 698; 64 L. J. Ch. 891, a testator gave his residuary estate in trust, after the death of M. and her husband, for all the daughters of M. who should attain twenty-one or marry under that age, with a proviso that the share of any daughter should be held upon trust for her for life, and after her death upon similar trusts for her children as were thereinbefore declared for the children of M. M. had one daughter only, the plaintiff, who attained twenty-one, and she was born in the lifetime of the testator. Held, that the proviso for re-settlement of the shares must be construed as applicable to each share separately, and that although it would have been void for remoteness in the case of daughters born after the death of the testator, it was valid in the case of the plaintiff, and therefore she was only entitled to a life interest in the fund.

NOTES TO
PREC. 18.

Rule against
perpetuities.

A testatrix, having under her marriage settlement power to appoint a fund in favour of her children, by her will appointed a portion of the fund to her son C. for life, and after his death to such persons as he should by will appoint; the appointment to C.'s appointees was void for remoteness, Wollaston v. King, L. R. 8 Eq. 165; 38 L. J. Ch. 61, 392; Morgan v. Gronow, L. R. 16 Eq. 1; 42 L. J. Ch. 410. But such an appointment in favour of a person in being at the date of the instrument creating the power, and his appointees, would be good, Slark v. Dakyns, L. R. 10 Ch. 35; 44 L. J. Ch. 205.

The rule against perpetuities does not prevent the giving of a life interest to an unborn person; for as persons not in esse at the death of the testator may be made devisees of the inheritance of lands or legatees of the absolute interest in personalty, they are of course equally competent to take life or other partial interests. See Jarm. Wills, 348. If, therefore, a testator stops at the creation of such life interests, his disposition is perfectly consistent with the rule of law. But a limitation of land by way of remainder to the children or issue of an unborn person, following a gift for life to such unborn person is, as to such remainder, void, Monypenny v. Dering, 2 D. M. & G. 145, 170; 22 L. J. Ch. 313; Whitby v. Mitchell, 44 Ch. D. 85; 59 L. J. Ch. 485; Re Nash, 1910, 1 Ch. 1; 79 L. J. Ch. 1; Re Clarke's Settlement Trust, 1916, 1 Ch. 467; 85 L. J. Ch. 592. Thus, if a testator gives lands to A. for life, with remainder to his unborn children for life, remainder to the children of such children as tenants in common in fee, the devisees to A. and his children will take effect, and the inheritance, which the ulterior devise purports to dispose of, will descend to the heir-at-law or residuary devisee of the testator. See also Re Ashforth, 1905, 1 Ch. 535; 74 L. J. Ch. 361; Re Park's Settlement, 1914, 1 Ch. 595; 83 L. J. Ch. 528; Re Bullock's Will Trusts, 1915, 1 Ch. 493; 84 L. J. Ch. 463; Re Garnham, 1916, 2 Ch. 413; 85 L. J. Ch. 646; and note (c) to Prec. 17.

Life interest may be given to an unborn person.

This rule does not extend to personalty, and therefore a limitation to the issue of an unborn person is valid provided that the interests vest indefeasibly within twenty-one years from the death of a person in being, Re Bowles, 1902, 2 Ch. 650; 71 L. J. Ch. 822.

A gift over after a life interest to an unborn person is valid, if such gift over is in favour of a person who is within the perpetuity limit or

PREC. 18.Rule against
perpetuities.

of a class necessarily ascertained within the limits of the rule, Stuart v. Cockerell, L. R. 5 Ch. 713; 39 L. J. Ch. 729.

A devise to a person in being for life, then to the unborn children of such person in being, as tenants for life, and after the death of the longest liver of the tenants for life, upon such trusts as the longest liver should appoint, and in default of appointment to the testator's heir, gives the property after the death of the longest liver of the tenants for life to the testator's heir, the power of appointment being void, as the person to exercise it is not necessarily ascertainable within a life or lives in being and twenty-one years, Re Hargreaves, 43 Ch. D. 401; 59 L. J. Ch. 384. A gift to testator's daughter for life, and on her death for such child or children of hers as should live to attain twenty-one years, and also for such child or children of any son of hers who should die under twenty-one, as should live to attain the age of twenty-one years, equally is void; and evidence that the daughter at the testator's death was past the age of child-bearing, which evidence, if admitted, would have made the gift valid, is not admissible, Re Dawson, 39 Ch. D. 155; 57 L. J. Ch. 1061.

In some instances devises of land which extend the limitations to too remote a line of issue are rendered valid by the doctrine of cy près, or approximation. According to this doctrine, if a testator devises lands to A. for life, with remainder to the eldest son (unborn) of A. for life, with remainder to the first and other sons of such eldest son successively in tail, the Courts, in order to prevent the testator's intention in favour of the issue of the son of A. from being entirely defeated, accelerate the ultimate limitation by giving the estate tail to the son himself, instead of to his son; thereby reducing the limitations to a devise to A. for life with remainder to his first and other sons in tail. It will be observed, that, under these modified limitations, the intended tenants in tail take by descent (supposing the estate tail to remain unbarred) similar estates to those which it was attempted to vest in them by purchase, Nicholl v. Nicholl, 2 W. Bl. 1159; Robinson v. Hardcastle, 2 T. R. 241, 380, 781; see also Hopkins v. Hopkins, Ca. t. Talb. 44. It is clear that this doctrine does not extend to bequests of personalty, Routledge v. Dorril, 2 Ves. J. 357, 365; nor to gifts of real estate which would confer on the too remote issue estates in fee simple, Bristow v. Warde, 2 Ves. J. 336. It seems, however, to apply where they are made tenants in common in tail, Pitt v. Jackson, 2 Br. C. 51; Vanderplank v. King, 3 Ha. 1; 12 L. J. (N. S.) Ch. 497; see also Williams v. Teale, 6 Ha. 251. The doctrine, however, does not apply where the devise to the issue of the unborn person, instead of running through the whole line of sons, is restricted to the eldest son, as in such case the devolution of the estate under an entail (which would include all the sons) differs so widely from the destination contemplated by the testator, Monyenny v. Dering, 2 D. M. & G. 145; 22 L. J. Ch. 313. See also Hampton v. Holman, 5 Ch. D. 183; 46 L. J. Ch. 248; Re Richardson, 1904, 1 Ch. 332; 73 L. J. Ch. 153; Re Mortimer, 1905, 2 Ch. 502; 74 L. J. Ch. 745.

The doctrine of the case of Cadell v. Palmer, 1 O. & F. 372, does not lead to any alteration in the ordinary form of gifts to unborn children, which are commonly made to confer vested interests at majority; but it affords the means of carrying into effect the designs of some testators, who are anxious to postpone the vesting to a later age. For instance, suppose a testator, distrustful of the prudence which ordinarily belongs to the legal age of discretion, is desirous to postpone the vesting of the shares of his grandchildren, born and unborn, until the age of twenty-five; a gift aiming directly and absolutely at this object would be void, Leake v. Robinson, 2 Mer. 363; Bull v. Pritchard, 1 Rus. 213; 16 L. J. (N. S.) Ch. 185; Re Hume, 1912, 1 Ch. 693; 81 L. J. Ch. 382; but the gift would be rendered valid by carving out a period composed of existing lives and twenty-one years, and restraining the vesting (as in the text) within the compass of such period. This expedient, while it preserves inviolate the rule of law, exposes the testator's scheme of postponing the vesting of the grandchildren's shares until their ages of twenty-five to very little actual risk of being frustrated, since several lives and twenty-one years are almost certain to outrun one of those lives (for the parent of the objects of the gift would of course be made one of the cestuis que vie) and twenty-five years.

PREC. 18.

Scheme by which the vesting of shares of unborn children may be postponed beyond majority.

One point of much interest in connexion with the doctrine of the rule against perpetuities is as to the validity of indefinite powers of sale, i.e. powers which are so framed as not necessarily to be exercisable within the compass of a life in being and twenty-one years afterwards, and which, therefore, might seem to admit of the possibility of the estate being shifted in derogation of the limitations in the will or settlement for an unlimited period. In Lantsbery v. Collier, 2 K. & J. 709; 25 L. J. Ch. 672, Sir W. Page Wood, V.-C., reviewed the authorities respecting powers of sale not restricted in terms as to time, and declared that the Court looks to the whole intent and purpose of the settlement, and, whether the reversion or remainder in fee simple is limited after estates for life or estates tail, will hold the power to be valid and subsisting until the estates tail (if any) are barred, or the fee simple vested in possession—in either of which events, the purpose of the settlement is at an end, and the power is determined, 2 K. & J. 722; see also Wolley v. Jenkins, 23 Be. 53; 26 L. J. Ch. 379; on appeal, 5 W. R. 281; Taite v. Swinstead, 26 Be. 525; Re Brown's Settlement, L. R. 10 Eq. 349; 39 L. J. Ch. 845; Peters v. Lewes and East Grinstead Railway Co., 18 Ch. D. 429; 50 L. J. Ch. 839; Sugd. Pow. 851; Jarm. Wills, 311. But where in a deed or will there is a limitation of real estate to one for life, and upon the death of the tenant for life upon trust to divide amongst certain persons, with power or authority to the trustees to sell, at such times as they shall think fit, all or any portions of such real estate, such power may be exercised within a reasonable time after the death of the tenant for life, and after the property has become absolutely vested in possession, if on the construction of the particular instrument it appears to be the intention of the settlor or testator that it should be then exercised, Re Cotton's Trustees and the School

As to the validity of indefinite powers of sale.

Indefinite power of sale.

NOTES TO
PREC. 18.

In Re Daveron, 1893, 3 Ch. 421; 63 L. J. Ch. 54, where a testator directed certain real estate to be sold on the expiration of a lease which had forty-nine years to run at the date of his death (which power of sale was therefore clearly void), and that the proceeds thereof should be distributed among certain named persons, it was held that the legatees of the proceeds of sale were entitled to the property, inasmuch as they had the right in equity to elect to take the property as real estate. In such a case, if the property is sold under a decree of the Court, the proceeds of sale, for the purpose of transmission to the representatives of a deceased beneficiary, will be real and not personal estate, Goodier v. Edmunds, 1893, 3 Ch. 455; 62 L. J. Ch. 649. See Re Appleby, 1903, 1 Ch. 565; 72 L. J. Ch. 332.

In Re Wood, 1894, 3 Ch. 381; 63 L. J. Ch. 790, a testator directed his trustees to carry on his business of a gravel contractor until his freehold gravel pits were worked out, and then to sell them and hold the proceeds on trust for certain persons to be then living. Held, that both the direction to sell and the trust of the proceeds were void for remoteness. It is to be noted that, in Re Daveron, ubi sup., the persons entitled to the proceeds of sale were existing persons, whereas in Re Wood, the persons entitled to the proceeds of sale were not ascertainable within the period allowed by the rule against perpetuities.

Whether the objection of remoteness is applicable to
a remainder.

In Cole v. Sewell, 4 Dr. & War. 1, affirmed 2 H. L. C. 186, Lord St. Leonards used language which was read as meaning that the rule against perpetuities did not apply if the limitation was by way of remainder. However, in Re Frost, 43 Ch. D. 246; 59 L. J. Ch. 118, Kay, J., pointed out that such was not Lord St. Leonards' meaning, and held that the rule against remoteness is applicable to contingent remainders as well as to contingent limitations by way of executory devise.

Trust for sale.

Under sect. 10 (3) of the Conveyancing Act, 1911 (1 & 2 Geo. 5, c. 37), a trust for sale subsists in favour of a purchaser until the land has been conveyed to the beneficiaries or under their direction.

See further, on the subjects of this note, the case of Cadell v. Palmer, and the notes thereto, in Tud. L. C. R. P.; Jarm. Wills, ch. 10; Sanger on Wills and Intestacies, ch. ii.

(h) See note (c) to Prec. 17. But in regard to personalty the rule in Whitby v. Mitchell does not apply. See ante, p. 295.

NOTES to Precedent 23.

(a) An executor or administrator is not justified in continuing the testator's or intestate's trade, without an express authority; but an executor is justified in keeping a trading establishment on foot merely for the purpose of completing orders given in the testator's lifetime, or of disposing of the stock and goodwill to advantage, Garrett v. Noble, 6 Sim. 504; 3 L. J. Ch. 159; Marshall v. Broadhurst, 1 Cr. & J. 405; 9 L. J. Ex. 105; Dakin v. Cope, 2 Rus. 170. See Wms. Exors. 1430 et seq.

As to executor carrying on trade.

Owing to the personal risks which an executor who carries on his testator's business incurs, it is obviously not to be assumed as a matter of course that every person who might be willing to undertake the ordinary duties of the office would be disposed to subject himself to the risks inseparable from carrying on a trade: and wills, therefore, containing a direction for the carrying on of the testator's trade ought to provide against the event of the executor declining to do so, and should so authorize him, if he should begin the undertaking, to relinquish it at any time; since a person may otherwise be induced to renounce the executorship altogether, as the only means of escaping from the hazards which the testator has annexed to the office.

Though the entire property of the executor himself is liable to the engagements of the trade, yet that of the testator, it seems, is liable only so far as he has subjected it. If the will authorizes the employment of

As to the quantum of capital which

PREC. 23.may be employed.Executor carrying on trade.

his whole property in the trade, the whole thereby becomes subject to its engagements. But if the testator has limited the capital of the trade to a certain amount, or to property of a particular description, then this appropriated part will be liable in exclusion of the general assets; and if an executor, without any authority from the will of the testator, takes upon himself to trade with the assets, the testator's estate will not be liable, in the event of the executor's bankruptcy, Cutbush v. Cutbush, 1 Be. 184; 8 L. J. Ch. 175; Ex parte Garland, 10 Ves. 110; Ex parte Richardson, 3 Mad. 138; Thompson v. Andrews, 1 M. & K. 116; 2 L. J. (N. S.) Ch. 46; Labouchere v. Tupper, 11 Moo. P. O. 198. And if the executor employs a larger sum than his testator has authorized, the excess, in the event of the executor becoming bankrupt, may be proved as a debt under the bankruptcy, Ex parte Garland, 10 Ves. 110; Re Butterfield, De G. 319. Where a testator directed generally that his executors should be his successors, for the benefit of his estate, in a business carried on by him in partnership, Sir J. Leach, V.-C., was of opinion that an executrix carrying on the business was not justified in employing more of the assets than the actual capital, Ex parte Richardson, 3 Mad. 138. It seems that in general the creditors of the trade, who have become such since the death of the testator, as such, have no claim against assets in the hands of legatees, among whom distribution has been made under the direction of the same will which has authorized the trade to be carried on (ib.). If any pecuniary remuneration is intended to be made to executors for their trouble in carrying on the trade, the testator should expressly authorize it; since otherwise this, like all the other duties of the office, must be performed gratuitously, Burden v. Burden, 1 V. & B. 170; though, if an executor employs a third person to conduct the trade, he will be allowed the salary paid to such person. It seems, too, that the Court will, upon a proper application, make a prospective allowance to an executor for any extra trouble of this nature. If a testator appoints trustees to carry on his business and directs that while they are carrying it on each shall receive an annual sum out of the profits thereof, the sums received by the trustees are legacies and liable to legacy duty, Re Thorley, 1891, 2 Ch. 613; 60 L. J. Ch. 537. If the testator intends the sum to be a clear yearly sum, he should therefore make proper provision for this in the will.

As to the indemnity which executors who carry on the testator's business under the authority of the will, and with the assent of the creditors, are entitled to, see Dowse v. Gorton, 1891, A. C. 190; 60 L. J. Ch. 745; Re Oxley, 1914, 1 Ch. 604; 83 L. J. Ch. 442.

Maintenance
of adults.

(b) If the direction to bring up the children is not to be an obligation, it will be necessary to state this expressly. See as to maintenance after infancy, Re Booth, 1894, 2 Ch. 282; 63 L. J. Ch. 560; K'Eogh v. K'Eogh, 1911, Ir. R. 396; and as to duties in performing the trust, see Re G., 1899, 1 Ch. 719; 68 L. J. Ch. 374.

(c) It is always to be remembered that a trust framed in the usual manner in favour of males who attain majority, and females who attain majority or marry, leaves unprovided for the case of a male marrying and dying during minority leaving issue—an event not impossible. Unless the testator deliberately chooses in such a case to subject the issue to the hardship of absolute exclusion, by way of check on the imprudence of early marriages, it would seem proper to make the shares of the entire class (including both male and female objects) vest at twenty-one or marriage.

NOTES TO
PREC. 23.

(d) Where the debtors or tenants of a testator are numerous or widely scattered, it is not to be expected that an executor or trustee should personally employ himself in the collection of the debts or rents; and in all cases where, from the circumstances, it is necessary for the executors to employ agents, the executors may do so, and will be allowed the expenses of so doing, but as a general rule they are not allowed to employ an agent to perform those duties, which, by accepting the office of executors, they have taken upon themselves, Weiss v. Dill, 3 M. & K. 26. As the amount of the allowance made by executors to agents and for which they claim reimbursement out of the estate is sometimes disputed, a clause such as that in the text may be found useful.

As to the employment by an executor of a collector of debts.

(e) The rule that a trustee, executor, or administrator shall have no allowance for his care and trouble extends to professional services, so that a solicitor can charge his cestui que trust only for costs out of pocket, New v. Jones, 1 M'N. & G. 668, n.; Moore v. Frowd, 3 M. & C. 45; 6 L. J. (N. S.) Ch. 372; Bainbrigge v. Blair, 8 Be. 588; 14 L. J. Ch. 405; neither can the partner of a solicitor-trustee charge for his services, Collins v. Carey, 2 Be. 128; Christophers v. White, 10 Be. 523. But the costs of a town agent in a cause are allowed, Burge v. Brutton, 2 Ha. 373; 12 L. J. (N. S.) Ch. 368; and a trustee, though he is a solicitor, may employ another solicitor to transact for him professional business relating to the trust, Stanes v. Parker, 9 Be. 389. See further as to solicitor-trustees, Re Corsellis, 34 Ch. D. 675; 56 L. J. Ch. 294; Wms. Exors. 1497 et seq.

No allowance to trustee for his trouble.

It would seem from the above cases that the case of a solicitor-trustee, acting in litigious business on behalf of himself and his co-trustees, forms an exception to the general rule.

So also, where a solicitor is appointed executor, and he accepts the office, he must perform all the duties thereof without remuneration: even if authorized by the will to charge for "professional services," he cannot charge for the performance of those services which ought to be rendered by an executor in a lay capacity, but is entitled to remuneration only for such services as are strictly "professional," Chalinder v. Herrington, 1907, 1 Ch. 58; 76 L. J. Ch. 71. It will be seen, however, that the form in the text provides that proper remuneration shall be made for services generally, and not only for such as are strictly professional. See Re Ames, 25 Ch. D. 72.

Solicitor-executor.

(f) The solicitor-trustee must not attest the will, otherwise he will be precluded from charging profit costs, Re Pooley, 40 Ch. D. 1; 58 L. J. Ch. 1; approving Re Barber, 31 Ch. D. 665, see Wills Act, s. 15 and notes, ante, p. 35. It seems that as the effect of this clause is to give the solicitor a bounty under the will, if the estate prove insolvent the clause cannot take effect as against creditors, Re White, 1898, 2 Ch. 217; 67 L. J. Ch. 502; Re Brown, 1918, W. N. 118; O'Higgins v. Walsh, 1918, 1 I. R. 126.

NOTES to Precedent 24.

Calls on shares.

(a) In a gift of railway shares upon which calls have been paid in advance, or are still to be paid, it is advisable to express whether or not the legatee is to take the shares as paid up in advance; and on the other hand, upon whom the burthen of the calls due, but unpaid, and of any future calls, is to be imposed.

Payments requisite to make testator's interest
complete.

Where a testator specifically bequeaths shares, but further payments are required to make perfect the interest which the testator professes specifically to bequeath, the general personal estate is applicable for that purpose. But where the interest of the testator in the subject-matter which he professes to bequeath is complete, or where it is so treated by him and by all persons unconnected with it, the future calls fall on the legatee, and not on the general personal estate, Armstrong v. Burnet, 20 Be. 424; 24 L. J. Ch. 473. Thus, if the call was made before the testator's death, the general personal estate would be at the expense of it, but if the calls were made after the testator's death, they would have to be borne by the specific legatee, Addams v. Ferick, 26 Be. 384; 28 L. J. Ch. 594. See also Day v. Day, 1 Dr. & S. 261; 29 L. J. Ch. 466; Re Box, 1 H. & M. 552; 33 L. J. Ch. 42. The testator's estate remains liable to the calls so long as the shares remain standing in his name in the company's books. And as to payment of calls out of income or out of capital, see Bevan v. Waterhouse, 3 Ch. D. 752; 46 L. J. Ch. 331; also Buckley on Companies Acts (9th edition), 584.

A bequest of "shares" will pass capital stock, Morrice v. Aylmer, L. R. 7 H. L. 717; 45 L. J. Ch. 614; but not debenture stock, Re Bodman, 1891, 3 Ch. 135; 61 L. J. Ch. 31, unless the testator only had debenture stock, Re Weeding, 1896, 2 Ch. 364; 65 L. J. Ch. 743.

A bequest of "all my debentures" will pass both debentures and debenture stock, Re Herring, 1908, 2 Ch. 493; 77 L. J. Ch. 665.

As to apportionment, see note (g) to Prec. 8. And as to a bonus on shares, see Jarm. Wills, 1223 et seq.; and Re Evans, 1913, 1 Ch. 23; 82 L. J. Ch. 12; Re Hatton, 1917, 1 Ch. 357; 86 L. J. Ch. 375.

As to gifts in favour of charity.

(b) By the Mortmain and Charitable Uses Act, 1891, land—which expression includes tenements and hereditaments, corporeal or incorporeal, of any tenure—may now be devised and assured by will to or for the benefit of any charitable use, but such land must, notwithstanding anything in the will contained to the contrary, be sold within one year from the death of the testator. This time may be extended by the High Court or the Charity Commissioners. Accordingly, a devise of a reversionary real estate to a charity is now valid, Re Hume, 1895, 1 Ch. 422; 64 L. J. Ch. 267. But see Re Ryland, 1903, 1 Ch. 467; 72 L. J. Ch. 277. Any personal estate by will directed to be laid out in the purchase of land for the benefit of any charitable uses will be held for the benefit of the charitable uses as though there had been no such direction (sect. 7). However, the Court, and also the Charity Commissioners, are authorized to sanction the retention or acquisition, as the case may be, of any land devised and assured by will for the benefit of any charitable use, or proposed to be purchased out of personal estate by will directed to be laid out, in the purchase of land, if satisfied that such land is required for actual occupation for the purposes of the charity, and not as an investment, and the sanction may from time to time be extended, Re Sidebottom, 1901, 2 Ch. 1; 70 L. J. Ch. 448. The Act, however, does not affect Part III. of the Mortmain and Charitable Uses Act, 1888. Part III. of this Act gives power to a testator—whose will must for this purpose be executed not less than twelve months before his death, or be a reproduction in substance of a devise made in a previous will in force at the time of such reproduction, and which was executed not less than twelve months before the death of the testator, and must be enrolled in the books of the Charity Commissioners within six months after the death of the testator—to devise any quantity of land not exceeding twenty acres for any one public park, and not exceeding two acres for any one public museum, and not exceeding one acre for any one school-house for an elementary school.

Devises of land or bequests of personal estate to be laid out in the purchase of land, to or in trust for any of the Universities of Oxford, Cambridge, London, Durham, and the Victoria University, or any of the Colleges, or houses of learning within any of those Universities, or to or in trust for any of the Colleges of Eton, Winchester, and Westminster, for the better support and maintenance of the scholars only upon the foundations of those last-mentioned Colleges, or to or in trust for the warden, council, and scholars of Keble College, are, by sect. 7, preserved from the operation of the Mortmain and Charitable Uses Act, 1888. This Act repealed, among others, the Act 9 Geo. 2, c. 36, usually known as the Statute of Mortmain, which, however, it re-enacted in many provisions.

Money secured on land or other personal estate arising from or connected with land is expressly excluded from the definition of the term "land" in the Mortmain and Charitable Uses Acts of 1888 and 1891, and may therefore now be bequeathed to charities without any fear as to the operation of those Acts.

The Act of 1891 only applies to the wills of testators dying after the passing of the Act, i.e. August 5th, 1891 (sect. 9).

In Re Bridger, 1894, 1 Ch. 297; 63 L. J. Ch. 186, a testator, who died after the passing of the Act, by his will made before the Act bequeathed the residue of his estate to trustees in trust to pay the income thereof to his wife for her life, and from and after her decease in trust to pay "such part of my said residuary trust estate which may by law be given for charitable purposes," to the Brompton Hospital, and as to the remainder of the said residuary trust estate upon trust for E. W. absolutely. Held, that the Act applied, and that the will did not shew any intention on the part of the testator to confine the gift to the hospital to such property only as could by the law, as it stood at the date of the will, be given for charitable purposes, and that the hospital was entitled to all the residue of the testator's estate, realty as well as personalty. See Re Harris, 1912, 2 Ch. 241; 81 L. J. Ch. 512. The Acts of 1888 and 1891 do not extend to Scotland or Ireland.

Technical and Industrial Institutions
Act, 1892.

By the Technical and Industrial Institutions Act, 1892 (55 & 56 Vict. c. 29), s. 10, assurances of land by will to institutions mentioned in the Act are exempt from Parts I. and II. of the Act of 1888, and from the requirement as to sale within one year from the death of the testator contained in the Act of 1891, and by sect. 46 (2) of the Education Act, 1918 (8 & 9 Geo. 5, c. 39), are now exempt from enrolment.

Gifts for sailors and soldiers on the land.

Gifts to certain Government Departments and Local Authorities for the settlement or employment on the land of men who have served in His Majesty's forces are not to be deemed assurances to a charitable use within the meaning of the Mortmain and Charitable Uses Act, 1888, by the Sailors and Soldiers (Gifts for Land Settlement) Act, 1916 (6 & 7 Geo. 5, c. 60).

Gifts for educational purposes.

Gifts for educational purposes are exempt from the restrictions of the Mortmain and Charitable Uses Acts under sect. 46 of the Education Act, 1918 (8 & 9 Geo. 5, c. 39).

Land Tax.

The Land Tax Redemption Act of 42 Geo. 3, c. 116, s. 50, enables persons to give money by will or otherwise, to be applied in the redemption of the land tax affecting lands settled to charitable uses. And by sect. 162, land tax redeemed or purchased under the provisions of the same Act may be given by deed, will or otherwise for the augmentation of any living. As to impropriation tithes, see 13 & 14 Vict. c. 94, s. 23.

Gifts of land valid: Queen Anne's Bounty, church lands.

Gifts of land by will to the Governors of Queen Anne's Bounty are authorized by statutes 2 & 3 Ann. c. 20 (c. 11 Ruff.), and 43 Geo. 3, c. 107; see also 45 Geo. 3, c. 84; 7 Geo. 4, c. 66; as also gifts for the augmentation, under certain limitations, of church lands, by statute 43 Geo. 3, c. 108 (the devise not to exceed five acres), 51 Geo. 3, c. 115, and subsequent Acts (see also 7 Geo. 4, c. 66). For the encouragement of such persons as shall be disposed to contribute towards the purposes of the Act to make better provision for the spiritual care of populous parishes (6 & 7 Vict. c. 37), it is enacted (by sect. 22, explained by 7 & 8 Vict. c. 94, s. 7, and extended by 14 & 15 Vict. c. 97, s. 24, and 19 & 20 Vict. c. 104, s. 4), that any person having in his own right any estate or interest in any land, tithes, tenements or other hereditaments, shall have power by deed enrolled or by will, to give to and vest in the Devises of land to the British Museum are authorized by 5 Geo. 4, c. 39; by 22 Vict. c. 27, s. 7, personalty not exceeding 1,000*l.* may be given by will to purchase or maintain recreation grounds; and as to the incorporation of trustees of charities, see 35 & 36 Vict. c. 24.

PREC. 24.

British Museum.
grounds.

The law imposes no restriction whatever on gifts of pure personalty, to any legal charitable purpose; and it would be no objection that such purpose is of indefinite duration. Thus, if a testator bequeaths 1,000*l.* Two and Three-quarters per Cent. Consols to the vicar of A. for the time being, upon trust to apply the dividends thereof to the most deserving of his poor parishioners not receiving parochial relief, from year to year for ever, there can be no doubt of the validity of the gift, though created for a purpose capable of enduring, and likely to endure, for ages; and even in the event of the failure of the particular objects, if the testator has manifested a general charitable design, such design would not be wholly frustrated, but would be executed cy-près, notwithstanding the failure of its particular objects. But if the testator has not manifested a general charitable design, but has merely bequeathed a legacy in favour of a particular charitable object which fails in his lifetime, then there is a lapse, and the doctrine of cy-près has no place. See Clark v. Taylor, 1 Drew. 642; Fisk v. Att.-Gen., L. R. 4 Eq. 521; Re Rymer, 1895, 1 Ch. 19; 64 L. J. Ch. 36; Re Wilson, 1913, 1 Ch. 314; 82 L. J. Ch. 161; Re Wedgwood, 1914, 2 Ch. 245; 83 L. J. Ch. 731. There can be no application cy-près so long as the testator's directions can be carried out, Re Weir Hospital, 1910, 2 Ch. 124, 135; 79 L. J. Ch. 723, but if they cannot be, there will be an application cy-près, provided, however, that there is a general intention in favour of charity and not otherwise, Re Packe, 1918, 1 Ch. 437; 87 L. J. Ch. 300. And see as to the inability of an endowed charity to fail, Re Faraker, 1912, 2 Ch. 488; 81 L. L. Ch. 635. Here then we have an instance of a perpetuity, not only tolerated by the law, but the object of its special sanction and encouragement, which, it is clear, would be equally extended to lands conveyed to charitable uses by a deed enrolled. It is clear, however, that a trust for accumulation in favour of a charity is not allowed to exceed the limits imposed by the Thellusson Act, Martin v. Margham, 14 Sim. 230; 13 L. J. Ch. 392; and see post, p. 343. As to a conditional gift to a charity, see Re Swain, 1905, 1 Ch. 669; 74 L. J. Ch. 354.

As to bequests of personalty
to charity.

Accumulations.

A valid gift for charitable purposes must be either (1) for the relief of poverty; (2) for the advancement of education; (3) for the advancement of religion; or (4) for other purposes beneficial to the community, Commissioners of Income Tax v. Pemsel, 1891, A. O. at p. 583. These four classes may embrace all charities, but unfortunately the scope of class (4) is not easy to define. A gift of a house to a "public library"—such library being an institution supported by private subscriptions (and consequently liable to dissolution), governed by persons chosen from amongst the subscribers, and existing only for the benefit of the subscribers—is not a gift to charity within the meaning of the Act, but is void as tending to a perpetuity, Carne v. Long, 2 D. F. & J. 75; 29 L. J. Ch. 503. See Cocks v. Manners, L. R. 12 Eq. 574; 40 L. J. Ch. 640; Re Delany, 1902, 2 Ch. 642; 71 L. J. Ch. 811; and Re Smith, 1914, 1 Ch. 937; 83 L. J. Ch. 687, as to gifts to voluntary religious institutions; Re Clark's Trust, 1 Ch. D. 497; 45 L. J. Ch. 194; Re White, 1893, 2 Ch. 41; 62 L. J. Ch. 342, as to a friendly society; Re Dutton, 4 Ex. D. 54, as to a building fund in connexion with a mechanics' institution. A gift for keeping in repair a tomb not within a church is not a charitable use, but void as tending to a perpetuity, Rickard v. Robson, 31 Be. 244; 31 L. J. Ch. 897. But where a testator gave a fund to the trustees of charity A., and committed the care of his family vault in H. cemetery to their care and charge, the "same to be kept in good repair, and name legible, and to re-build when it shall require; failing to comply with this request, the money to go to" charity B., it was held by the Court of Appeal that the condition for the repair, &c., was valid, and binding on charity A., and that the gift over, on failure to comply with the condition, to charity B., was good, on the principle of Christ's Hospital v. Grainger, 1 Mac. & G. 460; 19 L. J. Ch. 33, that the rule against perpetuities has no application to a transfer, in a certain event, of property from one charity to another, Re Tyler, 1891, 3 Ch. 252; 60 L. J. Ch. 686. And see Re Davies, 1915, 1 Ch. 543. But this principle does not extend to cases where (a) an immediate gift in favour of private individuals is followed by an executory gift over in favour of a charity, nor (b) an immediate gift to a charity is followed by an executory gift over in favour of private individuals, Re Bowen, 1893, 2 Ch. 491; 62 L. J. Ch. 681. See Hoare v. Osborne, L. R. 1 Eq. 585; 35 L. J. Ch. 345, as to a gift to keep in repair a monument in a church, being an ornament, not part of the fabric; see Hunter v. Bullock, L. R. 14 Eq. 45; 41 L. J. Ch. 637; Dawson v. Small, L. R. 18 Eq. 114; 43 L. J. Ch. 406; Re Williams, 5 Ch. D. 735; 47 L. J. Ch. 92; Re Birkett, 9 Ch. D. 576; 47 L. J. Ch. 846; Re Vaughan, 33 Ch. D. 187; Re Rogerson, 1901, 1 Ch. 715; 70 L. J. Ch. 444, as to gifts of the surplus fund after void gifts for keeping tombs in repair; and as to burial grounds and churchyards, see Yeap Cheah Neo v. Ong Cheng Neo, L. R. 6 C. P. 381; Re Manser, 1905, 1 Ch. 68; 74 L. J. Ch. 95; Re Douglas, 1905, 1 Ch. 279; 74 L. J. Ch. 196. As to "aged persons" as objects of charitable gifts within 43 Eliz. c. 4, see Re Wall, 42 Ch. D. 510; 59 L. J. Ch. 172. A gift "to the poor and the service of God" is charitable, Re Darling, 1896, 1 Ch. 50; 65 L. J. Ch. 62. A legacy for the maintenance of the horses and dogs of the testator is not a charitable gift, nor void as a perpetuity, but valid though unenforceable, Re Dean, 41 Ch. D. 552; 58 L. J. Ch. 693. A gift for the protection and benefit of animals is charitable, Re Wedgwood, 1915, 1 Ch. 113; 84 L. J. Ch. 107. The Society for the Total Suppression of Vivisection is a charity within the statutes, Re Foveaux, 1895, 2 Ch. 501; 64 L. J. Ch. 856. Friendly Societies may

PREC. 24.

It is a question whether a bequest to an unincorporated body which is not a charity, where such bequest is not for the benefit of the members (Re Clarke, 1901, 2 Ch. 110; 70 L. J. Ch. 631), can be enforced, inasmuch as there are no beneficiaries, but in Re Foveaux, 1895, 2 Ch. 501; 64 L. J. Ch. 856, Chitty, J., expressed the opinion that such a gift would be valid, and it is clear that where a testator directs who shall give a receipt the executor is justified in paying it, Re Drummond, 1914, 2 Ch. 90; 83 L. J. Ch. 817. And see Re Customs and Excise Officers' Mutual Guarantee Fund, 1917, 2 Ch. 18; 86 L. J. Ch. 457.

A volunteer corps is a charitable object, Re Lord Stratheden and Campbell, 1894, 3 Ch. 265; 63 L. J. Ch. 872. See also Re Donald, 1909, 2 Ch. 410; 78 L. J. Ch. 761. So is an officers' mess, Re Good, 1905, 2 Ch. 60; 74 L. J. Ch. 512. But a gift for the encouragement of mere sport is not charitable, though it may be beneficial to the public. Therefore, a bequest to provide an annual cup for the encouragement of yacht racing is not charitable, Re Nottage, 1895, 2 Ch. 649; 64 L. J. Ch. 695. But games as part of a school curriculum may be the object of charity, Re Mariette, 1915, 2 Ch. 284; 84 L. J. Ch. 825; and an annual treat for school children, Re Melody, 1918, 1 Ch. 228; 87 L. J. Ch. 185. A bequest for "charitable or philanthropic purposes" is not charitable, Re Macduff, 1896, 2 Ch. 451; 65 L. J. Ch. 700; cf. Attorney-General for New Zealand v. Brown, 1917, A. C. 393; 86 L. J. P. C. 132; nor is one for "emigration uses," Re Sidney, 1908, 1 Ch. 488; 77 L. J. Ch. 296. But the purposes of an incorporated society for promoting the preservation of lands and buildings of beauty or historic interest "for the benefit of the nation" are charitable, Re Verrall, 1916, 1 Ch. 100; 85 L. J. Ch. 115. A bequest to provide funds for the purchase of advowsons to promote the spread of evangelical principles in the Church is not charitable, Hunter v. Attorney-General, 1899, A. C. 309; 68 L. J. Ch. 449. See also Re Church Patronage Trust, 1904, 2 Ch. 643; 73 L. J. Ch. 712.

Keane* (masses) (Times, June 4th, 1919), post, p. 397, reversing Re Egan, 1918, 2 Ch. 350, and overruling on that point West v. Shuttleworth, 2 My. & K. 684; Heath v. Chapman, 2 Drew. 417; and Re Blundell's Trusts, 30 Be. 360; to Jews, Straus v. Goldsmid, 8 Sim. 614; Re Michel's Trust, 28 Be. 39; 29 L. J. Ch. 547. A gift to an infidel society is not now considered contrary to public policy, Bowman v. Secular Society, Limited, 1917, A. C. 406; 86 L. J. Ch. 568.

PREC. 24.

The law regulating charitable gifts certainly exhibits a singular mixture of opposite principles. Impediments are thrown in the way of devoting land to charitable uses; but, if those impediments are overcome, the land thus appropriated is never suffered to revert to the donor or his representatives on account of the failure of the charitable objects, so long as there is a general intention in favour of charity, or (which is still stranger) even on account of the donor's omission originally to describe the objects with sufficient definitiveness—circumstances which, by the ordinary rule of construction, would have been fatal to the gift. It should be observed, that though a gift to charity will be sustained, notwithstanding a want of specification of objects, yet it must be distinctly shown that charity is the intended destination, see Re Sutton, 28 Ch. D. 464; 54 L. J. Ch. 613; and, if this is uncertain, the doctrine in question lends no support to the intended disposition, as in the case of a trust for such charitable or other purposes, Ellis v. Selby, 1 M. & C. 286; 5 L. J. (N. S.) Ch. 214; or even for such charitable or public purposes as A. shall appoint, Morice v. Bishop of Durham, 10 Ves. 522; Vezey v. Jamson, 1 S. & S. 69; Blair v. Duncan, 1902, A. C. 37; 71 L. J. P. C. 22; in which cases, the testator having evinced an intention to create a trust but without any definite indication of his purpose, the beneficial interest in the property is undisposed of. See also Williams v. Kershaw, 5 C. & F. 111; 5 L. J. (N. S.) Ch. 84; Re Jarman's Estate, 8 Ch. D. 584; 47 L. J. Ch. 675; and Houston v. Burns, 1918, A. C. 337; 87 L. J. P. C. 99.

Wide range of objects, no objection to charitable bequest.

It is no objection, however, that the charity embraces an almost indefinite range of objects, of which a striking example is afforded by Nightingale v. Goulbourn, 2 Ph. 594; 17 L. J. Ch. 296, where a bequest to the Queen's Chancellor of the Exchequer for the time being, to be by him appropriated to the benefit and advantage of Great Britain, was held to be valid as to the pure personalty, though void, under the Act of 9 Geo. 2, with respect to the personal estate savouring of the realty. In Whicker v. Hume, 7 H. L. C. 124; 28 L. J. Ch. 396, where the bequest was to trustees in their discretion, "for the benefit and advancement and propagation of education and learning in every part of the world as far as circumstances will permit," this was held to be a valid gift to charity. In Re Best, 1904, 2 Ch. 354; 73 L. J. Ch. 808, Farwell, J., held that a bequest of residue upon trust for "such charitable and benevolent institutions" as the trustees should in their discretion determine was not void for uncertainty but was a good charitable gift. For the construction of a bequest to a named charitable institution, "or some one or more kindred institutions," see Re Delmar Charitable Trust, 1897, 2 Ch. 163; 66 L. J. Ch. 555. A bequest of residue to be used wholly or in part for "the good of religion" is not charitable, Dunne v. Byrne, 1912, A. C. 407; 81 L. J. P. C. 202.

See generally as to what is "charity," Tudor on Charities, ch. 2; Jarm. Wills, ch. 9; and Tyssen on Charitable Bequests.

(c) General testamentary powers are well executed by a general testamentary disposition unless a contrary intention appears by the will, but a special power requires reference to the power, or to the property subject to the power, or expression of intention to exercise the power. See Wills Act, s. 27, ante, and notes.

NOTES TO
PREC. 24.

General testamentary
powers.
Special
testamentary
powers.

As to formalities of execution, see Wills Act, s. 10, ante, and notes.

Where there is a power to appoint among certain objects, but no appointment is made, and there is no gift in default of appointment, the Court will sometimes imply a gift to the objects of the power equally, Brown v. Higgs, 4 Ves. 708; 5 Ves. 495; 8 Ves. 561; Burrough v. Philcox, 5 M. & C. 73; Butler v. Gray, L. R. 5 Ch. 26; 39 L. J. Ch. 291; Wilson v. Duguid, 24 Ch. D. 244; 53 L. J. Ch. 52. See also Re Eddowes, 1 Dr. & S. 395; Goldring v. Inwood, 3 Gif. 139. As to the period for ascertaining the class, when the objects of the power are a class, see Re White's Trusts, Joh. 656. And see Hawkins, Constr. Wills, ch. 6.

As to the formalities of execution.
No appointment and no gift in default.

(d) See note (a), Prec. 23.

(e) The gift being to the children as a class, those only can participate who survive the testator (see ante, sect. 33, p. 74; see also note (s), Prec. 11. To provide to some extent for the death of a child in the testator's lifetime leaving issue at his death, a clause of substitution is added, see note (g), infra.

(f) In framing gifts to next of kin it is of importance to express whether it is to embrace the persons answering the description at the time of the testator's death, or when the gift takes effect in possession. See Bullock v. Downes, 9 H. L. C. 1; Mortimore v. Mortimore, 4 App. Cas. 448; 48 L. J. Ch. 470; Re Wilson, 1907, 2 Ch. 572; 77 L. J. Ch. 13; Re Mellish, 1916, 1 Ch. 562; 85 L. J. Ch. 433. It is also necessary to shew that the persons who would be entitled under the Statutes of Distribution are the beneficiaries referred to by the testator (see ante, p. 216). In the absence of contrary direction such persons would take in the shares prescribed by the statutes, and as tenants in common, Re Nightingale, 1909, 1 Ch. 385; 78 L. J. Ch. 196; Re McFee, 79 L. J. Ch. 676; Re Winn, 1910, 1 Ch. 278; 79 L. J. Ch. 165. And see Hawkins, Constr. Wills, 126; and Re Bulcock, 1916, 2 Ch. 495; 86 L. J. Ch. 82. If the statutes are mentioned they must be accurately referred to, Re Hughes, 1916, 1 Ch. 493; 85 L. J. Ch. 476. And see for what shares the next of kin take under the statutes, Appendix III. post, p. 467.

next of kin.

A bequest to the next of kin of a person who is dead at the date of the will must, under ordinary circumstances, receive an interpretation analogous to that adopted in the case of a bequest to the testator's own next of kin, as regards the period of ascertaining who are the persons intended; and if there is nothing in the context to make the words applicable to a class to be ascertained at any other time than that of the testator's death, those who at the testator's death are the next of kin of the deceased person named in the will will be the persons to take, Philps

v. Evans, 4 De G. & Sm. 188; Wharton v. Barker, 4 K. & J. 483, 502; Re Rees, 44 Ch. D. 484; 59 L. J. Ch. 305. And see Re Soper, 1912, 2 Ch. 467; 81 L. J. Ch. 826.

Under a bequest after the death of A. to the testator's next of kin according to the statute, A. takes a life interest by implication, Re Springfield, 1894, 3 Ch. 603; 64 L. J. Ch. 201.

The expression "next of kin" means, in English law, the nearest blood relations in an ascending and descending line, whether of the whole or half blood, and this construction will be placed on that expression in the will of an English testator giving a legacy to the next of kin of a legatee who is a subject of a foreign state, under the law of which relations of the half blood are not deemed next of kin, Re Fergusson's Will, 1902, 1 Ch. 483; 71 L. J. Ch. 360.

Substitution of issue for child predeceasing
testator.

(g) Sect. 33 of the Wills Act does not apply to a gift to a class. This substitutionary clause will make the share of each child dying in the testator's lifetime, and leaving issue surviving the testator, part of the estate of that child and will not substitute the issue for the child. The share will devolve according to the child's will, if any, or if none, will be distributable amongst the child's next of kin according to the statutes, subject, of course, to the child's debts. See notes to sect. 33 of the Wills Act, ante. If it is the intention that the share should go to the issue of the child free from his or her debts and dispositions, such issue should be expressly substituted.

11. I DECLARE that it shall be lawful for my trustees at any time or times until the period of distribution in their discretion to let as lodging-houses any messuages erected or to be erected as aforesaid which shall have been let by me as lodging-houses or shall be adapted for that purpose upon such terms and in such manner as lettings of that nature are usually conducted in or near — aforesaid And to invest any part of the said fund or accumulations in the purchase of furniture or other articles to be used in such lodging-houses and also to use therein the furniture and articles which shall at my death belong to any messuages then let or intended to be let as lodging-houses.

houses as lodging-houses and purchase furniture, &c.

12. I DECLARE that in the meantime until the sale of my devised estates and of the estates to be purchased and taken as aforesaid the same shall for all the purposes of the trusts hereinbefore contained be considered as money or personal estate and be transmissible accordingly and the rents and profits thereof be received by my trustees and be applicable to the same purposes and in the same manner as the yearly produce of the fund to arise from the sale thereof would be applicable to and in by virtue of my will if such sale had actually taken place.

Unsold real estate to be transmissible as personal
estate.

13. I DECLARE that if at the period of distribution any real estates shall be vested in my trustees then notwithstanding the trust for sale hereinbefore contained it shall be lawful for them in their discretion to allot the same or any part or parts thereof as real estate to any object or objects of the trusts hereinbefore contained in favour of my children and issue in full or in part satisfaction of the share or respective shares of such object or objects under the same trusts according to the value of the real estate to be so allotted such value to be ascertained by two surveyors to be appointed by my trustees or if such surveyors shall not agree thereon in writing within — days after their appointment then by a third surveyor to be named by them as their umpire before beginning the valuation And for the convenience or equality of any such allotment or allotments to accept and make any mortgages or charges upon the allotted estates and my residuary real and personal estates respectively or any or either of them respectively And the real estate to be so allotted shall be subject to trusts corresponding as nearly as may be with the trusts hereinbefore contained concerning the share or respective shares in respect of which the allotment shall be made (h).

Right of pre-emption given to testator's partner as to shares of real estate belonging to the partnership.

14. I DECLARE that my trustees shall within — calendar months next after my death cause an offer in writing to be made to my brother [name] of my share of the real estate belonging to us as partners in the business of — at — aforesaid at the value set upon the same share in the stock-book of the same partnership at the last stock-taking preceding my death PROVIDED NEVERTHELESS that if the said stock-taking shall have been taken more than twelve calendar months before my death then my share of the said real estate belonging to the said partnership shall be offered as aforesaid to my said brother at a valuation to be made by two competent and impartial persons as valuers one to be chosen by my said brother and the other by my trustees or if the said two valuers disagree by a third valuer to be chosen by the other two as their umpire before they enter upon the valuation And that if my said brother shall within one calendar month after such offer signify in writing signed by him to my trustees his desire to accept such offer then my trustees on having one moiety of the value ascertained in manner aforesaid paid or duly allowed in account to them and having the other moiety thereof either so paid or allowed or otherwise at the option of my said brother secured by a mortgage in fee of the same share to be paid in one payment or by instalments at any period or periods not exceeding — years from my death with interest after the rate of — per cent. per annum shall at the costs of my said brother convey the same share to him or as he shall direct without prejudice to any mortgage to be made as aforesaid but no purchaser under my will shall be concerned to take notice of this direction.

15. I DECLARE that it shall be lawful for my trustees in their discretion until the period of distribution to enter into any arrangement with [testator's partners] for succeeding to my share in the business carried on by them in partnership with me at — aforesaid and for continuing such partnership business for the benefit of my estate for such period and upon such terms as to my trustees shall seem expedient and to employ for that purpose all or any part of the capital which shall at my death be employed by me in the same business or any additional capital (i).

Power to settle partnership accounts, &c.

17. I DECLARE that it shall be lawful for my trustees at the risk of my estate to sell any part or parts of my personal estate embarked in trade at my death to any person or persons for money or upon credit and to accept such personal or other security and to give such time for payment of the same money or of any other money which shall be owing to me at my death as they in their discretion may think proper and to compromise compound or submit to arbitration any debt or claim affecting my estate.

Power to sell stock-in-trade, accept personal security and compound debts.

18. I DECLARE that it shall be lawful for my trustees with the consent in writing of my wife during her widowhood and after her death or marriage in their discretion to lend to my son [name] at the risk of my estate any sum or sums of money not exceeding in the whole £—— sterling upon his bond at interest after the rate of five per cent. per annum for such period as my trustees shall think reasonable.

Power to lend money to testator's son on bond.

19. I DEVISE all the copyhold and customary hereditaments which at my death shall be vested in me as trustee or mortgagee and to which I shall have been admitted to the said [trustees] subject to the trusts and equities affecting the same respectively (k).

(b) As to excepting copyholds from a general devise and giving the trustees a power of sale over them in the first instance, see ante, pp. 151, 163. The Wills Act materially affects and alters the operation of a general devise. For, before that statute, when such a devise was intended to comprise leaseholds for years, it was necessary that they should be expressly mentioned, as it would not otherwise have extended to them, unless the testator, when he made his will, had no freeholds to which the devise could apply, Rose v. Bartlett, Cro. Car. 292; Hawkins, Constr. Wills, 41. Now, however, by such a devise, leasehold lands will pass, provided the words would have been sufficient to describe them if the testator had not possessed freehold land (unless a contrary intention appears from the will, Wills Act, ss. 26, 27, ante). And, by the last of these sections, the further operation is attributed to such a devise of comprising and disposing of, by way of execution of a power, all lands to which the description shall extend, which the testator has power to appoint in any manner he thinks proper.

Reversions and remainders in fee also pass under such devises without specification, unless excluded by the inapplicability of some of the limitations in the devise, Church v. Mundy, 15 Ves. 396; Ford v. Ford, 6 Ha. 486. And on the operation of a general devise of realty, see Jarm. Wills, 945 et seq.

Inexpediency of associating particular with general words of description.

(c) It was common, in residuary clauses in wills, to find, in addition to the general words here used, a long enumeration of particulars of which the personal estate then actually did or might be supposed to consist. Of all kinds of verbosity this seems to be the most inexpedient, if not pernicious; for if these words are not absolutely nugatory (which they generally are, King v. George, 5 Ch. D. 627; 46 L. J. Ch. 670; Re Fleetwood, 15 Ch. D. 594; 49 L. J. Ch. 514) they sometimes give rise to the question whether the residuary legatee is not to stand in the favoured position of a specific legatee in regard to the enumerated articles; and such question becomes especially important where there is a deficiency of assets to pay all the debts and legacies. It ought always to be prevented by an unequivocal expression of intention where the residuary legatee is to take any of the personal property in the character of a specific legatee; and by framing the residuary bequest in the ordinary general and comprehensive language, where he is not.

Inalienable trust for married
women.

(d) The wife might avoid this restriction by assigning the annuity while discover (ante, p. 224); to prevent which, however, it might, in the event of her doing so, be made to cease by a clause declaring that in case she, while discover, shall do or suffer any act or thing whereby the said annuity, or any part thereof, shall be assigned, charged, or incumbered, the same annuity shall wholly cease. Some forms in common use provide for cesser in case the woman during discoverture "shall attempt to alien or incumber." As to a proviso of forfeiture in case of doing or "attempting" to do a certain act, see Graham v. Lee, 23 Be. 388; 26 L. J. Ch. 395; Jones v. Wyse, 2 Ke. 285; 7 L. J. Ch. 107. And see Jarm. Wills, ch. 39, v.

PREC. 25.

(e) The prospective accumulation of income is restrained by 39 & 40 Geo. 3, c. 98 (usually called the Thellusson Act, in reference to the gentleman whose extraordinary will supplied occasion for it). The statute enacts, "that no person or persons shall, by any deed or deeds, surrender or surrenders, will, codicil, or otherwise soever, settle or dispose of any real or personal property, so and in such manner that the rents, issues, profits or produce thereof shall be wholly or partially accumulated for any longer term than the life or lives of any such grantor or grantors, settlor or settlors; or the term of twenty-one years from the death of any such grantor, settlor, deviser, or testator; or during the minority or respective minorities of any person or persons who shall be living or en ventre sa mère at the time of the death of the grantor, deviser, or testator; or during the minority or respective minorities only of any person or persons, who, under the uses or trusts of the deed, surrender, will, or other assurances, directing such accumulations, would for the time being, if of full age, be entitled unto the rents, issues, and profits, or the interest, dividends or annual produce so directed to be accumulated; and in every case where any accumulation shall be directed otherwise than as aforesaid, such direction shall be null and void, and the rents, issues, profits and produce of such property so directed to be accumulated shall, so long as the same shall be directed to be accumulated contrary to the provisions of this Act, go to and be received by such person or persons as would have been entitled thereto if such accumulation had not been directed." By sect. 2, the Act is not to extend "to any provision for payment of debts of any grantor, settler, or deviser, or other person or persons, or to any provision for raising portions for any child or children of any grantor, settler, or deviser, or any child or children of any person taking any interest under any such conveyance, settlement, or devise, or to any direction touching the produce of timber or wood upon any lands or tenements." The Act now applies to heritable property in Scotland (11 & 12 Vict. c. 36, s. 41); and the restrictions imposed by sect. 1 of the Thellusson Act are now applicable in Scotland even to provisions for payment of debts, &c., as regards any instrument coming into operation on or after the 10th August, 1914, Entail (Scotland) Act, 1914, s. 9 (4 & 5 Geo. 5, c. 43).

trusts.

Implied no less than express trusts are within the statute. Thus, by way of illustrating both these positions, suppose a testator to give his real and personal estate to such of the children of A. as shall attain the age of twenty-one years. This would create an implied accumulating trust until the vesting of the gift, which, if A. had no child at the testator's decease, would exceed the allowed limit; and the effect would be that for twenty-one years from the testator's death the accumulation would proceed under the authority of the statute; and from that period until the vesting, the income of the realty would go to the testator's heir as real estate undisposed of, and the income of the personalty to the next of kin as personal estate undisposed of. And where a testator creates a charge which has the effect of carrying an accumulation for a period exceeding the statutory limit, it will be pro tanto void, though the testator has not in terms directed that the income shall accumulate, Shaw v. Rhodes, 1 M. & C. 135; Evans v. Hellier, 5 C. & F. 114; Tench v. Cheese, 6 D. M. & G. 453; 24 L. J. Ch. 716; Morgan v. Morgan, 4 De G. & S. 164; 20 L. J. Ch. 109, 441. See also 5 Dav. Conv. 328. But where, subject to a direction to accumulate, real estate is devised to several in succession, the direction to accumulate operates as a charge on the successive estates, and accumulations made after twenty-one years from the testator's death belong not to his heir-in-law, but from time to time to the several persons entitled to the rents and profits, Re Clulow's Trust, 1 J. & H. 639; 28 L. J. Ch. 696; and see Wharton v. Masterman, 1895, A. C. 186; 64 L. J. Ch. 369.

Trusts for accumulation.

A trust for accumulation, however short, will be void unless it falls within twenty-one years from the testator's decease, or constitutes one of the alternative purposes or periods of accumulation allowed by the statute. For instance, if a testator should give his real and personal estate to A. for life, and then to such of the children of B. as during the life of A. or afterwards should attain the age of twenty-one years, accumulation would not be allowed for twenty-one years from the decease of A., but only for so much, if any, of the term of twenty-one years, computed from the testator's decease, as should happen to be unexpired at A.'s decease, Attorney-General v. Poulton, 3 Ha. 555. It will be observed that the Act authorizes accumulation during any of the four periods, and only for one of those periods, Wilson v. Wilson, 1 Sim., N. S. 288; 20 L. J. Ch. 365; Jagger v. Jagger, 25 Ch. D. 729; 53 L. J. Ch. 201. The last mentioned of the alternative periods is the minority of any person, who, under the uses or trusts, would, if of full age, be entitled to the rents, &c.; which clause is not confined to the minority of persons born in the lifetime of the testator, but extends to the minorities of persons born after his death and also to successive minorities, Re Cattell, 1914, 1 Ch. 177; 83 L. J. Ch. 322.

In Re Pope, 1901, 1 Ch. 64; 70 L. J. Ch. 26, the question was whether certain surplus rents accumulated under a trust for accumulation were to be treated, after the permitted period of accumulation, as capital or income. See Re Hawkins, 1916, 2 Ch. 570; 86 L. J. Ch. 25; Re Garside, 1919, 1 Ch. 132, where Re Pope was not followed.

PÆC. 25.

On the question whether accumulations, not expressly directed by the will, but arising by operation of law, are within the Act, see Mathews v. Keble, L. R. 3 Ch. 691; 37 L. J. Ch. 657. As to accumulations of a fund which was charged on real estate in exercise of a power, see Simmons v. Pitt, L. R. 8 Ch. 978; 43 L. J. Ch. 267.

As before intimated, of a trust for accumulation which before the Thellusson Act would have been good, "so much as is now within the Act will be good, but the excess will be bad; but if there be a trust for accumulation, and part of it would have been bad before the Act, that part remains bad notwithstanding the Act"; per Lord Eldon, in Marshall v. Holloway, 2 Sw. 450. The period for the distribution of accumulations is not accelerated by the operation of the Act in shortening the time during which such accumulations are to be made, Nettleton v. Stephenson, 3 De G. & S. 366; 18 L. J. Ch. 191. As to stopping accumulation, to which, at the end of the period allowed by the Act, certain charities would be entitled, see Wharton v. Masterman, 1895, A. C. 186; 64 L. J. Ch. 369.

As to the exceptional cases in which accumulations are permitted: (1) for the payment of debts. The doctrine of Sir G. J. Turner, V.-C., in Lord Barrington v. Liddell, 10 Ha. 429; 22 L. J. Ch. 1, that the debts provided for must be the debts of the testator himself, was overruled by Lord St. Leonards, 2 D. M. & G. 480. Accumulation for payment of debts and legacies for a period of thirty years has been held allowable, the legacies being to persons in existence, Williams v. Lewis, 6 H. L. C. 1013; 28 L. J. Ch. 505. See also, as to provisions for the payment of debts, Bateman v. Hotchkin, 10 Be. 426; 16 L. J. Ch. 514; Varlo v. Faden, 1 D. F. & J. 211; 29 L. J. Ch. 230; Tewart v. Lawson, L. R. 18 Eq. 490; 43 L. J. Ch. 673; Re Heathcote, 1904, 1 Ch. 826; 73 L. J. Ch. 543; Re Baroness Llanover, 1907, 1 Ch. 635; 76 L. J. Ch. 427. (2) As to the exception in favour of portions, and what constitutes a portion within the meaning of the Act, see Re Stephens, 1904, 1 Ch. 322; 73 L. J. Ch. 3; Jarm. Wills, 383 et seq.; Re Elliott, 1918, 2 Ch. 150; 87 L. J. Ch. 449.

Accumulations allowed;

The Act is not applicable to real estate in Ireland or to the rents thereof, but it is applicable to the income arising from accumulations of such rents: see Ellis v. Maxwell, 12 Be. 104; 10 L. J. Ch. 266. The Act applies to chattels real situate in England, though the testator is domiciled in Ireland, Freke v. Lord Carbery, L. R. 16 Eq. 461.

A direction by will to pay the premiums on a life-insurance policy is valid for the whole life insured, and is not an accumulation restricted by the Act to twenty-one years, Bassil v. Lister, 9 Ha. 177; 20 L. J. Ch. 641.

Nor is a trust in a will for the application of the income of an estate "in the improvement of the landed estate, and in maintaining in good

NOTES TO
PREC. 25.

habitable repair houses and tenements on the property" a trust for accumulation of the income within the Act. Such a trust is valid, and the income may therefore be so applied although the period of twenty-one years from the death of the testator may have expired, Vine v. Raleigh, 1891, 2 Ch. 13; 60 L. J. Ch. 675; Re Mason, 1891, 3 Ch. 467; 61 L. J. Ch. 25.

A direction in a will to apply a portion of the rents of the testator's leaseholds in keeping on foot a policy of insurance to secure the replacement at the expiration of the terms for which the lease was held of the capital which would be lost by not selling the leaseholds is not an accumulation within the meaning of the Act, and is therefore valid notwithstanding that at the testator's death the unexpired residue of the term may exceed twenty-one years, Re Gardiner, 1901, 1 Ch. 697; 70 L. J. Ch. 407.

See further, on the subject of accumulations and the Thellusson Act, the notes to Griffiths v. Vere, 9 Ves. 127, in Tud. L. C. R. P.; Jarm. Wills, ch. 11.

By the Accumulation Act, 1892 (55 & 56 Vict. c. 58), accumulation has been further restricted. By that statute, it is enacted as follows:—"No person shall, after the passing of this Act, settle or dispose of any property in such manner that the rents, issues, profits, or income thereof shall be wholly or partially accumulated for the purchase of land only for any longer period than during the minority or respective minorities of any person or persons, who under the use or trusts of the instrument directing such accumulation would for the time being, if of full age, be entitled to receive the rents, issues, profits, or income so directed to be accumulated." A direction to accumulate for the purchase of real estate is a direction to accumulate "for the purchase of land only" within the meaning of this Act, and is consequently void, Re Clutterbuck, 1901, 2 Ch. 285; 70 L. J. Ch. 614.

(f) These words apply to every generation; all who take must do so according to the stocks, and this runs through the whole range of the descents, Robinson v. Shepherd, 4 D. J. & S. 129; not followed in Gibson v. Fisher, L. R. 5 Eq. 51; 37 L. J. Ch. 67; but followed in Re Wilson, 24 Ch. D. 664; 53 L. J. Ch. 130; and Re Dering, 105 L. T. 404.

As to conditions restraining marriage.

(g) By the civil law, conditions restraining marriages were absolutely void, and marriage generally was a sufficient compliance with a condition requiring marriage with consent, or with a designated individual, or in certain other prescribed circumstances (Godolph. p. 3, c. 17). Our law has not evinced the same impatience of nuptial restrictions; for it is clear that a condition is legal which inhibits marriage until majority or any other reasonable age, or which requires consent, or restrains marriage with any particular individual, or even with a very large class, for instance, a native of Scotland, Perrin v. Lyon, 9 Ea. 170; or a Papist, Duggan v. Kelly, 10 Ir. Eq. Rep. 295. See also Hodgson v. Halford, 11 Ch. D. 959; 48 L. J. Ch. 548, where a forfeiture on marriage with a Christian took effect; and Jenner v. Turner, 16 Ch. D.

188; 50 L. J. Ch. 161, where a condition restraining marriage with a domestic servant was held valid.

PREC. 25.

The law of England does not prohibit the gift of an annuity or other interest in the income of property, real or personal, until marriage; for this may be a good conditional limitation, Adams v. Adams, 1892, 1 Ch. 369; 61 L. J. Ch. 237. See as to distinction between a limitation and a condition, Re Moore, 39 Ch. D. 116; 57 L. J. Ch. 936.

Gift until marriage,
valid.

The law of England, however, has admitted the principle of the civil law to this extent, that it treats as nugatory a condition attached to a gift of personalty to ask consent, unless accompanied by a bequest over in default, Bellasis v. Ermine, 1 Ch. Cas. 22; Aston v. Aston, 2 Ver. 452; Clarke v. Parker, 19 Ves. 1; so, also, if the gift is a mixed fund, consisting of personalty and proceeds of sale of realty, Lloyd v. Lloyd, 2 Sim. N. S. 255; 21 L. J. Ch. 596; Bellairs v. Bellairs, L. R. 18 Eq. 510; 43 L. J. Ch. 669; and it would seem that the condition would be void if the gift were of proceeds of sale of realty only. And a residuary bequest is not considered such a bequest over, Semphill v. Bayley, Pre. Ch. 562; Paget v. Haywood, cited 1 Atk. 378; Scott v. Tyler, 2 Br. C. 431; unless there is an express direction that the forfeited legacy shall fall into the residue, Wheeler v. Bingham, 3 Atk. 364; Lloyd v. Branton, 3 Mer. 108. And a condition subsequent making marriage at any age without consent a cause of forfeiture is, as to personalty, valid where there is a gift over, Re Whiting's Settlement, 1905, 1 Ch. 96; 74 L. J. Ch. 207. See Re Elliott, 1918, 1 I. R. 41; and see the authorities discussed in Re Hewett, 1918, 1 Ch. 458; 87 L. J. Ch. 209. And as to land, it is valid as a limitation without a gift over, Fry v. Porter, 1 Mod. 300. Conditions precedent to marry with consent where there is no gift over are void except in the three following cases.

Where marriage with consent is only one of two events on the happening of either of which the legatee will be entitled to the legacy; as where it is given on the attainment of a particular age or marriage with consent, which shall first happen, Hemmings v. Munckley, 1 Br. C. 304; 1 Cox, 38; or on attaining a particular age unmarried, or marrying with consent before such age, Scott v. Tyler, 2 Br. C. 431. Where the consent of certain persons is required, and they die before the time for asking their consent arrives, the condition becomes impossible, and the legatee takes the legacy. If the consent of several is required and one of them dies, the consent of the survivors must be obtained, Graydon v. Hicks, 2 Atk. 18; Grant v. Dyer, 2 Dow. 74; Aislabie v. Rice, 3 Mad. 256; Dawson v. Oliver-Massey, 2 Ch. D. 753; 45 L. J. Ch. 519. Where the marriage is to be with consent of her guardian or guardians, marriage without the consent of any guardian, there being none, is not a compliance with the condition, since guardians might be appointed by the Court, Re Brown's Will, 18 Ch. minority, Stackpole v. Beaumont, 3 Ves. 89; or other reasonable age; see Younge v. Furse, 8 D. M. & G. 756; 26 L. J. Ch. 352, where a condition in restraint of marriage before twenty-eight was held valid. In these several excepted instances the legatee must strictly comply with the condition which the testator has annexed to his bounty, even though there is no bequest over in default.

It is satisfactory to find that the numerous and refined distinctions respecting marriage conditions, and the efficacy of a gift over on non-compliance with the conditions, which have obtained in regard to personal legacies, have not been applied to devises of real estate, including under this denomination pecuniary charges on land. Real estate is governed by the rules of the common law, and never having been subject to the jurisdiction of the Ecclesiastical Courts, is not influenced by the rules of the civil law, Jones v. Jones, 1 Q. B. D. 279; 45 L. J. Q. B. 166. A condition prohibiting marriage generally is void as being against public policy, whether the gift to which it is attached be of realty or personalty, Perrin v. Lyon, 9 Ea. 183; Morley v. Rennoldson, 2 Ha. 570; 12 L. J. Ch. 372 (which case was again before the Court, 1895, 1 Ch. 449; 64 L. J. Ch. 485); but a condition in restraint of second marriage is not void, in the case either of a woman, Newton v. Marsden, 2 J. & H. 356; 31 L. J. Ch. 690; or of a man, Allen v. Jackson, 1 Ch. D. 399; 45 L. J. Ch. 310. An interesting instance of an unavailing effort to avoid the condition restraining a second marriage is given in Re Rutter, 1907, 2 Ch. 592; 77 L. J. Ch. 34. A covenant by a spinster not to revoke her will is not void on the ground that, marriage being a revocation, such a covenant is in restraint of marriage, Robinson v. Ommanney, 23 Ch. D. 285; 52 L. J. Ch. 440. A devise on condition of marrying with consent—such restraint of marriage being particular, a partial and reasonable restraint, and the condition being precedent—will not take effect unless the condition is strictly complied with, whether there is a devise over or no, Poulet v. Poulet, 1 Ver. 204; Lord Salisbury's case, 2 Ven. 397; Bertie v. Lord Falkland, 3 Ch. Cas. 129; Pulling v. Reddy, 1 Wils. 21; Harvey v. Aston, 1 Atk. 361; and if marriage with consent is a condition subsequent, a breach of the condition will divest the estate, Fry v. Porter, 1 Ch. Cas. 138; unless the condition becomes impossible to be performed, in which case the estate becomes absolute. It may happen that a sum of money payable out of land on marriage with consent, in aid of the personal estate, may at one and the same time fail as a charge on the realty, and yet be payable as a personal legacy. Such an instance occurred in Reynish v. Martin, 3 Atk. 330, where a testatrix willed that if her daughter Mary married with the consent of her trustees, then, and not otherwise, she gave her 800*l.*; and the legatee was also to receive 30*l.* yearly while sole and unmarried; the testatrix charged her real estate with legacies; Mary married without consent, and Lord Hardwicke held that the 800*l.* was payable as a legacy of personal estate, but not as a charge upon the realty.

Where a testator devised real estate to his son and limited the same "if he marries a fit and worthy gentlewoman and has issue male to such issue male and their male descendants," the son having married such a gentlewoman and having complied with the condition, it was held that an estate in special tail male was created, Pelham-Clinton v. Duke of Newcastle, 1903, A. C. 111; 72 L. J. Ch. 424.

PREC. 25.

Marriage
conditions.

Effect of circumstances occurring in the testator's
lifetime.

A change of circumstances in the lifetime of the testator sometimes has a material effect upon conditions restraining marriage. Thus, if a parent gives a legacy to his daughters, provided they marry with the consent of his trustees, this proviso would be held not to apply to a daughter who had subsequently married in his lifetime with his own consent, Re Park, 1910, 2 Ch. 322; 79 L. J. Ch. 502; and see Re Grove, 1919, W. N. 15; even though the testator's approbation was posterior to the marriage, Wheeler v. Warner, 1 S. & S. 304; or though the daughter was a widow at his death, Crommelin v. Crommelin, 3 Ves. 227. Also where under a clause in a will the interest of a child of the testator who should contract a marriage forbidden by the will was "thenceforth to cease and determine," it was held that such a restriction did not apply to the child who after the date of the will, but before the testator's death, had contracted a forbidden marriage, Chapman v. Perkins, 1905, A. C. 106; 74 L. J. Ch. 331. The consent of parents is construed as the consent of parents or parent, if any, Dawson v. Oliver Massey, 2 Ch. D. 753; 45 L. J. Ch. 519; secus, in the case of guardians, Re Brown's Will, 18 Ch. D. 61; 50 L. J. Ch. 724. A gift over after the death or re-marriage of the testator's wife to the children living at her death was held to devolve upon the class of persons who were living on her re-marriage, Re Warner, 1917, W. N. 374. And see where a gift over on re-marriage was held to take effect on death, In b. Griffiths, 1917, P. 59; 86 L. J. P. 42.

Enough has been stated to shew the necessity for care and explicitness in preparing marriage conditions, and that, to render conditions requiring consent effectual, where annexed to bequests of personal property, they should be accompanied (unless in the excepted cases before noticed) with an express bequest over in the event of marriage without consent. Indeed, considering the litigation to which conditions requiring consent have given rise (for the present note embraces only a small portion of the questions that have been raised concerning them), and the nature of the duty which they impose upon, and of the power which they place in the hands of, trustees, it seems in general the more prudent course not to encourage testators in the imposition of such restraints.

Scott v. Tyler is the leading case on the validity or invalidity of conditions in restraint of marriage annexed to a gift. See that case, and the notes thereto, in 2 Wh. & Tud. L. C. Eq. See also Jarm. Wills, ch. 39, x.

in wills, must be gathered from the words of the will alone. Where the trusts and limitations of land to be purchased by the trustees are expressly declared by the testator, the Court has no authority to make them different from what they would be at law, Austen v. Taylor, 1 Ed. 361; Fullerton v. Martin, 1 Dr. & S. 31; 29 L. J. Ch. 469. But the general intent of a testator in creating an executory trust governs the preparation of the settlement, and the manner of executing the trust must be guided by the object of the author of the trust, if such object can be legally carried into effect, Sackville-West v. Viscount Holmesdale, L. R. 4 H. L. 543; 39 L. J. Ch. 505; and see Viscount Holmesdale v. West, L. R. 12 Eq. 280; 40 L. J. Ch. 795; and if the testator has not been his own conveyancer, and has left his intention to be made out from general expressions, the Court is not bound to construe technical terms with legal strictness, Egerton v. Earl Brownlow, 4 H. L. C. 1; 23 L. J. Ch. 348; Thompson v. Fisher, L. R. 10 Eq. 207; for instance, it will, if there is sufficient indication of the testator's intention, hold "heirs of the body," or similar words, to be words of purchase and not of limitation, and will decree a strict settlement, Leonard v. Earl of Sussex, 2 Ver. 526; Bastard v. Proby, 2 Cox, 6; Rochfort v. Fitzmaurice, 2 Dr. & War. 1; Shelton v. Watson, 16 Sim. 543; 18 L. J. Ch. 223; Re Howarth, 1916, W. N. 50; still more readily will it do so when the word "issue" is employed, Grier v. Grier, L. R. 5 H. L. 688. In such cases, "heirs of the body" or "issue" include daughters as well as sons; thus in Trevor v. Trevor, 1 H. L. C. 239; 11 L. J. Ch. 417, a testator devised real estates to trustees, in trust to settle and convey them to G. R. for life, with remainder to his issue in tail male in strict settlement; in default of such issue, the estates were to go over; G. R. had no son, but had several daughters, all of whom were born after the testator's death; it was held, that the words "in tail male" were descriptive not of the issue, but of the interest they were to take, and that the daughters were entitled to take under the limitation in remainder as tenants in common in tail male. See further as to "issue," Berry v. Fisher, 1903, 1 Ir. R. 484; Edyvean v. Archer, 1903, A. C. 379; 72 L. J. P. C. 85; Re Rawlinson, 1909, 2 Ch. 36; 78 L. J. Ch. 443. For the mode of effectuating a direction to entail real and personal estate, see Tennent v. Tennent, 1 Dru. 161; Jervoise v. Duke of Northumberland, 1 J. & W. 559. Where an executory trust, if carried out literally, would be void, as, e.g. for infringing on the rule against perpetuities, the Court will execute the trust cy-près, and direct a settlement as strict as the law allows, Humberston v. Humberston, 1 P. W. 332.

Direction to entail.Cy-près.Insertion of "usual
powers."

Where a settlement is directed with the usual or proper powers, the Court will order the insertion of such powers as are necessary, and contribute to the better enjoyment of the estate, and are advantageous to all parties interested; see Hill v. Hill, 6 Sim. 144; but powers conferring personal advantages on particular persons, such as a power to jointure a future wife, Duke of Bedford v. Marquess of Abercorn, 1 M. & C. 312; 5 L. J. Ch. 230; or to raise portions, Higginson v. Barneby, 2 S. & S. 516, will not be inserted; and life estates will not be without impeachment of waste, Davenport v. Davenport, 1 H. & M. 775; 32 L. J. Ch. 33; Stanley v. Coulthurst, L. R. 10 Eq. 259; 39 L. J. Ch. 650. See also Clive v. Clive, L. R. 7 Ch. 433; 41 L. J. Ch. 386, as to the inconsistency of a restraint on anticipation with a life estate without impeachment of waste. As to the insertion of powers where no direction to that effect is given, see Wheate v. Hall, 17 Ves. 85; Brewster v. Angell, 1 J. & W. 625; Turner v. Sargent, 17 Be. 515; Byam v. Byam, 19 Be. 58; 24 L. J. Ch. 209; Wise v. Piper, 13 Ch. D. 848; 49 L. J. Ch. 611.

PREC. 25.

See also Peachey, Settlements, p. 88; Vaizey on Settlements, ch. 4, sect. iii.; the notes to Lord Glenorchy v. Bosville, Ca. t. Talb. 3, in 1 Wh. & Tud. L. C. Eq.; and the Settled Estates Act, 1877 (40 & 41 Vict. c. 18), the Settled Land Acts, 1882 to 1890; and Jarm. Wills, ch. 24, iv., and ch. 48, ii.; and Re Howarth, 1916, W. N. 50. And as to simple appropriation in satisfaction of a share, see note (y), post, p. 442.

(i) See note (a), Prec. 23.

(k) It is now useless and improper to devise real estates vested in a testator as trustee or mortgagee (including copyholds to which the testator has not been admitted tenant on the court rolls); as the Conveyancing Act, 1881, by sect. 30, makes such estates devolve upon the legal personal representatives, notwithstanding any testamentary disposition, and excludes the heir-at-law from being trustee by constituting the personal representative the "heir" or "assign" within the meaning of all trusts and powers. As regards mortgage estates, it is clearly an improvement in the law to make them devolve upon the executors who have to receive the moneys owing on the security; and in a large majority of cases it was desirable that trust estates should be vested in the same persons as were chosen by the testator to be his own trustees. See Wolstenholme's Conveyancing and Settled Land Acts (10th ed.), notes on this section.

44 & 45 Vict.
c. 41, s. 30.

A devise in fee-simple of "my two houses and stable," by a testator who is mortgagee in possession only, will suffice to pass the mortgage debt secured upon the property in question, where it is the clear intention of the testator to give all the interest he had in the property, Re Carter, 1900, 1 Ch. 801; 69 L. J. Ch. 426.

See In b. Prothero, L. R. 3 P. & D. 209; 44 L. J. P. 8, for a case where administration with the will annexed was granted to A. B., limited to the trust property, so far as it was personalty, left to him by the will.

Trustees frequently, but mortgagees rarely, are admitted to copyholds belonging to them in those capacities: if admitted, sect. 30 of the Conveyancing Act does not apply; see Copyhold Act, 1894 (57 & 58 Vict. c. 46), s. 88, and in this case alone will such a clause as that in this Precedent be proper.

3. I GIVE to each child of mine who being a son shall at my death have attained the age of twenty-one years or shall afterwards attain that age or being a daughter shall at my death have attained that age or have been married or shall afterwards attain that age or be married a portion of [£——] to be paid to children being at my death objects of this gift at the end of six calendar months after that event and to children subsequently becoming objects thereof at the end of six calendar months after they shall respectively become such objects but advances (b) made by me to any child or children in my lifetime shall according to the amount thereof be taken in full or in part satisfaction of his her or their portion or portions unless I shall otherwise declare by codicil to this my will (c).

powered to carry on farm.

4. I EMPOWER my said wife [name] to carry on my farming and grazing business and for that purpose to continue tenant of the farm which I shall use at my death or to hire and use any other farm and employ my live and dead agricultural stock (d) and such part of my personal estate as she shall think fit with liberty for her at any time to transfer the business to any son or sons of mine or admit any son or sons of mine to a share thereof and lend to him or them the capital employed or requisite to be employed therein or any part thereof upon such security and such terms as she shall think reasonable.

PREC. 26.

5. I EMPOWER my said wife to manage my personal estate generally in such manner as shall appear to her to be most advantageous to my family with liberty at her discretion either to permit it to continue in the state in which it shall be found at my death or to get it in and invest the proceeds in her name upon any stocks funds or securities or at any rate of interest or in the purchase of any real or personal property and to vary the investment when and as she shall think fit but any real property so purchased shall be held upon trust for sale (e) and be considered as converted into and treated as personalty for all the purposes of my will.

Wife empowered to manage and invest the personal estate at her discretion.

6. I GIVE to my said wife all the income of so much of the personal estate to which I shall be entitled at my death as shall be in anywise employed or invested inclusive of the profit of the said business and also the use of the residue thereof but charged with the maintenance education and bringing up in a manner suitable to their station in life of my sons for the time being under the age of twenty-one years and my daughters for the time being under that age not being or having been married.

Wife to take the profits and income, bringing up the infant children except married daughters.

7. In the event of my said wife marrying again I henceforth ANNUL the powers and benefits hereinbefore given to her and GIVE to her an annuity of £—— during the remainder of her life payable quarterly into her proper hands and on her personal receipt as a separate and inalienable provision the first payment to accrue due and be made at the end of three calendar months after her marriage if she shall within that time account for and deliver up my personal estate in her hands to the other trustees or trustee for the time being of my will to their or his satisfaction and if not then at the end of three calendar months after such accounting and delivery.

Wife marrying again to receive an annuity for her separate use and deliver up the trust property.

8. I DECLARE that if my said wife shall either before or after such her second marriage do or suffer any act or thing whereby her said annuity of £—— or any part thereof shall be aliened or incumbered the same annuity shall thereupon cease.

Cesser of annuity on alienation.

9. I DECLARE that on the death or marriage of my said wife my personal estate shall vest in the other trustees or trustee for

NOTES to Precedent 26.

(a) See note (a) to Prec. 22, and note (g) to Prec. 12.

As to ademption of legacies to children by advancements.

(b) Where a testator, subsequently to the date of his will, advances, on marriage or otherwise, a sum of money to a child to whom he has bequeathed a pecuniary legacy, the advancement will be a satisfaction either wholly or pro tanto, as the case may be, Ex parte Pye, 18 Ves. 140; Rawlins v. Powel, 1 P. W. 299; Thellusson v. Woodford, 4 Mad. 420; Pym v. Lockyer, 5 M. & C. 29; 10 L. J. Ch. 153; Leighton v. Leighton, L. R. 18 Eq. 458; 43 L. J. Ch. 594; Re Furness, 1901, 2 Ch. 346; 70 L. J. Ch. 580; but not if the legacy is of something different from the advancement, as, where one is of an annuity and the other is of a gross sum, Holmes v. Holmes, 1 Br. C. 555; not even where the subject-matter of each is the same, if they are made diverso intuitu, Roome v.

Ademption
by advance-

Roome, 3 Atk. 181; Bell v. Coleman, 5 Mad. 24; nor where the advancement is subject to a contingency not affecting the legacy, Spinks v. Robins, 2 Atk. 491; Crompton v. Sale, 2 P. W. 553. The rule established in Holmes v. Holmes, ubi sup., that the presumption against double portions will not prevail where the testamentary portion and the subsequent advancement are not ejusdem generis, has been left untouched by modern decisions, Re Jaques, 1903, 1 Ch. 267; 72 L. J. Ch. 197. Also the legal presumption that an advancement is an ademption pro tanto of a legacy left to a child by will may be rebutted when all the circumstances and the manner of the gift are taken into consideration, Re Scott, 1903, 1 Ch. 1; 72 L. J. Ch. 20. A bequest of a residue or part of a residue (being of uncertain amount) is adeemed by a subsequent advancement of a portion, Montefiore v. Guedalla, 1 D. F. & J. 93; 29 L. J. Ch. 65; Schofield v. Heap, 27 Be. 93; 28 L. J. Ch. 104; Beckton v. Barton, 27 Be. 99; 28 L. J. Ch. 673. See also Dawson v. Dawson, L. R. 4 Eq. 504; Nevin v. Drysdale, L. R. 4 Eq. 517; 36 L. J. Ch. 662; Stevenson v. Masson, L. R. 17 Eq. 78; 43 L. J. Ch. 134; but small sums doled out by the testator at different times are not taken into account, Watson v. Watson, 33 Be. 574; Re Peacock's Estate, L. R. 14 Eq. 236. And advances are only brought into account as between the children themselves, not for the benefit of a tenant for life of half the residue, Meinertzen v. Watters, L. R. 7 Ch. 670; 41 L. J. Ch. 801; see also Fowkes v. Pascoe, L. R. 10 Ch. 343; 44 L. J. Ch. 367; Re Heather, 1906, 2 Ch. 230; 75 L. J. Ch. 568.

The doctrine of ademption of legacies founded on parental or quasi-parental relation applies also to cases where a moral obligation other than parental or quasi-parental is recognised in the will, though without reference to any special application of the money, Re Pollock, 28 Ch. D. 552; 54 L. J. Ch. 489.

A legacy which has been adeemed by an advancement is not revived by a codicil subsequent to the advancement, even though the codicil confirms the will and all the bequests therein, Powys v. Mansfield, 3 M. & C. 376; 7 L. J. (N. S.) Ch. 9; Montague v. Montague, 15 Be. 565. See also Re Smythies, 1903, 1 Ch. 259; 72 L. J. Ch. 216; Re Aynsley, 1914, 2 Ch. 422; 83 L. J. Ch. 807; 1915, 1 Ch. 172; 84 L. J. Ch. 211.

Perhaps it may be stated generally, that where a testator has bequeathed a sum of money for a specific purpose, and has afterwards himself expended the money in effecting such purpose, the legacy is satisfied, see Pankhurst v. Howell, L. R. 6 Ch. 136; Re Corbett, 1903, 2 Ch. 326; 72 L. J. Ch. 775; but cases of this kind seem to be distinct from the general doctrine of satisfaction before stated, which is applicable exclusively to legacies by parents, or persons standing in loco parentis: on which ground bequests by a putative father, Debeze v. Mann, 2 Br. C. 165; or by a grandfather in the lifetime of a father, Roome v. Roome, 3 Atk. 183, have been held not to be satisfied by subsequent advancements, and see Re Dawson, 1919, 1 Ch. 102; but it would seem, according to the doctrine of Powys v. Mansfield, 3 M. & C. 359; 7 L. J. (N. S.) Ch. 9, that the existence of the father does not preclude its being shewn, even legacy not revived by codicil.

NOTES TO
PREC. 26.

by extrinsic evidence, to have been the actual intention of the testator to assume the parental office in regard to the duty of providing for the objects in question.

See further, as to the satisfaction or ademption of a legacy by a portion, the notes to Ex parte Pye, 18 Ves. 140, in 2 Wh. & Tud. L. C. Eq.

Evidence of advances.

(c) Subsequent unattested statements in testator's handwriting are admissible as evidence of the amount of the advances, Whateley v. Spooner, 3 K. & J. 542; see also Hall v. Hill, 1 Dr. & War. 94; Kirk v. Eddowes, 3 Ha. 509; 13 L. J. Ch. 402; Re Shields, 1912, 1 Ch. 591; 81 L. J. Ch. 370. In the absence of any direction by the testator, the advances bear no interest up to his death, but the advanced child is charged with interest at 4 per cent. per annum from the testator's death, Re Davy, 1908, 1 Ch. 61; 77 L. J. Ch. 67; or from the death of a tenant for life, Re Rees, 17 Ch. D. 701; 50 L. J. Ch. 328. And see Re Young, 1914, 1 Ch. 581; affirmed, ibid. 976; 83 L. J. Ch. 453; Re Cooke, 1916, 1 Ch. 480; Re Tod, 1916, 1 Ch. 567. In Re Aird's Estate, 12 Ch. D. 291; 48 L. J. Ch. 631, testator by codicil recited that he had advanced a certain sum to a legatee, and directed that sum to be considered as payment on account of the legacy given by his will: it was held, that the sum must be deducted, though a smaller sum had in fact been advanced. See also Smith v. Conder, 9 Ch. D. 170; 47 L. J. Ch. 878. Re Aird was followed by North, J., in Re Wood, 32 Ch. D. 517; 55 L. J. Ch. 720; and he there held, that Re Aird had not been overruled by the Court of Appeal in Re Taylor's Estate, 22 Ch. D. 495, but that this last case had been decided merely on the very special words of the will and codicil there in question. See Re Kelsey, 1905, 2 Ch. 465; 74 L. J. Ch. 701. Where advances were made by the trustees of a will under powers of advancement therein contained, it was held by the Court of Appeal, Re Dallmeyer, 1896, 1 Ch. 372; 65 L. J. Ch. 201, that the son advanced should not be debited with interest on the advances made to him in respect of the period prior to the period of distribution. See Re Forster-Brown, 1914, 2 Ch. 584; Re Cooke, 1916, 1 Ch. 480.

Emblements ;

(d) As between the heir and executor, emblements belong to the executor; but as between an executor and a devisee, they belong to the devisee, unless they are expressly bequeathed, Co. Litt. 55 b, n. by Harg. & Butl.; Shep. Touch. 472. Under a will in which there was a specific devise to A. of land, and a bequest to B. of "all my personal estate and effects whatsoever and wheresoever not hereinbefore specifically bequeathed," it was held that the emblements passed with the land to A., Cooper v. Woolfit, 2 H. & N. 122; 26 L. J. Ex. 310.

what.

Emblements comprise not only corn crops, but also hops, saffron, flax, and hemp, 4 Burn's Eccl. L. 299; and the law of emblements extends also (it would seem) to artificial grasses, clover, saint-foin, and the like, Graves v. Weld, 5 B. & Ad. 105; 2 L. J. (N. S.) K. B. 176; to roots in gardens, as turnips, carrots, potatoes, Co. Litt. 55 b; Evans v. Roberts, 5 B. & C. 832; 4 L. J. K. B. 313; and generally to whatever is produced for annual profit by labour and cultivation. But the law of emblements does not extend to produce beyond that of the current year, see Graves v. Weld, ubi sup.; as to teasles, see Kingsbury v. Collins, 4 Bing. 202; 5 L. J. C. P. 151; nor to growing crops of grass (even though sown from seed, and ready to be cut for hay); nor to timber or fruit trees, fruit on trees, shrubs or plants, Empson v. Soden, 4 B. & Ad. 655; except in the case of a gardener or nurseryman by trade, Penton v. Robart, 2 Ea. 90; Wyndham v. Way, 4 Tau. 316; nor generally to anything which is not planted or produced annually at the expense and by the labour of the occupier. See also 1 Wms. Exors. 536 et seq., Amos & Ferard, Fixtures, 265.

PREC. 26.

A bequest of farming stock will, in general, carry growing crops, West v. Moore, 8 Ea. 339; Cox v. Godslove, 6 Ea. 604, n.; Re Roose, 17 Ch. D. 696; 50 L. J. Ch. 197. See also Rudge v. Winnall, 12 Be. 357; 18 L. J. Ch. 469, where there being a devise to A., and a bequest of all live and dead stock and all personal estate to B., it was held that the emblements on the real estate passed to B. Of course, if the testator is not the owner of the land on which the crops are growing, the question as to emblements being included in a bequest of farming stock can arise only between the legatee of the farming stock on the one hand, and the residuary legatee or executor on the other hand: in such a case it seems that the legatee of the farming stock is entitled to the emblements. The severance of the emblements from the land is a necessary consequence of the non-ownership of the farm by the testator.

(e) It is only necessary to state that there shall be a trust for sale if real estate was comprised in the property originally settled by the will. See sect. 10 of the Conveyancing Act, 1911. Unless there is an imperative trust for sale, a mere declaration will not cause conversion, Re Walker, 1908, 2 Ch. 705, 712; 77 L. J. Ch. 755.

(f) See note (b) to Prec. 4.

PREC. 27.

WILL of a LANDED PROPRIETOR devising his Real Estate in Settlement, and adopting the provisions of the Settled Land Acts, 1882 to 1890.—Bequest of Residuary Personal Estate to be applied for the purposes authorized by those Acts.

THIS IS THE LAST WILL of me [testator's name &c.].

1. I REVOKE all other wills and testamentary dispositions by me heretofore made.

2. I APPOINT [names &c.] to be executors and trustees of this my will and trustees for the purposes of section 42 of the Conveyancing Act 1881 as amended by section 14 of the Conveyancing

Appointment of executors, trustees and guardians.

PREC. 27. Act 1911 and for the purposes of the Settled Land Acts 1882 to 1890 and I APPOINT them to be guardians of my infant children (a).

Devise to uses.

Rent-charge
to wife.

To testator's lineal and collateral relations in strict settlement.

3. I DEVISE all my real estate to the uses following (namely) To the use that my wife may receive out of the rents thereof during her life a yearly rent-charge of £—— payable quarterly (b) AND subject thereto To the use of my sons and daughters and my brothers and sisters and their respective issue in the order for the estates and in manner following (namely) first to my sons and their issue secondly to my daughters and their issue thirdly to my brothers and their issue and lastly to my sisters and their issue (c) every elder son daughter brother and sister and his or her issue to be preferred to every younger and his or her issue and every son and daughter of mine and every brother and sister of mine born in my lifetime to be tenant for life and as to my freehold estates without impeachment of waste With remainder to his or her first and other sons successively by seniority in tail male with remainder to his or her daughters successively by seniority in tail male with remainder to his or her sons successively by seniority in tail with remainder to his or her daughters successively by seniority in tail and every brother and sister of mine born after my death to be tenant in tail male with remainder to himself or herself in tail But so that the estate of every female tenant for life shall be hers without power of alienation or anticipation And on failure of such issue to the use of my own right heirs.

right heirs.

Chattels real.

4. I BEQUEATH all my chattels real to the trustees hereinbefore named Upon trust that my trustees shall permit the same to be enjoyed according to the aforesaid limitations of my real estate but so that such chattels real shall be subject to an executory limitation over on the death under the age of twenty-one years of any tenant in tail by purchase of my freehold hereditaments to or in trust for the person or persons entitled under the subsequent limitations according to the tenor thereof.

Residue of personalty.

5. I BEQUEATH all the residue of my personal estate to the trustees hereinbefore named Upon trust that my trustees shall convert the same into money and thereout to pay my funeral and testamentary expenses and debts And in the next place to set apart a sum of £—— for the portion of each child of mine

(other than an eldest or only child entitled to the freehold or inheritance of my real estate under the limitations hereinbefore contained) who being a son shall attain the age of twenty-one years or being a daughter shall attain that age or be married under that age And hold the residue of my personal estate and the moneys representing the same In trust to invest the same in the purchase of freehold land to be settled to the uses and upon the trusts hereinbefore declared concerning my real estate (d).

NOTES to Precedent 28.

(a) That the words "to the intent," will create a legal rent-charge, see 27 Hen. 8, c. 10, ss. 4, 5.

(b) The remedy by distress and entry for recovery of a rent-charge is now supplied by the Conveyancing Act, 1881, s. 44; together with power to create a term of years, as a further remedy, if required. And that section applies to sums created under a power contained in an instrument coming into operation before or after the Act, Conveyancing Act, 1911, s. 6 (2).

(d) See note (c) to Prec. 17.

s. 42.

(g) As to management of land during minority, see the Conveyancing Act, 1881, s. 42, amended by the Conveyancing Act, 1911, s. 14. As to raising money for repairs by means of a mortgage, see Re Jackson, 21 Ch. D. 786. And see note (a) to Prec. 5.

Suggestions
as to framing clauses enjoining the use of a name and arms, &c.

(h) The points chiefly to be attended to in framing clauses of this nature are: First, to describe with explicitness and precision the act or event contemplated by the testator. For instance (by way of selecting a few examples of frequent occurrence), where a name is to be assumed, it should be shewn whether the authority of the royal licence or an Act of Parliament is to be obtained, or whether a deed is to be enrolled, otherwise the clause will be satisfied by an assumption of the name without any such proceeding, Co. Litt. 3 a; Jarm. Wills, ch. 39, xi.

Name and
arms clauses.

See Musgrave v. Brooke, 26 Ch. D. 792, as to a name and arms clause intended to defeat a devise in fee simple being void for repugnancy. Where a testator prescribes the mode by which the name is to be assumed, of course no other mode may be substituted for it; but a royal licence or an Act of Parliament is not necessary for adopting a new surname; a voluntary assumption, if made for no fraudulent purpose, is sufficient, Du Boulay v. Du Boulay, L. R. 2 P. C. 430; 38 L. J. P. C. 35; and in the absence of any express stipulation or requirement by the testator, it is apprehended that a person voluntarily assuming the name within a reasonable time satisfies the condition imposed on him, and that the words "bearing the surname" are satisfied by a de facto bearing of that name. As to whether the assumed surname may precede the original name, see D'Eyncourt v. Gregory, 1 Ch. D. 441; 45 L. J. Ch. 205; and Re Eversley, 1900, 1 Ch. 96; 69 L. J. Ch. 14; see also, on clauses of this kind, Peachey on Settlements, 964; Vaizey on Settlements, 1262 et seq.; as to a woman's surname acquired by marriage, Fendall v. Goldsmid, 2 P. D. 263; 46 L. J. P. 70; Cowley v. Cowley, 1901, A. C. 450; 70 L. J. P. 83; and as to the custody of a deed of grant of arms from the Heralds' College, see Stubs v. Stubs, 1 H. & C. 257; 31 L. J. Ex. 510. If a will requires that a person shall assume a certain surname within a specified time, a continued use of the surname after the period is to be implied, Re Draz, 75 L. J. Ch. 317.

PREC. 28.

Clauses enjoining the use of particular arms are often ineptly worded. Sometimes a technical knowledge of heraldry is requisite. 'Quartering' in heraldry is usually the result of 'marshalling' the arms of allied families. A husband 'impales' his wife's arms, unless she is an 'heir,' i.e. in heraldry, the member of a family extinct as to males, when, after the death of her father and the birth of issue to himself, a husband bears his wife's arms on an Escutcheon of Pretence; the children in the latter case bear, after the death of their mother, the arms of both parents 'quartered,' and the quartered arms descend. See the principle of marshalling explained in Clark's Introduction to Heraldry, 18th ed., by J. R. Planché—Marshalling—where it is shewn how a man marshalls his own with the coats of as many as seven wives; English Heraldry, by Charles Boutell, 5th ed., p. 175 et seq.; A Complete Guide to Heraldry, by A. C. Fox-Davies, ch. xxxiii.—The Marshalling of Arms. And see as to "taking, using and bearing" arms, Austen v. Collins, 54 L. T. 903; and as to "lawfully assume," Re Croxon, 1904, 1 Ch. 252; 73 L. J. Ch. 170. The words in this Precedent as to arms are new in this edition (1919).

Arms.

Secondly. If a clause enjoins residence, it ought to appear what length of continuous or occasional occupation is to be deemed sufficient. As to what will constitute residence, see Fillingham v. Bromley, T. & R. 536; Dunne v. Dunne, 7 D. M. & G. 207; Walcot v. Botfield, Kay, 534; Wynne v. Fletcher, 24 Be. 430; Re Moir, 25 Ch. D. 605; 53 L. J. Ch. 474; Re Wright, 1907, 1 Ch. 231; 76 L. J. Ch. 89. Notwithstanding sect. 51 of the Settled Land Act, 1882, such clauses would still seem to be valid, Re Haynes, 37 Ch. D. 306; 57 L. J. Ch. 519; but they are void as regards preventing the tenant for life from exercising the powers of a tenant for life under the Settled Land Act, 1882, and after sale he will still be tenant for life of the proceeds of sale, although residence has become impossible, Re Paget's Settled Estates, 30 Ch. D. 161; 55 L. J. Ch. 42. See also Re Trenchard, 1902, 1 Ch. 378; 71 L. J. Ch. 178; Re Richardson, 1904, 2 Ch. 777; 73 L. J. Ch. 783; Re Simpson, 1913, 1 Ch. 277; 82 L. J. Ch. 169. If the object is to confine the appropriation of the property to the personal enjoyment of the devisee, the clause should be expressly extended to alienations by operation of law.

Clause enjoining residence.

framer of the instrument to subject the estate of every person taking under the limitations to the performance of the act or the happening of the event, such intention should be made clear by express provision, lest it should be contended that, by the act having been once performed or the event having once happened, the persons taking under the later limitations are exempt from the consequences incident to the recurrence of the event or to the non-performance by them of the act. In the Earl of Scarborough's Case it was contended (though unsuccessfully) that the descent of the earldom and the shifting of the estate having once happened, the use for again shifting the estate on a second descent was nugatory, its power having been exhausted by one operation; much use was made of an argument derived from the different modes in which the clause imposing the necessity of taking the name and arms of the Savile family, and the clause shifting the estate on the descent of the earldom, were framed; the former having been framed so as clearly to enjoin the necessity of complying with the clause toties quoties, the latter expressing that necessity with less clearness, Earl of Scarborough v. Savile, 3 A. & E. 897. In Re Robinson, 1892, 1 Ch. 95; 61 L. J. Ch. 17; 1897, 1 Ch. 85; 66 L. J. Ch. 97, where the condition was a continuing one, and the fund, the subject of the bequest, being in Court, it was held that it must be retained in Court, and the income paid out to the legatee if he should comply with the condition.

Conditions
precedent or subsequent.

Fourthly. It should be shewn distinctly whether the prescribed act or event is to be in the nature of a condition precedent or a condition subsequent; in other words, whether the performance or happening is to precede the vesting, or the non-performance or non-happening is to divest an interest antecedently vested; whether, in fact, the condition is imposed on the acquisition of the property, or only on its retention. See instances of conditions precedent and subsequent collected in Jarm. Wills, ch. 39 (iii.).

Time allowed for performance of condition.

Fifthly. It should be stated whether the whole duration of life, or any and what less period, is to be allowed for performance, Re Hartley, 34 Ch. D. 742; 56 L. J. Ch. 564; and whether any and what notice is to be given to the devisee. The rule as to notice is, that, where the devisee on whom the condition is imposed is the testator's heir, the devisee over is bound to apprise him of the condition, but not otherwise, Doe v. Beauclerk, 11 Ea. 657, 662.

Destination of property,
if no compliance.

Sixthly. The clause should point out the precise destination of the property in the event of non-compliance, shewing clearly, if there are remainders limited to the issue of the offending party, whether they are or are not to be involved in the forfeiture.

Compliance impossible.

Seventhly. If the clause is of a nature to require the concurrence of a third person, as, for instance, marrying with consent, &c., or living in the service of another, &c., then it ought to be shewn what is to be the result of compliance becoming impracticable by the death or lunacy of such third person. See ante, p. 348.

Ignorance of condition.

Legacy, L. R. 16 Eq. 92; 42 L. J. Ch. 452; Powell v. Rawle, L. R. 18 Eq. 243, does not protect the devisee or legatee from the consequence of non-compliance.

PREC. 28.

As to infancy excusing a devisee from compliance with a condition requiring residence, see Partridge v. Partridge, 1894, 1 Ch. 351; 63 L. J. Ch. 122. And as to an infant's capacity to satisfy a condition involving choice of a religion, see Re May, 1917, 2 Ch. 126; 86 L. J. Ch. 698.

Infancy.

No precise form of expression is required to attach conditions to the enjoyment of gifts conferred by will: any words which shew the intention of the testator are sufficient for the purpose. But the intention must be clear, otherwise the condition will be void for uncertainty, Jeffreys v. Jeffreys, 84 L. T. 417; Re Sandbrook, 1912, 2 Ch. 471; 81 L. J. Ch. 800.

Conditions.

And it must not be contrary to public policy. Thus, a condition subsequent in a will divesting property in the event of the beneficiary entering the naval or military service of the country is against the welfare of the community and absolutely void, Re Beard, 1908, 1 Ch. 383; 77 L. J. Ch. 265; Re Sandbrook, ubi supra.

As regards real estate, when a condition precedent cannot be fulfilled, owing to its actual impossibility or its illegality, the estate fails; but if a condition subsequent becomes impossible or is illegal, the estate is absolute. See Re Emson, 74 L. J. Ch. 565. But see Jarm. Wills, ch. 39 (vi.), as to the case where there is a gift over on non-performance of the condition. In Re Kirk, 21 Ch. D. 431, there was a devise on condition that the devisee should relinquish a debt due to him by the testator, and the devisee died before the testator: it was held that the condition bound the land, notwithstanding the lapse, and that the debt must be discharged out of it.

Impossibility of condition attached to realty,

As regards personal estate, no distinction is recognised between a precedent and subsequent condition. Where a condition attached to a legacy is impossible, the general rule is that the gift vests absolutely and unconditionally; subject, however, to exceptions in the cases, (1) where the fulfilment of the condition is the sole motive of the gift, (2) where the impossibility was not known to the testator when he imposed the condition, and (3) where the condition, originally possible, has become impossible by the act of God. If the condition is void by reason of its involving a malum prohibitum, the bequest is absolute; but if the condition involves a malum in se, the gift itself is void. In Wilkinson v. Wilkinson, L. R. 12 Eq. 604; 40 L. J. Ch. 242, a condition which would have required the legatee to omit doing something that was a duty was held void; and in Yates v. University College, London, 7 H. L. 438; 45 L. J. Ch. 137, where a condition became impossible by the act of the testator, it was held that the bequest took effect absolutely.

sonalty.

That a contingent gift has a real existence, and is capable of being operated upon by a condition subsequent, and of being made to cease and become void, see Egerton v. Brownlow, 4 H. L. C. 1; 23 L. J. Ch. 348.

Contingent
gift subject to condition.

NOTES TO PREC. 28.Repugnant
conditions.

Conditions or restraints inconsistent with and repugnant to estates or interests to which they are annexed are absolutely void. Thus, if there is a devise in fee, a condition that the devisee shall not sell the estate is repugnant to the absolute devise, and therefore void, Co. Litt. sect. 360; but if the condition is that the devisee shall not alien to such an one, or to any of his heirs, or the like, which condition does not take away all power of alienation from the devisee, such condition is good, Co. Litt. sect. 361. But any condition which will amount to an absolute restraint on alienation in such a case will be void. Thus if there is a devise in fee with a condition that the devisee desiring to sell in the lifetime of the testator's widow shall sell the estate to her at a fifth of its real value, this amounts to an absolute restraint on alienation during the widow's life, and is void, Re Rosher, 26 Ch. D. 801; 53 L. J. Ch. 722, where the cases were reviewed. In Re Elliot, 1896, 2 Ch. 353; 65 L. J. Ch. 753, a testator gave certain property to A. absolutely, subject to the payment of his debts, but the will contained a clause to the effect that if at any time A. should sell the property he was to pay certain legacies out of the proceeds of the sale. Held, that this clause was repugnant and void, and that A. took the property free from any claim by the legatees of the sums so attempted to be made payable. But a condition annexed to a devise that the property should go over if the devisee ceased to carry on business was held not repugnant in Re Sax, 62 L. J. Ch. 688. Where there is an absolute devise or bequest of real or personal property, followed by a gift over in the event of the donee dying intestate, the gift over is repugnant, and consequently void, Barton v. Barton, 3 K. & J. 512; Holmes v. Godson, 8 D. M. & G. 152; 25 L. J. Ch. 317; Gulliver v. Vaux, 8 D. M. & G. 167; see Bradley v. Peixoto, 3 Ves. 324, and the notes thereto in Tud. L. C. R. P.; also Re Wilcock's Settlement, 1 Ch. D. 229; 45 L. J. Ch. 163; Shaw v. Ford, 7 Ch. D. 669; 47 L. J. Ch. 531; Re Parry and Daggs, 31 Ch. D. 130; 55 L. J. Ch. 237; Re Dugdale, 38 Ch. D. 176; 57 L. J. Ch. 634; Re Dixon, 1903, 2 Ch. 458; 72 L. J. Ch. 642. See Re O'Hare, 1918, 1 I. R. 160, where Shaw v. Ford was distinguished. Where the absolute interest in personal estate is given, there can be no further gift of it, Hoare v. Byng, 10 C. & F. 508. Thus a gift of 10,000*l.* to A., and "afterwards, to go to" B., is an absolute gift to A., and the superadded words of gift to B. are rejected as void, Re Percy, 24 Ch. D. 616; 53 L. J. Ch. 143. But see Re Sanford, 1901, 1 Ch. 939; 70 L. J. Ch. 591. In Brown v. Burdett, 21 Ch. D. 667; 52 L. J. Ch. 52, where a testatrix devised a house to trustees, upon trust to block it up for twenty years, it was held that there was an intestacy as to the twenty years' term. Re Johnston, 1894, 3 Ch. 204; 63 L. J. Ch. 753, affords a good example of an unsuccessful attempt to impose a fetter upon absolute interests in personalty. In that case a testator directed that certain specified sums of money should be invested for the benefit of his four sons on their attaining twenty-one, such sums to be applied as the trustees in their discretion might think fit. Held, that the sons were absolutely entitled to the legacies, freed from the exercise of any discretion on the part of the trustees.

In various points of view it is important that conditions precedent and subsequent should be accurately distinguished. In regard to estates tail, the efficiency of the restriction depends entirely on the distinction; for if it is subsequent, the devisee may, at any time before the actual divesting of the estate, defeat the limitation over by an enrolled conveyance, which would have the effect of destroying all executory limitations ulterior to and engrafted on the estate tail, Jarm. Wills, 1491. An estate tail, therefore, to which a conditional limitation is intended to be annexed, ought, when possible, to be so framed that it shall not vest in the devisee until performance; and if it is meant that the devisee in tail shall have the enjoyment of the lands antecedently to the performance of the condition, a precedent estate for years should be carved out, determinable on performance or at the expiration of the period within which only performance can occur. See Pelham-Clinton v. Duke of Newcastle, 1903, A. C. 111; 72 L. J. Ch. 424.

PREC. 28.

As to conditions imposed on tenants in tail.

Where the condition which is to precede the vesting of an estate is of a nature to require for its performance the co-operation of a third person, the mere performance by the devisee of his part of the condition will not give effect to the devise, since a testator may, if he chooses, give one person an estate in case another does a certain act and not otherwise; and, if he has so intimated his intention, nothing less than a full compliance with the prescribed condition can entitle the devisee.

Condition precedent requiring co-operation of others.

It would seem that the doctrine applicable to conditions subsequent becoming impossible to be performed, does not obtain where the estate is devised over on non-performance; in such case, to hold that the estate of the first devisee had become absolute, would be to adjudge that the estate of the substituted devisee had failed, notwithstanding the happening of the event on which it was given, which would be an unfair and unauthorized interference with the rights of the respective objects of the testator's bounty, and an undue curtailment of the testamentary power.

Where estate is devised over on non-performance.

Hence has arisen the important difference existing in many instances between the effect of a condition which is accompanied by a devise or bequest over, and one that is not so accompanied. Thus, it is clear that where real or personal estate is given to a person in case he shall execute a release, or shall not dispute the will, or shall do or decline to do any other prescribed act, and in default the property is given over, such ulterior devise or bequest will take effect, whatever may be the nature of the property, or of the act which is enjoined or prohibited, Cleaver v. Spurling, 2 P. W. 526; Simpson v. Vickers, 14 Ves. 341; Tulk v. Houlditch, 1 V. & B. 248; Burgess v. Robinson, 1 Mad. 172.

Effect of a gift over, on breach of a condition.

Where there is no devise or bequest over, and the condition is of a nature to admit of compensation being made, equity will, on subsequent performance, relieve against a forfeiture incurred. Where lands of inheritance are given upon condition that the devisee pays a sum of money within a definite period, and, the money not being paid, the heir enters for a breach of the condition, a Court of Equity will, notwithstanding the lapse of the prescribed period for performance, restore the estate to the devisee upon payment of principal, interest, and costs, Salmon v. Vaux, Toth. 105; Underwood v. Swain, 1 Rep. Ch. 161; Barnardiston v. Fane, 2 Ver. 366; Grimston v. Lord Bruce, 1 Salk. 156; see also Wallis v. Crimes, 1 Ch. Cas. 89. And this species of relief does not apply to conditions not admitting of after-satisfaction, Cage v. Russel, 2 Ven. 352; Re Dickson's Trust, 1 Sim. N. S. 37; 20 L. J. Ch. 33.

Equitable relief against forfeiture, when there is no gift over.

(i) Any attempt to entail personality will give the absolute interest therein to that person who, if the subject-matter were realty, would be the first tenant in tail or in fee, Leventhorpe v. Ashbie, Roll. Ab. 831, pl. 1; Tud. L. C. R. P.; Re Lowman, 1895, 2 Ch. 348; 64 L. J. Ch. 567. The form commonly used in the case of heirlooms merely provides negatively that the chattels shall not vest absolutely in a tenant in tail unless he shall attain twenty-one or die under that age leaving issue in tail; but it seems more correct to divest and limit them over in express terms on that event, see Rowland v. Morgan, 2 Ph. 764; 18 L. J. Ch. 78. In that case it was held that a direction annexed to a bequest of chattels that they shall go as heirlooms does not render such bequest executory, or give the Court any power to modify the legal effect of the bequest, whatever that may be. It seems to be established first, that an assignment or bequest of personality, either immediate or by way of trust executed, to go according to the limitations of real estate, vests it absolutely in the first tenant in tail immediately upon his birth, Hogg v. Jones, 32 Be. 45; 32 L. J. Ch. 361; Re Cresswell, 24 Ch. D. 102; 52 L. J. Ch. 798; and this, whether the limitations of the personality be expressed in extenso, or created by reference to the limitations of the real estate. Such reference may be effectually made, either by expressly saying that the chattels are to go on the same uses as the real estate, or by declaring that they are to be treated as heirlooms. Secondly, the addition of the words "so far as the rules of law and equity will permit," and the circumstances also of the legal interest being left in executors or trustees, will not prevail in any way to alter the general rule, or to render, in other words, the trust executory instead of executed, Vaughan v. Burslem, 3 Br. C. 101; Christie v. Gosling, L. R. 1 H. L. 279; 35 L. J. Ch. 667. Thirdly, where the trusts are executory, there has been considerable difference of opinion: if the law can be considered as finally settled by authority, it is in favour of a construction which would introduce particular conditions, such as the attainment of twenty-one, into the limitations, Countess of Lincoln v. Duke of Newcastle, 12 Ves. 218; and see Shelley v. Shelley, L. R. 6 Eq. 540; 37 L. J. Ch. 357. Fourthly, doubtful words, tending to restrict the interest in the chattels to those who come into possession of the real estate, will not overrule the previous canons of construction, or have the effect of suspending the interest until the time when possession of the realty is obtained, Foley v. Burnell, 1 Br. C. 274; Re Johnson's Trusts, L. R. 2 Eq. 716; see also Lord Scarsdale v. Curzon, 1 J. & H. 40; 29 L. J. Ch. 249; Sackville-West v. Viscount Holmesdale, L. R. 4 H. L. 543; 39 L. J. Ch. 505; Miles v. Harford, 12 Ch. D. 691. But chattels bequeathed as heirlooms upon trust to go along with, and be enjoyed by, the person for the time being entitled under a settlement to the "actual" possession of real estate, do not vest absolutely in a tenant in tail of the real estate who dies in the lifetime of the tenant for life, Re Angerstein, 1895, 2 Ch. 883; 65 L. J. Ch. 57; Re Fothergill's Estate, 1903, 1 Ch. 149; 72 L. J. Ch. 164. Compare Re Lewis, 1918, 2 Ch. 308; Re Duckett, 1918, 1 L. R. 110. And in order to deprive a tenant in tail of the chattels to which, on coming into the actual possession of the real estate under the limitations of the will, he would, according to the above rules, be entitled, it is necessary that his exclusion from possession of the realty should arise from some act or disposition of the testator, and not from any foreign circumstance (such as the execution of a disentailing deed) over which the testator had not and could not have control, Hogg v. Jones, 32 Be. 45; 32 L. J. Ch. 361.

NOTES TO
PREC. 28.
Heirlooms.

As to the necessity for a limitation over on the death of any tenant in tail "by purchase," in order to avoid a perpetuity, see Jarm. Wills, 347. In Gosling v. Gosling, 32 Be. 58; 32 L. J. Ch. 233, personal estate was bequeathed to trustees to be held upon the trusts declared of real estate strictly settled, with a proviso that the personalty should "not vest absolutely in any tenant in tail unless such person should attain the age of twenty-one years"; the Master of the Rolls held that the proviso was an integral part of the gift; consequently that the limitation was in substance to the first tenant in tail (whether by purchase or descent) who should attain twenty-one, and therefore was void for remoteness; his Honour also held that the bequest was not an executory trust; but this decision was reversed by Lord Westbury, 1 D. J. & S. 1, on the ground that the "tenant in tail" in the proviso necessarily referred to a tenant in tail of the realty who would, under the trust by reference, also take the personalty, and therefore, as the personalty could not descend, the "tenant in tail" of the proviso was, on the context, to be read and construed as "tenant in tail by purchase"; this decision was affirmed by the House of Lords, Christie v. Gosling, L. R. 1 H. L. 279; 35 L. J. Ch. 667, but depending as it did on the special terms and dispositions of the particular will, is not to be regarded as an authority for the general omission of the express restriction to tenants in tail "by purchase." See also Harrington v. Harrington, L. R. 5 H. L. 87; 40 L. J. Ch. 716; Martelli v. Holloway, L. R. 5 H. L. 532; 42 L. J. Ch. 26; Re Atkinson, 1916, 1 Ch. 91; 85 L. J. Ch. 159; Re Fowler, 1917, 2 Ch. 307; 86 L. J. Ch. 547.

Gift over on death of tenant in tail
"by purchase";

See L. R. 5 H. L. 93, n. (3), for forms of bequests of heirlooms, drawn by Butler, Coote, Brodie, Duval, and others; and see Re Beresford-Hope, 1917, 1 Ch. 287; 86 L. J. Ch. 182.

It frequently happens that chattels real and heirlooms are made subject to an executory limitation over on the death of a tenant in tail by purchase under the age of twenty-one years, "without leaving issue in tail living at his or her death"; if the tenant in tail dies under twenty-one, leaving issue in tail, the executory gift over does not take effect, and (the tenant in tail necessarily dying intestate) the chattels become the property of his next of kin. On the other hand, if the limitation over is on the death of tenant in tail under the age of twenty-one simply, and he (as above supposed) dies under that age leaving issue in tail, then the executory gift takes effect in favour of such issue, and the chattels real and heirlooms are kept in union with the freeholds for one step or generation further. If, therefore, the object is to make the personalty devolve with the freeholds as far as possible, the words "without leaving issue in tail living at his or her death," should be omitted. See further, Re Beresford-Hope, 1917, 1 Ch. 287; 86 L. J. Ch. 182; Re Lewis, 1918, 2 Ch. 308.

As to what chattels were or were not included in a bequest of heirlooms, see Hare v. Pryce, 11 L. T. 101; D'Eyncourt v. Gregory, L. R. 3 Eq. 382; 36 L. J. Ch. 107; Re Moir's Estate, W. N. 1882, p. 139. In Fane v. Fane, 2 Ch. D. 711; 46 L. J. Ch. 174, an order was made for the sale of heirlooms; but see D'Eyncourt v. Gregory, 3 Ch. D. 635; 45 L. J. Ch. 741, and 30 Ch. D. at p. 140. And see note (l), infra.

(k) See note (g), Prec. 8.

(l) Sect. 37 of the Settled Land Act, 1882, enacts that a tenant for life of lands may sell chattels settled as heirlooms, but as he cannot do so without the order of the Court, the clause in the text may be found useful. But sect. 56 of the Act must be borne in mind.

(m) See note (a) to Prec. 8.

(n) Trustees having power to invest in the purchase of hereditaments in fee simple in possession may purchase freehold ground-rents, Re Peyton's Settlement Trust, L. R. 7 Eq. 463; 38 L. J. Ch. 477.

(o) This clause is applicable only where the real and personal estates are intended to go in different directions.

[as before, substituting "two third parts or shares" for "one third part or share" and "my son C. D." for "my son A. B." and "my said son C. D." for "my said son" and substituting for the last words of the proviso the words "shall hold the said two third parts or shares and the income thereof upon the like trusts and subject to the like powers and provisions as are hereinbefore declared concerning the part or share hereinbefore appointed in favour of my said son A. B. and his children or such of the same as shall for the time being be subsisting or capable of taking effect so as to form an accretion to such part or share"] AND I declare that the said respective trustees or trustee shall not be liable or responsible for allowing either of my said sons to remain in possession of the enjoyment or benefit of the income hereinbefore appointed in his favour after the determination in his lifetime of the trust in his favour hereinbefore declared unless or until the said respective trustees or trustee shall have received express notice of an act or event determining such trust.

4. I DEVISE AND BEQUEATH all the real and personal property whatsoever and wheresoever whereof or whereto I shall be seised possessed or entitled at my death or over which I shall then have a general power of appointment or disposition by will unto and to the use of E. F. his heirs executors or administrators respectively for his own benefit. Residuary gift.

IN WITNESS &c.

NOTES to Precedent 30.

(a) The adoption of this form of words precludes the argument, which the more usual form (see Key & Elphinstone's Prec. 1005) may possibly leave open, that, e.g. a son who has become bankrupt during the life of the testatrix, cannot take any interest although at her death he has received his discharge.

(b) There must be an absolute vesting within twenty-one years of the death of the testatrix.

PREC. 31.

No. XXXI.

WILL of a MARRIED MAN providing for his dying simultaneously with his Wife (a).

THIS IS THE LAST WILL of me [testator's name &c.]

1. I REVOKE all other wills and testamentary dispositions by me heretofore made.

Appointment
of executors.

2. I APPOINT my wife [name] sole executrix and trustee of this my will but in case she shall die before me or in case she shall outlive me but die before proving this my will or shall not prove the same within three calendar months after my death then I appoint — sole executor and trustee hereof.

Trust as wife may appoint.

3. I DEVISE AND BEQUEATH all my real and personal property whatsoever and wheresoever in trust for such person or persons for such purposes and in such manner in all respects as my said wife if outliving me shall by deed or deeds revocable or irrevocable or by will or codicil appoint And in default of and subject to any such appointment upon trust and to the intent that my said wife if outliving me shall have the enjoyment and receive the income and annual produce of the said trust premises during her life for her own absolute benefit and after her death upon trust for —

In default for wife for life.

Remainder.

his heirs executors administrators and assigns according to the nature thereof respectively.

IN WITNESS &c.

NOTE to Precedent 31.

(a) In this will the property devolves in the same manner whether the wife dies before her husband or outlives him and does not appoint it. See note at p. 448, post.

No. XXXII.

PREC. 32.

CONCURRENT WILL disposing of Lands Abroad (a).

THIS is so far as relates to the property hereby devised THE LAST WILL of me [testator's name residence and quality].

1. I DECLARE that this will shall take effect concurrently with my other will of even date herewith and not revoke or alter the same.

2. I HEREBY DEVISE all my real and immovable property situate at — to — of — and — of — for all my estate and interest therein UPON TRUST to sell the same and until sale to manage the same as absolute owners thereof and to receive the purchase money and rents and profits thereof and upon trust to pay the net proceeds of sale and the net rents and profits after payment of all expenses and outgoings to — and — or other the trustees or trustee for the time being of my other will aforesaid whose receipt shall be a full discharge therefor to form part of my residuary estate.

Trust for sale

—to pay proceeds to trustees of other will

IN WITNESS &c.

NOTE to Precedent 32.

(a) Real property, including chattels real, follows the lex loci. Where the testator has lands in Scotland, a colony, or a foreign country, a separate will is advisable. It should be in the testator's own handwriting and attested by three witnesses, as that will be generally efficacious. See Key & Elphinstone's Prec. p. 999, note (a); Wills Act, ante, sect. 35 and note.

No. XXXIII.

PREC. 33.

CODICIL revoking the Appointment of Two of Three Trustees and Executors and substituting others.

THIS is a CODICIL (a) made by me [testator's name &c.] to my Will dated the — day of — 19— WHEREAS by my said will I have devised and bequeathed certain real and personal estate and given certain powers to [three trustees] as trustees and appointed them executors and bequeathed to them a legacy of £— apiece Now I REVOKE my said will so far as the said [two of the three trustees] are objects thereof and substitute [names &c. of substituted trustees] in their place and I DECLARE that my said will shall take effect in the same manner as if the PREC. 33. names of the said [substituted trustees] had been originally inserted throughout the said will instead of the names of the said [two original trustees] AND I CONFIRM my said will in other respects IN WITNESS &c. (b).

NOTES to Precedent 33.

As to codicils. (a) The old signification of the word "codicil" was "a testament not containing the appointment of an executor." But in modern acceptation it denotes simply a supplement to a will, the object of which may be to revoke, confirm, explain, or alter, either wholly or partially, the dispositions of the principal instrument, and, as such, it is, in general, to be considered as part of the original will. And the term "will" in the Wills Act (see sect. 1) extends to a codicil. Where a testator by codicil confirms his will, the will together with all previous codicils is confirmed, Green v. Tribe, 9 Ch. D. 231; 47 L. J. Ch. 783.

codicils.

Two or more wills or codicils may be entitled to probate, if there is no contradiction or ambiguity upon the face of the instruments, leading by necessary implication to the inference that the testator intended the later to be revocatory of, or substitutional for, the earlier, Thorne v. Rooke, 2 Cur. 799. But if the instruments are of a different tenor, the later supersedes the earlier, Bryan v. White, 14 Jur. 919, where two wills were made on two successive days. A so-called codicil, duly executed, though merely revoking prior wills, and making no disposition of the testator's property, is a testamentary instrument entitled to probate, Brenchley v. Still, 2 Rob. 162; Brenchley v. Lynn, ib. 441; but a mere memorandum of revocation, not disposing of any property or appointing executors, is not, it would seem, entitled to probate, but administration will be granted to the next of kin, with the memorandum annexed, In b. Hubbard, L. R. 1 P. & D. 53; 35 L. J. P. 27; In b. Hicks, L. R. 1 P. & D. 683; 38 L. J. P. 65; In b. Fraser, L. R. 2 P. & D. 40; 39 L. J. P. 20; In b. Durance, L. R. 2 P. & D. 406; 41 L. J. P. 60; Toomer v. Sobinska, 1907, P. 106; 76 L. J. Ch. 19. A paper called a last will and testament, disposing only of real estate, and not revoking a prior will or appointing executors, was admitted to probate as a codicil, In b. Langhorn, 5 No. Cas. 512. But as to probate of wills relating only to real estate, see the Land Transfer Act, 1897 (60 & 61 Vict. c. 65), sect. 1 (3). A codicil to a will may be admitted to probate, although the will itself is not forthcoming, In b. Clements, 1892, P. 254; 61 L. J. P. 130. Where there were two codicils, one executed on the 23rd July and the other on the 30th totidem verbis, except the substitution of a clause and the addition of a legacy, there being nothing in the second to revoke the first, both were admitted to probate, In b. Beetson, 6 No. Cas. 13. In this case parol evidence to the effect that the second codicil was intended to be in substitution for the first was received but not acted upon. A codicil was executed in duplicate, and one part was destroyed on the execution of a substituted codicil: the remaining duplicate was not admitted to probate, In b. Hains, 5 No. Cas. 621.

See also the notes to ss. 20, 22 of the Wills Act, ante, pp. 39, 50.

A will or codicil, not duly executed and attested, is on the principle of incorporation made valid by a subsequent codicil, duly executed and attested, and referring to the will or prior codicil. See notes to sect. 9 of the Wills Act, ante, and Wms. Exors. 74 et seq.

The revocation by codicil of a bequest is a revocation of a pecuniary legacy to be paid out of that bequest, Grice v. Funnell, 1 S. & G. 130.

The onus is upon those who claim under a codicil, as against a devisee under the will, to shew that the intention to displace the devisee is equally clear with the original intention to devise, Doe v. Hicks, 1 C. & F. 20. See also Maddison v. Chapman, 4 K. & J. 709; Barclay v. Maskelyne, Joh. 124; 28 L. J. Ch. 115; Robertson v. Powell, 2 H. & C. 762; 33 L. J. Ex. 34; Re Freeman, 1910, 1 Ch. 681; 79 L. J. Ch. 78.

A bequest, in a second codicil, of all the testator's property "not hereinbefore or by my will or any other codicil disposed of," was held to revoke a general residuary bequest contained in the will, Earl of Hardwicke v. Douglas, 7 C. & F. 795; Re Stoodley, 1916, 1 Ch. 242; 85 L. J. Ch. 226.

Where a codicil affects the dispositions of a will or prior codicil, it is an established rule not to disturb the dispositions of the antecedent instrument further than is absolutely necessary in order to give effect to the subsequent codicil, see Jarm. Wills, 177 et seq.

A codicil which confirmed a will, by which latter the testator had attempted to exercise a power of appointment which at the date of the will he did not possess, though he did possess the power at the date of the codicil, was held a valid exercise of the power, Re Blackburn, 43 Ch. D. 75; 59 L. J. Ch. 208.

Where two legacies or annuities are given to the same person, one by will, and the other by codicil, it should be expressly declared whether the latter is to be construed as cumulative or substitutional. See Hawkins, Constr. Wills, 355 et seq.

Care should also be taken to shew distinctly whether a gift by codicil to a legatee under the will is payable out of the same fund, and is privileged with the same exemptions, or subject to the same restrictions, as the legacy given by the will, see Jarm. Wills, 1120; Johnstone v. Lord Harrowby, 1 D. F. & J. 183; 29 L. J. Ch. 145; Jauncey v. Attorney-General, 3 Gif. 308; Re Smith, 2 J. & H. 594; Re Gibson's Trusts, ib. 656; Hawkins, Constr. Wills, 358. And see Re Backhouse, 1916, 1 Ch. 65.

(b) The attestation clause forms no part of a codicil. Therefore where the attestation clause of a third codicil was as follows: "Signed by the said [testatrix] as a third codicil to her will by which the first codicil is cancelled," and the first codicil was not in the body of the third codicil cancelled at all, the first was held not to be cancelled, but to be entitled to probate, In b. Atkinson, 8 P. D. 165; 52 L. J. P. 80.

NOTES TO
PREC. 33.

Valid execution of codicil extends to will or prior codicil.

Revocation of a gift by codicil.

Dispositions of will, not disturbed more than necessary.

Confirmation of will by codicil.

Legacies, cumulative or substitutional.

PREC. 34.

No. XXXIV

CODICIL appointing a Trustee and Executor in the place of One deceased.

THIS IS A SECOND CODICIL made by me [testator's name &c.] to my Will dated the — day of — 19— whereto I have already made a first codicil dated the — day of — 19— WHEREAS [name] named in my said will as a trustee and executor has lately died Now it is my will that [name &c.] shall be substituted in the place of the said [deceased trustee] as one of the trustees and executors (a) of my said will AND I DIRECT that my said will shall be read and construed as if the name of the said [substituted trustee] had been inserted throughout the said will (b) in the place and instead of the name of the said [deceased trustee] AND in all other respects I CONFIRM my said will as altered by my first codicil thereto and this codicil IN WITNESS &c.

NOTES to Precedent 34.

Trustee,
executor,
revocation.

(a) Where the same person is appointed both trustee and executor, a revocation of the appointment as executor is not necessarily a revocation of the appointment as trustee, Cartwright v. Shephard, 17 Be. 301; Worley v. Worley, 18 Be. 58; and similarly the trusteeship may be revoked and the executorship remain. In Re Park, 14 Sim. 89; 13 L. J. Ch. 369, the revocation of an appointment of executors and trustees was held not to affect the appointment of the same persons as guardians. In Sidebotham v. Watson, 11 Ha. 170, an appointment of a person as trustee and executor was, in the circumstances, held to be appointment as an executor only, and not as a trustee of the express trusts of the will. See also Moss v. Bardswell, 3 Sw. & Tr. 187; 29 L. J. P. 147.

New trustee,
legal estate.

(b) Care should be taken, where a new trustee is nominated in the place of one who has died or whose appointment is revoked, that the substituted trustee is also clothed with the legal estate in the realty devised upon trust, see Re Turner, 2 D. F. & J. 527; 30 L. J. Ch. 144; Bennett v. Bennett, 2 D. & S. 266; 34 L. J. Ch. 34. This is effected by the direction in the text.

MISCELLANEOUS FORMS.

THIS IS THE LAST WILL of me — of — in the county of — gentleman. Beginnings of wills.

THIS IS THE LAST AND ONLY (a) will of me A. B. late of — but now of — merchant to take effect only in the event of my not leaving any issue living at my death.

(a) The insertion of the word “only” has in some books of Precedents been regarded as equivalent to a revocation of prior wills. See 11 Byth. Jarm. 429 (c). But this opinion is not reliable, Simpson v. Foxon, 1907, P. 54. See note (d) to Prec. 1, ante.

THIS IS THE LAST WILL of me A. B. of — in the county of — in England late a captain in His Majesty’s — Regiment of Foot a domiciled Englishman but now residing temporarily (b) for the benefit of my health [or for the purposes of study or for the education of my children] at — in France (c).

(b) As to the effect given to a testator’s description of himself in his will, in respect of his domicile, and the permanent and temporary nature of his residence abroad, see Re Steer, 3 H. & N. 594; 28 L. J. Ex. 22; Attorney-General v. Pottinger, 6 H. & N. 733; 30 L. J. Ex. 284; Attorney-General v. Kent, 1 H. & C. 12; 31 L. J. Ex. 391. A declaration of intention to retain an English domicile, though entitled to weight, will not prevail against facts shewing the acquisition of a foreign domicile. See further in the Appendix on domicile.

(c) This will should be executed and attested as required by the law of England, but by virtue of 24 & 25 Vict. c. 114 (see Appendix), would be entitled to probate in this country, and be valid as to personal estate, if executed according to the forms required by the law of France.

I APPOINT — of &c. and — of &c. to be executors of my will. Appointment of executors.

I APPOINT — of &c. and — of &c. to be trustees of this my will for the purposes of section 42 of the Conveyancing Act Appointment of Settled
Land Act
trustees.

1881 as amended by section 14 of the Conveyancing Act 1911 and for the purposes of the Settled Land Acts 1882 to 1890 (d).

(d) See note (a) to Prec. 5.

Appointment
of Public Trustee to be executor and trustee.

I APPOINT the Public Trustee to be executor and trustee of this my will [and also to be trustee for the purposes of section 42 of the Conveyancing Act 1881 as amended by section 14 of the Conveyancing Act 1911 and for the purposes of the Settled Land Acts 1882 to 1890 (e)] Add if desired And it is my wish that under sub-section (2) of section 11 of the Public Trustee Act 1906 the firm of Messrs. — solicitors may be employed in relation to the trusts of this my will.

(e) See p. 166, ante. The Public Trustee cannot accept a trust involving the selection of charitable objects for the testator's bounty, Re Hampton, 63 S. J. 68.

Appointment
of Public Trustee to be trustee.

I APPOINT — of &c. to be executor and the Public Trustee to be the trustee of this my will.

Appointment
of Public Trustee to be custodian
trustee.

I APPOINT — of &c. to be executor and trustee and the Public Trustee to be custodian trustee of this my will (f).

(f) See note (e), above.

Appointment
of Public Trustee to be executor and custodian
trustee.

I APPOINT the Public Trustee to be executor — of &c. and — of &c. to be trustees and the Public Trustee to be custodian trustee of this my will (g).

(g) See note (e), above.

Appointment
of bank or company to be executors
and trustees.

I APPOINT the — hereinafter called the bank [company] the executors and trustees of this my will and I declare that all costs and expenses incurred by the bank [company] in the execution of the trusts of this my will may be retained by them with interest at the rate of five per centum per annum from the time of their being paid until repayment out of any moneys forming part of my estate and that the bank [company] shall be entitled to remuneration out of my estate free from all death duties in accordance with the scale of fees in use by the bank [company] at the date of this my will (h) AND I declare that if before the time of my death the bank [company] shall have gone into liquidation for the purpose of amalgamation reconstruction or otherwise or shall have ceased to exist or if at the time of my death there shall be any other corporation which shall have been formed to acquire or shall have then acquired or shall be carrying on the business formerly carried on by the bank [company] then this my will shall be read and construed as if the name of such other corporation were substituted for that of the bank [company] throughout.

(h) Inquiry should be made of the bank or company as to any preferred form of appointment. See In b. Hunt, 1896, P. 288; 66 L. J. P. 8; Re Richards, 1901, 2 Ch. 399; 70 L. J. Ch. 699.

I APPOINT — of — and — of — to be my trustees and executors and together with my wife to be guardians of my children during their respective minorities (i).

Appointment of trustees, executors, and guardians.

(i) See also Prec. 12, clause 2, and note.

I DECLARE that if my said son Henry B. shall at the time of my death have attained the age of twenty-one years he shall be a trustee and executor of my will which in that case shall be construed and take effect as if his name had been herein inserted throughout along with and immediately before the names of the said [trustees] A. B. and C. D.

Conditional appointment of son to be trustee and executor.

I DIRECT that any person herein appointed or to be appointed a trustee who shall cease to be resident in the town of — or within — miles from the parish church [or town-hall] thereof (k) shall cease to be a trustee and that any and every vacancy in the trusteeship of my will shall be supplied as soon as may be by the appointment of a fit substitute resident as aforesaid such appointment to be made by my wife during her widowhood and after her death or marriage in the manner prescribed by law (l).

Trustees to reside within certain limits; appointment of new trustees.

(k) Distances are measured, not by the nearest practicable way of access, but "as the crow flies." Such at least is the method adopted in construing Acts of Parliament, Reg. v. Saffron Walden, 9 Q. B. 76; 15 L. J. M. C. 115; Lake v. Butler, 5 E. & B. 92; 24 L. J. Q. B. 273; and contracts, Duignan v. Walker, Joh. 446; 28 L. J. Ch. 867; Mouflet v. Cole, L. R. 8 Exch. 32; 42 L. J. Ex. 8; where mention is made of a given distance without specifying the mode of measurement. It is presumed that the same method would be applicable to the measurement of distances mentioned in a will; and that if testator means the measurement to be taken along the roads, streets, railways, or other ways of communication, he must express his intention.

Mode of measuring distances.

(l) See note (g), Prec. 6.

Appointment
of son to be trustee on attaining twenty-one.

I APPOINT my son William on his attaining the age of twenty-one years to be a trustee of this my will and I direct that my will shall from the time of his acceptance of the trusteeship take effect and be construed as to the property then remaining subject to the trusts hereof in the same manner as if my said son had been originally named a trustee jointly with the said M. and N. And I declare that until the said appointment of my son William shall take effect such appointment shall not fetter or prejudice the exercise of the trusts powers or discretions hereby given to the said M. and N. or the survivor of them or other the trustees or trustee to be from time to time appointed in their or his stead And that if my son William shall die before attaining the age of twenty-one years or if on attaining that age he shall be incapable or unfit or shall refuse or omit to act as a trustee it shall be lawful for but not compulsory on the trustees or trustee for the time being of this my will to appoint a trustee in the place of my son William it being my wish that there shall be from time to time not more than three nor less than two trustees of my will.

Appointment
of wife during widowhood.

I APPOINT my wife [name] and — of &c. and — of &c. to be trustees and executors of my will But if my wife shall marry again she shall thereupon cease to be trustee and executor of my will which shall thenceforward be construed and take effect and be executed in the same or the like manner as if the said — and — [other trustees] had been originally appointed the sole trustees and executors.

Appointment
of special
executors ;

—as to trade ;

I APPOINT my wife [name] and my son [name] and my brother [name] to be executors of my will as to my property and assets which at the time of my death shall be embarked in trade (m) And I APPOINT A. B. of &c. C. D. of &c. and E. F. of &c. to be general executors and trustees of this my will.

(m) See 2 Wms. Exors. 1498; and ante, p. 317, note (a).

—in respect
of a debt.

I APPOINT A. B. of &c. and C. D. of &c. to be my executors in respect of any debt or debts (n) owing to me by my brother [name] at the time of my death.

Debtor
appointed
executor ;

(n) The appointment of testator's debtor to be executor destroys the remedy against him at law for the debt. By the appointment of a special executor, as in the text, the legal remedy is vested in him. But the appointment of a debtor to be executor is no more than a parting with the action, and does not operate in equity as a release of the debt as against legatees; à fortiori, the debt is assets for the payment of testator's debts. See Ingle v. Richards, 28 Be. 366, where a debt not recoverable at law (because the debtor was executor) or in equity (because barred by the Statute of Limitations) was held assets in the hands of a proving executor. But as to rebutting any claim in equity by evidence of a continuing intention to forgive a debt due from the person appointed executor, see Strong v. Bird, L. R. 18 Eq. 315; 43 L. J. Ch. 814; Re Applebee, 1891, 3 Ch. 422; 60 L. J. Ch. 793; Re Pink, 1912, 2 Ch. 528; 81 L. J. Ch. 753. And see post, p. 406, note (k).

I BEQUEATH to A. B. of &c. the sum of £—— owing to me on mortgage of freehold hereditaments at —— in the county of —— created by indenture dated the —— day of —— 19—— and made between P. Q. of the one part and myself of the other part AND I DEVISE all the hereditaments comprised in such mortgage unto and to the use of the said A. B. in fee simple subject to the equity of redemption subsisting therein.

—of mortgage debt, specifically bequeathed;

I GIVE my leasehold house No. ——— street in the county of —— with the garden and appurtenances thereto belonging or usually enjoyed therewith to my son [name] he paying the ground-rent and performing the lessee's covenants in respect of the said leasehold premises and taking the improved rent current at my death without any apportionment thereof And I APPOINT my said son my executor as to the same leasehold premises (o) and direct that the estate duty and costs of and incidental to the obtaining of a limited probate by my said son shall be paid out of my residuary estate and (except as aforesaid) I APPOINT [names &c.] to be executors of my will.

—as to leaseholds specifically bequeathed.

(o) This special appointment of an executor is made for the purpose of transferring the liability of the executors for general purposes under the covenants in the lease from the latter, who have simply a fiduciary interest in the leasehold, to the person having the beneficial ownership. See Lynch v. Bellew, 3 Phillim. 432; and as to executors in or for a particular country, In b. Wallich, 3 Sw. & Tr. 423; 33 L. J. P. 87; Velho v. Leite, 3 Sw. & Tr. 456; 33 L. J. P. 107; Re Cohen's Executors and London County Council, 1902, 1 Ch. 187; 71 L. J. Ch. 164. Where a testator gave specific legacies, but did not dispose of his residue, and appointed his daughter executrix for all property not named in the will, probate to the daughter was refused, In b. Wakeham, L. R. 2 P. & D. 395; 41 L. J. P. 46; Wms. Exors. 175 et seq.

Special executor, reason for.

Specific
bequest of
building land,

I BEQUEATH all that piece of building land containing about — square yards situate in — street — in the county of — which I have agreed to take on a building lease from Mr. — and all buildings and the wood stone bricks lime and other materials which shall be upon the said piece of land at my death to my son — absolutely he nevertheless paying the rent and performing the tenant's or lessee's covenants and agreements in respect of the same piece of land (p) and indemnifying my estate therefrom except that the apportioned current rent of the said piece of land down to and inclusive of the day of my death shall be paid out of my residuary estate I APPOINT my same son my executor as to the premises comprised in the last bequest And as to all other my personal estate I APPOINT — of &c. and — of &c. to be my executors.

appointment
of special executor
in respect thereof.

Covenant to build.

(p) In the absence of this direction as to the burthen of the covenants to build, the legatee could (contrary, no doubt, in most cases to the wishes of the testator) require the contract to be performed at the cost of the residuary estate, Marshall v. Holloway, 5 Sim. 196. But see as to this decision, Fitzwilliams v. Kelly, 10 Ha. 266; 22 L. J. Ch. 1016.

Devise and bequest of property in a colony.

I DEVISE AND BEQUEATH unto — of — and — of — hereinafter called my colonial trustees all my real and personal property situate and being in the colony of — expressly including all debts and other choses in action which shall be recoverable by action or other legal proceedings in such colony UPON TRUST to sell and convert the same and until sale to manage the same as absolute owners thereof and to receive the purchase money and rents and profits and income thereof and upon trust to pay the net proceeds of sale and the net rents and profits and income thereof after payment thereof of all outgoings and expenses of management and realization or otherwise incurred by my colonial trustees and any debts owing by me in the said colony of — to my trustees to be held by them as part of my residuary estate.

Directions as to post-mortem examination.

[I DIRECT (q) that an anatomical examination be made of my body as soon as possible after my death by two competent surgeons to be selected by my executors and such surgeons shall forthwith deliver a report in writing of the result of such examination to my executors who shall on receipt of such report pay to each of the said surgeons as a remuneration for his trouble a sum of money not exceeding —— guineas (r).]

(q) As wills are often not read until after the testator's funeral, it may be deemed wiser not to insert these clauses, here placed in brackets, in wills, but to enclose them in an envelope addressed to the executors with instructions written outside, "To be opened immediately after my death."

(r) By the "Act for regulating Schools of Anatomy" (2 & 3 Will. 4, c. 75), it is enacted (s. 8), "that if any person, either in writing at any time during his life, or verbally in the presence of two or more witnesses during the illness whereof he died, shall direct that his body after death be examined anatomically, or shall nominate any party by this Act authorized to examine bodies anatomically to make such examination; and if before the burial of the body of such person, such direction or nomination shall be made known to the party having lawful possession of the dead body, then such last-mentioned party shall direct such examination to be made, and, in case of any such nomination as aforesaid, shall request and permit any party so authorized and nominated as aforesaid, to make such examination, unless the deceased person's surviving husband or wife, or nearest known relative or any one or more of such person's nearest known relatives being of kin in the same degree, shall require the body to be interred without such examination." And by the 7th section it is made "lawful for any executor or other party having lawful possession of the body of any deceased person, and not being an undertaker or other party entrusted with the body for the purpose only of interment, to permit the body of such deceased person to undergo anatomical examination, unless, to the knowledge of such executor or other party, such person shall have expressed his desire, either in writing at any time during his lifetime, or verbally in the presence of two or more witnesses during the illness whereof he died, that his body after death might not undergo such examination, or unless the surviving husband or wife, or any known relative of the deceased person, shall require the body to be interred without such examination."

A direction by will as to the disposition of the testator's body cannot be enforced; there is no property in a corpse, but the executors have a right to possession of it, Williams v. Williams, 20 Ch. D. 659; 51 L. J. Ch. 385.

[I DIRECT that my body be interred without ostentation at a cost not exceeding £—— in the family vault in the churchyard of the parish church of ——.] Directions as to funeral.

[I DIRECT that my remains be buried with plainness and privacy in the cemetery of ——.]

[I DIRECT that [my body be buried in an open or wickerwork coffin and that] the expense of my funeral shall not exceed £——.]

Cremation.

[I DIRECT that my body be burnt and that my ashes be disposed of as my executors shall think fit (s).]

(s) It is lawful to burn a dead body, but if it be done in such a way as to amount to a public nuisance, this is a misdemeanour. It is also a misdemeanour to burn or otherwise dispose of a dead body with intent to prevent the coroner from holding an inquest on it, in a case where the inquest is one which the coroner has jurisdiction to hold, Reg. v. Price, 12 Q. B. D. 247; 53 L. J. M. C. 51; Reg. v. Stephenson, 13 Q. B. D. 331; 53 L. J. M. C. 176.

Against cremation.

[I DIRECT that in no circumstances shall my body be cremated (t).]

(t) By the Cremation Regulations, 1903, r. 4, it is unlawful to cremate a person who has left written instructions to the contrary.

Provision against lapse.

I GIVE the sum of £—— to A. B. of —— in the county of —— and if he shall die in my lifetime leaving issue surviving me I give the same sum to his executors or administrators as part of his personal estate.

Pecuniary legacy to trustees upon trusts after declared.

I GIVE to my said trustees [names] the sum of £—— which is to bear interest after the rate of —— per cent. per annum from the time of my death Upon the trusts and for the purposes hereinafter expressed concerning the same.

Legacy—payable at the end of five years, or sooner at discretion of executors.

I GIVE to my son —— and my wife the sum of £—— free from legacy duty to be raised and paid at the end of five years from my death (unless my executors shall think fit sooner to raise the same) together with interest thereon from my death at the rate of —— per centum per annum such interest to be paid by equal half-yearly payments in the meantime Upon and for the trusts and purposes hereinafter expressed concerning the same.

Pecuniary legacies;

I BEQUEATH the pecuniary legacies following (u) namely To my wife the sum of £—— for her immediate use such legacy to be entitled to priority over every other legacy herein bequeathed To each of my other trustees and executors the sum of £—— as an acknowledgment for his trouble in executing the office of trustee and executor of my will To the said [name] individually and without reference to his office of trustee and executor the sum of £—— To A. B. of &c. the eldest son of R. B. of —— the sum of —— To each of the domestic servants [or each of my indoor and outdoor servants] [or each of my indoor and outdoor servants not in receipt of weekly or daily wages] who shall be in my service at my death and not be under notice to leave whether given or received a sum equal to one year's wages (in addition to any moneys which may be then owing by me to him or her) and a suit of mourning at the discretion of my executors To &c. [other pecuniary legacies] And I direct the legacy hereinbefore bequeathed to my wife to be paid or retained out of the first moneys which shall come to the hands of my executors and the other legacies hereinbefore bequeathed to be paid or retained at the end of twelve calendar months from my decease unless my executors shall think fit sooner to pay or retain the same.

Legacy to servants ;

—time of payment.

(u) See Prec. 6, clause 3 and note, and see Prec. 11, clause 7 and notes.

I GIVE the sum of £—— to the Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge and I declare that the receipt of the person who professes to be the treasurer or other proper officer for the time being (y) of the said society shall be a sufficient discharge therefor.

Legacy to charity (x).

(x) The advertized Forms of Bequest supplied by charitable societies are often out of date, and it is not always safe to adopt them. See as to this and the two following forms, note (b) to Prec. 24.

(y) As to the meaning of the words "for the time being," see Re Daniels, 118 L. T. 435.

I BEQUEATH to the rector [vicar] for the time being of the parish of —— in the county of —— the sum of £—— to be distributed by him at his discretion amongst such poor inhabitants of that parish as he shall select.

For the poor of a parish.

I BEQUEATH to the governors of the bounty of Queen Anne for the augmentation and maintenance of the poor clergy the sum of £—— to be applied and disposed of by them for the augmentation of the living (z) of —— in the county of ——.

To governors of Queen Anne's Bounty.

(z) "Living or cure" is the expression in 43 Geo. 3, c. 107. The word "vicarage" in the form in Key & Elphinstone's Precedents might conceivably not be what is intended, or be inapplicable to the nature of the incumbency.

To church
trustees.

I BEQUEATH to the church trustees (a) of the parish of — in the county of — the sum of £—— Consols to be held by them upon trust to apply the dividends thereon for the following ecclesiastical purposes in the said parish (that is to say):—

I BEQUEATH the sum of £—— Consols to A. B. and C. D. upon trust to apply the same as follows — And in case church trustees (a) for the said parish of — shall have been appointed either in my lifetime or after my death I empower my trustees to transfer the said sum of Consols to such church trustees to be by them applied for the purposes aforesaid.

Church
trustees.

(a) See sect. 9 of the Compulsory Church Rate Abolition Act (31 & 32 Vict. c. 109), giving power to appoint a body of church trustees, and incorporating them when appointed. Such a body seem to be the proper recipients of any legacy for ecclesiastical purposes in any parish.

Devise to a corporation without a head (b).

I DEVISE unto the master fellows and scholars of — college [or as the case may be] and their successors for ever or in case that devise would fail of effect in consequence of there being no master of the said college [or as the case may be] at my death then to the persons who shall be the senior fellows of the said college [or as the case may be] at my death and their heirs until the appointment of a master of such college [or as the case may be] and from and after such appointment being within twenty-one years after my death to the master fellows and scholars of the said college [or as the case may be] and their successors for ever all that land &c.

(b) In a devise to a corporation composed of a corporate body with a "head" such as a Master of a College, Mayor of a City, or Dean of a Cathedral, a question might be raised as to the capacity of the corporation to acquire the property should there be no head in existence when the will came into operation. See Grant on Corporations, 110; Phillimore's Ecclesiastical Law, 2nd ed. vol. i. 138; and cf. Year Books, 7 Edw. 3, f. 35, pl. 35; 21 Edw. 4, f. 16, pl. 9. The clause above provides for such a contingency. As to the effect of imprisonment on the head of a corporation, see Law Quarterly Review, vol. xxvii. 234.

To the Church of Ireland.

I BEQUEATH the sum of £—— to the representative body of the church of Ireland, incorporated under the name of the representative church body, in trust for the said church.

I BEQUEATH to A. B. the sum of £—— absolutely to be paid to him immediately after my death in priority to all other bequests hereby made and I request him to apply the same in such manner as in a letter to be hereafter addressed to him but not yet written I hope to state But I declare that such request shall not create any trust of any kind whatsoever or raise any obligation on his part in law so to apply the same whether before my death my request shall have become known to him or not (c).

Bequest for a purpose not valid in law.

(c) This was the form of gift used by a testator for the saying of mass for the repose of his soul. See Maitland on Equity, p. 62; Elph. Introd. Conv. p. 579. A gift for masses, although good in Ireland, O'Hanlon v. Logue, 1906, 1 Ir. R. 247, was long considered invalid in England, Re Egan, 1918, 2 Ch. 350. But the latter decision has been reversed by H. L. in Bourne v. Keane (Times, June 4th, 1919), and a direct gift for masses is now valid.

I BEQUEATH the sum of £—— to my said trustees [names] to be paid or retained at the end of —— calendar months next after my death and to carry interest from my death at the rate of —— per cent. per annum and to be held by my said trustees Upon the trusts and subject to the provisions following that is to say IN TRUST for my younger children the said A. B. C. B. D. B. and E. B. in equal shares but in case any of such younger children being sons shall die under the age of twenty-one years or become an eldest or only son entitled under the provisions hereinafter contained to the possession of my real estate or to the receipt of the rents and profits thereof before he shall have attained that age or in case any of my said younger children being daughters shall die under the age of twenty-one years without having been married [with the previous consent in writing of her or their guardian or guardians] or become an eldest or only daughter entitled as aforesaid then with or out of the share and accretions under this clause to the share of every child so dying or becoming entitled as aforesaid the sum of £—— shall be added to the share of each other of my said younger children and subject to the making of such additions the share and accretions thereto of every child so dying or becoming entitled as aforesaid shall sink into the residue of my personal estate.

Bequest to trustees, to carry interest, Upon trust for younger children nominatim.

On death of any son under twenty-one, or on becoming the eldest son; or on death of any daughter under twenty-one; out of the share of the children so dying, £—— to be added to the share of each of the other younger children, and the balance to fall into the residue.

I BEQUEATH the several annuities following namely To [name &c.] an annuity of £—— To [name] the wife of [name]

Life annuities;

an annuity of £—— for her separate use without power of anticipation To &c. [other annuities] the said annuities to be payable during the respective lives of the several annuitants in equal half-yearly portions the first of such portions to be paid at the end of six calendar months from my death And as to each or any of the said annuities I empower my trustees to appropriate in their names a fund in two and a half per cent. consolidated stock [or in any authorized trust investment or investments] sufficient at the time of appropriation to answer by the dividends [or annual income] thereof the payment of the annuity and in the meantime to pay the annuity out of the moneys to arise from my real and residuary personal estate hereinafter devised and bequeathed but the annuity shall after such appropriation as aforesaid be payable out of the appropriated fund exclusively in exoneration of my other estate and such fund shall subject to the payment of the annuity form part of my residuary personal estate.

—time of payment ;

—appropriation of funds ;

—exoneration of residue.

Annuity,
bequest of,
to valet.

I GIVE to G. A. who now resides at S. in Italy and who formerly lived with me as travelling servant for —— years or thereabouts an annuity of £—— free from legacy duty and all other deductions to be paid to the said G. A. during his life until he shall do or suffer any act or thing whereby the said annuity or any part thereof would but for this provision be assigned charged or incumbered and I direct that the said annuity shall be paid to the said G. A. personally or to such person as he shall from time to time but not by way of anticipation authorize to receive the same by equal half-yearly payments on the —— day of —— and the —— day of —— in every year and that the first half-yearly payment thereof shall be made on such of the said days as shall first happen after my death And I request that my executors will make provision for the punctual payment of the said annuity out of my personal estate periodically as it becomes due to the said G. A. at S. or at such other place as he may happen for the time being to reside in Provided always that it shall be lawful for my executors to accept the bond of the said —— the residuary legatee of my personal estate as sufficient security for the payment of the said annuity and that it shall not be incumbent upon them in that case to appropriate or set apart any fund to answer the same.

Power to accept bond of residuary legatee as a security.

I DIRECT my trustees as soon as may be after my death to sink the sum of £—— hereinbefore bequeathed to them [or one-fifth part of my net residuary estate] in the purchase from any person or persons or from any reputable insurance company in Great Britain of a clear irredeemable annuity to be payable to my trustees during the life of my nephew K. B. of &c. in equal portions half-yearly or quarterly and if not purchased from any insurance company to be well secured on real or Government securities or other good security in the discretion of my trustees And upon further trust to receive the annuity to be so purchased as last aforesaid as the same shall from time to time become due and if my said nephew shall not at my death be an undischarged bankrupt to pay the same into the hands of my said nephew until he shall become bankrupt or shall do or suffer some act or thing whereby the said annuity shall be wholly or partially assigned charged or incumbered (d) And on and after the bankruptcy or doing or suffering of any such act or thing as aforesaid then the said annuity shall cease to be payable to my said nephew and shall be held by my trustees upon the trusts following &c.

Trust to sink part of residue in a life annuity to be paid to the cestui que vie till bankruptcy or alienation.

(d) See Re Muggeridge's Estate, Joh. 625; 29 L. J. Ch. 288, as to the effect of insolvency before the annuity was actually payable; and Dorsett v. Dorsett, 30 Be. 256; 31 L. J. Ch. 122, in which case it was held that a clause of forfeiture on bankruptcy affected a share which accrued after the bankrupt had obtained his certificate, as well as his original share, and that the effect was to accelerate the interests in both shares of those persons claiming by reason of the forfeiture. See Jarm. Wills, 1514. A forfeiture may result from the debtor's petition under the Bankruptcy Acts. See Jarm. Wills, 1497 et seq.

Forfeiture.

As to the effect of foreign or colonial bankruptcies, see Re Blithman, L. R. 2 Eq. 23; Re Hayward, 1897, 1 Ch. 905; 66 L. J. Ch. 392; Jarm. Wills, 1511; and Re Anderson, 1911, 1 K. B. 896; 80 L. J. K. B. 919.

In Adams v. Adams, 1892, 1 Ch. 369; 61 L. J. Ch. 237, the forfeiture clause provided that if the legatee should attempt to interfere in the management of the testator's estate, his annuity should be thereby forfeited. The annuitant commenced an action against the trustees of the estate out of which his annuity was payable, alleging non-payment of his annuity, waste of the estate and other charges, all of which charges he failed to establish. The action was held to be frivolous and an attempt to interfere in the management, and the annuitant was declared to have forfeited his annuity. See Re Porter, 1892, 3 Ch. 481; 61 L. J. Ch. 688; Re Williams, 1912, 1 Ch. 399; 81 L. J. Ch. 296; Re Smith, 1916, 1 Ch. 369. For a case where a reversionary interest was given over in the event of the legatee being under "legal disability" to take the same for his own benefit at the death of the tenant for life, see Re Carew, 1896, 2 Ch. 311; 65 L. J. Ch. 686.

Where the clause provides for forfeiture on the legatee's "anticipating," and the legatee executes a deed by which he attempts to anticipate, but which proves inoperative, the forfeiture will not take effect, as "anticipating" will not be read as meaning "attempting to anticipate," Re Wormald, 43 Ch. D. 630; 59 L. J. Ch. 404. If the clause provides for forfeiture on alienation, or attempted alienation, a covenant in the marriage settlement of the legatee to settle any moneys coming to him under the will does not work a forfeiture, Re Crawshaw, 1891, 3 Ch. 176; 60 L. J. Ch. 583.

A document of charge which, as between the person giving it and the person to whom it is given, is voidable, or liable to be set aside by the Court, and is avoided or set aside accordingly, will not operate as a forfeiture, Re Sheward, 1893, 3 Ch. 502.

Charge of legacy on specific real estate, with provision for discharge thereof.

I CHARGE the said sum of £—— in aid of my personal estate (e) upon my freehold estates at —— And I declare that upon the investment by the trustees or trustee for the time being of this my will of the said sum of £—— in or upon any authorized trust investment or investments my said personal estate and the said estates at —— shall thenceforth be liberated from all and every trust charge and liability in respect of the said sum of £—— and all interest thereon And I declare that the production or other proof of the execution by the trustees or trustee of this my will of a deed declaring that such sum has been invested pursuant to the directions of this my will and the trusts upon which they or he held the same sum at the time of the investment thereof or a recital to the same effect in any deed executed by the trustees or trustee for the time being of this my will shall in favour of purchasers or mortgagees of the hereditaments so charged in aid of my personalty with the said sum of £—— be conclusive evidence of the due investment thereof and shall exonerate such purchasers or mortgagees therefrom and from all liability in respect of the insufficiency of the said investment and securities and from seeing to the application of the same sum and from inquiring into or taking notice of the misapplication thereof or of any part thereof.

Charge of legacies on real estate.

(e) A mere charge of debts or legacies upon the realty, or a charge upon the realty in aid of the personalty, does not alter the order and priority in which the different kinds of property are liable for the satisfaction of the debts or legacies, Jarm. Wills, ch. 54; Hawkins, Constr. Wills, ch. 20. There must appear in the will not merely the intention to charge the realty, but also a clear intention to exonerate the personalty, before the primary liability is transferred from the latter to the former. If a testator by deed conveys real and personal property to trustees on trust after his death to pay his debts and funeral expenses, and after reciting the deed in his will devises and bequeaths the residue of his real and personal estate not included in the deed, the charge of debts in the deed is not enough to shift the primary liability from the testator's general personal estate, but the charge of debts on the personal property included in the deed is enough to fasten the primary liability on this part of the personalty, Trott v. Buchanan, 28 Ch. D. 446; 54 L. J. Ch. 678.

And a general charge of annuities and legacies upon all the testator's real and personal estate (and therefore in terms including estates devised specifically) will not alone be sufficient to bring the specifically devised estates within the scope of the charge, Conron v. Conron, 7 H. L. C. 168. But see Re Emmerton's Estate, 3 D. J. & S. 338; Lord Portarlington v. Damer, 4 D. J. & S. 161; Mannor v. Greener, L. R. 14 Eq. 456.

As to the implied charge of legacies upon the real estate created by a residuary devise following bequests of legacies, see Greville v. Browne, 7 H. L. C. 689; Hassel v. Hassel, 2 Dick, 527; Re Bawden, 1894, 1 Ch. 693; 63 L. J. Ch. 412; Re Boards, 1895, 1 Ch. 499; 64 L. J. Ch. 305; Re Balls, 1909, 1 Ch. 791; 78 L. J. Ch. 341.

I DEVISE and bequeath all my real and personal estate to such persons for such estates or interests and in such manner as my wife shall from time to time by deed or writing under her hand or by will or codicil appoint or as to chattels passing by delivery to whom my wife shall deliver the same by way of gift or otherwise And in default of any such appointment or delivery To my wife during her life And after her death as to such parts of my real and personal estate as she shall not have disposed of as aforesaid I devise and bequeath the same as follows—

Corpus of estate at wife's disposal;

—in default to her for life; with gift over.

I DECLARE that notwithstanding the trusts hereinbefore contained of the annual income of the said sum of £—— and the investments thereof for the separate use of my said daughter Caroline it shall be lawful for my trustees so long as they shall deem it expedient so to do to pay or remit the annual income of the said sum of £—— and the investments thereof to such banker or agent as my said daughter shall from time to time appoint or to authorize such banker or agent to receive the same for the purpose of remittance or payment as my said daughter shall direct and every payment or remittance which shall be made by my trustees to or through the agency of a banker or agent appointed by my said daughter shall until such appointment be withdrawn by her be a good discharge to my trustees for the money which shall be so paid but this provision shall not preclude my trustees from requiring from time to time as the said annual income shall arise a special direction from my said daughter respecting the application thereof or otherwise from paying the same into her proper hands if my trustees shall deem it advisable so to do (f).

Separate estate of married woman—special directions as to payments through a banker or agent.

(f) This clause is framed to remove the doubt whether a trustee is justified in remitting income through a banker or agent to a married woman permanently resident abroad.

Trinkets, &c.,
to wife.

I GIVE to my wife [name] all the trinkets jewellery paraphernalia and ornaments of her person which shall have been used by her before my death And as to my gold and silver plate and my collection of paintings in oil I direct that the same shall go and be enjoyed as heirlooms with the freehold estates comprised in my marriage settlement.

Paintings, &c., as heirlooms.

Wife to have the use of household
furniture,
&c. ;

I BEQUEATH to my wife [name] the personal use and enjoyment in her residence for the time being so long as she shall continue my widow and shall reside in England of all my household furniture plate linen china glass books pictures prints musical instruments and other effects of a like nature which shall at my death be in or about my then dwelling-house (g) And I direct my executors (other than my said wife) to deliver the same to her within one calendar month next after my death on her signing an inventory thereof to be prepared and kept by my other executors who shall at the same time deliver to her a duplicate of such inventory signed by them And I empower my said other executors by writing under their hands to determine in case of dispute what articles shall be considered as included in the bequest lastly hereinbefore contained and I exonerate them from all responsibility in respect of the effects included in the same bequest after such delivery thereof as aforesaid until they shall receive actual notice that my wife is dead or has married again or is resident out of England.

—delivery and inventory ;

—power to determine questions.

(g) See note (d) to Prec. 5 and note (a) to Prec. 8.

I AUTHORIZE my trustees to dispose by way of gift or otherwise to such persons and in such manner as they shall think fit of my wearing apparel and any other articles of personal or household use or ornament not exceeding £—— each in value which they may for any reason think it unadvisable to sell.

Power to trustees to give away articles of small value.

I DECLARE that it shall be lawful for my trustees to permit my wife to take at a valuation to be made in such manner as they shall think fit all or any part of the furniture plate linen china glass printed books pictures prints musical instruments and other effects of a like nature of which I shall die possessed and to accept such bond or promissory note of hand or other personal security for the payment of the amount of such valuation either with or without interest by such instalments and at such time or times and in such manner as they shall think fit without incurring any responsibility by reason thereof.

Furniture.
Power to trustees to sell to wife, and to accept security for purchase-money.

I GIVE all my household furniture and all my plate linen pictures and books to my said trustees [names] UPON TRUST that my trustees shall permit my wife to have the personal use and enjoyment thereof during her life and after her death UPON TRUST that my trustees shall sell and convert the same into money and pay or divide the clear money arising therefrom to or amongst such of my children as shall be living at the death of my said wife and if more than one in equal shares PROVIDED nevertheless that if at the death of my said wife such of my children as shall be then living or the greater number of them shall have attained the age of twenty-one years and shall signify to my trustees the desire of such children or the greater number of them that my said furniture plate and other articles hereinbefore bequeathed shall not be sold but shall be divided in specie then the same shall be accordingly divided by my trustees into as many shares as there are children of mine living at the death of my said wife such shares to be as nearly of equal value as may be and such children shall have preference in the choice of shares according to priority of birth and all differences which shall arise respecting the division of such furniture and other articles shall be determined by my trustees whose decision shall be final AND I DIRECT my trustees to take an inventory of my said furniture

Bequest of furniture, plate, &c. to trustees upon trust for wife for life—to sell—and divide proceeds amongst children.
Proviso, allowing division in specie.

Inventory.

plate and other articles and deliver to my wife a copy thereof and to retain in their hands another copy.

Bequest to trustees of plate, &c., for unmarried children equally, with survivorship.

I BEQUEATH all my plate [&c.] unto the said — and — Upon trust to divide the same amongst such of my children as shall not at my death be or have been married in shares and proportions as nearly equal in value as may be such division to be made by my trustees according to the best of their judgement and if any of such children shall die under the age of twenty-one years then (h) the share or shares as well accruing as original of the child or children so dying shall belong to the others or other of such children to be divided between them if more than one in manner aforesaid.

Word “then.”

(h) The word “then,” as commonly interposed between two limitations, “is a particle of inference connecting the consequence with the premises, and meaning ‘in that event,’ or ‘if that happens.’ It is therefore, in those cases, a word of reasoning rather than of time,” per Lord Brougham in Campbell v. Harding, 2 R. & My. at 411. But in Gill v. Barrett, 29 Be. 372, the word “then,” used twice in the same sentence in a will, was construed in the first instance as pointing to the event, and in the second as an adverb of time. And see Wharton v. Barker, 4 K. & J. 483.

Specific legacies ;

I BEQUEATH the specific legacies following namely To my wife all the wines liquors fuel housekeeping provisions and other consumable stores which shall at my death be in or about my then dwelling-house To my son [name] my gold watch with its appendages To &c. [other specific legacies] AND I DIRECT the specific legacy hereinbefore bequeathed to my said wife to be delivered immediately after my death and the several other specific legacies hereinbefore bequeathed to be delivered within one calendar month after my death AND I DIRECT the legacy duty on and all the expenses incident to the aforesaid bequests (as well specific as pecuniary) and annuities to be paid by my trustees and executors out of the moneys to arise from the sale and conversion of my residuary estate.

Legacy duty and expenses.

General direction that gifts shall be free of duty.

I DECLARE that all legacies and annuities bequeathed by this my will or any codicil hereto and all specific devises and specific bequests made by this my will or any codicil hereto shall be free from all duties payable in respect of my death whether legacy duty succession duty estate duty or other duty now in force or at any time before my death imposed (i) And I direct that such duties shall be paid out of my residuary estate.

(i) As to the inconvenience of providing for duties subsequently imposed, see Re Stoddart, 1916, 2 Ch. at p. 448, and cases cited ante, p. 231.

WHEREAS my son John owes me the sum of — on mortgage of — &c. Now in case my said son John shall within eighteen calendar months from the day of my death assure the hereditaments comprised in the said mortgage to the uses for the purposes and subject to the powers and provisions of the settlement executed in contemplation of his marriage with his present wife concerning the real estate therein comprised or such of them as shall be then subsisting or capable of taking effect I DIRECT my executors to release the same hereditaments from the said sum of £—— and all interest and arrears of interest which may be owing thereon down to and including the day of the execution of the said assurance But if my said son shall for the said period of eighteen calendar months refuse neglect or omit to settle the said mortgaged hereditaments in manner aforesaid then I direct my executors to recover the said sum of £—— and the interest thereof or to foreclose the equity of redemption of the same hereditaments And if the said sum of £—— or any part thereof shall be recovered I direct my executors to invest the same in the purchase of freehold or copyhold messuages or lands of inheritance in possession and to assure the hereditaments so purchased or foreclosed (as the case may be) to the uses for the purposes and subject to the powers and provisions of the said marriage settlement concerning the real estate therein comprised or such of them as shall be then subsisting or capable of taking effect.

Conditional
bequest.

I DECLARE that the bequests to my wife herein contained are given on condition that she shall within six calendar months after my death execute and give a bond under her hand and seal to the trustees or trustee for the time being of this my will in a sufficient penalty conditioned for the payment unto such obligees or obligee their or his executors administrators or assigns by the executors or administrators of my wife within six calendar months after her death of the sum of £—— to be held upon the trusts herein declared or referred to of and concerning the same.

Bequest to wife on condition that she gives a bond to executors to pay £—— within six months after her death.

Legacy to debtor of debt secured
by mortgage.

I FORGIVE — of &c. and if he shall die in my lifetime his representatives the sum of £—— which he owes me on mortgage of his Dale Estate in the county of W. and all interest and arrears of interest thereon down to and including the day of my death And I appoint the said — my executor so far as relates to the said debt and devise the said Dale Estate unto the said — his heirs and assigns discharged from the said mortgage.

Legacy to
debtor;

I FORGIVE A. B. of &c. the debt of £—— which he owes me or so much thereof as shall be owing at my death (k) and all interest and arrears of interest thereon down to and including the day of my death [or and the interest thereon not exceeding one year's interest in case so much shall be owing at my death] and I DIRECT my executors to cancel and deliver to the said A. B. the bond by which the said sum of £—— and interest are secured AND in case the said A. B. shall die in my lifetime this bequest shall take effect in favour of the executors or administrators of the said A. B. for the benefit of his estate and my executors shall cancel and deliver the said bond to his executors or administrators.

—provision against lapse.

Legacy to debtor;
release of debt.

(k) In Eden v. Smyth, 5 Ves. 341, a legatee was held entitled to his legacy discharged from debts owing by him to the testator upon evidence from the testator's accounts and unattested memoranda in his writing. But see Chester v. Urwick, 23 Be. 404, as to the effect of such memoranda in releasing a debt. And see Re Tinline, 56 S. J. 310. A person who owes money to an estate, that is to say, who is bound to increase the general mass of the estate by a contribution of his own, cannot claim an aliquot share given to him out of that mass, without first making the contribution which completes it; and the benefit taken by a defaulting trustee under a will can be retained to make good his default whether that benefit came to him by original or derivative title, Re Dacre, 1916, 1 Ch. 344; 85 L. J. Ch. 274. And see Re Melton, 1918, 1 Ch. 37; 87 L. J. Ch. 18. If the debt is barred by statute, still the principle applies, Cherry v. Boulthbee, 4 My. & Cr. 442; 9 L. J. Ch. 118; explained in Re Pink, 1912, 1 Ch. 498; 2 Ch. 528; 81 L. J. Ch. 753; Courtenay v. Williams, 3 Ha. 539; 15 L. J. Ch. 204; Re Akerman, 1891, 3 Ch. 212; 61 L. J. Ch. 34. If the testator intends to forgive the statute-barred debts this should be made to appear clearly. As to the effect of a direction to bring debts into hotchpot, see Re Barker, 1918, 1 Ch. 128; 87 L. J. Ch. 166. Legacy duty will be payable by a debtor unless the gift to him be free of duty.

Power to
trustees to forgive debts.

I DECLARE that my trustees shall in their absolute and uncontrolled discretion and whether any debtor may appear able to pay or not be at liberty to exercise all or any of the powers conferred on trustees by section 21 of the Trustee Act 1893 and shall not be bound to enforce my strict rights in cases wherein they consider it probable that I should if alive have shewn leniency or forgone payment.

I GIVE to — of &c. the shares which may belong to me at the time of my death in the several companies mentioned in the schedule (l) to this my will I DECLARE that the dividends thereon accruing at the time of my death shall not be apportioned as between the said — and my executors and that the said — shall have the benefit of any calls paid by me in respect of the said shares in anticipation and that if any calls thereon shall be due and unpaid at the time of my death the same with all interest thereon shall be paid by my executors out of my general residuary estate I further declare that the said — shall be liable to pay all calls falling due after the day of my death in respect of the said several shares and shall exonerate my estate therefrom.

Legacy of shares; directions as to calls.

(l) Schedules, as they relieve the body of the will from much matter which interferes with the continuity of the instrument, may often be adopted with advantage in the preparation of wills. But care should be taken that the signature of the testator is underneath or follows the schedules.

Schedules.

I GIVE to — of &c. the sum of £— Two Pounds Ten Shillings per Cent. Annuities now standing in my name in the books of the Governor and Company of the Bank of England And in case I shall not have any such stock or stock to that amount standing in my name at the time of my death I DIRECT my executors out of my personal estate to purchase in the name of the said [legatee] the sum of £— like annuities or so much of the same annuities (as the case may be) as will make up that sum which I hereby give to the said [legatee].

Stock legacy.

I GIVE to — of &c. as a specific legacy the sum of £— Two and Three-quarters per Cent. Annuities now standing in my name in the books of the Governor and Company of the Bank of England (m) together with any dividends thereon whether in arrear or accruing due at the time of my death.

quent loss by the legatees of all benefit, see 2 Wms. Exors. 1061 et seq. And for a clause providing against ademption, see Prec. 11, clause 34, ante, p. 211.

Shares.

I GIVE to — of &c. as a specific legacy my twenty shares numbered 10—29 both inclusive in the — Life Assurance Company (n) and I declare that the dividends thereon current at the time of my death shall not be apportioned but shall belong wholly to the said —.

(n) See note (m) above.

Bonuses to be income.

I DECLARE that any bonus or bonuses which may from time to time be declared in respect of any shares or stock subject to the trusts of this my will shall be applied as and be deemed income arising from such shares or stock (o).

(o) See note (a) to Prec. 24.

Solicitor's books, drafts, and papers.

I GIVE to my son — all my law books books of account and business drafts papers and documents and the safes boxes cupboards and bookcases in which they shall be deposited at my death subject nevertheless as to the said business drafts papers and documents to the paramount right of any person or persons to order and direct the disposition thereof respectively.

Bequest of share in brewery.

I GIVE unto my said son — all my share and interest in the brewery and premises situate at — aforesaid carried on by him in his own name alone but in fact in partnership with me and in the plant (p) machinery fixtures utensils stock book-debts goodwill and effects connected therewith but this bequest is not to include any public-houses or other property separate and distinct from the said brewery though held by my said son and myself in connexion therewith.

Plant.
Goodwill.

(p) As to the word "plant," see Wood v. Gaynon, 1 Amb. 394; as to what is comprised in a bequest of "the plant and goodwill" of a business, Blake v. Shaw, Joh. 732. As to what is included in "all my share and interest" in the business of a solicitor, see Re Barfield, 84 L. T. 28.

Bequest of share in partnership concern.

I GIVE my share in the business of — carried on by me in partnership with — to my said trustees [names] UPON TRUST to continue and carry on the same until the determination of the partnership term by effluxion of time or otherwise and I DIRECT that the profits and proceeds of the said share shall be applied by my trustees as part of the annual income of my residuary personal estate and I FURTHER DIRECT that on the determination of the said term by effluxion of time or otherwise my share in the said partnership property and effects and the goodwill thereof shall be assigned to my eldest son John in consideration that he shall thereupon pay to my trustees such a sum of money as shall then be the excess of the value thereof (to be ascertained as hereinafter mentioned) above the sum of £5,000 with interest on such excess at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum computed from the determination of the said term And I DIRECT that the value Valuation. of my said share shall be determined by the award of three disinterested persons or of any two of them one of such persons to be chosen by my trustees other than my eldest son one other of them by my eldest son and the third by such two persons so chosen And that in determining such value nothing shall be Goodwill. charged for the goodwill of the said business And I direct that the sum of money to be paid by my eldest son as aforesaid shall be applicable as part of my residuary personal estate.

I BEQUEATH the sum of £—— to my trustees on trust to invest Provision in case of bankruptcy of legatee. the same and to pay the income of such investments to A. B. until he shall become a bankrupt or shall do or suffer any act or thing whereby the said annual income or his interest therein or any part thereof would or might but for this provision be charged or incumbered or become vested in (g) any other person persons or a corporation and I DIRECT that my trustees shall during the residue of the life of the said A. B. apply the said income for or towards the maintenance of the children of the said A. B. AND in case there shall not be any such child then in existence then I direct my trustees to apply the said income equally between C. D. E. F. and G. H. or such of them as shall be living at the determination of the said trust in favour of A. B. and in case they shall all be dead I bequeath the said investment to Y Z. absolutely but so that my trustees shall not be responsible for paying the said income to the said A. B. or permitting him to receive the same after the happening of any such act or thing as aforesaid unless and until they shall have received express notice thereof.

(g) Where the words were “would become payable to or vested in some other person" it was held that on a receiving order being made against the legatee, though his income would not vest in the official receiver, still, as it would become payable to the latter if it had belonged absolutely to the legatee, the clause for cesser of the legatee's interest took effect, Re Sartoris's Estate, 1892, 1 Ch. 11; 61 L. J. Ch. 1; Re Laye, 1913, 1 Ch. 298; 82 L. J. Ch. 218.

from anticipation.

—subject as above,

—for children equally.

If no child, to form part of the residue.

I DIRECT my trustees to invest the said sum of £—— and to stand possessed of the said sum and the securities for the same (hereinafter referred to as the said trust fund) upon the trusts following namely UPON TRUST to pay the annual income arising therefrom unto my niece C. C. the wife of T. C. of &c. during her life for her separate use and without power of anticipation And after her death in case she shall by her will so direct UPON trust to pay the whole or any part of such annual income unto her present or any other husband whom she may leave surviving her during his life or for any shorter period And subject as aforesaid as to as well the capital as the annual income of the said trust fund UPON TRUST for all the children of my said niece who being sons or a son shall attain the age of twenty-one years or being daughters or a daughter shall attain that age or be married and if more than one in equal shares AND in case there shall not be any such child then I direct that the said trust fund or so much thereof as shall not have been applied for maintenance shall form part of the residue of my estate.

Testamentary appointment of trust funds in execution of a power contained in a former will.

WHEREAS under the will of my late wife M. or otherwise I have in the event of there not being any child of mine by her living to acquire the absolute vested interest in certain trust-moneys or property comprised in the settlement made in contemplation of my marriage with her a power of disposing of such trust-moneys or property in such manner as I may think proper Now I DO HEREBY in execution of all powers and authorities enabling me in this behalf appoint and bequeath all trust-moneys and funds over which I have or eventually may have by virtue of the same will or otherwise any power of appointment or disposition to the said [trustees] Upon the same or the like trusts and subject to the same or the like provisions and declarations as are hereinbefore expressed and declared concerning my residuary personal estate or as near thereto as may be.

Appointment
to children.

IN EXERCISE of the power of appointment amongst my children (r) by my late wife Mary reserved to or vested in me by the settlement executed in contemplation of my marriage with her I hereby appoint and bequeath the sum of £—— comprised in the same settlement to my four daughters Mary B. Jane B. Sarah B. and Elizabeth B. in equal shares (s).

(r) A power to appoint to children absolutely is well exercised by giving a child a life interest, with power to appoint by will only, Slark v. Dakyns, L. R. 10 Ch. 35; 44 L. J. Ch. 205, if such child was in esse at the time of the creation of the power.

(s) Every power of appointment has now been made an exclusive power unless the donor of the power prescribes a minimum share which each or any object is to have, by 37 & 38 Vict. c. 37, which applies to appointments made after the 30th July, 1874, though the power was created before the Act.

I DEVISE all &c. TO THE USE of my children if more than one equally or my child if only one wholly in fee simple With cross limitations of the shares original and accruing of each of the children dying under the age of twenty-one years without leaving issue living at his or her death To the use of the others equally or the other wholly of the said children in fee simple.

Devise to children in fee, with cross executory limitations in fee.

I DEVISE and bequeath unto my said trustees [names] ALL that my freehold estate situate &c. AND ALL that piece of land held by me for the residue of a term of ninety-nine years granted by the late —— and being part of a tract of land called —— (but subject as to —— acres part thereof to a lease dated &c. granted ——) TO HOLD the said freehold and leasehold premises (t) unto and to the use of my said trustees their heirs executors and administrators respectively but subject to and charged exclusively in exoneration of my other estate with the payment by my said eldest son of the sum of £—— and interest for the same at the rate of four per cent. per annum computed from my death the first payment thereof to be made on the expiration of six calendar months next after my death And I direct that in case my said eldest son his executors administrators or assigns shall pay such interest as last mentioned by equal half-yearly payments on or within thirty days next after the said half-yearly days respectively then and in such case my trustees shall not require payment of the said sum of £—— until the —— day of —— AND I direct that the said sum of £—— and the interest thereof shall be applied

Specific devise and bequest of freeholds and leaseholds;

Subject to a charge.

by my trustees as part of my residuary personal estate AND subject to and charged with the said sum of £—— and the interest thereof I direct that the said freehold and leasehold premises shall be held by my trustees upon the trusts following that is to say

UPON SUCH TRUSTS for such estates or interests and in such manner in all respects as my said eldest son shall by deed or will appoint so only that every such appointment be made in favour of some one or more of his children or other issue born in his lifetime

And in default of and until such appointment UPON TRUST to pay the rents and annual proceeds thereof unto my said eldest son during his life And after his death as to the same freehold and leasehold premises respectively subject as aforesaid UPON TRUST for the child if only one or all the children equally if more than one of my said eldest son who being a son or sons shall attain the age of twenty-one years or being a daughter or daughters shall attain that age or be previously married but no child of my said eldest son in favour of whom or of any of whose issue an appointment shall be made under the power aforesaid shall participate under the trust last hereinbefore contained in the unappointed part of the said freehold and leasehold premises without bringing the benefit of such appointment into hotchpot AND in case there shall not be any child or other issue of my said eldest son who shall attain a vested interest under the powers or trusts aforesaid then I DIRECT that subject to the power for advancement hereinafter contained the said freehold and leasehold premises shall go and be considered as part of my residuary estate and be held upon the trusts thereof.

Upon trust for issue of son as he shall appoint;

—to son,
for life;

—his children;

—hotchpot.

Election bequest
cum onere.

(t) Where a testator makes several bequests to a devisee, one of which is clogged with a burden created by the testator, it is a question of intention, to be gathered from the will, whether the devisee must elect to take all or none of the gifts, or whether he may accept the beneficial gifts, and repudiate the burdensome one. Thus, where A. bequeathed a legacy to B., devised freeholds to B. and his wife for life with remainder over, and after various intervening gifts bequeathed leaseholds to B., it was held that B. might accept the legacy and freeholds, and repudiate the burdensome bequest of the leaseholds, Warren v. Rudall, 1 J. & H. 1; 29 L. J. Ch. 543; Long v. Kent, 6 N. R. 354.

leaseholds

I DEVISE and bequeath all my leases for lives of any lead or other mines or minerals and all contracts and agreements respecting any lead or other mines or minerals and all my personal estate not hereinbefore otherwise disposed of to my son or other descendant who shall first within the period of twenty-one years after my death be of the age of twenty-one years and entitled to the said hereditaments and premises comprised in the said settlement in remainder or reversion immediately expectant on the determination of the said term of 500 years.

of settled
freehold
estate.

I DEVISE all &c. — unto and to the use of — of &c. in fee simple upon the trusts following (that is to say) UPON TRUST that my trustees shall permit my wife [name] if she shall continue my widow and such of my daughters as shall from time to time be spinsters to have the personal use occupation and enjoyment as long as they or any one or more of them shall think fit personally to dwell in the same (u) of the messuage or tenement now in the occupation of B. with the gig-house and room over the same together with the washhouse [&c.] and the garden behind the said messuage together with the free use of the pump and water in the yard of my present dwelling-house and with liberty to pass and repass to and from the said messuage and premises the use and enjoyment whereof is hereinbefore given to them through over and along the yard of my said present dwelling-house to and from the public road or street now called — street my said wife and daughters or such of them as shall so use occupy and enjoy the said premises maintaining and keeping the same during such their or her use occupation and enjoyment thereof in good tenantable repair and condition to the satisfaction of my trustees AND as to all the said hereditaments and premises hereinbefore devised subject and without prejudice as to part thereof to the trusts hereinbefore contained in favour of my said wife and daughters UPON TRUST that during the minority of my son W. B. my trustees shall let the same for any term or terms not exceeding — years at the best yearly rent or rents and receive the rents issues and profits of the same hereditaments and premises and thereout in the first place pay and satisfy all the costs charges and expenses of insuring the same against loss or damage by fire and of maintaining and keeping the same in good tenantable repair and condition and all other incidental outgoings and expenses and in the next place apply such annual sum or sums as my trustees shall think expedient in or towards the maintenance and education or otherwise for the benefit of my said son W. B. in such manner as my trustees shall judge

real estate to trustees ;
to permit wife to during her widowhood ;

—to let and manage,
during the minority of son.

most beneficial and dispose of the residue or surplus (if any) of the same rents issues and profits as part of my residuary personal estate AND subject thereto UPON TRUST for my said son W. B. his heirs and assigns.

Use and occupation.

(u) A devise of the "use and occupation" of land does not usually necessitate personal use and occupation, but authorizes a letting of the land, Rabbeth v. Squire, 4 De G. & J. 406; 28 L. J. Ch. 565. But the more limited construction may be required by the context, Maclaren v. Stainton, 27 L. J. Ch. 442; Parker v. Parker, 1 N. R. 508.

Again, where a testator gave his pictures to trustees upon trust to permit a certain person to have the "use and enjoyment" thereof during her life, and that person had some of the pictures in a flat which she let furnished for a short time, it was held that she was entitled to let the pictures together with her flat, and was not restricted to personal enjoyment, Re Williamson, 94 L. T. 813.

Devise to uses in strict settlement.

TO THE USE of my eldest son [name] and of every other son of mine and their respective issue male so that every elder son and his issue male be preferred to and take before every younger son and his issue male and that my grandsons respectively with their respective issue male take in succession and according to their respective seniorities and so that every such son and every such grandson who shall be begotten in my lifetime take an estate for his life without impeachment of waste with remainder to his first and every subsequent son successively according to seniority in tail male and that every such grandson who shall be begotten after my death take an estate in tail male (x).

(x) See note (c) to Prec. 28, ante, p. 370.

Limitation for life, remainder to the first and other sons of life-tenant in tail, remainder to his daughters as tenants in common in tail, with cross-remainders between them.

TO THE USE of A. B. and his assigns during his life without impeachment of waste (y) AND immediately after the death of the said A. B. or the determination in his lifetime of the estate hereinbefore limited to him TO THE USE of the first and every other son successively of the said A. B. in remainder one after another and the heirs of the body of each such son every elder son and the heirs of his body taking before every younger son and the heirs of his body AND on failure of such issue TO THE USE of the daughter of the said A. B. if only one or all the daughters of the said A. B. if more than one to take in equal shares as tenants in common and the heirs of the body or respective bodies of such daughter or daughters AND on failure of the issue of each of the said daughters as to as well the share hereinbefore limited to her as the share or shares limited to her by this limitation of cross-remainders To THE USE of the other if only one or the others if more than one of the said daughters and if more than one to take as aforesaid and the heirs of her or their body or respective bodies AND on failure of such issue To THE USE of the said A. B. his heirs and assigns for ever.

(y) This and the six forms next following are taken, with variations, from Hayes "On Limitations to Heirs in Tail." In the original forms there were trusts to preserve contingent remainders. Since the Real Property Act, 1845, such trusts have not been considered necessary. See Challis, R. P. 142 et seq., and ante, p. 227.

To THE USE of the said A. and B. their executors and administrators during the life of my son C. UPON TRUST to permit the said C. and his assigns to receive the rents and profits of the said hereditaments during his life subject to the proviso herein-after contained AND immediately after the death of the said C. To THE USE of the heirs male of the body of the said C. AND on failure of such issue To THE USE of the heirs of the body of the said C. AND on failure of such issue To THE USE of the said [trustees] their executors and administrators during the life of every son of mine hereafter to be born UPON TRUST to permit the same son to receive the rents and profits of the said hereditaments during his life subject to the proviso hereinafter contained With remainder To THE USE of the heirs male of the body of every such son With remainder to the use of the heirs of the body of every such son in such order that the trust and uses in favour of every elder son and his issue shall precede the trust and uses in favour of every younger son and his issue AND on failure of such issue To THE USE &c. PROVIDED that if the said C. or any son of mine hereafter to be born shall become bankrupt or shall do or permit any act or thing whereby the rents and profits of the said hereditaments or any part thereof shall or may be aliened or incumbered then the trust hereinbefore contained for the payment of the rents and profits of the said hereditaments to such son shall thenceforth cease and such rents and profits shall during the remainder of the life of the same son be received and enjoyed by the person or persons for the time being next beneficially entitled in remainder or reversion expectant on the death of such son.

Equitable limitations to a son in esse and every after-born son of the testator for life, with legal remainders to the heirs in tail of each such son, and a proviso determining the life interest on bankruptcy or alienation.

Limitation for life, remainder to the first and other sons of life-tenant born in testator's lifetime for life; remainder to such son's first and other sons in tail male; remainder to after-born sons in tail male; remainder to first tenant for life in tail; reversion to testator's right heirs; [with variation substituting a term of years determinable on life for the life estate.]

To THE USE of A. and his assigns during his life AND from and after his death [or for the term of one hundred years to be computed from my death if he shall so long live (z) and immediately after the expiration or sooner determination of the same term] To THE USE of the first son born in my lifetime of the said A. and the assigns of such son during his life AND immediately after his death [or To THE USE of the first son &c. and the assigns of such son during the term of one hundred years if he shall so long live and immediately after the expiration or sooner determination of the same term] To THE USE of such son's first and every other son successively in remainder one after another and the heirs male of the body of each such last-mentioned first and every other son the elder and the heirs male of his body taking before the younger and the heirs male of his body AND on failure of such issue To THE USE of the second and every subsequent son born in my lifetime of the said A. for the life of each such son [or for the term of one hundred years if such son shall so long live] with remainder To THE USE of such son's first and every other son successively in tail male in manner hereinbefore expressed with respect to the said A.'s first son and his issue male every elder of such second and other sons and his issue male taking before every younger and his issue male AND on failure of such issue To THE USE of the first and every other son born after my death of the said A. and the heirs male of the body of each such son every elder son and the heirs male of his body taking before every younger son and the heirs male of his body AND on failure of such issue To THE USE of the said A. and the heirs of his body AND on failure of such issue To THE USE of my own right heirs for ever.

(z) See Coape v. Arnold, 4 D. M. & G. 574; 24 L. J. Ch. 673; and Jarm. Wills, 1862.

Limitations to husband and wife, remainder to their children as they or the survivor shall appoint;

To THE USE of A. and his assigns during his life AND immediately after his death To THE USE of D. his wife and her assigns during her life AND immediately after her death To THE USE of all or any one or more exclusively of the children and (a) more remote issue (such issue coming into being in the lifetime of the said A. and D. or the survivor of them) for such estate or estates in such shares subject to such limitations and in such manner in all respects as the said A. and D. by any deed or deeds revocable or irrevocable or as the survivor of them by any deed or deeds revocable or irrevocable or by his or her will shall appoint AND in default of appointment and subject to any partial appointment To THE USE of the child or children if more than one of the said A. and D. as tenants in common in equal shares and the heirs and assigns of such child or respective children AND in case any of the said children shall die under the age of twenty-one years without leaving issue living at his or their death or respective deaths [or under the age of twenty-one years without having been married or being a son or sons under the age of twenty-one years or being a daughter or daughters under that age without having been married] then as to as well the share hereinbefore limited to each child so dying as the share or shares limited to such child by this executory limitation To THE USE of the other or others if more than one of the said children in equal shares and the heirs and assigns of such other or others respectively AND in case there shall not be any child of the said A. and D. or not any such child who shall attain the age of twenty-one years or who dying under that age shall leave issue living at his or her death [or who shall attain the age of twenty-one years or be married or who being a son shall attain the age of twenty-one years or being a daughter shall attain that age or be married] To THE USE of the survivor of the said A. and D. and the heirs and assigns of such survivor for ever.

and in default of appointment to the children in common in fee, with cross executory limitations;

with an ultimate limitation to the surviving parent in fee.

(a) It will be observed that this power is in favour of "all or any one or more exclusively of the children and more remote issue;" the commoner form is in favour of "children or more remote issue." The question then arises whether the appointment must not be in favour of children only, or of remoter issue only; in other words, whether an appointment to both children and issue is valid. If the terms of the power were strictly and literally followed, such an appointment would not be valid, but see Re Veale's Trusts, 4 Ch. D. 61; 5 Ch. D. 622, and Jarm. Wills, 824. The language of the text prevents the occurrence of this question.

Appointment.
Children and issue; children or issue.

Where there is a devise to a person and his children or issue, and he has no issue at the time of the devise, such person takes an estate tail. This is the rule in Wild's Case, 6 Rep. 16 b; see Tud. L. C. R. P. Where, however, there are children at the time of the devise, the parent and children take jointly. The rule in Wild's Case is not now to be departed from, Clifford v. Koe, 5 App. Cas. 447. And see Re Clerke, 1915, 2 Ch. 301; 84 L. J. Ch. 807.

Rule in Wild's Case :

apply to personalty.

The rule in Wild's Case is not applicable to personalty, Audsley v. Horn, 1 D. F. & J. 226; 29 L. J. Ch. 201. See also Re Jones, 1910, 1 Ch. 167; 79 L. J. Ch. 34; Jarm. Wills, ch. 50; Hawkins, Constr. Wills, 243.

TO THE USE of A. and his assigns during his life And after his death TO THE USE of — and — in fee simple UPON TRUST for the child if only one or the children if more than one of the said A. who either before or after his death shall attain the age of twenty-one years or dying under that age shall leave issue living at his her or their death or respective deaths such children if more than one to take equally as tenants in common and the heirs and assigns of such child or respective children AND if there shall not be any child of the said A. who shall attain the said age or dying under that age shall leave issue living at his or her death UPON TRUST &c.

Limitations
to sons and daughters successively
in fee simple,
by way of executory
trust.

TO THE USE of the first son of the said A. and the heirs and assigns of such son AND if such son shall die under the age of twenty-one years without leaving issue living at his death TO THE USE of the second and every other son of the said A. according to the order of their respective births and the heirs and assigns of each such son in a succession of executory limitations in fee simple so that the estate of each such son shall in the event of his death under the age of twenty-one years without leaving issue living at his death be divested and go over to his next brother (b) And if there shall not be any son of the said A. or not any such son who shall attain the age of twenty-one years or who dying under that age shall leave issue living at his death then TO THE USE of the first daughter of the said A. &c.

45 & 46 Vict.
c. 39, s. 10.

(b) By sect. 10 of the Conveyancing Act, 1882, it is enacted that, in cases of executory limitations contained in an instrument coming into operation after that year, where there is a person entitled to land for an estate in fee, or for a term of years absolute or determinable on life, or for term of life, with an executory limitation over on default or failure of all or any of his issue, whether within or at any specified period of time or not, that executory limitation shall be or become void and incapable of taking effect, if and as soon as there is living any issue who has attained the age of twenty-one years of the class on default or failure whereof the limitation over was to take effect.

Restriction
on executory
limitations.

Limitation to children and issue, per stripes, in fee.

TO THE USE of the children of the said A. living at his death and the issue then living of the children of the said A. then dead as tenants in common and the heirs and assigns of such children and issue respectively but so that such issue shall take equally amongst them the share or shares only which their deceased parent or parents if living would have taken AND if there shall not be any child or issue of a deceased child of the said A. living at his death TO THE USE &c.

I DEVISE my real estate to A. B. if he shall survive me in fee simple And if he shall die in my lifetime leaving sons or a son who shall survive me then to the first second and every subsequent son of A. B. successively according to seniority in fee simple so that the estate of each son shall in the event of his death under the age of twenty-one years without leaving a son living at his death be divested and go over to his next brother Provided always that if any son of A. B. shall become entitled to my real estate under this devise he shall take it subject to and I hereby charge such real estate with the payment of £—— to each of the children of A. B. (other than the son becoming entitled as aforesaid) who being a son shall attain the age of twenty-one years or being a daughter shall attain that age or be married under that age with the consent of her mother or guardian for the time being And if the said A. B. shall die in my lifetime and there shall not be any son of his who shall attain the age of twenty-one years then and in that case I devise my real estate to C. D. or to his son or sons in the same manner and charged in all respects as if the preceding devise and proviso were repeated at length with the name C. D. substituted throughout for A. B.

Devise in fee, in case of death to sons successively in fee;

—charged with a sum for brothers and sisters.

TO SUCH USES for such estates and with and subject to such powers and provisions as under or by virtue of the said will of — [or of an indenture of settlement dated &c. and made between &c.] and all mesne assurances acts and operations of law shall at the time of my death be subsisting and capable of taking effect of and concerning the hereditaments comprised in the same will [or settlement] (c).

Devise to uses by reference.

(c) Where property is devised or bequeathed to uses or on trusts by reference, it is usual to add words to the effect that charges or powers of charging are not thereby to be increased or multiplied. Cases may occur where such words would be necessary, see Cooper v. Macdonald, L. R. 16 Eq. 258; 42 L. J. Ch. 533; Re Beaumont, 1913, 1 Ch. 325;

Trusts by reference.

Multiplication of charges.

82 L. J. Ch. 183. But trusts by reference are not, generally speaking, to be so read as to create a multiplication of charges, Hindle v. Taylor, 5 D. M. & G. 577; 25 L. J. Ch. 78; Boyd v. Boyd, 2 N. R. 486; Trew v. The Perpetual Trustee Co., 1895, A. C. 264; 64 L. J. P. C. 49. A power to sell given by reference to a power to sell and give a receipt does not necessarily give power to receive purchase-money, Cox v. Cox, 1 K. & J. 251. For a case where the trusts by reference were in the event for the testator himself, see Re Powell, 1918, 1 Ch. 407; 87 L. J. Ch. 237.

Advowson. I DEVISE the advowson and perpetual right of presentation (d) to the rectory of the parish church of — in the county of — UNTO and to the use of my son A. B. his heirs and assigns.

Advowson. (d) An advowson, or perpetual right of presentation to a parish church, is an incorporeal hereditament, and if not devised is descendible in the same mode as freeholds of inheritance. But where the vacancy occurs in the lifetime of the patron seised in fee, the next presentation is only a chattel interest and goes to his personal representative, Mirehouse v. Rennell, 8 Bing. 490; unless the patron is also the incumbent, in which case the next presentation descends to his heir as part of the advowson, Holt v. Bishop of Winchester, 3 Lev. 47; unless he devises the presentation to another, as he may do, notwithstanding that the church becomes vacant by his death.

An advowson, as temporal property, is assets for payment of debts in the hands of the heir, Westfaling v. Westfaling, 3 Atk. 460. An advowson appendant to a manor will pass by a devise of the manor; but an advowson in gross will not pass by a devise of the testator's lands simply, though it will pass by the words tenements and hereditaments, ib. Advowsons in gross will pass under general words of devise—namely, "All other my real estate in the county of L."—notwithstanding that such words are not words of apt description, Re Hodgson, 1898, 2 Ch. 545; 67 L. J. Ch. 591.

Advowson. I DEVISE the advowson of the rectory of — in the county of — UNTO A. B. and C. D. their executors and administrators for the term of 60 years computed from my death if my son the Rev. M. N. shall so long live UPON TRUST whenever the said advowson shall become vacant after my death to present thereto my said son M. N. if willing to accept the same AND from and after the determination of the said term and in the meantime subject thereto and to the trusts thereof I devise the said advowson TO THE USES herein declared of and concerning my real estate devised in strict settlement [or of and concerning my residuary real estate] (e).

Sale of living, (e) The Benefices Act, 1898 (61 & 62 Vict. c. 48), has imposed restrictions upon the sale of advowsons by public auction. Sect. 1, sub-sect. 2, of that Act enacts as follows:—

“It shall not be lawful to offer for sale by public auction any right of patronage, save in the case of an advowson to be sold in conjunction with any manor, or with an estate in land of not less than one hundred acres situate in the parish in which the benefice is situate or in an adjoining parish and belonging to the same owner as the advowson, and any person who offers any right of patronage for sale by auction in contravention of this section, or who bids at any such sale, shall be liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding one hundred pounds.”

This Act amends the law with regard to the sale and transfer of rights of patronage in other important respects.

AND WHEREAS I have lately contracted to sell (f) to — for the sum of £—— my freehold estate situate at — I hereby devise the same estate (subject to the said contract) to A. B. his heirs and assigns AND in case the said contract shall be carried into execution then I give to the said A. B. his executors administrators and assigns the said sum of £—— purchase-money which I or the executors of my will shall receive for the same And I direct that the costs incident to the said contract for sale whether the same be completed or not be borne by my residuary personal estate.

Devise of lands contracted to be sold.

If sold, purchase-money instead.

(f) A devise by a testator of an estate which he “lately contracted to sell to M.,” has been held to be a devise of the legal estate merely to enable the devisee to carry out the contract, but not so as to entitle the devisee to the purchase-money, Knollys v. Shepherd, cited 1 J. & W. 499, affirmed in D. P. Sugd. Law of Property, 223. It is conceived, however, that if the purchase had not been completed, the devisee in the above case would have been entitled to the land. As to lands specifically devised and subsequently sold, see note to sect. 23, ante, p. 52. And as to lands contracted to be sold passing under a devise of trust estates, when the testator died before completion, see Lysaght v. Edwards, 2 Ch. D. 499; 45 L. J. Ch. 554.

Devise of lands contracted to be sold.

By sect. 4 of the Conveyancing Act, 1881, where at the death of any person after 1881 there is a subsisting enforceable contract for sale of a freehold estate in land, his personal representatives are empowered to convey the estate vested in him at his death in any manner proper for giving effect to the contract, but without prejudice to the beneficial rights of any person claiming under the will or intestacy of the vendor. And see Land Transfer Act, 1897, Part I. Under sect. 12 (1) of the Conveyancing Act, 1911, the executor or executors to whom probate has at any time been granted can, since 1911, convey real estate without the concurrence of executors to whom power to prove has been reserved.

44 & 45 Vict. c. 41, s. 4.

1 & 2 Geo. 5, c. 37.

Gift of money in lieu of estate, if sold. I DEVISE all &c. [to uses] PROVIDED ALWAYS that if at the time of my death I shall have sold and conveyed the said estate or any part thereof my trustees shall invest the sum of £—— or a proportionate part thereof to be fixed by them in their discretion upon trusts corresponding as nearly as may be with the uses hereinbefore declared concerning the said estate.

Contract to purchase. AND WHEREAS I have contracted with —— of —— for the purchase of certain freehold hereditaments at —— I hereby authorize my trustees to complete such purchase or to relinquish the same as circumstances may require and as they in their discretion may think best AND I authorize my trustees to accept such a title (whether strictly marketable or not) to the said hereditaments as they shall deem it prudent to accept and if they shall think fit to waive any objections and requisitions and to dispense with any inquiries and evidence which they may be entitled (and but for this authority would be bound) to insist on make or require.

Discretion in trustees to complete.

Devise of estate contracted to be purchased. I DEVISE unto A. B. of —— his heirs and assigns the freehold estate situate at —— which I have contracted to purchase for the sum of £—— from Mr. —— of —— which sum if unpaid at my death is to be paid out of my personalty in exoneration of the said estate And in case a good title to the said estate cannot be made I direct my executors to invest the sum of £—— in the purchase of freehold leasehold or copyhold hereditaments in such part of England as the said A. B. his heirs or assigns shall choose and by writing under his or their hands direct AND I DIRECT that upon payment by my executors of the said sum of £—— such hereditaments shall be conveyed and assured unto the said A. B. his heirs executors administrators and assigns respectively according to the tenure thereof in lieu of the estate which I have contracted to purchase as aforesaid.

Devise to children as parents shall appoint; in default, as survivor shall appoint; in default, to children equally. TO AND FOR such uses estates intents and purposes and in such manner and subject to such charges powers and provisions for the benefit of all or any one or more of the issue of my said sister [name] whether children grandchildren or more remote issue born in her lifetime as she the said [name] and [name] her husband at any time or times by deed with or without power of revocation and new appointment to be executed by them in the presence of and to be attested by two or more witnesses shall jointly appoint or as the survivor of them after the death of either of them shall in like manner or by his or her last will appoint AND in default of and subject to any and every such appointment To THE USE of an only child or all the children of the said [sister] whether born before or after my death if more than one as tenants in common in equal shares and the respective heirs and assigns of such child or children as aforesaid But if any of such children born in my lifetime shall die without leaving issue living at his her or their death or respective deaths then as to the share or shares of the child or respective children so dying as well original as accruing under this limitation To THE USE of the other child or children of the said [sister] and if more than one as tenants in common in equal shares and the heirs and assigns of such other child or respective children AND if no child of the said [sister] born in my lifetime shall leave issue living at his or her death or no child of my said sister born after my death shall attain the age of twenty-one years or dying under that age shall leave issue living at his or her death Then notwithstanding any appointment to be made in exercise of the power hereinbefore given of appointing to children and issue so that as well the estates and interests to be created by any exercise of such power as the estate and interests hereinbefore limited in default of appointment may be defeasible by this executory limitation over To THE USE &c.

Accruer, on death of children without issue in favour of the others or other.

Executory gift over.

I DIRECT that my sons successively and according to their respective seniorities shall have the option of purchasing in one lot the real and leasehold estates belonging to me at the time of my death situate in the parish of — at a valuation to be made by two competent valuers to be appointed by my trustees or if such valuers shall disagree by a third valuer to be appointed in writing by the two first-named valuers before entering upon the valuation as their umpire such option to be declared by notice in writing delivered to my trustees or any one of them or left at their or one of their usual or last known places or place of abode by my eldest son within one calendar month next after my death and by my other sons respectively within one calendar month next after the time when the period allowed to the person next preceding him in seniority shall have expired or such person shall have declared in writing his intention not to purchase the same real and leasehold estates but no purchaser under the trusts of this my will shall be obliged to take notice of or be affected by this power of pre-emption.

Power for son who is a trustee to purchase real or personal estate.

I AUTHORIZE my said son A. notwithstanding his being a trustee of this my will to purchase any part or parts of my real or personal estate hereinbefore devised and bequeathed in trust as aforesaid at any sale or sales thereof by public auction or by private contract provided in the latter case that the sale shall be conducted by the trustees or trustee of my will other than the said A. or be made at a price fixed by a valuer appointed by such other trustees or trustee.

Devise of two messuages to trustees to offer one to testator's first and second sons and the other to the same sons, reversing their order, in succession, and if they decline, then, to sell.

I DEVISE all that piece of ground situate &c. and all those two messuages &c. thereon UNTO the said [trustees] in fee simple UPON TRUST that my trustees shall as soon as conveniently may be after my death offer to my eldest son [name] and my second son [name] successively the option of becoming the purchaser of the easternmost of the said two messuages and the ground thereto belonging at the price of £—— and offer to my said second and eldest sons successively the option of becoming the purchaser of the other of the same two messuages and the ground thereto belonging at the price of £—— and allow to each of my said sons the space of two calendar months from the time of making such offer to him for determining whether he will accept or refuse the same AND in case my said sons or either of them shall accept such offer of the same messuages or either of them within the space aforesaid then on payment to my trustees of the purchase-money for the same my trustees shall convey and assure the same unto such son or sons respectively BUT if the same messuages or either of them shall not be purchased by my said sons or one of them pursuant to the trust last aforesaid THEN upon trust that my trustees shall sell and absolutely dispose of the said messuages or such of them as shall not be so purchased with the ground and appurtenances thereunto belonging AND I declare that my trustees shall stand possessed of the moneys to arise from the sale of the said messuages and premises whether purchased by my said sons or either of them or by any other person or persons upon the trusts hereinafter expressed and contained concerning the moneys to arise from my residuary personal estate.

AND AS TO my freehold messuages lands tenements and hereditaments specified in the second schedule (g) hereto AND ALSO as to my messuages lands tenements and hereditaments specified in the third schedule hereto And all other the property real and personal not hereinbefore specifically disposed of whereof I shall be possessed or have power to dispose at the time of my death (subject to the payment of my debts and funeral and testamentary expenses and the pecuniary legacies hereinbefore bequeathed and including after my wife's death the freehold hereditaments specified in the first schedule hereto) I GIVE devise appoint and bequeath the same unto my said son name] his heirs executors administrators and assigns absolutely AND I DECLARE that all sales leases exchanges mortgages charges contracts and other dealings whatsoever to be made created entered into or transacted by my said son his heirs executors administrators or assigns for valuable consideration of or upon or in respect of my residuary real property or any part or parts thereof shall as against my creditors and pecuniary legatees and for the protection and exoneration of purchasers and other parties to such sales or other dealings take effect as paramount and precedent to the charges in favour of such creditors and legatees created by my will and be of the same force as if such charges were omitted from my will [yet so that as to the freehold hereditaments specified in the first schedule hereto such sales or other dealings be during the life of my wife made created or entered into with her concurrence] and this declaratory clause shall not exclude prejudice or affect any protection or exoneration to which such purchasers or other parties would be entitled under the rules or doctrines of equity.

But costs occasioned by administration of realty are borne by the real estate, Re Betts, 1907, 2 Ch. 149; 76 L. J. Ch. 463. Estate duty on realty is not, but estate duty on personalty passing to the executor as such is, a testamentary expense. A fund appointed under a general power does not pass to the executor as such, and it must bear its own duty, O'Grady v. Wilmot, 1916, 2 A. O. 231; 85 L. J. (l) The power of advancement is sometimes omitted on the supposition that it will be inserted in the instrument of appointment. The insertion of the power in the will provides not only for the case, which is of frequent occurrence, of the instrument of appointment containing no such power, but also for the case of there being no appointment.

I DEVISE and bequeath all hereditaments whatsoever of or to which I shall be seised or entitled at my death not otherwise herein disposed of And also all leasehold tenements sums of money and other personal estate to which I shall be entitled at my death not otherwise herein disposed of (all which are together hereinafter referred to as the said residuary trust premises) unto and to the use of my said trustees [names] their heirs executors administrators and assigns UPON TRUST that my trustees by and out of the rents interest and other annual proceeds thereof or by exercising the powers to sell and mortgage hereinafter contained or either of them as my trustees shall in their absolute discretion think proper shall pay my funeral and testamentary expenses and my debts and the legacies hereinbefore given and any other legacies I shall hereafter bequeath free from legacy duty and without deduction and pay such sums of money as my trustees shall think proper to expend in altering or improving any of the said residuary trust premises or in completing any messuage or other building on the said trust premises that shall be in course of erection at the time of my death and all succession and legacy duties that shall be payable by reason or in consequence of any Advancement out of expectant share.

I DIRECT that all my plate pictures books and furniture which at the time of my death shall be in or about my house at — shall be deemed heir-looms and go along with my said house to the person or persons who under the limitations hereinbefore contained shall for the time being be entitled to the same (m) and for that purpose I exempt the said plate pictures books and furniture from the payment of my debts and legacies (n) AND I DECLARE that such heir-looms shall be subject to an executory limitation over on the death under the age of twenty-one years of any tenant in tail by purchase of the said house (o) to or in favour of the person or persons entitled under the subsequent limitations according to the tenor of such limitations.

Heir-looms ;

—exonerated from testator's debts ;
—but subject to limitation over.

(m) Where there is a gift to a person and his successors to be enjoyed with and go with the title in the nature of heir-looms, this is construed as a direct, and not an executory, gift to the first person having the title, and he takes absolutely, Rowland v. Morgan, 2 Ph. 764; 18 L. J. Ch. 78; Re Johnston, 26 Ch. D. 538; 53 L. J. Ch. 645. And even if the gift is qualified by any such expression as "so far as the rules of law or equity permit," this does not make the gift executory or avoid the rule against perpetuities, Tollemache v. Earl of Coventry, 2 Cl. & F. 611; Re Viscount Exmouth, 23 Ch. D. 158; 52 L. J. Ch. 420; Re Hill, 1902, 1 Ch. 807; 71 L. J. Ch. 417. But where it clearly appears that the testator's gift is intended to be executory, the Court will model the gift so as to carry into effect as far as possible the testator's wishes, Sackville-West v. Viscount Holmesdale, L. R. 4 H. L. 543; 39 L. J. Ch. 505. Thus where there was a gift in these terms, "As to all the household furniture, paintings . . . and the whole contents of my said house . . . I bequeath the same to my trustees . . . upon trust that they shall select . . . a collection of the best for the said Earl of Essex and his successors to be held and settled as heir-looms and to go with the title," this was held to be a direction to settle the furniture, &c., and the Court gave the first holder of the title only a life interest. But a gift of plate, and also of a leasehold house to the sixth Earl of Essex and "to his successors and to be enjoyed with and to go with the title" was held to be a direct executed gift which the Court could not model, and that the sixth Earl took absolutely, Re Johnston, 26 Ch. D. 538; 53 L. J. Ch. 645. See Jarm. Wills, 692 et seq.; Re Beresford-Hope, 1917, 1 Ch. 287; 86 L. J. Ch. 182; and ante, note (i) to Prec. 28.

Legacy duty
on plate, &c.

(n) Legacy duty is not payable on plate or other articles not yielding income bequeathed to persons in succession, until the articles are either sold, or devolve upon some person having power to sell, or an absolute interest therein (36 Geo. 3, c. 52, s. 14).

Shifting
clause.

PROVIDED ALWAYS that if the second or any other [younger] son of the said — or any issue male of such second or other [younger] son shall become entitled to the family estate of —

and any younger son of the said — or any issue male of his body entitled or inheritable under the aforesaid limitations or proviso shall be then living then and in such case and as often as the same shall happen the uses originally or by virtue of the last proviso limited to the son who or whose issue shall so become entitled as aforesaid shall cease (s) BUT my will is that if by virtue of such proviso the said hereditaments shall have shifted from any younger son of the said — or from his issue male and there shall afterwards be a failure of issue male of all the sons of the said — younger than the son from whom or from whose issue male the same shall have so shifted as aforesaid THEN and in that case the same hereditaments and premises shall return be and remain TO THE USES and be held in the manner to and in which the same would have gone and been held if the proviso for shifting the same had not been inserted in this my will.

(s) See, as to shifting clauses, Micklethwait v. Micklethwait, 4 C. B. N. S. 790; Shuttleworth v. Murray, 1901, 1 Ch. 819, affirmed 1902, A. C. 263. The operation of such a clause in a will is simply to accelerate the next remainder, and the person from whom the estate shifts is not deemed to be dead without issue, but he and his issue may take the estate under a subsequent limitation, Jellicoe v. Gardiner, 11 H. L. C. 323; 34 L. J. C. P. 282. As to the words "except an eldest son" or "become the eldest son," see Tuite v. Bermingham, L. R. 7 H. L. 634; Bathurst v. Errington, 2 App. Cas. 698; 46 L. J. Ch. 748; and Jarm. Wills, 1741.

Shifting clauses.

I EMPOWER my trustees until the sale of my real estate (but without prejudice to the directions hereinbefore contained as to the occupation by my wife of part of my estates at —) to let the same or any part or parts thereof from year to year or for any term or terms of years in possession at the best rent or rents without taking any fine or premium subject to such covenants and conditions as they shall think reasonable AND I DIRECT that the rents interest dividends and yearly produce of my real and residuary personal estate for the time being unsold or unconverted (including the profits of my said business if carried on as aforesaid) shall be deemed annual income for the purposes of the trusts hereinbefore contained and be payable and applicable in the same or the like manner as the yearly produce of the trust fund aforesaid would if such fund were realised and invested be applicable.

Power to trustees to lease real estate (t), subject to wife's right to occupy part.

Annual income of real and personal estate till sale, and of trade, to be applied in the same way as income of trust fund.

(t) The Settled Land Act, 1882, Part IV., confers wide powers on the tenant for life of settled land of leasing for ordinary, or building, or mining purposes; and on a sale or grant for building purposes, or a building lease, sect. 16 of the Act gives to the tenant for life powers as to the dedication of parts of the land for streets, roads, paths, squares, gardens, or other open spaces, with sewers, &c. See also sect. 25 of the Act, and the Settled Estates Act, 1877. By the Trustee Act, 1893, s. 19, powers are conferred on the trustees of renewable leaseholds to renew the same, and to raise money to meet the fines on renewal.

Powers to trustees pending conversion by reference to Settled Land Acts.

My trustees may exercise over or in relation to all or any real and leasehold hereditaments for the time being vested in them on the trusts of this my will or any undivided share or shares thereof all such powers of leasing and accepting surrenders of leases and entering into varying and rescinding contracts in that behalf and powers incidental or subsidiary thereto respectively and all such other powers of every description applicable to the premises as are by the Settled Land Acts 1882 to 1890 conferred on tenants for life.

Power to lend money to builders.

I EMPOWER my trustees to advance any sum or sums of money out of my residuary personal estate to any person or persons who shall contract to purchase or take on lease any part of the said trust premises for building purposes such advances respectively to be secured by way of mortgage or otherwise as my trustees shall deem sufficient.

Power to mortgage or sell, for enfranchising copyholds, or purchasing fee of leaseholds.

I EMPOWER my trustees by and out of the rents and profits of the said trust premises or by mortgaging or selling the same premises or any part thereof under the powers for such purposes hereinafter contained or either of them to enfranchise or purchase the fee simple of any copyhold or leasehold tenements forming part of the said trust premises and to cause the same to be settled and assured upon the trusts hereinbefore declared of and concerning the said trust premises.

Building land. Special powers for its development.

I EMPOWER my trustees upon any such sale or sales lease or leases as are authorized by this my will or in contemplation thereof to enter into such covenants and to require such covenants to be entered into of a mutual character restrictive or otherwise for the better enjoyment of the lands sold and retained or of lands sold to different persons only as my trustees shall think proper And for the purposes of any streets or open spaces which they may lay out to pull down any buildings standing on my said estates and to sell or use the materials thereof the moneys arising therefrom when received to be held upon and for the trusts and purposes herein expressed and declared of and concerning the moneys to arise from the sale of my said trust estates And for all or any of the purposes aforesaid to enter into make execute and concur in all such contracts conveyances and assurances as my trustees shall think proper and to alter vary or modify on terms or gratuitously any such contracts conveyances and assurances.

I DECLARE that it shall be lawful for my trustees in the execution of the power of [or trust for] sale hereinbefore contained to sell my real estates either subject to or discharged from the mortgages affecting the same respectively and in case the said estates or any part thereof shall be sold discharged from the said mortgages then to apply a competent part of the money to arise from the sale of the same estates in or towards payment of the said mortgages respectively And that my trustees shall have full discretionary power and authority to take such measures and make such arrangements in relation to the said mortgages respectively either by paying off the same and taking transfers or assignments thereof or by obtaining advances from other persons upon transfers thereof or by way of indemnity or otherwise as shall be deemed necessary or convenient and to pay all costs charges and expenses incident to such measures or arrangements out of the capital moneys which shall come to their hands by virtue of this my will.

Proviso as to mortgages and costs of transfer.

I DECLARE that from and after the death of the survivor of my wife and brother M. P and the failure of the limitations hereinbefore contained in favour of my child or children and the issue of such child or children and subject and without prejudice to the annuity or yearly rent-charge of £—— hereinbefore limited to my nephew W. P for his life my said hereditaments shall stand charged with the payment to each of my nephews [names] who for the time being shall not be beneficially entitled to the possession or the receipt of the rents issues and profits of my said hereditaments or any part or share thereof under or by virtue of the limitations hereinbefore contained of an annuity or yearly rent-charge of £—— to be issuing out of my said hereditaments and to be payable until the death of such nephew or until he shall be so entitled as aforesaid whichever event shall first happen and to be paid in even portions half-yearly clear of all deductions payment.

Deferred annuities to nephews, subject to prior limitations and annuity.

except property tax if then payable and the first payment thereof (u) to be made at the end of six calendar months next after the death of the survivor of my wife and the said M. P. and the failure of the limitations hereinbefore contained in favour of my child or children and the issue of such child or children.

(u) See Re Bywater, 18 Ch. D. 17, where deferred annuities were given, and the direction as to the first payment was inconsistent with the prior gift.

Policies of assurance.

I EMPOWER my trustees notwithstanding the trust for sale hereinbefore contained to postpone for such period as they may deem advisable the sale of all or any of the policies of assurance on lives which may belong to me at my death [or the policies on the lives of A. of &c. B. of &c. and C. of &c.] and to pay the premiums on such policies respectively out of the annual income of my residuary estate and to receive in cash the bonuses already accrued or hereafter to accrue thereon respectively which when received shall be held and disposed of as part of the corpus of the moneys to arise from the sale of my residuary estate or to surrender such bonuses as aforesaid or any of them in consideration of a proportionate decrease in the said premiums respectively or to allow such bonuses to be added to the policy moneys and in a case of a sale or disposition of the said policies to sell or dispose of the same respectively either by way of surrender to the office in consideration of a gross sum of money or in consideration of new policies for sums to be agreed upon on the lives respectively assured payable on the dropping of such lives respectively but without premiums in the meantime.

trustees to carry on a farming business.

I AUTHORIZE my trustees while any son of mine is under age or any daughter of mine is under age and unmarried or for such shorter period as they shall think fit to carry on my farming and grazing business and for that purpose to retain unsold all or such parts as they shall think fit of my household furniture plate household linen china books and other household effects carriages carts waggons vans motor-cars horses saddles harness and stable and garage furniture and effects and my dairy utensils implements of husbandry farming effects crops and live and dead stock with full discretionary powers as to insurance alteration disposition and increase or diminution of capital or stock and purchase and sale of stock whether live or dead employment of bailiffs stewards agents servants labourers and workmen and their salaries remuneration privileges powers and authorities and the extent of personal superintendence to be exercised by my trustees And I authorize my trustees in their discretion to accept a fresh lease or fresh leases of any leasehold farm or farms which I may hold at my death or to take on lease any other farm or farms for such term and on such conditions as they may think expedient And to take possession of and use in such business any unsold freehold or customary lands and property And generally to act in the management of such farming and grazing business and to use my real and personal property therein as if they were absolute owners or owner thereof AND I declare that my trustees shall be free from all responsibility and be fully indemnified out of my residuary estate in respect of any loss arising in relation thereto and shall have power to determine what part of the produce and moneys arising from the carrying on of such farm or farms shall be treated and applied as capital and what part as income and such determination shall be binding and conclusive on all persons interested under this my will or any codicil hereto.

I EMPOWER my trustees to apply all or any part of the income arising from the expectant or presumptive share of any child or issue of mine in any part of my property after the death of the preceding owner for life thereof if any for the maintenance (x) education and benefit of each such child or issue And I direct my trustees to invest and accumulate the unapplied income in augmentation of the capital of such share I also authorize my trustees to apply but with the consent of the life owner if any for the time being any part not exceeding one-half of the expectant presumptive or vested share of any person under this my will for his or her advancement in the world or benefit And I empower my trustees for the purposes aforesaid to pay such income or the money so to be raised unto the parent or guardian for the time being of any such minor as aforesaid without being in anywise answerable for the application thereof.

Maintenance.

Advancement.Payment to parent or guardian.

(x) Notwithstanding sect. 43 of the Conveyancing Act, which provides for the application by trustees of the income of property held by them in trust for an infant for the maintenance, education, or benefit of the infant and accumulation of surplus income, clauses providing for these objects will be required if the vesting is limited to take place after the age of twenty-one years, or where the whole income is subject to a prior trust for accumulation, or where the income would not go with the capital. See notes to sect. 43 in Wolstenholme's Conv. Acts.

ment.

I DIRECT that my trustees with the consent of my wife if she be living and after her death in their own discretion may advance for the benefit of each of my children a moiety or less of such child's expectant share.

Trustee to determine the value of the share of each beneficiary.

I DECLARE that in order to render the power of advancement hereinbefore contained available in respect of the share of each or any child grandchild or other issue of the said A. B. of and in the said hereditaments and premises hereinbefore devised before the sale of the whole thereof it shall be lawful for my trustees with such consent or in such discretion as aforesaid to determine the value of such share and to raise the whole or any part of such value by exercising the powers of mortgaging and charging hereinafter contained and to apply the money to be so raised pursuant to the power of advancement hereinbefore contained but so that the total amount of the money to be applied for the advancement of any one such child grandchild or other issue shall not in the opinion of my trustees exceed one-half of the value of his or her vested or presumptive share of the said trust fund.

appropriation towards share.

I EMPOWER my trustees at any time or times in their discretion to appropriate any part of my residuary estate in its then actual condition or state of investment in or towards satisfaction of any share in my residuary estate and for that purpose to determine the value of such residuary estate or any part or parts thereof in any manner they think fit (y).

Maintenance
by a percentage on portions.

AND I DIRECT that the trustees or trustee for the time being of the same term shall raise and apply for the maintenance and education of my child or children presumptively entitled to a portion or portions under the said settlement and this my will interest upon their respective portions in manner following that is to say for each son under the age of twelve years interest after the rate of one per cent. per annum for each son above the age of twelve years and under the age of sixteen years two per cent.

per annum and for each son above the age of sixteen years three per cent. per annum and for each daughter under the age of twelve years one per cent. per annum and for each daughter above the age of twelve years three per cent. per annum until their respective portions shall become vested or they respectively shall previously die.

I DECLARE that the sum of £—— which I have applied for the benefit of my said son —— shall be taken as a satisfaction to that extent of the portion provided for him by my will and further that all other advances which I may hereafter make for the benefit of any of my children to the amount at any one time of £—— shall be in part satisfaction of the portions hereby provided for them (z).

Advancements in testator's lifetime to be brought into account.

(z) A fee paid to an architect by the testator to enable his son to learn the business is not an "advancement" for the benefit of the son and need not be accounted for, Re Watney, 56 S. J. 109.

I DECLARE that notwithstanding any rule of law or equity to the contrary my funeral and testamentary expenses and debts inclusive of the interest on such debts which may have accrued due from me at the date of my death and all instalments on account of any principal money payable out of my estate shall as between the persons entitled in possession and reversion respectively to the trust premises or any part thereof under the trusts hereinbefore declared be charged to and payable exclusively out of capital And that all interest on such debts and all annuities yearly rents and other periodical payments payable out of my estate not being instalments of principal money shall be charged to and payable exclusively out of income.

Clause excluding rule in Allhusen v. Whittell (a).

(a) The principle of Allhusen v. Whittell, L. R. 4 Eq. 295; 36 L. J. Ch. 929, is that intermediate income of what is eaten up before the ascertainment of residue cannot itself be income of residue or payable, as such, to a tenant for life of residue, Re McEuen, 1913, 2 Ch. 704. The principle or rule applies to realty, Marshall v. Crowther, 2 Ch. D. 199. See note (d) to Prec. 15. And as to the mode in which the calculation should be made, see Law Quarterly Review, vol. xxx., No. 120, p. 481, and vol. xxxii., No. 126, p. 208, where the following clause, which might be adopted instead of the one above, is suggested:—

"I direct my executors in applying the rules of law for ascertainment as between life owner and remainderman of the true residue of a testator's estate to exclude for the purposes of adjustment the income derived from capital required to pay debts, legacies, and other similar deductions to the intent (where the circumstances admit adjustment on this basis) that the life owner shall simply be debited with interest on such deductions from my death until payment thereof respectively."

Marriage
to be with consent of parents or guardians.

I DECLARE that the marriage after my death of any and every infant female beneficiary under this my will in order that her interest under the trusts hereinbefore declared may vest on such marriage shall be solemnised with the prior consent in writing of the parents or parent guardians or guardian for the time being of such infant.

Land till sold to be considered as money.

Rents and profits till
sale.

I FURTHER DECLARE that in the meantime until the sale of the real estate hereinbefore devised in trust for sale (b) the same shall for the purposes of transmission be impressed with the quality of personal estate from the time of my death and that the rents and profits thereof shall be applied by my trustees as if the same were income arising from investments of the proceeds of such sale.

(b) Unless there is an imperative trust for sale a mere declaration will not cause conversion, Re Walker, 1908, 2 Ch. 705, 712; 77 L. J. Ch. 755.

Confirmation of marriage
settlement.

I CONFIRM the settlement made on my marriage with my wife [name] and I declare that the provisions which by this my will or any codicil hereto are made for my said wife and children [and other issue] are to be in addition to and not in satisfaction of those contained in the said settlement (c).

(c) See note (b) to Prec. 15.

Provision in satisfaction
of wife's jointure.

I DECLARE that the provision hereby made for my said wife is intended to be in satisfaction of the jointure to which she will be entitled after my death by virtue of the settlement made upon our marriage and that the said provision is made upon condition that she do at the request of my trustees but at the cost of my estate effectually release the hereditaments charged with the said jointure from all claims and demands in respect thereof.

Accruing
shares,
general direction as to.

I SUBJECT the accruing shares of each of my daughters under the trusts of this my will to all the trusts herein contained concerning the original sum of £— hereby given to or in trust for each daughter inclusive of this clause.

I EMPOWER my trustees notwithstanding anything hereinbefore contained at their discretion to continue all or any part of my personal estate in the state or upon the investments in or upon which the same shall be at the time of my death however doubtful or hazardous (d) or limited the description or nature of the property or investment may be or otherwise to call in and compel payment to sell and dispose of the same and to lay out and invest the moneys to be thereby raised and all other moneys to be from time to time received by them under the trusts or powers herein declared and contained in their names in some authorized trust investment or investments which investment or investments so to be made by my trustees and the annual income thereof shall be held under and subject to the same trusts as the trust premises for which the same shall be substituted were or would have been liable to under this my will.

Power to postpone conversion of hazardous investments.

Investment.

(d) This power is necessary in the case of a testator who leaves shares or other speculative property which at the time of his death may be at a low price or almost unsaleable in the market, but as to which reasonable expectation may be entertained of an increase in value. In the absence of such power the prima facie rule is that executors must realise the depreciated investments within twelve calendar months after the testator's death, see Hughes v. Empson, 22 Be. 181; Grayburn v. Clarkson, L. R. 3 Ch. 605; 37 L. J. Ch. 550; Marsden v. Kent, 5 Ch. D. 598; 46 L. J. Ch. 497.

Shares and other speculative property.

I EMPOWER my trustees to accept the surrender of any lease or otherwise to discharge any tenant of the said trust premises and to compound or allow time for the payment of or absolutely to abandon and release any arrear of rents or any debts due to my estate and to satisfy or settle all demands against my estate whether supported by strictly legal evidence and whether barred by any statutory or other limitation or not and to refer any matter in difference relating to my estate to arbitration and generally to settle and determine all accounts and disputes relating to my estate in such manner and on such terms as my trustees shall deem expedient AND I EMPOWER my trustees to employ such agents collectors of rents and debts and other persons in and about the management of the said trust premises respectively and to pay them such salaries and remuneration as my trustees shall think fit.

General
powers of management.

Power to determine between capital and income,
questions, &c.

I DECLARE that my trustees shall have the fullest powers of determining what articles pass under any specific bequest in this my will or any codicil hereto and of apportioning blended trust funds and of determining whether any moneys ought to be treated as income or capital and generally of determining all matters as to which any doubt difficulty or question may arise under or in relation to the execution of the trusts of this my will or any codicil hereto and I declare that every determination aforesaid whether made upon a question formally or actually raised or implied in any of the acts or proceedings of my trustees in relation to the premises shall bind all parties interested under this my will or any codicil hereto and shall not be objected to or questioned on any ground whatsoever.

Condition
not to dispute will.

I DECLARE that if the said A. B. or any person in his name or on his behalf or any person claiming through under or in trust for him shall at any time during the life of the said A. B. or within twenty-one years after his death dispute the validity of this my will (e) or of any of the dispositions herein or in any codicil hereto contained or if the said A. B. or any such person as aforesaid shall at any time during such period as aforesaid refuse to confirm this my will or any codicil hereto or to do such acts and things as of the said A. B. or such person as aforesaid can be reasonably demanded for giving full effect to all or any of such dispositions or if any proceeding whatsoever shall at any time during such period as aforesaid be taken with the consent or connivance of the said A. B. or any such person as aforesaid by means or in consequence of which any estate or interest could be in any way attainable by the said A. B. or any person in his right of larger extent or value than is or shall be by this my will or any codicil hereto given to the said A. B. and such proceeding shall not be formally and at once disavowed stayed or resisted by the said A. B. to the full extent of his power and ability to do so THEN and in any such case all the dispositions herein or in any codicil hereto contained in favour of the said A. B. shall cease and be void to all intents and purposes whatsoever and are hereby revoked accordingly AND (in the event lastly hereinbefore contemplated) as to all the real estates so forfeited as aforesaid I GIVE and devise the same unto the said P. and Q. [trustees of will] to hold in the same manner and subject to the same trusts powers provisoes and limitations as are herein declared provided and limited of or concerning my residuary real estate AND as to all the personal estate so forfeited as aforesaid I GIVE and bequeath the same unto Z. his executors administrators and assigns absolutely.

(e) In reference to conditions of this class, which are often found in wills, but the validity of which has been a good deal questioned, it may be observed that a condition not to dispute a will is, as to personalty, void unless there is a gift over, Cleaver v. Spurling, 2 P. W. 528. See Jarm. Wills, 1548. Condition not to dispute validity of will.

I DECLARE that the several devisees of my real estate shall take the same exonerated from any mortgage debts or debt which at the time of my death may affect the said real estate or any part thereof and that all such debts shall be considered as exclusively charged on my residuary estate. Clause negating the operation of Locke King's Act (f).

(f) See note (a), Prec. 16.

I DECLARE that no apportionment shall take place of rents of any of my real estate which shall be current or accruing at the time of my death (g). Clauses negating apportionment of rents, &c., current at death.

(g) See the note on apportionment, note (g), Prec. 8.

I DECLARE that as between the several devisees and specific legatees under this my will on the one hand and my executors on the other hand there shall not be any apportionment of rents dividends or other periodical payments current at the time of my death.

I DECLARE that as between the capital and income of my estate rents dividends or other periodical payments current at the time of my death (except interest on money lent) shall not be apportionable.

I Mary Johnson of Sheffield spinster by this my will made this — day of — 19— give all my realty and personalty to my sister Jane Johnson whom I appoint my executor In witness &c. Mutual wills (h).

I Jane Johnson of Liverpool spinster by this my will made this — day of — 19— give all my realty and personalty to my sister Mary Johnson whom I appoint my executor In witness &c.

Mutual wills and joint wills.

(h) Mutual wills, i.e. separate instruments made by two persons in favour of each other, must not be confounded with a joint will, i.e. a single instrument made by two persons, and intended by them to operate as the will of both. The term "mutual will" is sometimes applied to the latter kind of instrument; but the law of this country is said not to recognise such a document as a will, Hobson v. Blackburn, 1 Add. 274; and see Wms. Exors. 7; though it may be valid in equity as a contract, Dufour v. Pereira, 1 Dick. 419. As to the binding nature of an agreement to make mutual wills, see Stone v. Hoskins, 1905, P. 194; 74 L. J. P. 110.

A joint will made by two persons was admitted to probate as to so much of it as became operative on the first death in In b. Piazz-Smyth, 1898, P. 7; 67 L. J. P. 4. Where two joint tenants agreed to make, and did make, mutual wills, each in favour of the other for life, this effected a severance of the joint tenancy, Re Wilford's Estate, 11 Ch. D. 267; 18 L. J. Ch. 243; In b. Heys, 1914, P. 192; 83 L. J. P. 152.

Survivorship.

Where a person dies possessed of real or personal estate, the heir-at-law or the next of kin respectively is entitled, unless the property can be shown to have passed to another by a valid and effectual disposition or by survivorship. See Prec. 31, ante. There is no presumption of law as to survivorship or simultaneous death. In each case it is a question of evidence, Wing v. Angrave, 8 H. L. C. 188; 30 L. J. (N. S.) Ch. 65. Where husband and wife, after executing mutual wills, each for the benefit of the other, were both drowned at sea, and there was no evidence of survivorship, survivorship was not presumed and the wills failed, In b. Alston, 1892, P. 142; 61 L. J. P. 92.

THIS IS A CODICIL to the will of me — which will bears date the — day of — 19— WHEREAS since the date of the said will I have intermarried with — Now I HEREBY give to my wife for her life the annual sum of £— to begin from the day of my death and to be paid to her by equal half-yearly payments and I declare that my children by her shall participate equally with my other children in my general real and personal estate according to the trusts of my will In all other respects I CONFIRM the said will Dated this — day of — 19—.

Codicil made after marriage.

WHEREAS I A. B. of — made my will dated the — day of — 19— and have since revoked the same Now I hereby ANNUL such revocation and DECLARE that the said will is valid and subsisting Dated this — day of — 19—.

Codicil reviving a will previously revoked.

Codicil.

THIS IS A CODICIL to the will dated the — day of — 19— of me A. B. of &c. My son W. having since the date of my said will died without leaving issue I DIRECT that the property comprised in the specific and pecuniary devises and bequests contained in my said will to or in favour of my said son W. shall fall into my residuary estate AND that my said will shall take effect as if in the residuary devise and bequest (n) therein contained the names of my two children T. and H. were substituted for the names of my three children the said W. T. and H. I CONFIRM my said will in all other respects Dated this — day of — 19—.

(n) In this case, if the testator, who had by his will given his residuary real and personal estate equally amongst his three sons by name, had died without making this codicil, the death, in his lifetime, of one of the three sons, without leaving issue who survive the testator, would have caused an intestacy as to one-third of the residue.

APPENDIX.

I.

THE following enactment is not repealed by the Wills Act,
1 Vict. c. 26.

TESTAMENTARY GUARDIANS: The 12 Car. 2, c. 24, s. 8 (see ante, p. 238), enacts, "That where any person hath or shall have any child or children under the age of twenty-one years and not married at the time of his death, that it shall and may be lawful to and for the father of such child or children, whether born at the time of the decease of the father, or at that time in ventre sa mère [or whether such father be within the age of twenty-one years, or of full age], by his deed executed in his lifetime, or by his last will and testament in writing, in the presence of two or more credible witnesses, in such manner and from time to time as he shall respectively think fit, to dispose of the custody and tuition of such child or children for and during such time as he or they shall respectively remain under the age of twenty-one years or any lesser time, to any person or persons in possession or remainder, other than popish recusants; and that such disposition of the custody of such child or children made since the 24th of February, 1645, or hereafter [i.e. after 1660] to be made, shall be good and effectual against all and every person or persons claiming the custody or tuition of such child or children as guardian in socage or otherwise: And that such person or persons, to whom the custody of such child or children hath been or shall be so disposed or devised as aforesaid, shall and may maintain an action of ravishment of ward or trespass, against any person or persons who shall wrongfully take away or detain such child or children, for the recovery of such child or children; and shall and may recover damages for the same in the said action, for the use and benefit of such child or children."

12 Car. 2,
c. 24.
Fathers may dispose of custody of infants by deed or will.

The 9th section enacts, "That such person or persons, to whom the custody of such child or children hath been or shall be so disposed or devised, shall and may take into his or their custody, to the use of such child or children, the profits of all lands, tenements and hereditaments of such child or children; and also the estate of infants by their guardians.

custody, tuition and management of the goods, chattels and personal estate of such child or children, till their respective age of twenty-one years, or any lesser time, according to such disposition aforesaid; and may bring such action or actions in relation thereunto, as by law a guardian in common socage might do."

But sect. 10 provides, "That this Act, or anything therein contained, shall not extend to alter or prejudice the custom of the City of London, nor of any other city or town corporate, or of the town of Berwick-upon-Tweed, concerning orphans; nor to discharge any apprentice from his apprenticeship."

These enactments remain in force, except as to the italicised passage in brackets in sect. 8.

See also the Guardianship of Infants Act, 1886 (ante, p. 239). And see as to the power to appoint guardians in wills under sect. 11 of the Wills Act, the Wills (Soldiers and Sailors) Act, 1918, s. 4 (ante, p. 29).

II.

ON DOMICILE.

THE law of movables follows the law of the owner's domicile (mobilia sequuntur personam). The law of immovables is that of the country in which the property is situate (lex loci rei sitæ). A will disposing of real estate must therefore be executed with the forms required by the law of the country in which such estate is situate, and this applies equally to the disposition of leaseholds for years situated in England, Freke v. Lord Carbery, L. R. 16 Eq. 461; and see Duncan v. Lawson, 41 Ch. D. 394; 58 L. J. Ch. 502; Pepin v. Bruyère, 1902, 1 Ch. 24; 71 L. J. Ch. 39; Re Grassi, 1905, 1 Ch. 584; 74 L. J. Ch. 341; and Jarm. Wills, ch. 1.

Personalty governed by lex domicilii.
 Realty by lex loci rei sitæ.

Domicile is distinct from allegiance. Every person at his birth becomes the subject of some particular country by the tie of natural allegiance, which fixes his political status, and becomes subject to the law of domicile, which determines his civil status. There is the same distinction between allegiance and domicile as between patria and domicilium. Though a man may change his domicile as often as he pleases, he could not, before the Naturalization Act, 1870 (33 & 34 Vict. c. 14, s. 6), cast off his natural allegiance. And see now the British Nationality and Status of Aliens Acts, 1914 and 1918 (4 & 5 Geo. 5, c. 17, and 8 & 9 Geo. 5, c. 13), and ss. 13, 14, 15, and 16 of the former.

Domicile and allegiance, distinct.

By the Roman law a man might be without a domicile (see J. G. Phil., Prin. Jurisp. 164); but the English law considers every person as domiciled somewhere or other.

Domicile is of three kinds: 1. Of birth or origin; 2. By operation of law; 3. Of choice (R. Phil. Dom. 13; see also Sto. Conf. Laws, ch. 3; Westlake, Intern. Law, ch. 3).

Domicile, of three kinds.

"Domicile" answers very much to the common meaning of our word "home," and where a person possesses two residences, the phrase "he made the latter his home," would point out the latter to be his domicile (Phil. Dom. 13). But see Dicey, Conflict of Laws, 68, 90—93.

1. Domicile of birth or origin—

The domicile of origin is that arising from a man's birth and connexions. It is involuntary, the creation of law, not of the person.

Domicile of origin.

The law attributes to every child, as soon as he is born, the domicile of his father if the child be legitimate, of his mother if the child be illegitimate.

DOMICILE.

If a child is born while its parents are on a journey, or temporarily absent from home, the parent's domicile, and not the accidental place of birth, is the domicile of the child; Phil. Dom. 25; Somerville v. Somerville, 5 Ves. 750, 786—7.

Domicile of origin revives and exists whenever there is no other domicile. It may be extinguished by act of law, but cannot be destroyed by the will or act of the man himself, Udny v. Udny, L. R. 1 Sc. App. 441.

2. Domicile by operation of law—

Domicile by operation
of law.
Wife.

This head comprises those who are under the control, and to whom the law gives the domicile, of another, and those on whom the State fixes a domicile. For example—The wife's domicile is that of her husband, Phil. Dom. 27—36; Westlake, Intern. Law, 325; Dalhousie v. M'Douall, 7 C. & F. 817; Bremer v. Freeman, 10 Moo. P. C. 306; Yelverton v. Yelverton, 1 Sw. & Tr. 574; 29 L. J. P. 34; and this is the case, even though they are living apart, Warrender v. Warrender, 2 C. & F. 488; Whitcomb v. Whitcomb, 2 Cur. 351; Re Daly's Settlement, 25 Be. 456; 27 L. J. Ch. 751. After the death of her husband, the widow retains his domicile until she acquires another, Gout v. Zimmermann, 5 No. Cas. 440. A divorced woman, Williams v. Dormer, 2 Rob. 505, and also, it is conceived, one judicially separated from her husband (since by 20 & 21 Vict. c. 85, s. 7, a judicial separation has "the same force and the same consequences as a divorce a mensâ et thoro"; see Dolphin v. Robins, 7 H. L. C. 390; 29 L. J. P. 11; Re Mackenzie, 1911, 1 Ch. 578; 80 L. J. Ch. 443), has the option of taking a new domicile, but until she exercises this option, her marital domicile is not changed. As to whether a wife who is deserted by her husband can acquire a domicile of her own, see Le Sueur v. Le Sueur, 1 P. D. 139; 45 L. J. P. 73.

Minor.

The domicile of a legitimate unemancipated minor is that of the father, or of the mother during widowhood, if the minor resides with the mother, Re Beaumont, 1893, 3 Ch. 490; 62 L. J. Ch. 923; or (though this is disputed) of the guardian, Phil. Dom. 37—54; Westlake, Intern. Law, 323. Of his own accord a minor cannot change his domicile, Somerville v. Somerville, 5 Ves. 750, 787; but if the mother acquire a new domicile (as by a second marriage), it is usually communicated to an infant residing with her, Re Beaumont, 1893, 3 Ch. 490, 497; 62 L. J. Ch. 923, but not necessarily; see Dicey, Conflict of Laws, 130. The mother on her second marriage may abstain from changing the domicile of her infant children, Re Beaumont, 1893, 3 Ch. 490; 62 L. J. Ch. 923; and it has been said that the guardian also has the power of changing the domicile of his ward, provided it be done sine malâ fide, see 3 Mer. 80; West- lake, Intern. Law, 324; see also Stuart v. Moore, 4 Macq. 1; Stuart v. Marquis of Bute, 9 H. L. C. 440; though this power of the guardian is doubtful, Douglas v. Douglas, L. R. 12 Eq. 617; 41 L. J. Ch. 74. A legacy bequeathed to an infant domiciled abroad may be paid when the infant becomes of age by the law of England or of the place of domicile, whichever first happens; and in the meantime must be dealt with in the usual way as an infant's legacy, although by the law of the place of domicile the guardian of the infant is entitled to receive the legacy, Re Hellman's Will, L. R. 2 Eq. 363; 39 L. J. (N. S.) Ch. 760.

Marriage emancipates a minor, and gives him the power of choosing a new domicile; so by accepting an office from which he is not removable, or by entering into a house of commerce with the consent of those under whose control he is, a minor becomes emancipated, and capable of acquiring a domicile of his own. But, for a complete and perfect emancipation, the relation contracted by the minor must be one which wholly and permanently excludes the parental control, Rex v. Wilmington, 5 B. & Al. 525. A soldier or marine is emancipated by his entry into the service of the Crown; but in such a case the parental authority is suspended only, not destroyed, and if the service of the Crown should cease before the age of twenty-one is attained, the parental control revives, Rex v. Walpole St. Peter's, cited in Rex v. Woburn, 8 T. R. 479; Rex v. Rotherfield Greys, 1 B. & C. 345. But voluntary entrance into a local militia, Reg. v. Scammonden, 8 Q. B. 319; 15 L. J. M. C. 30; or a police force, Reg. v. Selborne, 29 L. J. M. C. 56; or the service of the captain of a merchant ship, Rex v. Lytchet Matravers, 7 B. & C. 226; 6 L. J. M. C. O. S. 11, does not emancipate a minor.

The domicile of a posthumous, or of an illegitimate, minor is that of the mother: if the parents are unknown, it is the place of birth or discovery of the child, Westlake, Intern. Law, 324.

One who sojourns in a particular place for the purpose of prosecuting his studies does not acquire a domicile in that place, Phil. Dom. 54.

It would seem that a lunatic retains the domicile which he possessed when he began to be legally treated as insane, Dicey, Conflict of Laws, 149.

As a general rule, a domestic servant preserves the domicile which he possessed before entering into service; but this is a question depending upon the particular circumstances of each case, Phil. 57—60; and à fortiori in any other kind of service the circumstances must be taken into account as criteria of the animus manendi.

The holder of an office of a temporary and revocable nature does not change his original domicile, Attorney-General v. Rowe, 1 H. & C. 31; but if the office be not revocable, and its duties necessitate residence in a particular place, then the holder of such

DOMICILE. office acquires a domicile at that place, Phil. 61—79. The residence required must, however, be constant, and not occasional merely, Somerville v. Somerville, 5 Ves. 750.

Military or naval officer. Thus the civil and military officers of the late E. I. C. acquired an Indian domicile, Munroe v. Douglas, 5 Mad. 379, 404; Bruce v. Bruce, 6 Br. P. 566; 2 B. & P. 229 n.; Craigie v. Lewin, 3 Cur. 435; Hepburn v. Skirving, 9 W. R. 764; but the domicile of an officer in the general service of the Crown is unchanged by his serving in foreign parts, Phil. 78, 79; Attorney-General v. Pottinger, 6 H. & N. 733; 30 L. J. Ex. 284; and this applies to an acquired domicile as well as to a domicile of origin, Re Macreight, 30 Ch. D. 165; 55 L. J. Ch. 28. And in the case of an officer, in the service either of the Crown or of the E. I. C., absent on furlough, and many years resident abroad, the presumption of law was against the acquisition of a foreign domicile, Hodgson v. De Beauchesne, 12 Moo. P. C. 285. But the presumption, raised by the continuing on half-pay in the navy, against a change of domicile may be rebutted, Cockrell v. Cockrell, 25 L. J. Ch. 730.

Persons who enter the military service of a foreign state acquire a domicile in that state, Ommaney v. Bingham, before H. of L., 18th March, 1796; see 5 Ves. 757, but (as between the different countries which together constitute the United Kingdom) it seems that subjects of the King do not, by entering the service of the Crown, acquire an English domicile, but retain their domicile of origin. Thus, a domiciled Irishman by entering the Royal Artillery, Yelverton v. Yelverton, 1 Sw. & Tr. 574; 29 L. J. P. 34; and a Jerseyman by entering the Royal Navy, In b. Patten, 6 Jur. N. S. 151, did not acquire a domicile in England. See also Re Mitchell, 13 Q. B. D. 418; 53 L. J. Ch. 1067, where these cases were approved and followed.

Ambassador. An ambassador preserves the domicile of the country which he represents and to which he belongs, and this privilege extends to those resident with him, Phil. 79—86. But a person who has acquired a foreign domicile does not revive his domicile of origin by accepting an appointment as ambassador from his native country to that in which he has acquired his domicile, Heath v. Samson, 14 Be. 441. So, also, a Portuguese, who had acquired an English domicile, did not lose it by becoming chargé d'affaires in this country for the Portuguese sovereign, Attorney-General v. Kent, 1 H. & C. 12; 31 L. J. Ex. 391.

Consul. Consuls, also, when sent out from one country to represent it in another, retain the domicile of the country which they serve, Westlake, Intern. Law, 343; see, however, Sto. Conf. Laws, 60. But if a government chooses to employ as consul a person already resident in the foreign country, his domicile is not changed by the appointment. As to consuls, see Maltass v. Maltass, 1 Rob.

79; Gout v. Zimmermann, 5 No. Cas. 445; Sharpe v. Crispin, DOMICILE.
L. R. 1 P. & D. 611; 28 L. J. P. 17.

The domicile of a beneficed ecclesiastic is the place where his benefice is situate, Phil. 86. Ecclesiastio.

A prisoner preserves the domicile of his country, Phil. 87; Prisoner.
Burton v. Fisher, 1 Milw. 183. A person transported for life Exile.
lost his original domicile, Phil. 88—90.

A fugitive from his country, on account of civil war, retains his Fugitive. domicile in his native land, Phil. 90—97. And, generally, a domicile will not be lost by constrained residence in a foreign country, In b. Duchesse d'Orléans, 1 Sw. & Tr. 253; 28 L. J. P.
129. But of course a prisoner, exile, fugitive, or emigrant may, by continuing to reside in a country after his power of choice is restored to him, like the minor who resides in a place after his minority has ceased, acquire a domicile therein: see as to the refugee, Collier v. Rivaz, 2 Cur. 855; and as to the acquisition of a domicile during exile, by forming an attachment to the place of exile, Heath v. Samson, 14 Be. 441.

3. Domicile of choice—

Domicile of choice is voluntary, the creation of the person. Of choice.
And it may be taken as a general maxim of European and American law that every person sui juris is at liberty to choose his domicile, and to change it according to his inclination, Phil.
Dom. 98; a peer of the British Parliament may acquire a foreign domicile of choice, Hamilton v. Dallas, 1 Ch. D. 257; 45 L. J. Ch.
15. But as in the Digest it is laid down, that "Domicilium re et facto transfertur, non nudâ contestatione," that facts and actions are required to prove a change of domicile (see J. G. Phil., Prin.
Jurisp. 162), so it is a principle of English law that the domicile of origin must prevail, until the person has manifested and carried into execution an intention of abandoning his former domicile and taking another as his sole domicile, Somerville v. Somer- ville, 5 Ves. 750; Munro v. Munro, 7 C. & F. 812; Lord v.
Colvin, 4 Drew. 366; 28 L. J. Ch. 361; De Bonneval v. De
Bonneval, 1 Cur. 856; Hodgson v. De Beauchesne, 12 Moo. P. C.
285; Crookenden v. Fuller, 1 Sw. & Tr. 441; 29 L. J. P. 1; and to acquire a domicile there must be actual residence in the place chosen, which must be the principal and permanent residence, Dalhousie v. McDouall, 7 C. & F. 817. The domicile of origin adheres until a new domicile is acquired, and the onus of proving a change of domicile is on the party who alleges it,
Bell v. Kennedy, L. R. 1 Sc. App. 307; Attorney-General v.
Countess Blucher de Wahlstatt, 3 H. & C. 374; 34 L. J. Ex.
29. And when a domicile of choice is acquired, the domicile of origin is in abeyance only, but is not extinguished, Udny v.
Udny, L. R. 1 Sc. App. 441. Acquired
domicile.

DOMICILE. An acquired domicile was defined by Kindersley, V.-C., in Lord v. Colvin, 4 Drew. 366; 28 L. J. Ch. 361, as follows:—
Definition. “That place is properly the domicile of a person in which he has voluntarily fixed the habitation of himself and his family, not for a mere special and temporary purpose, but with a present intention of making it his permanent home, unless and until something (which is unexpected, or the happening of which is uncertain) shall occur to induce him to adopt some other permanent home.” But when the same case (nom. Moorhouse v. Lord, 10 H. L. C. 272; 32 L. J. Ch. 295) came before the House of Lords, the Vice-Chancellor’s definition was rejected as being too extensive; it would reach the case of a person of delicate health going to a milder climate with the determination of remaining there until his health was restored; and it omitted one important element, viz. the fixed intent of abandoning one domicile and permanently acquiring another. The change of residence must be accomplished animo et facto; and, briefly, the factum required is a change of residence, voluntarily assumed, and permanent in character, Haldane v. Eckford, L. R. 8 Eq. 631; and the animus required is an intention to settle in a new country as a permanent home, Douglas v. Douglas, L. R. 12 Eq. 617; 41 L. J. Ch. 74.

Residence on account of health.

Where a person resides in a foreign country for the benefit of his health, such residence is not necessarily to be considered a compulsory residence, and a foreign domicile may be acquired, Hoskins v. Matthews, 8 D. M. & G. 13, 28; 25 L. J. Ch. 689. But see Attorney-General v. Fitzgerald, 3 Drew. 610; 25 L. J. Ch. 743; The Lauderdale Peerage, 10 App. Cas. 692, at page 740. But where a native of the United States resided in England for twenty-seven years, always describing himself as an American citizen, and was not able to return to America on account of the state of his health, which rendered a voyage across the Atlantic impracticable, it was held that he had not abandoned his domicile of origin, Winans v. Attorney-General, 1904, A. C. 287; 73 L. J. K. B. 613. And see Huntly (Marchioness) v. Gaskell, 1906, A. C. 56; 75 L. J. P. C. 1.

Evidence as to domicile.

The question of domicile is one of law and fact, J. G. Phil., Prin. Jurisp. 166; but more of fact than of law, Bempde v. Johnstone, 3 Ves. 198, 201; the proof of intention is the turning-point in questions of this nature, J. G. Phil. 167. All the acts of the deceased are taken into consideration as evidence with respect to his domicile. Oral declarations appear to be but slightly esteemed, Doucet v. Geoghegan, 9 Ch. D. 441; but to statements in letters great weight was given in the balance of evidence in Munro v. Munro, 7 C. & F. 842; the locality of a mansion-house kept up by the person whose domicile is in dispute, the place at which his wife and children have resided, the depositaries of his heirlooms, or valuable chattels, or his papers and muniments, his description in legal documents, his possession and exercise of political rights and payment of taxes, the length of time during which he has resided in any one place, have all more or less weight in a case of disputed domicile, Phil. Dom. Ch. 9; Jarm. Wills, ch. 1, iv.; Deane, Wills, 27 et seq.; Lord v. Colvin, 4 Drew. 366; 28 L. J. Ch. 361; Anderson v. Laneville, 9 Moo. P. C. 325; 2 Sw. & Tr. 24; Aitchison v. Dixon, L. R. 10 Eq. 589; 39 L. J. Ch. 705; Brunel v. Brunel, L. R. 12 Eq. 298; Stevenson v. Masson, L. R. 17 Eq. 78; 43 L. J. Ch. 134; Platt v. Attorney-General of New South Wales, 3 App. Cas. 336; 47 L. J. P. C. 26. In Re Tootal's Trusts, 23 Ch. D. 532; 52 L. J. Ch. 664, it was held that the difference between the religion, laws, manners, and customs of the Chinese and of Englishmen is so great as to raise every presumption against such a domicile. But the opinion in that case and the dictum of Lord Watson in Abd-ul-Messih v. Farra, 13 App. Cas. 431, 445, as to domicile in an extra-territorial country have been overruled in Casdagli v. Casdagli, 1919, A. C. 145. See also The Indian Chief, 3 Rob. Adm. 29; Maltass v. Maltass, 1 Rob. Ecc. 67.

Until an acquired domicile is finally abandoned, the domicile of origin does not revive, Craigie v. Lewin, 3 Cur. 435; Gout v. Zimmermann, 5 No. Cas. 440; In b. Bianchi, 3 Sw. & Tr. 16; In b. Raffanel, 3 Sw. & Tr. 49; 32 L. J. P. 203. But the domicile of origin revives the moment the acquired domicile is abandoned; the abandonment of the acquired domicile ipso facto restores the original domicile, and the original domicile remains until a second domicile of choice has been acquired, Udny v. Udny, L. R. 1 Sc. App. 441; King v. Foxwell, 3 Ch. D. 518; 45 L. J. Ch. 693. In order to abandon the domicile of choice and revive the domicile of origin, it is not sufficient for a person to form the intention of leaving the domicile of choice, but he must actually leave it with the intention of leaving it permanently, Re Marrett, 36 Ch. D. 400. And see Drexel v. Drexel, 1916, 1 Ch. 251; 85 L. J. Ch. 235.

And, generally on this subject, see Dicey, Conflict of Laws.

By the jus gentium, the law of the testator's domicile at the time of making his will and of his death (if there is no intermediate change) must govern the form of the will of movables and the solemnities of its execution, Bremer v. Freeman, 10 Moo. P. C. 306; De Bonneval v. De Bonneval, 1 Cur. 856; Dolphin v. Robins, 7 H. L. C. 390; 29 L. J. P. 11; Re Daly's Settlement, 25 Be. 456; 27 L. J. Ch. 751. But until Lord Kingsdown's Act, post (p. 465), where the law of the domicile at the date of the will differed from the law of the domicile at the testator's death, the latter law prevailed, Bremer v. Free- lex domicilii.

DOMICILE. man, ubi sup.; Whicker v. Hume, 7 H. L. C. 124; 28 L. J. Ch. 396.

Power of appointment. A power of appointment by will is validly exercised by a will in accordance with the Wills Act though the person appointing be domiciled abroad and the will be not validly executed according to the law of domicile, Murphy v. Deichler, 1909, A. C. 446; 78 L. J. P. C. 159, or by a will executed in accordance with the law of the testator's domicile, though not with the requirements of the Wills Act, Re Price, 1900, 1 Ch. 442; 69 L. J. Ch. 225; and see Re Simpson, 1916, 1 Ch. 502; 85 L. J. Ch. 329; Re Wilkinson's Settlement, 1917, 1 Ch. 620; 86 L. J. Ch. 511; Re Lewal's Settlement Trusts, 1918, 2 Ch. 391; 87 L. J. Ch. 588. But unless s. 10 of the Wills Act applies to the will exercising a power, the will must be made in strict compliance with the terms of the power, Barretto v. Young, 1900, 2 Ch. 339; 69 L. J. Ch. 605. See Note 20 in the Appendix to Dicey, Conflict of Laws; Jarm. Wills, 800.

That the right to probate in England is regulated by the law of the testator's domicile as it existed at the time of his death, and is not affected by subsequent events, see Lynch v. Provisional Government of Paraguay, L. R. 2 P. & D. 268; 40 L. J. P. 81.

If a foreigner domiciled abroad makes a will limited to English assets, and appoints persons in England for the limited purpose of collecting the English assets and handing them over to the executor of the domicile, the Court will give effect to such a will by granting administration to the persons so appointed in England for the use and benefit of the executor of the domicile, In b. Briesemann, 1894, P. 260; 63 L. J. P. 159. But see In b. Meatyard, 1903, P. 125; 72 L. J. P. 25; In b. Levy, 1908, P. 108; 77 L. J. P. 57. And see Law Quarterly Review, vol. xxix. No. 113, p. 38 et seq.; and In b. Cocquerel, 1918, P. 4; 87 L. J. P. 47.

As to restrictions on dealing with personalty.

Restrictions on the dealing with personalty, imposed by the will of an Englishman domiciled abroad, executed with the forms required by the law of his domicile, if of a nature recognised by the English law, will be upheld by our Courts, even though such restrictions are not recognised by the lex domicilii decedentis, see Peillon v. Brooking, 25 Be. 218; Van Grutten v. Digby, 31 Be. 561; 32 L. J. Ch. 179; Colliss v. Hector, L. R. 19 Eq. 334; 44 L. J. Ch. 267. If a testator directs that his will should be construed according to some law other than that of England in which his will is proved, the Court will give effect to that direction, Bradford v. Young, 29 Ch. D. 617; 54 L. J. Ch. 96.

Legacy duty.

The domicile at the time of his death of an owner of personalty determines whether it is or is not liable to legacy duty; when a British subject or foreigner dies domiciled in England, all his personal estate, wherever situate, is to be regarded as English estate, and therefore liable to duty, Attorney-General

v. Napier , 6 Exch. 217; 20 L. J. Ex. 173; but if he dies domiciled out of England then the whole of his personal property, wherever situate, is to be regarded as situate in the country of domicile, and therefore exempt from legacy duty, Thomson v. Advocate-General , 12 C. & F. 1.	DOMICILE.
Succession duty is not payable on legacies given by the will of a person domiciled in a foreign country, Wallace v. Attorney-General , L. R. 1 Ch. 1; 35 L. J. Ch. 124.	Succession duty.
By the Finance Act, 1894 (57 & 58 Vict. c. 30), estate duty is payable in respect of all property situated in the United Kingdom on the death of a deceased person, whatever may be his domicile at the time of his death. No duty is payable in respect of immovable property situated out of the United Kingdom. As to movable property situated out of the United Kingdom, passing on the death of the deceased, estate duty is payable if, under the law in force before the passing of the Act (31st July, 1894), legacy duty or succession duty is payable in respect thereof.	Estate duty.
In the case of a death after the 30th April, 1909, increment value duty has become payable where the fee simple of land or any interest in land is liable to estate duty, Finance (1909—10) Act, 1910 (10 Edw. 7, c. 8). As to death duties, see Note 8 in the Appendix to Dicey, Conflict of Laws.	Increment value duty.

Ch. 621, a case in which it was held that a child born before marriage of a domiciled Englishman by a French woman was not, by the subsequent marriage in France of the putative father and the mother, made legitimate so as to share in a bequest to children contained in the will of a person domiciled in England. - DOMICILE. country a domicile for the purposes of commerce, see Re Capdevielle, 2 H. & C. 985; 33 L. J. Ex. 306.
- War. In time of war a person is for commercial purposes domiciled in the country where he resides, and a person domiciled in the enemy's country is deemed an alien enemy, Dicey, Conflict of Laws, 740. As to restrictions on aliens in time of war, see Aliens Restrictions Act, 1914 (4 & 5 Geo. 5, c. 12); Princess Thurn and Taxis v. Moffitt, 1915, 1 Ch. 58; 84 L. J. Ch. 220.
- Distribution by the lex domicilii. The doctrine that, in regard to personalty, the lex domicilii prevails, respects only the devolution and distribution of the property, and not the administration thereof: for the Court of Administration is, by our law, regulated by the lex loci rei sitæ; and the estate must be administered in the country in which possession is taken of it under lawful authority, Preston v. Lord Melville, 8 C. & F. 1. See also Re Bonnefoi, 1912, P. 233; 82 L. J. P. 17, and cases there cited.
- Administration by lex loci. The law of domicile, in addition to its influence on the devolution of property by its bearing on the validity of wills, affects such devolution by its bearing on the validity of marriages. The validity of a marriage in England must be decided according to the law of England, though the domicile of one of the contractors is foreign, see Chetti (Venugopal) v. Chetti (Venugopal), 1909, P. 67; 78 L. J. P. 23, and cases there cited; and Rex v. Hamersmith Superintendent Registrar of Marriages, 1917, 1 K. B. 634; 86 L. J. K. B. 210.
- Validity of marriage as affected by domicile. As to marriages abroad within the lines of the British army and marriages of British subjects abroad, see Foreign Marriage Act, 1892 (55 & 56 Vict. c. 23); Hay v. Northcote, 1900, 2 Ch. 262; 69 L. J. Ch. 586; and as to regulations for marriages between British subjects and foreigners, see Marriage with Foreigners Act, 1906 (6 Edw. 7, c. 40). Although the general rule is that the validity of a marriage and the legitimacy of a child are to be determined by the lex domicilii, it was held in Doe v. Vardill, 7 C. & F. 895, that a child in Scotland before marriage of parents domiciled there, though by Scotch law legitimate by reason of the subsequent marriage of the parents, was not capable of taking land in England as heir to his father; and see Re Don's Estate, 4 Drew. 194. But in Re Grey's Trusts, 1892, 3 Ch. 88; 61 L. J. Ch. 622, it was held by Stirling, J., that this rule applies only in case of an intestacy, and does not affect the case of a devise of real estate to "children." A bequest of personalty in an English will to children means to legitimate children. If the bequest is to the children of a foreigner, this means to the legitimate children of the foreigner. To determine who are his legitimate children the domicile of the father must be looked at, Re Grey's Trusts, ubi sup.; and as to "next of kin," see Re Fergusson's Will, 1902, 1 Ch. 483; 71 L. J. Ch. 360. According to English law, where at the time of the birth of an illegitimate child the father has his domicile in England, no subsequent change of domicile can render legitimation practicable, Udny v. Udny, L. R. 1 Sc. App. 441. DOMICILE.

As to marriage, see Dicey, Conflict of Laws, 613; and as to legitimacy, ibid. 479.

In the session of 1861 an Act was passed to amend the law with respect to wills of personalty as affected by the domicile of the testators. By this Act, 24 & 25 Vict. c. 114, called Lord Kingsdown's Act, it is enacted (sect. 1) that every will made out of the United Kingdom by a British subject, whatever may be his domicile at the time of making the same or at his death, shall as regards personalty be held to be well executed for the purpose of being admitted to probate, if the same is made according to the forms required either by the law of the place where the same was made or by the law of the place where the testator was domiciled when the same was made, or by the law then in force in that part of His Majesty's dominions where the testator had his domicile of origin. See Re Grassi, 1905, 1 Ch. 584; 74 L. J. Ch. 341. Such a will is valid, if valid according to the law of the country or place where it is made, although no specific form or forms are prescribed for the making of wills by the law of such country or place, Stokes v. Stokes, 67 L. J. P. 55. Every will made within the United Kingdom (sect. 2) by a British subject, whatever his domicile at the time of making the same or at his death, shall as regards personalty be held to be well executed and admitted to probate or confirmation, if the same is executed according to the forms required by the laws for the time being in force in that part of the United Kingdom where the same is made. No will shall be held to be revoked (sect. 3) or to have become invalid, nor the construction thereof be altered, by reason of any subsequent change of domicile of the testator. Nothing in the Act contained shall (sect. 4) invalidate any will, as regards personalty, which would have been valid if the Act had not passed, except as such will may be revoked or altered by any subsequent will made valid by the Act. The Act extends (sect. 5) only to wills made by persons dying after the 6th August, 1861. 24 & 25 Vict.
c. 114.

When a British subject dies abroad after the passing of this Act, leaving a will executed in England in accordance with the law of England, upon motion for probate it is not necessary to file affidavits showing that he had not acquired a foreign domicile, In b. Rippon, 3 Sw. & Tr. 177; 32 L. J. P. 141.

In determining what papers are testamentary under this Act, the Court has regard to the law of one country only, and will not mix up the legal precepts of different countries, Pechell v. Hilderley, L. R. 1 P & D. 673; 38 L. J. P. 66.

The Act applies to the wills of naturalized British subjects, In b. Gally, 1 P. D. 438; 45 L. J. P. 107; In b. Lacroix, 2

DOMICILE.

P. D. 94; but not to the wills of foreigners executed abroad, In b. Von Buseck, 6 P. D. 211; 51 L. J. P. 9; Bloxam v. Favre, 9 P. D. 130; 53 L. J. P. 26. It has been held that sect. 3 of the Act is not limited in its operation to the wills of British subjects, In b. Groos, 1904, P. 269; 73 L. J. P. 83.

Operation of the Act
24 & 25 Vict.
c. 114.

The operation of this Act may be illustrated by the following examples:—

1. A testator, a British subject, who, at the date of his will, is domiciled in England, makes his will in France; so far as regards personalty (see Re Lyne's Settlement Trusts, 1919, 1 Ch. 80), that will is valid if made according to the forms required by the law either of England or of France.

2. A testator, a British subject, who, at the date of his will, is domiciled in France, makes his will in England; so far as regards personalty (and so far as probate in England is concerned), that will is valid if made according to the forms required by the law of England (by sect. 2) or of France (by sect. 4).

3. A testator, a British subject, whose original domicile was English, who, at the date of the will, is domiciled in France, makes his will in Germany; so far as regards personalty (and so far as probate in England is concerned), that will is valid if made according to the forms required by the law of England, or of France, or of Germany.

4. And in none of the above instances will the will be invalidated by a change of domicile subsequent to the date of the will.

5. This Act leaves untouched the law of devolution of personalty in cases of intestacy as depending upon the law of domicile.

Many of the cases on domicile have arisen in regard to the wills of Scotchmen domiciled, or supposed to be domiciled, in England; and of Englishmen domiciled, or supposed to be domiciled, in Scotland. The 2nd section of the Act operates beneficially in admitting such wills to probate (in England or Ireland) or confirmation (in Scotland) if executed with the forms required by the law of that part of the United Kingdom where the execution takes place, quite irrespective of whether the testator's domicile be English or Scotch. A domiciled Scotchman made a will, afterwards married in Scotland, and subsequently acquired an English domicile which he retained until his death; it was held, under sect. 3, that as the will was valid so long as he remained in Scotland, it was not revoked by the subsequent change of domicile, In b. Reid, L. R. 1 P. & D. 74; 35 L. J. P. 43. And compare Re Martin, 1900, P. 211; 69 L. J. P. 75.

The Wills Act extends to Ireland but not to Scotland. As to Scotland and as to the Colonial law of wills, see Wills Act, ante, sect. 35, and the note thereto.

III.

ON INTESTACY.

THE law of intestacy applies to all property which, capable of being disposed of by will, is not thereby effectively disposed of. It is often advisable for a testator to bear in mind how his property would devolve in the absence of a testamentary disposition of it, and in administering a testator's estate questions frequently arise as to the devolution of property of which, by lapse or otherwise, his will has failed to effect a disposition. Thus in contemplation the law of intestacy will often come before the rules of construction, but in its application after them.

Real property follows the lex loci. Personal property, in which leaseholds are included, follows the law of domicile. All property, real and personal, devolves upon the deceased person's personal representative, who has to pay the debts, funeral and testamentary expenses, and the death duties on the personal property. If the intestate is a woman and dies leaving a husband, the husband takes her personal property jure mariti. If the intestate is a man and dies totally intestate leaving a widow and no issue, the widow is entitled to £500 rateably out of the real and personal estate (Intestates Estates Act, 1890). Subject to the foregoing conditions the surplus of the personal property is distributable amongst the statutory next of kin, and the real property, subject to the possible estate of a husband by curtesy or of a widow in dower, descends to the heir-at-law of the last "purchaser," the heir, that is, in most cases of the person who last acquired the land otherwise than by descent (Inheritance Act, 1833, sects. 1 and 2). See Sanger on Wills and Intestacies, ch. 17, as to descent of realty.

By the Statute of Distributions, 1670 (22 & 23 Car. 2, c. 10), it is provided as follows (a):—

"That all ordinaries and every other person who by this Act is enabled to make distribution of the surplusage of the estate of any person dying intestate, shall distribute the whole surplusage of such estate or estates in manner and form following: that is to say, one-third part of the said surplusage to the wife of the intestate, and all the residue by equal portions, to and amongst

(a) The numbering of the sections is taken from the Statutes at Large. In the Revised Statutes, sects. 5 and 6 are numbered 3, sect. 7 is numbered 4, and sect. 8 is numbered 5.

INTESTACY. the children of such persons dying intestate, and such persons as legally represent such children, in case any of the said children be then dead, other than such child or children (not being heir-at-law) who shall have any estate by the settlement of the intestate, or shall be advanced by the intestate in his lifetime, by portion or portions equal to the share which shall by such distribution be allotted to the other children to whom such distribution is to be made: and in case any child, other than the heir-at-law, who shall have any estate by settlement from the said intestate, or shall be advanced by the said intestate in his lifetime by portion not equal to the share which will be due to the other children by such distribution as aforesaid; then so much of the surplusage of the estate of such intestate, to be distributed to such child or children as shall have any land by settlement from the intestate, or were advanced in the lifetime of the intestate, as shall make the estate of all the said children to be equal as near as can be estimated: but the heir-at-law, notwithstanding any land that he shall have by descent or otherwise from the intestate, is to have an equal part in the distribution with the rest of the children, without any consideration of the value of the land which he hath by descent, or otherwise from the intestate." (Sect. 5.)

"In case there be no children nor any legal representatives of them, then one moiety of the said estate to be allotted to the wife of the intestate, the residue of the said estate to be distributed equally to every of the next of kindred of the intestate, who are in equal degree and those who legally represent them." (Sect. 6.)

"That there be no representations admitted among collaterals after brothers' and sisters' children: and in case there be no wife, then all the said estate to be distributed equally to and amongst the children: and in case there be no child, then to the next of kindred in equal degree of or unto the intestate, and their legal representatives as aforesaid, and in no other manner whatsoever." (Sect. 7.)

And by the statute 1 Jac. 2, c. 17, s. 7, it is provided that—

"If after the death of a father, any of his children shall die intestate without wife or children, in the lifetime of the mother, every brother and sister, and the representatives of them, shall have an equal share with her."

It must be borne in mind that in distributing the estate of a father who dies wholly intestate, any child of his who has received from him any advance or, not being heir-at-law, an estate by settlement must bring the same into hotchpot, Re Natt, 37 Ch. D. 517; 57 L. J. Ch. 797.

The following table as to personalty may be useful for ready reference in the case of intestacy. Authorities, sometimes other than the statutes, are given. And it is in each case assumed that the intestate was domiciled in England (see Appendix II.)

and left no surviving husband and no nearer relative than such as are mentioned. INTESTACY.

In all cases there is no distinction between the half and the whole blood so long as there is a common ancestor, Jessopp v. Watson, 1 M. & K. 665; 2 L. J. (O. S.) Ch. 197; and a person in ventre sa mère at the death of the intestate is to be considered as in esse, Wallis v. Hodson, 2 Atk. 115; Burnet v. Mann, 1 Ves. Sen 156. INTESTACY.

In illustration of the first of these remarks it may be observed that if a man marries twice and dies intestate leaving a widow and two daughters, one by each wife, the two-third shares of children [see 2 in the above Table] are shared equally by the daughters, and if one of them dies intestate after the widow's death the other of them stands in the same position to the one who has died as a sister of the whole blood. But if after the man's death his widow dies intestate, the man's daughter by a former marriage takes nothing on such intestacy, as she is not of kin to the intestate.

Except where notice has been given under sect. 29 of the Law of Property Amendment Act, 1859 (22 & 23 Vict. c. 35), distribution may not be made until the expiration of one year after the intestate's death (22 & 23 Car. 2, c. 10, s. 8); but the distributive shares vest at the death, Davers v. Dewes, 3 P W 40, at 50, note [D]; Browne v. Shore, 1 Show. 25.

IV.

DEPOSITORY FOR WILLS OF LIVING PERSONS.

AMENDED REGULATIONS.

IN pursuance of the provisions of the Court of Probate Act, 1857 (20 & 21 Vict. c. 77, s. 91), the Principal Probate Registry of the High Court of Justice, Somerset House, Strand, London, is the depository now provided for the wills of living persons, and testators are at liberty to deposit their wills or codicils therein, under the following regulations: -

1. The will or codicil to be deposited must be brought into the Record Keeper's Department, and acknowledged as that of the testator before one of the Registrars, either by the testator himself, or by some person specially authorized by him to deposit the same on his behalf.

2. The will or codicil so deposited will not under any circumstances be delivered out of the Registry, nor revoked by destruction.

3. DEPOSIT IN PERSON. —In case the testator himself deposits his will or codicil, he will be required to sign his name, or acknowledge his signature, in the presence of the Registrar, to an endorsement on the envelope in which the will or codicil is enclosed, to the following effect: -

"This sealed packet contains the last will and testament, or codicil to the last will and testament, or last will and testament and codicil thereto, bearing date respectively (here state the dates of all the papers enclosed) of A. B., of, &c., whereof C. D., of, &c., and E. F., of, &c., are appointed executors, and the same are brought into the Principal Probate Registry of the High Court of Justice by me for safe custody, there to remain deposited until after my decease." The residences of the testator and of the executors should be set forth in this endorsement, and also the date of the testator's signature thereto.

4. DEPOSIT BY AGENT. —In case the testator authorizes some other person to deposit his will or codicil for him, he will be required to subscribe his name, in presence of a witness, to an endorsement on the envelope in which the will or codicil is enclosed, to the following effect:—

"This sealed packet contains the last will and testament, or codicil to the last will and testament, or last will and testament and codicil thereto, of me, A. B., of, &c., whereof C. D., of, &c., and E. F., of, &c., are appointed executors, and I authorize G. H. to deposit the same for safe custody in the Principal Probate Registry of the High Court of Justice, there to remain deposited until after my decease." (Signed) A. B. Witness, K. L. The residences of the testator and of the executors should be set forth in this endorsement, and also the date of the testator's signature thereto.

The packet containing the will or codicil must be accompanied by an affidavit of the witness, to the effect that the signature of the testator to the above endorsement, deposed by the witness, is in the proper handwriting of such testator, and was by him signed in the witness's presence on the day mentioned in the endorsement, and that the signature K. L. is in the handwriting of the deponent. An affidavit will also be required from the person authorized to deposit the packet, to the effect that the packet which is produced for the purpose of being deposited for safe custody in the Principal Probate Registry of the High Court of Justice, and on the back of which the deponent has signed his name, is at the time of making the affidavit precisely in the same state, plight, and condition, as when received by the deponent from the hands of A. B. [the testator] on a day to be mentioned as that on which he received it.

The last-mentioned affidavit is to be sworn before the Registrar to whom the packet containing the will or codicil is delivered.

5. In case the testator is a lunatic, his will or codicil may be deposited for or on behalf of the Masters in Lunacy

The Master in Lunacy, or the person depositing the will or codicil on his behalf, will be required to sign his name, or acknowledge his signature in the presence of the Registrar, to an endorsement on the envelope in which the will or codicil is enclosed, to the following effect:—

"This sealed packet contains the last will and testament, or codicil to the last will and testament, or last will and testament and codicil thereto, bearing date respectively (here state the dates of all the papers enclosed) of A. B., now a lunatic, of, &c., whereof C. D., of, &c., and E. F., of, &c., are appointed executors, and the same are brought into the Principal Probate Registry of the High Court of Justice by the Masters in Lunacy for safe custody, there to remain deposited until after the decease of the testator." The residences of the testator and of the executors should be set forth in this endorsement, and also the date of the testator's signature thereto.

6. A minute setting forth the production of the packet containing the will or codicil, and the affidavits (if any), and when and by whom the same were produced, and the declaration of the testator, or his agent, that he deposited the same in the Registry for safe custody, and also acknowledging the receipt of the packet, will be drawn up in duplicate, and will be signed by the Registrar. One copy of this minute will be delivered to the testator, or his agent, and the other will be retained in the Registry.

7. The following fees will be payable in judicature fee stamps:—

	£	s.	d.
For depositing the will and receipt for same.....	0	10	0
For drawing and entering minute of the Registrar	0	2	6
For filing each affidavit .....	0	2	0

8. DEPOSIT THROUGH A DISTRICT REGISTRAR.—Testators are at liberty to transmit their wills and codicils to the Principal Probate Registry, to be deposited there for safe custody, through the Registrar of a District Probate Registry, who will send the same by the general post in a registered letter.

The affidavit of the person authorized by the testator to deposit his will or codicil will, in that case, be sworn before the District Registrar, to whom the packet containing it is delivered.

On production to the District Registrar of the sealed packet containing the will or codicils to be deposited, and the affidavits (if any), he will draw up a certificate in duplicate under his hand, setting forth when and by whom the same were produced to, and left with him. He will deliver one of these certificates to the testator or his agent and retain the other in his District Registry, and he will transmit an office copy of the certificate, with the sealed packet and affidavits, and a form of receipt, to the Principal Registry. The receipt will be returned to him under the hand of one of the Registrars of the Principal Registry.

The following fees will be payable to the District Registrar in addition to the fees before mentioned:—

	£	s.	d.
For his certificate .....	0	2	6
For filing same .....	0	2	6
For office copy of the same to transmit to the Principal Registry .....	0	2	6
For receipt .....	0	1	0

All fees are to be retained in the District Registry.

9. OPENING A DEPOSITED WILL.—On the death of a testator who has deposited a will or codicil during his lifetime, the certificate of death and, when possible, the Registrar's minute or certificate on the deposit must be produced. The executors will be required to attend and acknowledge before one of the Registrars that they are the executors named in the will. They will be sworn to the will (which is not delivered up) before a Commissioner in the Registry.

The following fees will be payable:—

	s.	d.
For filing minute on opening will .....	2	6
For search, if Registrar's minute be not produced...	1	0

10. FORMS AND ENVELOPES.—All forms and envelopes required for deposit of wills are to be had on application at the Record Keeper's Department of the Principal Probate Registry.

Dated the 15th day of May, 1914.

(Signed) S. T. EVANS,
President.

Note.—Wills under which the Public Trustee is appointed may be deposited with him without charge. An official receipt is issued at the Office.
